In his valedictory, Ellis stated Associates had disbursed 200 charity checks in its first year, 400 in its second year and 750 last year. Jack Bowen, new M-G-M district manager, presented the organization with a $600 check, net proceeds of the recent testimonial given him and E. K. O'Shea. Among the speakers stressing the charity work were Major Leslie E. Thompson, vice-president of the Will Rogers Memorial Fund; Sam Rinzler of Randforce, Harry H. Buxbaum of 20th-Fox and Lee.

Jim Frank of National Theatre Supply, who was elected first vice-president, named five directors, including Ellis, Nat Beier of UA, Jack Hattem of Interboro Circuit, Adolph Haas of Alexander Film and David Levy of Universal.

Flu and Weather Whittle Takes

New York—Theatre grosses took a terrific beating during the week as bad weather and influenza played havoc with attendance figures, according to Harry Brandt, head of the circuit bearing his name and the ITOA.

He said Monday night was worse than any summer evening and that he had never seen business so bad.

RKO District Heads Talk Selling Under Decree

NEW YORK—RKO district managers held a one-day meeting at the Waldorf Thursday on a call issued by Ned E. Depinet and there discussed selling policies, including plans to be employed under the decree. Home office executives also attended and addresses were delivered by George J. Schaefer, president, and A. W. Smith jr., general sales manager. Additionally, product for release the remainder of the season was gone over.

In attendance from the field were Herb MacIntyre, Dave Prince, L. E. Goldhammer, Walter Branson, Charles Boasberg, Nat Levy, Gus Schaefer, Bob Wolff and Sol Sachs. Poller, William Dahler, William Horne, Lou Miller, W. J. McShea and E. J. Smith jr.

Newbury Heads N. J. Allied Again Until Convention

TRENTON—Lee Newbury was re-elected president of Allied of New Jersey at a state-wide meeting here, an adjourned session of the organization's 21st convention. He will hold office for a "short" term, or until the next convention early this fall. With Newbury, the entire incumbent slate will function in the same manner.

This includes Vice-presidents Maury Miller for northern New Jersey and Ralph Wilkin for southern New Jersey; Henry H. Loewenstein, secretary, and Dave Snaper, treasurer. New board members elected are Florence Rosen, Bridgeton; H. A. Hill, Paulsboro; Sam Frank, Hammonton; Jack Waxman, Atlantic City, and Morris Spewack, Carteret. Three ex-officio board members, a new designation, are George Gold, Irving Dollinger and Sidney Samuelson. Jacob Unger and Frank Gravatt were re-elected to the board.

John Powers Services

NEW YORK—Funeral services for John Powers, 57, were held at the Universal Funeral Parlor Tuesday. Powers, who died suddenly, was long identified with D. W. Griffith, Inc. and handled the run of "Way Down East" in London.

Sears in His Huddle—

Robert Riskin is greeted by Mort Blumenstock on his New York arrival to confer with Gradwell L. Sears on the sales policy governing "Meet John Doe," which the former produced with Frank Capra for Warner release.

The Wallises Arrive—

The executive producer for Warner hits the town for shows and such, after attending the inauguration in Washington. With Hal B. is Mrs. Wallis, professionally known as Louise Fazenda, of course.

Freiday Must Amend Plaint Against "U"

NEW YORK—Court news of the week was featured by activity in William Freiday's stockholder suit against Universal, its officers and directors. The Universal director was ordered to serve an amended complaint, separately stating each cause of action.

Among the important points to be restated is the demand the deal between Universal and Big-U-Film Corp. be rescinded. The court ruled on one feature when Justice Edward R. Koch in the supreme court declared the voting trust agreement which is under fire does not constitute a wrong to Universal, but may to its stockholders. The suit claims waste and mismanagement and seeks $2,000,000 damages from the officers and directors as well as the ousting of those allegedly responsible.

Dismiss "Test Pilot" Suit

Suit by Delores Lacy Collins as administratrix of the estate of James H. Collins, deceased, against M-G-M, M-G-M Distributing Corp., Loew's, and Culver Export for $1,000,000 damages for the alleged plagiarism in "Test Pilot" of her husband's book, "Test Pilot," has been dismissed by Federal Judge John C. Knox. The action also sought an injunction and an accounting of profits.

Alvin A. Harnes and Howard A. Gray have filed a supreme court action against Warner and Vitagraph, claiming the plagiarism of a play which resulted in "Doctor Ehrlich's Magic Bullet." Damages of $75,000 and an injunction are sought. Warner is seeking a transfer to the federal court, claiming diversity of citizenship.

Suit by J. Raymond Cornell against Mary Pickford for $250,000 alleged libel in an article published in January, 1934, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser has been dismissed by Federal Judge John C. Knox. The suit charged the actress of accusing Cornell of being party to a plot to kidnap her.

Point to Goldwyn

Judge Edward A. Conger in the federal court has formally denied UA's plea to dismiss Samuel Goldwyn's suit against it and ordered the producer to re-frame that part of his complaint which seeks damages for alleged interference with the distribution of "The Westerner." UA must answer within ten days of Goldwyn's compliance with this order.

Leonard Goldstein has filed a $25,000 supreme court action against Mervyn Le Roy, claiming the producer persuaded him to give up his contract with Kenny Baker, promising him adequate compensation for it. No compensation has been paid. Le Roy claims the contract Goldstein had is not enforceable under California law and that Goldstein has no agent's license.

Suit by Films Sonores Tobis, S. A., French production company, against Charles Chaplin, Charles Chaplin Film Corp., and UA was dismissed by Federal Judge John C. Knox. The suit sought an injunction accounting of profits and damages against Chaplin's "Modern Times," claiming the picture to be a "deliberate piracy" of the plaintiff's film, "A Nous La Liberte."

Suit by the Juno Theatre Corp., operator of the Bedford Theatre, against the late Sotores D. Cocalis for $9,748 has been settled out of the supreme court. Under the terms of a contract whereby Cocalis was employed as film buyer for the Bedford, the cost of films was not to exceed 25 per cent of the theatre's gross. The amount sued for represented the alleged charge for film above that amount.

Republic Suit Dismissed

Federal Judge John C. Knox has dismissed a suit by Republic Pictures Corp. of Delaware and Republic Pictures against the Federal Film Co. and Frank J. Whittle. It sought damages, an accounting and an injunction, claiming the defendants were distributing eight Republic features and two serials without permission.

RCA, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., General Electric Co., and 30 officers and directors of RCA have applied to the supreme court to dismiss a $260,000,000 stockholder action against them. Suit charges RCA lost $10,000,000 through investments in RKO, and $240,000,000 by purchasing worthless patents from the other corporate defendants in return for 600,000 shares of stock worth $40 a share.

Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora has dismissed a counter claim by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes against Paramount in connection with a suit by Guthrie McClintic against Miss Barnes and Sheldon, in which Paramount, Gilbert Miller and Charles Frohman, Inc., were added as defendants by Miss Barnes and Sheldon. McClintic seeks $67,608 representing half of what Miss Barnes and Sheldon received from Loew's for the plagiarism of "Dishonored Lady" in "Letty Lynton." They, in turn, sued Paramount, Miller and Frohman for $50,000, claiming these defendants had ruined the London presentation of their play. The court ruled Paramount had not assumed any obligations under the contract for the London play.

SEC November Summary Lists Two Stock Deals

WASHINGTON—Only two film stock transactions are reported by the securities and exchange commission in its second November summary of the activities of corporation officers and directors in the securities of their companies.

In Paramount Pictures, the commission reported the acquisition of 1,000 shares of common stock by Anson C. Goodyear, director, New York, increasing his holdings to 2,000 shares.

In Universal Pictures, Preston Davie, director, New York, was reported to have acquired 30 shares of eight per cent first preferred stock, representing his entire interest in that class.

Rose London-Bound

NEW YORK—David Rose, managing director for Paramount, arrived from the coast early in the week and was scheduled to leave for London the latter part.

And So the Drive Was Launched—

Peg "Fantasia" for 76 Runs by End of '42

NEW YORK—Long-range distribution of "Fantasia" by Walt Disney is pegged optimistically at 76 roadshow engagements up to the end of 1942. This embraces 12 key city runs of indefinite duration, of which one is under way here, and four more scheduled by the middle of February in Philadelphia, Washington, Boston and Chicago. Toronto may be an addition within the period.

The balance of the 76 dates will be spotted in cities of less than key proportions, but only after the first 12 engagements are completed. This will enable Disney to utilize the special sound equipment in the later showings. New equipment of fabricated composition will be in production by that time to go into the larger number of houses.

Handling "Night Train" In British Possessions

NEW YORK—M-G-M, which financed 50 per cent of the production for "Night Train," produced by GB in England, will release the picture in all British possessions. While 20th-Fox is handling the film in this country, M-G-M had an opportunity to do so but rejected it because it did not meet up with their domestic requirements. Both M-G-M and 20th-Fox will share equally in the international profits of the film which Robert T. Kane made last year.

Meet for Depinet

NEW YORK—Leo Devaney, Depinet drive leader, and RKO home office executives held a meeting at the local exchange presided over by Robert Wolff. A. W. Smith jr., general sales manager, also attended.

RKO Winds Up "Mr. Smith" Previews in Detroit

NEW YORK—With a preview at the Michigan, Detroit, on Tuesday, RKO washes up a series of 32 mass "sneaks" of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." The entire United States and Canada were blanketed. In each exchange city, RKO district and branch managers were hosts. The initial preview was held at the Century, Buffalo, January 17 where Gus Schaefer, Elmer Lux, Terry Turner, Harry Reiners and George Degnon were present.

The screening at the Astor Theatre here Tuesday morning was thronged.

Blumberg Returns

NEW YORK—Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, returned Saturday from an extended business trip to the studio.

William A. Scully, general sales manager, may manage a Florida vacation in three to four weeks.

Urges Lower Legit Price on Sunday

NEW YORK—"It is not enough that the Broadway theatre managers have agreed not to raise prices on Sunday; I think they ought to lower them. Members of the motion picture audiences are not $4.40 or even $3.30 patrons and there is little use in wishing that they were."

So states James F. Reilly, executive secretary of the League of New York Theatres, in a report to Actors' Equity Ass'n on the Sunday performance experiment begun last November.

He is of the opinion the experiment has not been in operation long enough to draw a conclusion on its success, although, for the time being "the managers seem to be very well satisfied with the results." Reilly urges legit theatre managers to attempt "heavier concentration on advertising" to advise audiences that Sunday shows are now available.

Nine New York Studios on SAG's "Unfair" List

NEW YORK—The Screen Actors Guild has placed the following New York studios on the "unfair" list for alleged refusal to enter into a contract with the guild, or to abide by the conditions of employment contained in the basic agreement of the SAG:

Commercial Theatre Program

TORONTO—The first commercially sponsored theatre program bowed here at the Famous-Players Imperial. Sponsored by a biscuit company, the musical show is scheduled for weekly appearance.

New Managers Get a Welcome—

WASHINGTON

HUMOR and music reigned on the occasion of the Inaugural Gala last Sunday evening when one of the most distinguished audiences ever assembled in Constitution Hall was entertained by a cast embracing the leaders of stage, screen and opera. Robert E. Sherwood, scheduled m. c., became a flu victim; Eddie Cantor was selected for the coveted role, but he, too, was indisposed, and finally Doug Fairbanks jr. filled in the breach and acquitted himself admirably in such an extemporaneous assignment . . . Rise Stevens of the Met, recently signed by Metro, and Nelson Eddy offered vocal selections. Raymond Massey gave an excerpt from "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" . . . Mickey Rooney came to the fore, seemingly out of place on such a program, but became the hit of the evening when he offered a portion of his own symphony on the piano, an artistic gaze, and encored with impersonations of Gable and Lionel Barrymore from "Test Pilot," and one on the Louis-Paychek fight. Irving Berlin sang his own composition, "God Bless America," Ethel Barrymore read a poem by Walt Whitman, and Charlie Chaplin concluded the program with his touching and stirring rendition of the concluding speech in "The Dictator."

The flu plague has struck the 20th-Fox staff, with Sara Young, Edythe Silverberg and May Feldman battling attacks at home . . . Elmer Nolte and Freddie Smouff of the Durkee circuit were Row visitors . . . RKO's Russ Hildebrand is mourning the passing of his father in York, Pa. . . . RKO's Emmet Cashman, home office auditor, is in . . . The booking department features a front that is quite an innovation; built to the ceiling, allowing windows for the bookers only, and accenting the Ned Depinet Drive.

The Metro staff was glad to see Phil Bobys return to his duties following a siege of the flu . . . Freida Cohen was feted with a luncheon by the girls of the staff and gifted with a hostess gown by the Pep Club on her resignation . . . Blanche LeMan comes from Boston to join the cashier's department . . . Jules Lapidus, Universal district manager, visited with Branch Manager Max Cohen . . . "Rusty" Duncan, secretary to Frank La Falce, shook the flu enough to return to work but is courting laryngitis.

Explosion and fire in the booth of the Little during the showing of "Pastor Hall" cleared the house in record time and in orderly fashion . . . The President's inauguration remained to be a call to cameras for the entire eastern staff of Paramount News . . . A. J. Richard and William Montague, Paramount executives, visited for the occasion.

The "Mile O' Dimes" campaign has been launched and the Row will be represented by a unit donation. Anyone in the field who would like to make a contribution toward the fight against infantile paralysis, same to be included in the group sum, will please forward their offering to your correspondent, Charles T. Hurley, 913 New Jersey Ave., Washington; chairman of the film distribution unit . . . Remember! Your dime on the line will help straighten a spine.

An announcement from John J. Payette, Warner general zone manager, advises that a special plaque will be posted on the boxoffices of all Warner houses in the near future. The Warner theatres are the first to sign up with the motion picture committee of the national defense group, the plaque being evidence of their enthusiam in support of the defense effort . . . The Warner club rooms, located in the Tivoli Bldg., were formally opened January 15, with all club members and their friends in attendance. The club will be open every day but Sunday, with two nights each week to be known as "Surprise Night" at which time entertainment will be presented. Club officers are: James Root, president; Harry Anger, vice-president; Harry Lohmeyer, vice-president of welfare.

Harold Wilsher of the Lyric, Occquan, became the proud pappy of a 6½-pound girl at Garfield Hospital January 8 . . . Mrs. Sam Wheeler is convalescing nicely in Pittsburgh . . . Arthur Silverstone, newly appointed UA district manager for the Washington territory, held a sales meeting with the staff at the local exchange . . . M. K. Murphy of Appalachia came up for the weekend . . . RKO's Russ Hildebrand finally shooed the flu.

Tommy Goldberg of the Walbrook, Baltimore, is building a 400-seater opposite the Walbrook . . . Spud Query was a visitor from Marion, Va., and advised that the New Norton which was recently destroyed by fire, is being rebuilt and will be ready in about eight weeks . . . The flu epidemic forced the Virginian, St. Charles, Va., to close . . . Columbia's Danny Rosenthal celebrated his sixth wedding anniversary on the 13th . . . Angie Sokol is scheduled to resign from Clark Film in early February in order to join her husband at Ft. Bliss, Tex. . . . The sick list at Warner theatres reveals that "Rusty" Duncan and Isabelle Baugh were home nursing severe colds, and that Bill Ewing was indisposed by the flu for the first time, but since recovered.

Metro's Freida Cohen from now on will labor for Uncle Sam . . . Ida Barezofsky has returned from her vacation which included a stay at S. Fallsburg, N. Y., for a spree of winter sports and a visit to the home office . . . Lou Litchenstein, 20th-Fox auditor, is in for a check and his coat of Florida tan is the cynosure of all eyes . . . January 26 is the joint natal day for Grayson Mills and Kate Hartnett . . . Rebecca Foster is home battling a cold . . . Edgar Moss, district manager, was a visitor.

$2,500 to Him—

Percy Friedman, Yeadon Theatre, Yeadon, Pa., winner of first place and $2,500 in the subsequent-run bracket of the M-G-M exploitation contest just concluded. His campaign was on "The Women."

PHILADELPHIA

He Was Promoted—

Earle W. Sweigert, long Paramount's Philadelphia branch manager, is to supervise a newly-created sales district embracing his own city, Washington and Pittsburgh under a sales realignment for operations under the decree. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are now supervised by Milton Kusell; Pittsburgh by Harry Goldstein. Ulrick Smith, salesman, succeeds Sweigert as Paramount manager. See page 13 for full details.

Briggs Visits Key Centers En Route to PRC Parley

NEW YORK—O. Henry Briggs, president of Producers Releasing Corp., left Friday for Chicago and a number of other key centers en route to the coast where he expects to arrive within the next week. While in Hollywood he will go over production plans with George Batcheller, supervisor of production.

No general sales manager is to be appointed for some time, Briggs stated. Recent additions to the home office staff are Joseph Sullivan and Sam Kestenbaum.

14 Big Ones Due

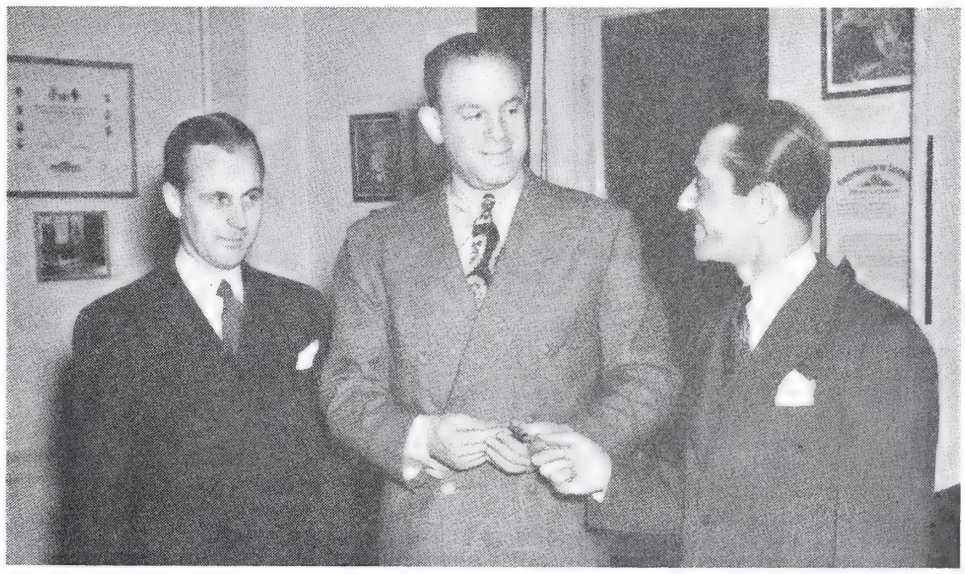
NEW YORK—Fourteen "high bracket" pictures are due from Columbia during the next six months. With eight shooting, several to start in February and a number of others in preparation, the company is now in the midst of one of the heaviest schedules in its history.

Public Will Challenge Inflated Statements

New York—W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall, at the Ampa meeting Thursday, urged the industry not to underestimate the public's intelligence and not to exaggerate in advertising "because the public will challenge" inflated statements. Keynoting his talk with a discussion of the Music Hall's operation, Van Schmus said that in eight years the big theatre has grossed $34,000,000 and played to more than 48,000,000 people.

NOVEL experience for the local industry was the sneak preview of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" at the Orpheum. Hollywoodites came all the way across country to gauge audience reaction. The theatre announced film would be added to the regular 9 o'clock show, but did not reveal its name in advance . . . Leo Posel's Benner opened in the presence of a large gathering of industryites . . . The Variety Club will give a testimonial dinner Monday to David "Skip" Weshner, who is leaving for the green fields of New York . . . Allen Lewis, ex-star of the Showmen's Club, will be dined February 17.

Horlacher and Clark Film are now handling the new recruiting trailer for the 111th Infantry, Pennsylvania National Guard, with some 141 independents and 80 Warner houses in this area set to play it . . . That makes the fourth trailer the two companies are handling free. The others are for the Salvation Army, United Campaign and Infantile Paralysis Campaign . . . Jimmy Tighe, who did publicity for the Democratic city committee, is now publicizing Cash Quiz . . . Lewen Pizor, UMPTO, is in the hospital for a short stay.



Earle Sweigert, newly appointed Paramount district manager, went off to Chicago for a company meeting. His new appointment was practically a birthday present. He cut his cake on the 24th . . . Florence Jackel, Republic, marked a birthday on the 25th, and Ray O'Rourke, Doris, 26th . . . Mel Koff, Darby, and the Mrs. celebrate a wedding anniversary on the 29th . . . Bill Brooker, Paramount publiciteer, returns Monday from a Virginia tour where he arranged premieres for "Virginia" in five cities.

George Kurlansik, Park and Town, Allentown, is thinking about a Florida vacation . . . Harry Stiefel, Main and Roxy, Ephrata, and Bud Hissner, Academy, Lebanon, were among the out-of-towners around this week . . . Betty Chambers, pretty Metroite, is ill. Her co-worker, Ann Morrison, is recuperating from a little bout with the knife . . . Milt Young, Warner publicity tycoon, was downed by grippe . . . A dutch lunch was the feature at the Variety Club Saturday.

First Russian-made film to play Philadelphia in a long time is "Mannerheim Line," at Charles Steerman's Cinema Arts . . . William Goldberg and Dick Mayers were host to critics at a luncheon celebrating Goldberg's tenth year of operation of the house. Incidentally, "The Baker's Wife," now in its 16th week, has set a new long-run record since advent of talking films, film chroniclers say . . . Eddie Tracht, Vine Street projectionist, had a relapse from a recent operation, and was rushed to a hospital. Is reported doing well.

Percy Friedman, Yeadon Theatre, Yeadon, came away with the $2,500 prize in Metro's independent exhibitor competition for campaigns for "The Women" . . . Jerome Engel, Family, Glen Lyon, won $100 for exploitation of the "Dr. Kildare" series, and Jack Harris, Mayfair, won $100 for his campaign on "Fast and Furious" . . . John Schaefer is representing Arthur Ziehm in this territory. First release is a twin horror bill, "Torso Murder Mystery" and "Face at the Window."

Four years ago, Phil Manes, then at the S-W Model, used to arrange special service for a crippled girl. He has just received a letter from her thanking him . . . Sid Poppay, Majestic, Gettysburg, arranged a benefit concert for the Crippled Children's Home . . . Bill Lafferty, Liberty, used the magic exploitation touch to promote an automobile giveaway two times in a row. The Tacony Business Men's Ass'n footed the bill.

They Look, But Goldman Got It—

BROADWAY

by way of Capetown, South Africa. He got his passport and visa during the week, and now it's a matter of getting reservations on the next sailing . . . A. A. Schubart, RKO exchange head, returned early in the week from Boston and Philadelphia . . . Steve Pallos is due back from the coast within the next 10 days . . . Dave Loew didn't take any chances when he came east. He brought along his own bowling ball. Incidentally, he's staying at the Lou Brechers . . . Nicholas M. Schenck has again delayed his departure for Miami, business details keeping him in town . . . Arch Bowles, northern California divisional head, has been in town. He hasn't been feeling well of late and the trip is more in the nature of a rest . . . Charles E. McCarthy is back from the coast . . . Milton Berle has returned to Hollywood after appearing on the Kate Smith program Friday night and a one-time p. a. at the Roxy with "Tall, Dark and Handsome."

Phil Brody, formerly with National Screen in Connecticut, now managing Randforce's Leader in Brooklyn, will become a benedict March 16 when he takes the step with Gladys Lustig . . . Ben Resnick, until recently of the Regent, Brooklyn, is now supervisor for the Margolies circuit in New Jersey with headquarters at the Mayfair, W. New York, N. J. . . . Gabriel Pascal will not report from Lisbon until January 29, having been delayed again and again on the transatlantic crossing . . . The flu got Alexander Korda just as he was preparing to return to the coast . . . Douglas Fairbanks did a swell m. c. job at the inaugural dinner preceding President Roosevelt's official induction to a third term.

Offer Hand for Benefit Opening of "Virginia"

NEW YORK—A host of theatrical celebrities have combined to offer their names and talents in the formation of a committee to assist in the benefit opening of "Virginia" at the Paramount, January 28, in behalf of the Maple Leaf Fund, which is the Canadian organization for British war relief.

Chairman of the committee is Canadian-born actress, Margaret Bannerman. Those helping, including a few who will participate in the entertainment at the premiere, include Raymond Massey, as master-of-ceremonies; Anton Dolin, Mary Pickford, Gertrude Lawrence, Peggy Wood, Constance Collier, Diane Barrymore, Jill Esmond, Jessica Tandy, Maurice Evans, Michael Bartlett, Ann Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Hassard Short, Margaret Webster, Auriol Lee, Anne Francine, Alicia Markova, Tosca Brissing and Marguerite d'Alvarez.

Ralph Pielow Meets ITOA Members at Astor Session

NEW YORK—Ralph Pielow, recently appointed local M-G-M branch manager, was formally introduced to members of the ITOA at their regular meeting Wednesday at the Astor. Jack Bowen, district manager, made the introductory speech.

Brandt Still Sour, Also Experimental

New York—Although he and the ITOA have pledged full cooperation on the decree, Harry Brandt still has his doubts about its success.

"I don't see how it is going to work," he says. He sees the sales of two major companies who signed the document as seriously affected unless each makes better product than released during the current season.

However, he admits there's nothing like experimenting, but what is to be done if the experiment fails, he will not conjecture.

Allied Will Discuss Course on Decree

WASHINGTON — Allied's future course anent the consent decree will be the major topic at the organization's annual directors' meeting here January 27 and 28. Much discussion will revolve around measures for collecting evidence and information from exhibitors on alleged inequities and cooperation with the justice department in handling such complaints.

Important also on the directors' agenda will be the consideration of a possible program to further opposition to distributor practices through federal or state legislation banning block booking and seeking theatre divorcement. The Ascap-BMI fight for control of music for broadcasting will be taken up from the exhibitor's viewpoint.

Col. H. A. Cole, president, will be honored at the annual dinner, and officers for new year will be elected.

Forming New York Allied

NEW YORK—About 50 theatres reputedly have pledged to form a New York state unit of Allied. Max Cohen, former regional vice-president of New York Allied, now an MPTO affiliate, is the prime figure behind the movement for the new group.

Television Demonstration

NEW YORK—The Dumont television system, claiming improved long-range transmission, touches off two days of demonstrations by the National Television System Committee, Friday and Saturday. Following Dumont, RCA and Bell Laboratories were to demonstrate their system, and CBS's demonstration was to be held on Saturday.

Academy Units Start Recognition Task

Although no date nor locale for the forthcoming Academy Awards banquet has yet been announced, beyond the fact that it will be held late in February, various Academy branches have begun to set the required machinery in motion whereby kudos will be distributed for endeavors in a number of fields.

John Aalberg, chairman of the Academy sound recording award committee, has announced the following nominations for the award for achievement in that classification:

"Arizona," Columbia; "Behind the News," Republic; "Captain Caution," Hal Roach; "Grapes of Wrath," 20th Century-Fox; "Howards of Virginia" (Col), General Service Equipment; "Kitty Foyle," RKO Radio; "North West Mounted Police," Paramount; "Our Town," Sol Lesser; "The Sea Hawk," Warner; "Spring Parade," Universal; "Strike Up the Band," M-G-M. One will be chosen from this group by a committee including Aalberg as chairman; Lawrence Aicholtz, Daniel Bloomberg, Bernard Brown, W. P. Delaplain, C. W. Faulkner, Lloyd Goldsmith, George Groves, Russell Hanson, Roger Heman, John K. Hilliard, Kenneth Lambert, W. W. Lindsay jr., John Livadary, C. L. Lootens, Russell Malmgren, J. G. Matthews, Thomas Moulton, William Mueller, K. M. Pier, Clem Portman, Elmer Raguse, Loren Ryder, Gordon Sawyer, Douglas Shearer, James G. Stewart, John A. Stransky, Homer Tasker, W. L. Thayer, S. J. Twining, W. W. Wells, E. H. Wetzel and J. R. Whitney. This committee has begun reviewing the nominated films in a projection room at the Walt Disney plant.

Cinematography Ballots Out

Nominations ballots for cinematography and film editing have been mailed out to directors of photography and film editors. Lensers will nominate ten black-and-white and six color films for the final vote. Editors will name ten candidates, the winner to be determined by a committee from the Society of Motion Picture Film Editors, which will be selected by Walter Wanger, Academy president, and Edmund D. Hannen, SMPFE president.

With Pete Smith as chairman, short subjects producers held a dinner meeting to discuss the selection of nominating committees, classification of entries for the Academy Award, and the method of balloting to be employed. Attending were:

E. H. Allen, Henry Binder, Lou Brock, Vernon Caldwell, Robert Carlyle, Jack Chertok, Roy Disney, Jerry Fairbanks, James FitzPatrick, Ira Genet, Richard Goldstone, George Hall, Lou Harris, Gordon Hollingshead, Jason Joy, Valeria Janus, Walter Lantz, Lewis Lewyn, Del Lord, Hugh McCollum, George Pal, Harriet Parsons, Fred Quimby, John Rose, Leon Schlesinger, Jack Warner jr., Jules White, Robert Winkler, Guenther Lessing and James Bromis.

Producers association officials, planning their annual meeting to elect officers for the year, expect Will Hays, MPPDA president, to check in from New York in time for the session. It is scheduled for February 3.

Stewart With MacDonald

James Stewart has been given the lead opposite Jeanette MacDonald in "Smilin' Through." He has appeared in but one previous MacDonald film, "Rose Marie," in which he made his film debut. Victor Saville will produce "Smilin' Through."

In Recognition—

For "outstanding contribution to Americanism" via his radio program, "Big Town," Edward G. Robinson is the recipient of the American Legion's citation of honor. Here Robinson accepts the award from Dr. Russell Starr, Legion executive.

Picture-Making Pace Sustained by Slate

Intent on holding to the picture-making pace which now finds 40 features in work, Hollywood producers have scheduled another 16 for camera starts during the balance of January, while 22 more are written in for February launchings.

RKO Radio and M-G-M, with four each to roll this month, are the busiest spots. The former studio lists "Tom, Dick and Harry," "Repent at Leisure," "Before the Fact" and "Hang Out the Moon," while M-G-M will gun "Love Crazy," "Blossoms in the Dust," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "A Woman's Face." Other January starters include:

"Texas," "A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street" and "Senate Page Boys" at Columbia; "The Great American Broadcast" and "The Cowboy and the Blonde" at 20th Century-Fox; Republic's "Mr. District Attorney;" Paramount's "Skylark;" Warner's "Mother's Boys," and Monogram's "Sign of the Wolf."

Paramount leads the list for February. During that month it will roll "Pioneer Woman," "Hold Back the Dawn," "Little Miss Muffet," "College Mystery," "The Night of January 16" and "Aloma of the South Seas." Destined for March cameras are "Dildo Cay" and "Buy Me That Town."

Scheduled also for February are:

Republic's "You'll Never Get Rich," "Lady of New Orleans" and "Bachelor for a Day;" 20th Century-Fox's "Man Hunt," "Miami" and "A Yank in the R. A. F.;" Universal's "Oh, Charlie" and "Mutiny in the Arctic;" Monogram's "Trail of the Yukon" and "Million Dollar Mystery;" Warner's "Flight Patrol," "Navy Blues" and "Sergeant York;" M-G-M's "Get a Horse" and "Lady Be Good," and Columbia's "Her First Beau."

Universal and Republic each have one chalked in for a March start. The former studio will launch "Amateur Angel," the latter "Puddin' Head."

Now Range Busters, Inc.

George W. Weeks has changed the name of his production unit releasing through Monogram from Phoenix Productions, Inc., to Range Busters, Inc. He is planning eight more "Range Busters" westerns for the 1941-42 season.

Start Production on Defense Subjects

Cameras have begun turning on the first in the series of short subjects which will keynote Hollywood's contribution to the national defense program. The one-reeler, concerning hygiene, is being made at 20th Century-Fox with Darryl Zanuck, a lieutenant-colonel in the signal corps reserve, supervising, and John Ford directing from a script prepared by William Ullman jr. Second in the group will follow immediately. Films are destined for the exclusive use of army and navy officials in training draftees and new enlisted men, and will not be shown to the public.

Greek Relief Broadcast

Grauman's Chinese Theatre has been selected as the locale for the gigantic broadcast being planned jointly by motion picture and radio charities committees for the benefit of the Greek War Relief Ass'n. The show will be broadcast coast-to-coast February 8 and will be transmitted via shortwave to London and Athens. With Jack Benny and Bob Hope as co-masters of ceremonies, volunteer entertainers will include Ronald Colman, Alice Faye, Fanny Brice, Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Tony Martin, Mickey Rooney, Burns and Allen, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Charles Laughton and Shirley Temple.

Launch March of Dimes

Eddie Cantor staged his annual March of Dimes broadcast for the national infantile paralysis campaign January 25 over three major networks. Participating were Bob Hope, Burns and Allen, Fanny Brice, Jack Benny, Humphrey Bogart, Bob Burns, James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Lew Ayres, Rudy Vallee, Mickey Rooney and others.

In ceremonies at the city hall in Los Angeles, W. V. C. Ruxton, president of the British-American Ambulance Corps, launched a national drive to raise funds for more ambulances. He was received by Mayor Fletcher Bowron, with film notables in attendance including Mary Pickford, Ronald Colman, Benita Hume, Reginald Gardiner, Mary Astor, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Joe E. Brown and Nigel Bruce.

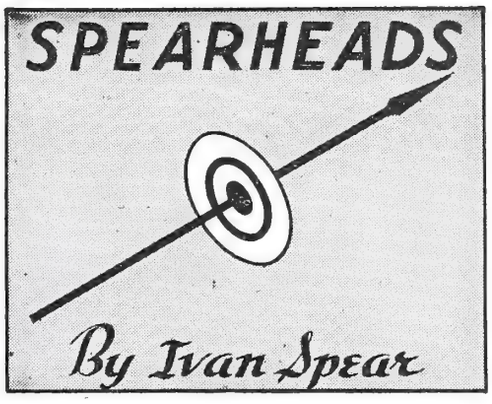
Alan Mowbray, Rudy Vallee, Jean Parker, Roy Rogers, William Lundigan, Los Ranson and Sheila Ryan planed to San Diego January 17 to participate in a British War Relief rally. They also entertained the enlisted men of W. S. Van Dyke's marine corps stationed there.

UA Executives in a Production Huddle

In from New York for a series of conferences with the various United Artists producers, and to discuss a number of as yet undisclosed matters pertaining to UA operations, are Murray Silverstone, who heads the company; Arthur W. Kelly, sales head; and Charles Schwartz, UA counsel. They are expected to remain for at least two weeks and may extend their sojourn beyond that time.

Another arrival was Alexander Korda, who went to New York a short time ago to discuss release details with UA executives for his latest production, "That Hamilton Woman." While in the east, Korda also appeared to give a deposition in connection with the UA-Samuel Goldwyn litigation.

Blumberg to New York



With the departure for New York of President Nate Blumberg, huddles at Universal pertaining to production plans and budgets for the 1941-42 season have come to an end. J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board; Joseph H. Seidelman and William A. Scully preceded Blumberg east after conferences with studio executives, including Cliff Work and Matty Fox. Before his departure, Blumberg declared no definite plans had been set regarding the possibility, as reported from New York, that Universal may transfer its laboratory printing work from Consolidated to another company. It was indicated that no further word on the matter will be forthcoming until Blumberg has studied the situation upon his return to the homeoffice.

Charles McCarthy East

First to leave for the east after production conferences at 20th Century-Fox was Charles E. McCarthy, advertising-publicity chieftain. He will be followed shortly by Herman Wobber, sales head, and President Sidney R. Kent.

William F. Rodgers, Metro's general sales manager, has decided to spend another week at the studio, discussing possible sales policy changes concerning short subjects as a result of the consent decree. He also is looking at pictures currently in work and those completed and awaiting release dates.

George Brown, new publicity-advertising director at Paramount, attended the Chicago get-together of homeoffice sales executives and district managers January 21-23. Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, trained out in time to participate in the dinner given President Barney Balaban, January 23, honoring his fifth anniversary as head of the company. Meeting was devoted to mapping of sales and promotional plans for "Virginia" and "The Lady Eve," as well as discussions on the possible roadshowing of "I Wanted Wings," withdrawn from the regular release schedule recently by Neil F. Agnew, sales chief.

COMES now—it is hoped—an end to the industry's record season on polls. With the forthcoming annual Academy dinner, Hollywood will have harvested the last of a bumper crop of accolades, the likes of which, in both quantities and diversity, have never before been approached.

Time was, and even comparatively newcomers in the ranks of observers on affairs cinematic can remember, when so-called annual popularity polls were limited to a few accredited tradepapers and even fewer of the more widely read columnists and air commentators. Now, everyone and every medium with an audience of more than two indulges in the popular year-end sport of picking the "winnahs." For weeks studio publicity releases have been cluttered, to the despair of editors, with such startling announcements as "The Motion Picture Review Club of Long Beach . . . has chosen 'The Way of All Flesh' as the best film seen during 1940;" "A readers' poll of 1940's best movies, conducted by the Harrisburg Telegraph, resulted in.....;" "The motion picture reviewing committee of the Moose Lodge has selected as the most popular actors and actresses of 1940 ....."

The above and scores of similar unimportant and uninteresting findings are proof sufficient that the poll idea has gotten very much out of hand. The interests of the industry and those responsible for its public relations will be best served if steps are taken to discourage further growth. If not, it won't be long before readers will be assailed with the information that:

Mala is winner of the North Poll.

Victor McLaglen, complete with medals, is selected as the outstanding figure on the Totem Poll.

Charles Starrett, Tim McCoy and Ken Maynard finish in a three-way tie in the Gallop Poll.

Anne Shirley is the all-time champion Poll-y Anna.

Ann Sheridan's prolonged suspension sets a record in the Poll Vault.

Name your own winner in the Poll Cat.

"Grapes of Wrath" was a cinch to win the Poll Weevil.

But the Indians of Stanford still dominate the Rose Poll.

With characteristic propensity toward the super, Cecil B. DeMille proposes that the situation be further complicated with the suggestion that an Academy of Radio Arts and Sciences be organized to encourage and recognize artistic and technical achievements in the broadcasting field. To do this he urges a series of annual awards be sponsored for writing, adaptations, production, performances and technical advancements.

A local radio station each evening lists the seven biggest news stories of the day in the order of their importance. On one such broadcast, Number Three concerned the minute details of Bette Davis' finding a seat in a cactus plant while working on location in Death Valley, and her subsequent taking of sustenance from off the mantel. The bombing of London and other war news was Number Five.

Thus has the gentle art of press-agentry progressed in Hollywood.

A survey of the files of the Screen Actors Guild's statistical department was recently made to ascertain numbers of members who have had previous work in lines which might be useful in the national defense program. Former carpenters topped the list with 200. There were 100 each of former painters and former electricians, while blacksmiths and plumbers tied for third with 50 each.

There was nary a butcher nor farmer in the lot—which still leaves as an unsolved mystery the source of Hollywood's quantities of ham and corn.

BALLYHOODLUMS: Although it did command considerable space and air news time, probably the cheapest publicity gesture of recent months was the bid sent John N. Garner, former vice-president of the United States, by Producer Charles R. Rogers, offering the statesman a role in a forthcoming picture he will make for Columbia . . . If Russell Birdwell continues to publicize the Hopi Indians as a by-product of his activities on behalf of Producer Howard Hawks, they should reciprocate by making him an honorary chief in the tribe —in which event an appropriate redskin cognomen for the prince of the freelancers would be "Collect-Much-Wampum-Birdwell."

Glib, Gangsters, Gloomy

Three pictures—running the range from farce to melodrama to sombre melancholy —topped the list of six which the studios saw fit to unfurl for Hollywood's reviewing fraternity during the week. While each is equipped to stand on its own merits, RKO Radio's "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," measured from all aspects, topped its competitors.

The first American comedy to be piloted by British Alfred Hitchcock, it aptly displays that he possesses a flair for humor equal to his ability as a dramatic director, demonstrated in "Rebecca," and as a master of suspense and action, shown in "Foreign Correspondent." It is virtually flawless entertainment in the lighter vein and, with Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery to top the marquees, seems certain to quickly attain the hit class. Hitchcock, it should be said, was provided with the best ingredients obtainable—a speedy, bubbling, brilliantly dialogued script by Norman Krasna; unstinting production accoutrements supplied by Harry E. Edington; and a wisely-selected and sensitive cast. Too, there is an excellent musical score by Edward Ward, which contributes greatly to the picture's general quality. Lombard and Montgomery turn in, as was to be expected, magnificent comedy performances, their fast pace matched all the way by such supporting players as Gene Raymond and Jack Carson.

Dealing, as it does, with the last phases of gangdom's rule in the United States, Warner's "High Sierra" is keyed to an exciting pitch throughout and can be characterized as cops-and-robbers melodrama on the highest possible plane. Prosperity, resultantly, should be its fate at the box-office, particularly where action-loving audiences predominate. The entry can safely be written down as another showmanlike contribution to the Warner slate by Producer Mark Hellinger, who again demonstrates his capabilities as picture-maker, while Raoul Walsh established exactly the right tempo in his first-rate directorial job. Humphrey Bogart, who has played many a gangster role in his screen career, has never turned in a more sincere and straightforward portrayal; Ida Lupino again draws attention to her undeniable histrionic abilities; and the supporting cast, including such splendid players as Alan Curtis, Joan Leslie and Jerome Cowan, is equally impressive.

As an artistic triumph, "So Ends Our Night," the first David Loew-Albert Lewin production for United Artists, might be criticized on only one count—overlength. As entertainment with popular appeal, however, it struggles under several handicaps. Talbot Jenning's script, from the Erich Maria Remarque novel, "'Flotsam,' is—as was its source—slowly unfolded, relating in tortuous detail the plight and dismal wanderings of German refugees. The theme is monotonous part of the time, sombre all of the time, and probably will require intensive selling to make it appealing to audiences whose cinematic tastes currently lie elsewhere. Although it will

New Preview System Starts Off With Old

Although it developed into nothing more than a tempest in a teapot, the previewing of "So Ends Our Night," United Artists release produced by David L. Loew and Albert Lewin, gave further evidence of the precariousness of Hollywood's new preview system.

Under terms of the agreement reached by members of the producers association last December, major studios decided that after that date all "press" previews would be held in studio projection rooms, preferably in afternoons, and that only the working critical and reviewing press would be invited.

However, the Loew-Lewin unit had scheduled the press showing of its picture for the evening of January 24 at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. Two days before, Thornton Sargent, FWC district manager, and Spyros Cardos, of the Chinese, notified Loew-Lewin representatives the preview was to be cancelled; submitting as their authority a statement from President Charles P. Skouras, who had just returned from New York and who, upon scrutinizing the matter, declared he did not intend to violate the new system as worked out by the producers association.

Avoid Court Action

Loew and Lewin, in New York, were apprised of the situation by their representatives here, and promptly retained Attorney David Tannenbaum with instructions that he file suit in federal court charging FWC with breach of contract. Tannenbaum was to have sought an affirmative injunction compelling the theatre to stage the preview in accord with the written agreement. Loew-Lewin attaches insisted that the element of alleged collusion between FWC and the producers association would also be brought into the battle.

On the verge of the court action, however, Skouras ordered the preview to go on as scheduled when FWC attorneys conferred with Tannenbaum and reached an agreement whereby the projected suit was withdrawn. Skouras declared he had decided the arrangements to cancel the showing should never have been made, in view of the fact that it was during his absence in New York that the preview was set into the theatre by FWC executives.

Miss the "Glamour"

Two weeks or more ago, the Loew-Lewin unit had announced it was disregarding the "no-theatre preview" ruling because, attaches contended, it would be unfair to the picture to screen it in a "cold" projection room without any audience save critics and because, it was further contended, abolishing "press" previews in the theatres tended to "rob" Hollywood of a portion of its "glamour." Loew-Lewin officials also pointed out that the company is not itself a member of the producers association and has no projection room facilities "in keeping with the picture's importance."

Adapting Runyon Story

"The Old Doll's House," Damon Runyon story, is being adapted for Warner by Anthony Coldeway.

undoubtedly strike a sympathetic chord, even its anti-Nazi note may be too late to prove much of an asset. Performances are all that could be expected from a cast topped by such players as Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan and Frances Dee; although Miss Dee has deplorably little to do. The burden of the acting chore, however, falls to Glenn Ford, a promising new face, who ably fulfills the task he was called upon to deliver. John Cromwell, in his direction, did everything he possibly could to elevate and speed the film, while the supporting cast, a large one including numerous well-established names, is generally excellent.

Rating as better than average is 20th Century-Fox's "Tall, Dark and Handsome," another story of gangdom which vacillates between comedy and melodrama, with an occasional musical moment thrown in to further confuse its accurate designation. Script by Karl Tunberg and Darrell Ware is unadulterated hokum, but those who are not too critical of plot consistencies will vote the film a top-rate job of picture-making. It boasts a particularly good cast, in which Cesar Romero, as a soft-hearted mobster, and Virginia Gilmore, his romantic interest, dominate. On the comedy side there are long-legged Charlotte Greenwood and Milton Berle, complete with his new nose, in addition to a number of lesser lights. H. Bruce Humberstone did a notable directorial job and Fred Kohlmar, in his first producer assignment for the company, acquitted himself with honors.

The perennial western—without which no preview lineup would be complete—was represented by RKO Radio's "Along the Rio Grande," while Republic contributed a rural melodrama with hillbilly music in "Arkansas Judge."

In the former Tim Holt stakes out a new claim on his enviable, fast-growing reputation as one of the up-and-coming new sagebrush stars, again demonstrating that few of his rivals can surpass him in acting ability. He appears to advantage in a story containing more meat than the average outdoor yarn, scripted by Arthur V. Jones and Morton Grant from a Stuart Anthony original. Producer Bert Gilroy surrounded Holt with an able supporting cast in which Ray Whitley and Emmett Lynn appear as the inevitable two buddies and Betty Jane Rhodes supplies the little romantic interest that was considered necessary. Edward Killy contributed the standard brand of direction.

Hillbilly rhythm and corn are among the products coming from 'way down in Arkansas. And the Republic entry has a little of the former and bushels of the latter—possibly as large a load as was ever dumped on to the celluloid. However, it is probably the kind of corn small-town audiences like and will buy, although urban and sophisticated patrons will continue to express a preference for theirs on the cob. It stars the Weaver Brothers and Elviry, who handle their roles satisfactorily, with Leon Weaver turning in the best performance in a Will Rogers type of role. Roy Rogers, minus his horse, is also on hand, with Spring Byington and Pauline Moore contributing smaller parts. Dorrell and Stuart McGowan scripted from a novel by Irving Stone, "False Witness." Frank McDonald's direction is commendable and Armand Schaefer, functioning as associate producer, saw to it that the vehicle was provided with the necessary trappings.

Universal Names Gottlieb An Associate Producer

After a year on the lot as a scenarist, during which he scripted five pictures, Alex Gottlieb has been given a berth as an associate producer at Universal. Gottlieb was formerly advertising head for United Artists and Columbia in New York, and was publicity director for Walter Wanger in Hollywood some years ago. No assignment has been handed him as yet in his new position.

Other Changes

Francis Langton, head of the Paramount studio writers' department, has resigned and checked off the lot. He was with the company for nine years. After a three-week vacation Langton will announce a new affiliation. As a result of his departure, the Paramount writer and story departments will be combined with William Dozier, who recently joined the studio, in charge of both.

Republic has signed Martin Broones, at one time head of M-G-M's music department, to a term ticket as an associate producer. His first assignment will be set after Broones has surveyed studio procedure and studied a number of story properties.

Jerry Hoffman, former 20th Century-Fox producer and more recently a member of the Warner studio publicity staff, has turned in his resignation, effective in two weeks. No future plans have been announced.

War Film Casts Must Be Fingerprinted

Some 12,000 technicians, players and other studio workers who will engage in the production of films relating to national defense will be fingerprinted by Uncle Sam during the coming year, the studios have been notified by federal authorities.

Ruling applies to those going on location in national parks and other territories under U. S. domain. Workers also must show that they are full-fledged American citizens, according to new war and navy department regulations.

Technicians Deal With Producers

Negotiations are now under way between producers and the sound technicians local, IATSE, the craft having filed demands for complete jurisdiction in the studios, guaranteed employment, wage increases and a 54-hour minimum week, with time and a half pay after 40 hours. Harold V. Smith heads the union's negotiating committee and Pat Casey, Hays office labor contact, is handling the matter for the producers, who have informed Smith no deal can be set until the technicians have ironed out a jurisdictional dispute with the electricians' union.

Projectionists Request

Demands have also been filed with producers by the studio projectionists, asking for a minimum six-hour call, and requesting wage increases and other adjustments. The local has called a general membership meeting for January 27 to approve the new contract, which specifies a 36-hour week and two weeks vacation with pay for men at the studios who are employed 40 weeks or more a year.

Studio laborers and utility workers, IATSE, are disputing with the Studio Utility Employes on jurisdiction over laborers at the Fine Arts studio and the Universal ranch. The former craft has threatened a walkout unless lot executives cease hiring SUE men. The matter has been referred to Casey of the Hays office for study.

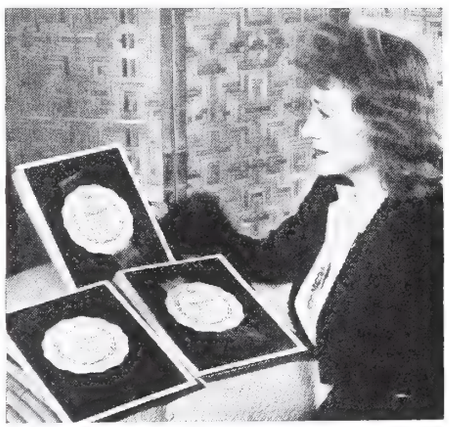
Art Directors Dicker

Producers are also dickering with the Art Directors Guild on a demand for a basic wage-hour agreement.

Screen Writers Guild is claiming jurisdiction over scripters employed by Walt Disney and other cartoon-makers. SWG has also completed a tentative draft of a proposed contract licensing agents who represent film writers. A membership meeting has been set for January 27 to approve details of the agreement. It is similar in scope to that between the Screen Actors Guild and the Artists Managers Guild.

SAG will resume its producer parleys January 29, at which time the Guild's drive to secure higher wages for day players and freelancers, and a reclassification of pay brackets for extras, will be renewed.

Retain Richard Rowland to Produce Three for UA



United Artists has picked up its option on Producer Richard A. Rowland, who will produce three more pictures for the company. His original deal called for an option for one more after "Cheers for Miss Bishop," with an option beyond that for two more.

Rowland is now preparing "The Battle of Britain," which may be the first under his new deal.

Hathaway Pact Settled

Henry Hathaway and Paramount have agreed to an amicable severance of Hathaway's contract as a producer-director. He will announce future plans shortly.

PORTLAND

THE local news front buzzed merrily the past week with all the exhibitors in town attending the PCCITO meeting. Theatres were represented from every section of the state and all enjoyed themselves at the meeting. The newspapers covered the meeting and took pictures of the officers.

Mr. Gould announced his new theatre in Dallas is coming along nicely . . . Carl Porter was in doing some booking as was Art Kolstad of Hood River. Art has been in semi-retirement for several months, but is back in the harness with active management of the Kolstad enterprises.

Mrs. Hartman, Estacada; Dutch Stover, Bend; Mr. Rosenfield, The Dalles; Basil Bashor, Kelso; George Roy, Eugene; Earl Baltazar, Rainer; Eino Hemmila and the Mrs., Medford; Dick Fisk, Bandon; Ken Spears, Winlock; Mr. Pragastis, Oregon City; all in town for the meeting, but tending to their booking chores in the meantime.

Word was received here of the death of Bobby Sutters in a plane crash. Sutters was an instructor in aviation and at the time of his death was flying with a student pilot when the plane went into a tailspin and crashed. He was well known on the Row.

Ron Harrington, long a favorite figure on Filmrow, took over the job as manager of the Star Theatre, Portland . . . Ross Nelson and Ray Harmon, Independence, were in town booking and buying advertising. Harmon recently renovated the booth at the Isis . . . Ron Burroughs of the Blue Bird Theatre has a new hobby. He is learning electric welding.

Ted Hackley's father is reported sick and Ted made a hurry-up trip to Seattle to visit him. Tom Tomlinson was down from Seattle to visit friends and renew acquaintances . . . Andy Anderson was slightly bruised in an accident on the road back from Corvallis last week.

Denny Hull was another Portland visitor . . . Banjo Miller has a reason to be proud these days. As secretary of the Oregon ITO he played host to the other officials of the PCCITO and arranged for a private car to transport the group to Seattle for the meeting there. At the Seattle meeting Ben Shearer treated the gang to cigars and cigarettes and carnations for the ladies.

Open Yiddish Studios

HOLLYWOOD—Offices and studios for the production of Jewish pictures have been opened here by Louis Weiss and Sam Rosen at 1357 North Gordon Street. These Yiddish pictures are the first to be produced in Hollywood and shooting will start on the initial production in February.

Leads for "Leisure"

HOLLYWOOD—Wendy Barrie and Kent Taylor have been booked for the leads in RKO's "Repent at Leisure," to be produced by Cliff Reid and directed by Frank Woodruff.

PCCITO Final Session in Series a Strong Draw

Get News-Ban Orders In RKO-Hearst Tiff

San Francisco—Ada Hanafin and Fred Johnson, drama critics of the "Examiner" and "Call-Bulletin" respectively, are said to have received orders from the powers that be that RKO products are not to be reviewed or publicized in any way in either of the newspapers. The papers, both Hearst owned, are obeying the command which came directly from San Simeon supposedly in protest to Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane."

Albert Law Opens Law Office in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES—Albert J. Law, former department of justice deputy stationed here and active in the government's anti-trust suit against the industry, has opened law offices in the Subway Terminal Building. He was recently named general counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners.

Scripting "Henry and Dizzy"

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount has ticketed Val Burton to script "Henry and Dizzy." Sol C. Siegel will produce.

LOS ANGELES—Termed by Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners spokesmen as one of the most significant and constructive sessions yet held by that organization was the meeting staged January 20 at the Elks Club, with some 100 independent showmen in this territory attending.

Keynoting the conclave were discussions of the government's consent decree, the urgency of educating exhibitors to the proper procedure in the matter of arbitration, and a survey of the possible effects on theatre operators of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers battle with the radio networks.

Exhibitors were urged by Albert J. Law, former department of justice deputy and now general counsel for the PCCITO, to clear any and all grievances against distributors or other theatres through him and the PCCITO. Law declared himself willing and ready to offer advice and counsel on consent decree problems whenever they might arise with any exhibitor. He also discussed the decree and its ramifications insofar as showmen in this territory are concerned.

Milton Arthur presided over the gathering, which was the fourth and last in a series up and down the Pacific Coast. Law and Robert H. Poole, the PCCITO's executive secretary, also attended sessions in Seattle, Portland and San Francisco.

LOS ANGELES

BESS EMANUEL, Foreign Films exchange, is recovered from her recent flu attack and back on the job again . . . Lou Goldstein of Astor Pictures announces he has acquired three foreign releases for distribution in this territory—"Mayerling," "Ballerina" and "Song of Freedom" . . . When her incinerator at home exploded, Ida Traves, Columbia film inspectress, suffered serious burns which will keep her away from her job, recuperating, for at least a month . . . Fred Mercy, operator of theatres in Yakima and Walla Walla, Wash., dropped in for a visit with acquaintances here . . . Booking: George Diamos, Lyric Amusement Co. of Arizona; Ben Aranda, Eureka Theatre, Brawley.

Ben Mohi opened his new Picfair January 24. He formerly operated the Century and Princess theatres . . . Harry Gerlinger has taken over the Wistaria in Sierra Madre from J. S. Slate . . . Bill Cox has sold his Paramount and Chief Theatres in Casa Grande, Ariz., to the Louis Long circuit . . . A. Fakuda, Royal Theatre, Hanford, came in for bookings.

Seymour Willing, formerly with Mike Levinson, independent distributor, has now gone into the field for himself with a picture titled "Sinful Souls" . . . Sarah Sachs of M-G-M's billing department bedded with the flu . . . Booking: Phil Greenbaum, Castle and Mecca; Vic Walker, in from Santa Ana; Murray Hawkins of the Swan circuit; Jack Goldberg, booker for Ben Bronstein; Irwin Kanowitz of the Union.

Walter Gregg, formerly with the Louis Long circuit in Arizona, has taken over the Rex in Phoenix from R. B. Killeen . . . William F. Rodgers, Metro's general sales manager, came in from New York for studio conferences and dropped in for a visit at the local exchange . . . More bookers: Henry Milstein, Gardena, Gardena, and Grand, Torrence; J. D. "Judy" Poynter, Ramona, Ramona; Dave Cantor, San Clemente, San Clemente; Tommy Huntington, Seville, Chula Vista.

Jack Cooper, M-G-M booker, is minus a tooth—a bad molar which he had yanked . . . M-G-M employes have resumed their Tuesday night skating sessions at Pan-Pacific Auditorium . . . Sam Milner, Universal salesman, is in from a tour through the Arizona territory . . . Francis Bateman is back at Republic after a holiday in Palm Springs . . . Al Minor, Burbank exhibitor, is in the White Memorial Hospital in Pasadena for a checkup . . . Herb MacIntyre, RKO's western district manager, checked out for a tour through the territory . . . Jim Schiller is in Phoenix on M-G-M exploitation.

Here for conferences with executives of National Theatre Supply, which distributes his product in 11 western states, is E. P. Whitley, general sales manager for the American Seating Co. of Grand Rapids, Mich. . . . Joe Bernhard, Warner Theatres chieftain, has returned to New York after spending a week here huddling with studio and theatre officials . . . Walter E. Green, president of the National Theatre Supply Co., has returned east after conferring here with Oscar Oldknow, Pacific Coast head . . . No one can get Bess Booth, M-G-M secretary, to admit where she got that green zercon ring which she's wearing on the correct finger. She's had it since Christmas.

A three-hour meeting was held at RKO Radio to discuss the forthcoming Ned Depinet sales drive, with Leo Devaney, Canadian sales manager and drive leader, presiding. Also in on the session were Herb MacIntyre, western district head; Max Kravetz of Stephens-Lang Productions and William Burke, homeoffice auditor.

SALT LAKE

JOHN RUGAR of Park City was re-elected president of the Intermountain Theatre Association at a meeting of the group in the Newhouse Hotel. George Smith of Magna, Utah, is vice-president, and Rugar, J. J. Gillette of Tooele, Utah, J. H. Harris of Burley, Idaho, E. H. Steele of Nephi, Utah, Paul deMordaunt of Blackfoot, Idaho, and Walter Hull of Ely, Nevada, are directors.

The Victory Theatre here, under the management of Chet Price, announces a new policy. This house has been running first-run pictures for some time, and now changes over to showing one first run picture and one carry over from the Centre, Utah or Studio theatres. These are houses of the Intermountain Theatres, Inc., chain.

Manager Chet Price and Bill Glasmann, Intermountain theatre managers, accompanied by General Manager Harry David, left here this week to attend the banquet in Chicago given to honor Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, as part of the Fifth Anniversary Drive. Price and Glasmann were prize winners here. Others winning cash awards were Jack Braunagle, Capitol, Logan, Utah; Breck Fagin, Orpheum, Idaho Falls, Idaho; Nevin McCord, Granada, Boise, Idaho, and Harold Chestler, Marlo, Salt Lake City.

RKO District Manager Herb MacIntyre and Captain Leo Devaney have been in Salt Lake City for a few days attending special meetings in connection with the big Ned Depinet Drive now under way . . . RKO has released the latest picture of the Dionne Quintuplets in "Growing Up."

"Kitty Foyle" is a holdover at the local Rialto as is "Comrade X" at the Studio. "Rose Marie" and "Call a Messenger" are being held at the Star . . . John P. Byrne and E. M. Saunders, M-G-M officials, have returned to their respective headquarters after visiting here with Branch Manager Sam Gardner for several days. Conferences were also held with the sales force.

"Philadelphia Story" Is Tops in Seattle

SEATTLE—Heavy rains for a couple of days kept the show-lovers home this week. However "The Philadelphia Story" enjoyed the town's top business at the Fifth. The Benny-Allen feud still continues at the Paramount and folks are still trekking there. Other houses just can boast fair business.

"Kitty Foyle" Holds L. A. First Run Bright Spot

LOS ANGELES—"Kitty Foyle," opening ing day and date at the RKO Hillstreet and Pantages theatres, proved the only bright spot in an otherwise under-normal week for first-run houses here. Holdovers included "Santa Fe Trail" at the Hollywood and Downtown for a second average week; "Love Thy Neighbor," grossing par business in its second stanza at the Paramount, and "Flight From Destiny," which wound up a third inglorious week at the Four Star to make way for "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

"Kitty Foyle" on Dualler Does Best in Denver

DENVER—"Kitty Foyle" and "I'm Still Alive" at the Orpheum were the best business getters, but with the Denver double bill—"This Thing Called Love" and "Lady With Red Hair" a close second. "Santa Fe Trail" goes to the Rialto from the Aladdin; "This Thing Called Love" moves over from the Denver to the Aladdin, and "Kitty Foyle" and "I'm Still Alive" move to the Broadway from the Orpheum. The stock show had quite a bit to do with the good grosses.

Take Under Expectation In S. F. First Runs

SAN FRANCISCO—Business on Market Street not so good as anticipated this week with all houses showing pretty good films. "This Thing Called Love" headed the parade to the boxoffice at the Orpheum. The Bob Crosby double feature, on the stage and on the screen, was disappointing at the Golden Gate. The Crosby orchestra coupled with the world premiere of the Crosby film, "Let's Make Music" was expected to make crowds but fell short. "Thief of Bagdad" did well enough in its third week to be held another. "Hudson's Bay" was the poorest draw on the Street.

Brisk Weather Benefits Grosses in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY—Sunshine with brisk cold weather in this city has intensified theatre patronage, with all houses reporting good attendance. "Arizona" continues for over two weeks and is now at the Studio after first opening at the Centre. "Kitty Foyle" is holding over at the Rialto. The Capitol packed them in with "A Little Bit of Heaven" which was tied in with the Parent Teachers Association.

Hitching Post Opens; Will Show Westerns

HOLLYWOOD — The first theatre devoted exclusively to the showing of westerns and outdoor films opened here January 25 when the Hitching Post was given its press premiere.

The Hitching Post, operated by the Tele-View Corp., was formerly known as the Tele-View Revival Theatre. First bill was Republic's "Melody Ranch," starring Gene Autry, and "Robin Hood of the Pecos," a Republic western featuring Roy Rogers. Tele-View also will continue to operate its News-View Theatre.

Opening was preceded by a "wild west" street parade in which cowboy stars from several studios participated.

SEATTLE

THIS WEEK saw the gathering of all independent exhibitors in this territory to listen to an analysis of the consent decree. Meeting was held in the Washington Hotel . . . The ticket sale for the personal appearance of Gracie Fields, the English stage star, is nearing a record here. This clever gal is doing her chores on behalf of the British-American War Relief Association. Prices range from one dollar to ten. Place will be John Hamrick's Music Hall. Two thousand tickets were printed and the first thousand have been sold with yet eight days to go, and the ones sold are of the five and ten dollar class.

Claude Jensen, partner of John von Herberg, owners of many theatre and other enterprises, here for a couple of days which included an inspection of Von's Cafe, latest Seattle venture of the life-long friends and business associates. While von Herberg resides here Jensen has lived in Portland for the past 20 years.

The Palomar and its manager, Jerry Ross, garnered nice publicity by working with the Bon Marche department store. Alphonse Berge, known as the "Great Drapo" headlining the Palomar bill, demonstrated his stuff for the benefit of the women patrons of the Bon and the store went to town on advertising the fact. Berge takes large strips of cloth and transforms the yardage into almost any type of dress in 20 seconds.

Ben Shearer expects to open his new theatre in Bremerton some time in April. Bjarne Moe designed the job . . . Murray Peck, writing from Spokane, tells that he has been presented with a five-year pin and made a member of the Veteran Scouter's Association. He has also been appointed "Skipper" of his own "ship" in the Sea Scouts . . . Well, well, so the famous saying of Bill Shartin's has reacted. Bill is now in the hospital following an operation. He is allowed to play pinochle with his friends, but he does it laying on his tummy. Quick recovery Bill . . . Mrs. Charlie Greime of Wenatchee suffered a heart attack, but is coming along fine. Charlie is taking her to California in a few days where she will stay until she has fully recovered.

Mrs. Don Condon visiting from San Francisco whispers that she will be the mother of a youngster some time in June. The "gramps" will be Maury Saffle, local branch manager of Metro. Papa is with the Golden State Theatres in the Bay City.

Harvey Day, sales manager for Terry Tunes, here from New York and visiting with Herndon Edmond. Many friends will remember Harvey from the Educational contact . . . Paul Volkman in from Wapato for the first time since last June. Paul missed the exhibitors meeting owing to illness in the family.

Ed Metzger lunching on the Row with J. T. Sheffield prior to Sheff's trip to Portland . . . Tommy Tomlinson of the Republic office to Portland to confer with the booker there . . . Changes around the Sterling Theatres find Darrell Schmalle in charge of the Winter Garden Theatre; Bill Fleming acting manager at the Rivoli and Bill Keating holding down the fort at the Colonial. Jim Sechser was appointed assistant manager at the Woodland.

Milburn Kenworthy and his wife, after spending several days here, have returned to Moscow, Ida. . . . Ted and Mrs. Gamble of the Capitol in Portland here for a quick visit . . . Don Geddes, manager of the Orpheum, back on the job after being home sick with tummy trouble . . . Vic Gauntlett, head of the Hamrick-Evergreen publicity department, suffering a relapse of flu and again confined to his home . . . Harold Brake of the B. F. Shearer Company in San Francisco spending a few days visiting the Seattle office.

Mr. and Mrs. Slats Wilson over from Portland . . . Bruce Keller from Portland meeting friends here . . . Ray Ackles in from Spokane for the first time since his illness . . . Jimmy Beal, manager of the Portland Columbia office, in for the exhibitors meet . . . Mrs. Harry W. Wall, who, until Christmas Day was Mildred Bishop of Lewiston, Ida., here booking pictures. REVIEW FLASHES

NOBODY'S CHILDREN (Col)—A maudlin tale of two orphans, a brother and sister, the latter a cripple. It is an item for the sentimental segment of audiences. Edith Fellows, Billy Lee, Georgia Caine.

New on the Coast—

Hugh Braly, former Paramount district manager supervising Dallas, Memphis and Oklahoma City, shortly takes over George A. Smith's territory composed of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. Smith becomes western sales manager under a reshuffle designed to meet decree operations. Full detail on page 13.

F&M Sell a San Francisco First-Run to Blumenfeld

SAN FRANCISCO—Fanchon & Marco has sold the Orpheum to Joe Blumenfeld of the Blumenfeld Theatre Circuit. The Orpheum, first run Market Street house showing Columbia and Universal films, has been under the F&M banner for the past seven years.

Blumenfeld will now operate first runs in San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton, and Sacramento. In December, 1940, he opened the completely rebuilt Esquire Theatre, subsequent run theatre in downtown San Francisco. It is assumed that the Esquire will be used now for moveover and sluff pictures.

Buy "Benjamin Blake"

HOLLYWOOD—"Benjamin Blake," a novel by Edison Marshall, has been acquired by 20th-Fox. The story, laid in 18th-century England, will be produced by William Perlberg. Purchase price was reported as $50,000.

Honor Drive Winners at Balaban Testimonial

CHICAGO—Paramount executives, heads of circuits affiliated with the company, and winning theatre managers in the recently concluded Barney Balaban drive—numbering 400-odd persons in all—met here at the Drake last Thursday to pay homage to the Paramount president on the occasion of his fifth anniversary as president of the company.

A. M. Botsford, Paramount producer, was toastmaster at the banquet held Thursday night, which climaxed the day's festivities. In chronological order, speakers who were to have addressed the assemblage included: A. H. Blank, president, Tri-States Theatres, Inc.; Stanton Griffis, chairman, executive committee, Paramount; Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president and general manager of Paramount studios; Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board of directors; Leo Spitz of Spitz & Adcock, law firm; Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and sales manager for Paramount; Hugo Sonnenschein, Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse; John Balaban, secretary and treasurer, Balaban & Katz; and E. V. Richards, Paramount-Richards Theatres, Inc.

The entire assemblage rose as one man when Barney Balaban addressed the men who had come to pay him tribute.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards to theatre managers who topped their respective circuits in the Barney Balaban Fifth Anniversary Drive held November to December, 1940. Those who were to step up to the podium and receive their prizes were:

S. A. Ammerman, Comerford-Publix Theatres; A. H. Bachman, Balaban & Katz Theatres; Harold D. Barnes, Central States Theatres; Gregory Beck, Comerford-Publix Theatres; Mortimer E. Berman, Great States Theatres; Harry Botwick, M&P Theatres; Jack Braunagel, Intermountain Theatres; S. R. Claggett, Balaban & Katz Theatres; Jack Dahmer, Jefferson Amusement Theatres; A. D. In for the Doings—

On the left, Harry Sherman, producer of the Hopalong Cassidy series, is first of the Paramount executives to arrive in Chicago for the company sales meeting and the Barney Balaban Testimonial Dinner. To the right the guest of honor himself and Mrs. Balaban are being welcomed by John Balaban, secretary-treasurer of Balaban and Katz in Chicago, and A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States Theatres, and national chairman of the drive in behalf of the Paramount president.

They're First Run Winners—

First and second prize winners in the first-run division of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exploitation campaign. At the left is Roy E. Hanson, Jefferson Theatre, Goshen, Ind., who took $2,500 as the top money for his campaign on "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President." Right is Rex Williams of the Elco in Elkhart, Ind., who annexed $750 for his campaign on "Judge Hardy and Son."

Praught, Minnesota Amusement Theatres; Chester Price, Intermountain Theatres; Morris Simms, M&P Theatres; Frank Staley, Great States Theatres; E. J. Sullivan, Interstate circuit; S. E. Tanner, Jefferson Amusement Theatres; Frank Upton, United Detroit Theatres; Lorenz Wegener, Central States Theatres; and Charles Zinn, Minnesota Amusement Theatres.

Other winners who were unable to be present at the testimonial were: Henry Brownlee, Malco Theatres; Willis W. Grist jr., Dominion Theatres; George Laby, Western Massachusetts Theatres; Louis Marcks, Western Massachusetts Theatres; J. R. McEachron, Malco Theatres; David F. Perkins, Western Massachusetts Theatres; Charles R. Smith, Western Massachusetts Theatres; Edward A. Smith, Western Massachusetts Theatres; Harl A. Wolever, Dominion Theatres; and Remmel Young, Malco Theatres.

The entertainment portion of the banquet started off with a stirring tableau entitled "To the Stars and Stripes," presented by the B&K Chicago Theatre ballet with choral ensemble. Following a community songfest entitled, appropriately enough after a smash Paramount picture, "Love Thy Neighbor," a regular floor show with Lou Holtz as master of ceremonies entertained the guests.

A riotous satire of the picture business in general, and Paramount in particular, with Jack Benny as chief "banterer," had the audience in hysterics. Following the showing of a special Paramount newsreel taken at luncheon that day, a floor show consisting of top names in Chicago's show business proved a fitting climax to the topnotch evening's entertainment. Included among those who entertained the guests were Jane Froman, the Nicholas Brothers, Wendy Barrie, Arlene Judge and Lola Lane.

Scheduled to come in from the Paramount Studios in Hollywood were: Phil Reagan, Constance Moore and Stirling Hayden, the studio's new acting find of "Virginia" who flew from New York to be present.

The complete attendance in alphabetical order of those who were to be present at the Barney Balaban dinner were: J. M. Abraham, Balaban & Katz Theatres; Adam Adams, Paramount Theatre, Newark, N. Assessments on Four Exceed $1,000,000

MILWAUKEE—Among the 42 Milwaukee enterprises having a 1940 assessment value of $1,000,000 or more are the Majestic Bldg., theatre and stores, assessed at $1,780,000; the Empire Bldg., housing the Riverside Theatre, $1,513,000; the Warner Theatre Bldg., $1,094,000, and the Carpenter Bldg., housing the Wisconsin Theatre, $1,231,000.

Hold South American Star

HOLLYWOOD — Alberto Vila, South American singing star, has been held for another term by RKO. He made his American debut in "They Met in Argentina."

Support Bill for Daylight Saving

MADISON, WIS.—Milwaukee dailies have given editorial support to the Murray bill introduced in the state senate, which would remove the present statutory restrictions which prevent localities from adopting daylight saving, retaining merely the provision that the state shall go according to standard time. The measure provides for daylight saving for any community in Wisconsin that may desire it.

Strongest proponent of the measure has been the state medical society, which has been advocating the adoption of daylight saving time in Wisconsin for the past several months. Labor and farmers are expected to go along with exhibitors in opposing the measure.

Would Repeal Picketing Ban

Also of interest to exhibitors is the move by labor to repeal the Catlin and Peterson acts adopted by the 1939 legislature. The former law forbids picketing by a minority of any bargaining unit or by workers not employed by the firm against which a strike is called. The Peterson law forbids secondary picketing and permits employers, as well as labor unions and individual employes, to bring actions before the employment relations board. Both measures were bitterly fought in the last legislature by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and the CIO as "anti-labor."

While the administration's budget bill calls for no additional taxes, it is regarded likely by some leaders that additional assessments will have to be made to meet a difference of more than $8,000,000 between budget requests and estimated revenues for the biennium.

Any tax proposals affecting the industry, such as a fee on film defeated in the 1939 legislature, will meet with stiff opposition from exhibitors.

A straw in the wind as to the likelihood of additional taxes, including a sales tax, is seen in the introduction of a joint resolution to amend the state constitution to prohibit the levying of taxes on "food, clothing, fuel or other necessities of life."

The resolution must pass the 1941 legislature and the 1943 legislature and be submitted to the electorate at a referendum before the constitution can be changed to prohibit the levying of these taxes.

Nearly One in Ten Have Influenza

St. Charles, Mo.—Upwards of 1,000 persons in this city of 11,000 are ill with influenza. The majority of cases are of a mild nature. Many cases have not been reported to Dr. A. A. Gossow, city health officer. About one of seven among the 3,009 students in public and parochial schools, are away from classes because of illness. Most of them have the flu but there are also a considerable number of mump cases.

Lending Foils Another Attempt by Stenchers

KIRKWOOD, Mo. — Theodore Lending, owner-manager of the Kirkwood Theatre, who has been having trouble with stench-bombers of late, became suspicious when two men purchased tickets for the show one evening last week. So he called the police. One of the men left before the officer put in an appearance, and the other tried to leave when John Law came in and took a seat behind him.

Taken into custody outside the theatre, the man was searched by the policeman who reported he found two bottles of stench fluid in the man's pockets. He told the police that he and his companion were promised $10 by a stranger to release the fluid in the theatre.

On January 10, Lending clamped a headlock on a stench-bomber. He has also frustrated several other "bombing" attempts since September 1 when he refused to renew his contract with the Projectionists' Local 143.

"Pappy" Cheshire Sees Himself on the Screen

ST. LOUIS—"Pappy" Cheshire, for the past ten years impresario for hillbilly radio shows, saw himself as others see him last Tuesday when he and other stars of his KMOX radio troupe journeyed out to the St. Louis Theatre for the midwest premiere of Republic's "Barnyard Follies." In the film, "Pappy" has the part of headmaster of an orphanage.

A battery of two 200,000,000 candlepower searchlights, together with six spots were utilized to light up Grand Boulevard in the vicinity of the theatre. The searchlight equipment used was en route from Hollywood to Miami, Fla., for the world premiere of Universal's "Back Street" on February 4.

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

A Dud Is a Dud in Any Language

St. Louis—Another slant on 1941 as Harry C. Arthur jr. of F&M sees it:

"The exhibitor doesn't want success without effort. We're all willing to dig in and go to work if a reasonable chance for success seems possible. But too many times, against our better judgment, we've advertised over our heads, exploited to the high heavens, only to meet the same meager boxoffice grosses as other exhibitors throughout the nation experienced on the same pictures. No amount of effort is going to transform a dud into a 'wow'."

MILWAUKEE

THE PABST Theatre here resumed its showing of weekend German films January 24 . . . Earl Fischer, manager of the Alamo, is on a two-week vacation . . . Joseph R. Rosenfeld, manager of the Modjeska, has been re-elected president of the Mitchell Street Advancement Ass'n.

Mrs. Phillip J. Tolkan, who before her marriage several years ago was Monya Zamil, secretary to Ben J. Miller, film attorney and secretary of the Variety Club, is the mother of a baby girl . . . Grace Bannow, personal secretary to the Andrews Sisters, is visiting her parents here.

Ken Mayer, who has been assistant manager at Warner's Venetian in Racine, has returned to Milwaukee to his former post as treasurer of the Warner. He is succeeded at the Venetian by Edward Friedwald, who has been assistant manager at the circuit's Jeffrey in Chicago . . . More than 500 junior police boys and girls were the guests of Jack Keegan, manager of Warner's Venetian in Racine, at an annual theatre party last week.

Russell Leddy, manager of Fox's Orpheum in Green Bay, and Harold S. Knudsen, manager of the circuit's Fond du Lac in Fond du Lac, addressed the Lions Club in the latter city . . . Edward Duclos, New Holstein theatre manager, is confined in a Sheboygan hospital with a strained back resulting from a fall.

The Rivoli in La Crosse announces a new type of double feature entertainment on Fridays and Saturdays consisting of a feature film and a comedy round-up of shorts. The show runs about three hours . . . Fox has shifted H. G. Dimmit from Racine to its Strand in Manitowoc, where he succeeds Verne Rounds, and Joe Klauzer from its Paradise in West Allis to its Sherman in Milwaukee. Charles Hacker is the new manager at the Paradise.

Walter Holt is the new manager of the Eskin-operated house at Kiel. He was formerly projectionist at the circuit's Rialto in Kaukauna and is succeeded there by Francis Bisel, who has been projectionist at Kiel . . . Norman Pettingill, Superior exhibitor, has a hobby of painting murals, and his scenes can be viewed in a number of business places throughout Upper Wisconsin.

The Home Theatre Corp. at Antigo has re-elected Mose A. Jansen, president; Dr. C. E. Zellmer, vice-president, and T. L. Jordan, secretary-treasurer. Also re-elected by stockholders are Directors Earl Plantz and Ray Walch . . . Old-time silents have made their bow at the Town Grill in Oshkosh.

St. Louis PRC Branch Is Formed by Three

ST. LOUIS—A local branch of Producers Releasing Corp. has been organized here. Incorporators are Andrew R. Dietz, well-known local film exchange manager and salesman; Noah Bloomer, theatre owner of Belleville, Ill.; and Philip C. Kopitsky, University City. Kopitsky & Kessler, St. Louis, are attorneys for the new company.

Theatre Attractions, Inc., Organized in Mound City

ST. LOUIS—Theatre Attractions, Inc., has been incorporated here to carry on and conduct a general advertising business both as principals and agents, including the preparation and arrangements of advertisements; to direct and produce radio programs, and to engage generally in the theatrical business.

Incorporators: Walter Lutz, 10 shares; Louis Bauer, 10 shares, and L. C. Craig, St. Louis, 1,590 shares. Karol A. Korngold is attorney for the company.

Funeral Services Held For Hannah Rosenthal

ST. LOUIS—Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Rindskopf Chapel for Hannah Sisco Rosenthal, wife of Barney Rosenthal, veteran local exchange owner, manager and salesman and a charter member and leader of St. Louis Variety.

Following the services at the chapel the body was taken to B'nai Amoona Cemetery in St. Louis county for interment.

Mrs. Rosenthal, apparently in good health, died of a heart ailment on January 19.

The services were attended largely by members of the local film colony.

St. Louis Variety Club May Open Restaurant

ST. LOUIS—Variety Club executives are considering a proposal to open a restaurant as a means of increasing its revenue. The club, now located in the basement of the Roosevelt Hotel, will be moved to the mezzanine of the Missouri Theatre Building.

A committee headed by Harry C. Arthur jr., chief barker, and Lou Ansell of the Ansell Bros. circuit, is acquainting members with the idea. A "chef of ability" would preside over the kitchen, if the idea goes through.

Northwest Allied Roster Zooms

Minneapolis—During the past year, under its new regime and with dues consideraly reduced, Northwest Allied has shown a 300 per cent increase in membership, with 210 theatres now represented as against 42 before and St. Paul independents signed up 100 per cent. These figures were made public by President E. L. Peaslee at the convention here this week.

"Kitty" and "Nanette" Big in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS — The heaviest boxoffice play currently is going to the Orpheum, which has "No, No, Nanette" and Cab Calloway, on the stage and screen, respectively, and "Kitty Foyle" at the State. "Tin Pan Alley" is a holdover, having moved over from the State to the Century for an extension of its loop first-run. "Gallant Sons," Gopher offering, also is attracting some attention.

Omaha Takes Hold Firm Against Inclemencies

OMAHA — Unfavorable weather, so-so product and strong competition pulled grosses down to normal figures. Exhibitors report generally good business, considering all angles.

Orpheum reported above average business for "Second Chorus" and "Murder Over New York" dual. Other two first-runs were glad to get "satisfactory" grosses, Omaha with "Go West" and "Gallant Sons," Brandeis with second week of "Kitty Foyle" and "Saint in Palm Springs."

Annual Golden Glove events and twice-a-week professional ice hockey are furnishing the competition. Old Man Winter is supplying cold wind and snow.

Details for week ending January 18:

Northwest Allied Accepts Plan to Fight Decree

MINNEAPOLIS—Northwest Allied will attempt to obtain passage of a state law to nullify many important consent decree provisions. This decision was reached at the final session of the convention here.

The circumventing measure would compel distributors to sell their entire season's product with a minimum 20 per cent cancellation, as at present, in place of groups of five as provided in the decree. It also would permit exhibitors to eliminate films deemed objectionable on moral, religious and racial grounds.

The unit also decided:

(1) To demand an immediate reduction in film rentals of at least ten per cent, based on the shift in population from the territory due to the military program and better employment conditions in industrial sections elsewhere.

(2) To launch a campaign, enlisting all industry branches, to bring the public back to the theatres and offset competing entertainment.

(3) To resist 50 per cent split deals, increased admissions and extended playing time for any pictures.

(4) To retain the "democratic right" to maintain and set admission prices on all pictures. Advanced admissions for particular films and boosted children's prices were opposed.

(5) To seek revocation of an internal revenue department ruling requiring an admission tax on reduced student tickets.

(6) To ask film exchanges to quit servicing schools and other such institutions showing films to the general public and charging admission therefor.

(7) To seek restriction of theatre building and circuit expansion via state laws.

(8) To propose a measure which will curb free shows and the exhibition of 16mm films.

S. P. Halpern, local attorney, informed the exhibitors that, under a court ruling in the state of Washington, all existing Ascap contracts are illegal and unenforceable. The question as to whether members should refuse to pay the music tax was referred to a committee.

A resolution calling for the organization's support of a theatre divorcement bill, now in the state legislature, was rejected.

Kaycee Trade Begins to See Merit in Decree

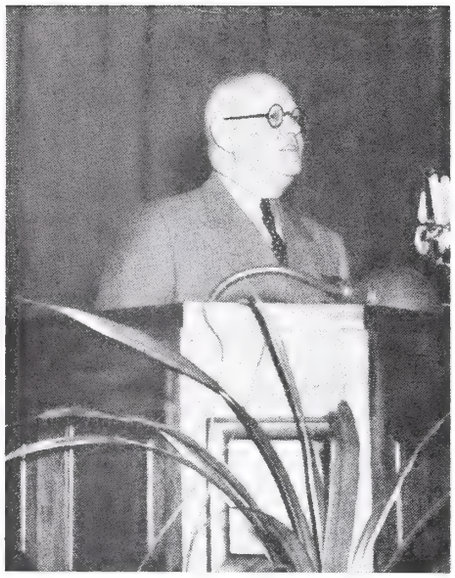
KANSAS CITY—There seems to be a disposition among film and theatremen to regard somewhat more favorably the consent degree, in which connection they think of the sales in blocks-of-five and arbitration. As the time approaches for arbitration to become effective, exhibitors are expressing a little more confidence in the possibility of the arbitration setup to do them some good. At least, they feel, the arbitration boards will be impartial, and while the fact that the boards will not include anyone in the industry may mean a long time for the reaching of a decision, there will be less disposition on the part of either complainant or defendant to be dissatisfied with decisions as unfair.

Exhibitors are inclined to think that selling in blocks of five will tend to make pictures better. Some complaints will be filed with the board, according to report, as soon as it is named and starts functioning.

Omaha's Arbitration Board Bows Feb. 1

OMAHA—The arbitration board with jurisdiction over the Omaha trade area of Nebraska and western Iowa will be opened formally February 1, following selection of a special panel of 20 arbitrators from this area, according to an announcement by the American Arbitration Ass'n.

The arbitrators will be business and professional men, who will receive $10 a day while settling controversies between distributors and exhibitors.



Danielson in Hospital

MINNEAPOLIS—E. L. Danielson, Mable, Minn., exhibitor, came to Minneapolis to attend the Northwest Allied convention. Before the meeting he went to a local hospital for a physical examination. Results of the examination were such that Danielson decided to remain at the hospital and pass up the convention.

Divorcement Bill In Minnesota

Minneapolis—A bill has been introduced into the state legislature providing for the divorcement of producer and distributor owned and controlled theatres. It is similar to the law passed in North Dakota and later knocked out in the courts. President E. L. Peaslee of Northwest Allied says that his organization did not know about its introduction until he heard about it over the radio and he is unaware as to who is sponsoring it.

OMAHA

CARL MANSFIELD, Colfax, Schuyler, Neb., writes BOXOFFICE complete information to correct a previously printed item and we're glad to get his letter. Mansfield and Harold D. Bowers of Weeping Water, Neb., own the theatre and Mansfield operates it. Bowers married Exhibitor Mansfield's niece and Mrs. A. D. St. Clair, wife of the Wymore, Neb., exhibitor, is Mr. Manfield's daughter. Thanks for the information, Exhibitor Mansfield.

B. A. Tomte, Paramount peddler, is celebrating his 14th wedding anniversary . . . Faye Honey, Tecumseh, Neb., was on Davenport street wearing a snappy tweed suit . . . Clyde Cooley, Fox screen room operator, was 41 years old this week, the youngest movie operator (in age) in Omaha. His wife's birthday was the same day . . . Roy Bott, exhibitor-mayor at Hooper, Neb., was on Filmrow. Also Carl Johnson, Grand, Red Oak, Ia.

Bill Laird is the new poster clerk at Warner's. He's a brother of Dorothy Laird, who works in the office of the same layout. Dorothy is quitting soon to join her husband on the coast. Hubby is in the navy. Margaret Collins, no relative of Tom, will take Dorothy's place as steno . . . Ike Rubin, who sells pictures for Paramount when he is not worrying about Nebraska's football team, was called to Chicago by the serious illness of his brother-in-law.

Fred Hunt, former operator at Omaha theatres, and former shipping clerk at Quality Theatre Supply, died at his home this week of a heart attack. He was about 50 years old. He was vice-president of Local B47, Film Exchange Employes Union . . . Dad Jenkins, City, David City, Neb., has been confined to his bed because of kidney trouble . . . Jack Riggs, Sun, Central City, Neb., has been recovering from an attack of flu.

Exhibitor Nelson, who runs the theatre at North Loup, Neb., also has a garage business . . . Dick Lysinger reports he had the Grand at Ravenna, Neb., "packed for the first time in history." It was an implement film free to farmers in the surrounding territory.

There's a lot of rivalry going on between two of our younger exhibitors. They are Maynard Nelson, manager of the World, and George Munroe jr., manager of the Fort, both at Kearney ,Neb. When one pulls a stunt to publicize a picture, then the other one thinks up another stunt which he hopes will outdo the other. The people in and around Kearney are getting a real display of showmanship from both sides, our scouts tell us.

H. B. Shook, manager of Photophone sales for RCA, from Camden, N. J., was here to see Frank Van Husan of Western Theatre Supply on business . . . Members of Local 343, IATSE, report they are on the lookout for two slot film machines expected to show up in Omaha in a couple of weeks. They will demand an operator be employed for each machine for maintenance.

When "Miss Bishop" Took a Bow—

Censor an Act

MINNEAPOLIS—Censorship reared its head here when the police department purity squad head, Sig Couch, acting on complaints, ordered the Minnesota Theatre to direct Lou Holtz, the comedian, to eliminate a piece of comedy business from his show. No effort was made to defy the order. The department claims the right to revoke theatre licenses in instances where the entertainment is offensive, but showhouses can combat the order in the courts which ultimately would decide the issue.

KAYCEE

CLE BRATTON brought in a note of optimism from Council Grove, Kas., where he operates the Ritz. On the Row this week, Cle said he had recently talked with farmers. Some of them had been digging post holes, and reported moisture down from 60 to 72 inches, the deepest it had been in the memory of any of those in the group. This, farmers say, practically guarantees a wheat crop, and makes conditions excellent for corn.

Vernon Watkins is the name of the addition to the booking staff at H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., assisting W. G. McKinney and Virginia Beuerman. He's from Oklahoma City.

Harris, Alexander Film Company representative. He went to Colorado Springs (home office) last week and got hung up by the snow storm at Goodland and Topeka, Kas., both.

Quite a few film, theatre and allied trades men went to St. Joseph, Mo., January 22, for the opening of Frank Cassil's Uptown. Frank has the Rialto there, too. The Uptown formerly was the Rivoli . . . Frank Meade is reportedly severely ill from the effects of a recent fall. He operates the Meade and Parma at Kingman, Kas.

Here's a mental picture for you: Imagine Bill Lansburg, Paramount exploiteer, singing while Nick Lucas (who gets paid for singing) accompanies him on the guitar. It happened the other evening at a party for Lucas, who has been at the Tower. Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman, told riddles as his contribution to the party (everyone had to do something)—and they were pretty snazzy riddles, too.

It's getting tougher all the time to find a parking spot on Filmrow. It doesn't bother us because we ride the street car mostly, but it must annoy exhibitors in from out of town, or in from the suburbs. It seems to have become a habit—or a game—to park as far as you can from the next car without actually leaving enough room for another car to get in. We looked the other day, and at least ten more cars could have been parked on the Row. If those parking had left just enough room to get in and out rather than a whole car length (less bumper) between them and the next one.

The roster of Universal exchange employe teams, fighting it out tooth and toenail for some of that Universal drive money, shifted somewhat last week, but didn't jar the Kellys from top spot. Com-

Bills Affecting Industry Stirring in Nebraska

LINCOLN—Legislative corridors here all are buzzing with talk of several bills soon to be hoppered of interest to the amusement industry. Motion pictures seem a cinch to draw the attention of most of them.

First in, although eyed coldly by most solons and Governor Dwight Griswold, is the proposed one-cent tax measure, which will put a penny tax on every purchase of what the bill describes as non-essentials. In this field are cosmetics, liquor, cigarettes, and all amusement tickets. It matters not whether an article or ticket costs five cents or $5, the one-cent ante will be on it. This money is earmarked for relief.

The man who is readying the measure is Sen. E. M. Neubauer, who, in his first term as a legislator, had two bills before the house, one on divorcement, and one a reel tax. Neither of those passed.

Ascap, which is already up to its neck in a struggle with BMI, may feel again the ire of the Nebraska legislature. It was in 1937 that the unicameral passed a law making music combinations illegal, a law which is even now facing test in the U. S. Supreme Court. The law this time will probably be in the form of a levied tax on every dollar collected by Ascap in Nebraska from the various licensees.

A censorship measure is apt to make its appearance, and there may be another attempt by the legislators to fasten some tax troubles on those who do business in Nebraska via circuit ownership.

A CARD from Charlie Weiner, independent distributor, postmarked Rapid City, S. D., and showing Mt. Rushmore, says: "There isn't a sign of snow out here and the hotel menus have brook trout at 50 cents so I'm happy. I went out to see how Borglum is getting along with the national landmark. There's a show that's free. There won't be enough seats for the rush when it's finished" . . . Jack Haley of Jam Handy in from Detroit, Mich., to look things over. His pictures, distributed by Charlie Weiner, have been shown in recent weeks at the Orpheum and Minnesota theatres.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Tom Hall, Buhl and Cook, Minn.; Sim Heller, Grand Rapids, Minn.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Lyle Webster, Chippewa Falls, Minn.; Gene McCarthy, Fergus Falls, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; William Amacher, Castlewood, S. D.; Joe Schindel, Granite Falls, Minn., and Charles Connought, Olivia, Minn.

Charlie Jackson, Warner salesman, hasn't heard from his parents in London since November 28, and he's plenty worried. While a cousin was taking his wife to the hospital in London, a bomb struck the ambulance and blew him to pieces. His wife, however, escaped with slight injuries and came through her confinement nicely . . . Bill Grant, Warner city salesman here, in second place in the entire district in the Sears sales drive.

Barkers of Tent No. 8 Review the Year

By B. O. TELLER

KANSAS CITY—A real, heart-to-heart meeting was held January 20 by members of Variety Club. It was Jerry Zigmond's first time in the chair, and the Newman manager put responsibility for the future of the Tent squarely on the shoulders of individual members. He stated bluntly that members have as good a club as they work for, and stressed the fact that responsibility for developing and carrying through a program is on the personnel of committees he has named.

Variety members often overlook one of the primary objectives of the organization, Charley Shafer, Fox Midwest, said, and that is, good fellowship within the industry. Kansas City is one of the largest film centers in the U. S. from the standpoint of personnel, and he felt that the club, hard to get started, is doing a lot of good and can do more. H. J. Griffith of Griffith Theatres also commented.

A Good Job

The Tent here has done a pretty good job, according to Arthur Cole of Paramount. On the basis used by other clubs for totting up the score, Kansas City Variety will complete its year of 1940 pretty close to the $10,000 for charity pledged at the beginning. Cole stressed the frequency with which the club is called on for aid.

The club has attracted community attention through its charitable activities. A letter from C. Whit Pfeiffer, welfare agency director for Kansas City, was read; in it Pfeiffer complimented members of Variety very strongly for the help they've given children of Kansas City through the money raised in the bowling tournament.

Rube Melcher, chairman of the house committee, reported on some tentative plans being made by that group.

The Committees

Following are the committees, appointed by Zigmond, for 1941. The first member listed for each committee is chairman thereof.

House—Rube Melcher, Ward Scott, Dick Biechele, Rube Finkelstein, O. K. Mason, Beverly Miller, Jim States.

Ways and Means—H. J. Griffith, C. A. Schultz, J. H. States, J. W. McKinney, Finton Jones, Beverly Miller, Sam Abend, A. F. Baker.

Membership—O. K. Mason, Harry McClure, Ralph Morrow, Jack Renfro, Ward Scott, C. A. Schultz, O. L. Williamson, Roy Young, Les Durland.

Entertainment—Leland Allen, James McConnell, Hal Perrin, Stanley Goldberg, Nat Hechtman, Frank Ritter, J. W. Lewis.

Kings For A Day—R. F. Withers, Beverly Miller, Dr. N. Zoglin, George Baker, Finton Jones, H. J. Griffith.

Publicity—Bill Lansburg, Claude Morris, Homer Blackwell, Harold Cohen, Lon Cox, Norris Cresswell, Leo Finkelstein, John Graham.

Bowling and Bowling Tournament—Frank Hensler, Fred Meyn, Sam Naster, C. E. Shafer, Is Beiser, Jack Barnett, Gus

Kubitzki, Frank Lambader, George Hinton.

Welfare—Arthur Cole, C. M. Parkhurst, E. C. Rhoden, Ben Shlyen, W. E. Truog, Dick Biechele, Ed D. Durwood, Lee Jones, E. L. Harris, Dr. C. L. Gilles.

Days of '49—Charles Gregory, J. W. Lewis, J. W. McKinney, Frank Ritter, Truly Wildman, Wm. Benjamin, Jack Barnett, W. E. Gregory, Eddie Green, C. C. Knickerbocker, Ray Higdon, George Harttmann, J. H. Harris, C. E. Esterley.

Hollingsworth Will Ready Third House in Beatrice

BEATRICE, NEB.—Frank and Marie Hollingsworth, owners of the Rialto Theatre here, will remodel a recently acquired downtown building into a 400-seat theatre. The property is almost directly across the street from the Pix Theatre, also operated by the Hollingsworths.

Work will start February 1 and it is planned to have the job completed late in March. Scott-Ballantyne Company of Omaha will supervise the remodeling and equipping.

Fox Midwest to Play Astor Combination

KANSAS CITY—The Astor Pictures combination of "Scarface" and "Sky Devils" has been booked for the entire Fox Midwest circuit following two weeks of record-breaking business at the circuit's subsequent run Apollo here.

Kerr Set to Reopen

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—Earl W. Kerr expects to reopen the Broadway Theatre here by February 1. The house, following a fire late last year, has been extensively remodeled, including new seats, sound and cooling equipment, new furnishings, ticket office and a new marquee.

Back to Des Moines

MINNEAPOLIS—Tom Burke, former National Screen branch manager here and lately Monogram exchange manager in Des Moines, will go to the latter city for National Screen. He is a Minneapolis resident.

It's a little early for Spring, but things are beginning to grow: that mustache of Charley Siebenthaler's, for instance. It's been a season for that sort of growth. We recall W. G. McKinney last fall; Dick Salt more recently, and now Siebenthaler.

Big news of the week really, though, is the 7½-pound baby boy whose birth January 19 has started buttons popping off Poppa Bill Redden's vest. The manager of Ross Federal Service says it happened at St. Luke's, that the name is William Burch Redden, and that everyone is doing fine.

Simon Galitzki, who has the Coed at Topeka, Kas., and Mrs. Galitzki celebrated Simon's birthday, January 16, as guests of the Albert Matlofs of Van Nuys, Calif., at Earl Carroll's theatre in Hollywood . . . Joe Green, who used to manage Bill Fulton's houses here, and who opened the Brookside, was in the past week visiting friends and waiting for the delivery of a new Cadillac. Joe now is managing the Raymond Theatre at Pasadena, Calif., which Bill Reinke (formerly of the Tower here) and Chet Johnson have. Between times Joe is appearing in pictures. He appears as second lead to Leon Errol in RKO's "The Fired Man."

Tom Edwards, Ozark, Eldon, Mo., currently is in bed with the flu . . . The Lakin Theatre at Lakin, Kas., is celebrating its third birthday. Shows are held in the high school auditorium . . . Influenza, widely suffered by a lot of people, isn't helping the boxoffice any at the moment.

Jerry Baker is remodeling the Liberty at Mexico, Mo. The remodeling includes a new marquee, new light fixtures, addition of modern rest rooms, new carpet, redecoration and repainting, new screen, new lamps and lenses. The Rex at Mexico also is being refurbished.

Bill Fulton, who has the Southtown, Strand and Vogue here, and the State in Kansas City, Kas., is in California, where he has purchased a ranch in Hidden Valley, 40 miles out of Hollywood . . . The Junction, Junction City, Kas., a Griffith house managed by John Sanders, has been recarpeted. The order went to National Theatre Supply . . . Bill VerBrugge is operating a show in the high school auditorium at Reading, Kas.

Jack Goldhar, district manager, was in last week with Haskell Masters, new western sales manager for United Artists, for a meeting with salesmen here . . . The Claflin Theatre at Claflin, Kas., has been closed . . . F. J. Peterson is managing the Panama, which recently was reopened at Burlingame, Kas., by C. L. Miller of Topeka.

Bob Haley, who used to manage the Orpheum here, was in this week from Chicago for RKO. He handled the special preview for press and exhibitors of this territory on "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" at the Orpheum, Monday evening. It was a "sneak preview" for the theatre, a special presentation for newspaper men from Western Missouri and Kansas, and for exhibitors from Kansas City and the territory.

Metro employes enjoyed a sleigh ride on January 17 . . . The Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association and Baker Enterprises have moved their offices from 221 West 18th Street to 126-28 West 18th Street, ground floor. This is the spot the association has occupied three times, off and on, since the building was completed.

Ted Wilkins, shipping clerk at Republic-Midwest the past year, has been appointed booker to succeed Jim Weakley. Wilkins, who will work with Johnny Scott, is succeeded by Cleo Burrell jr., who has been with Film Delivery.

Films Draw Surpasses Stage, Holds Singer

MINNEAPOLIS—With few exceptions, it's pictures, not stage shows, which attract the vast majority of patrons into a theatre, and that's the way it will continue to be, in the opinion of Mort H. Singer, owner of the Orpheum here and many other large theatres throughout the country in which he plays a combination of stage entertainment and films at frequent intervals.

And for that reason, Singer sees no come-back in prospect for vaudeville, he said here when he stopped over to inspect his Orpheum. The public, generally speaking, don't want vaudeville as a regular fare and it only will go to see name stars or important bands which it is especially anxious to catch in the flesh, according to Singer.

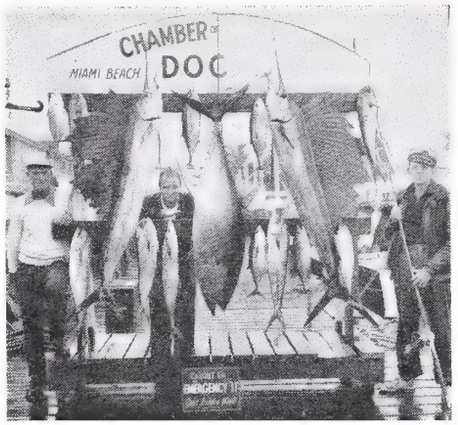
"A good stage show coupled with a weak picture usually will not draw profitable business," he asserted. "On the other hand, a worth-while picture will pull heavily alone or even when combined with weak stage fare. The number of stage attractions which can hold up strongly at the boxoffice alone, on the other hand, is small. That isn't only my experience, but the experience of all other theatre operators."

One of the main reasons for this situation, Singer, believes is that women constitute the principal potential theatre customers and they, in the aggregate, prefer films to vaudeville. The women bring the men along to the showhouses, he points out.

Commonwealth Transfers Parrott to Creston, Ia.

KANSAS CITY—Commonwealth Theatres this week announced that L. D. Parrott, who for several years has been in charge of the auditing department, has been transferred to Creston, Ia., as city manager for the circuit.

Merl Hillyer, city manager at Creston, comes to Kansas City as manager of the Benton. Howard Woolf of the Benton goes to Lawrence, Kans., as manager of the Varsity under Stan Schwahn, city manager for Commonwealth. Hazeljoy Ralph, with Commonwealth several years, is taking over the auditing department.



McClain Shifts Several Central States Heads

FREMONT, NEB.—Several switches in personnel have been made by M. E. McClain, district manager of Central States Theatres here.

Ed Schoenthal, formerly of the Sun, Holdrege, has been moved into Fremont to run the Empress.

Johnny Matthews has gone from the Rex, in Albion, to replace Schoenthal in Holdrege.

Art Johnson, until lately assistant manager of the Fremont Empress, has taken over the vacated post in Albion.

Gerbrach's String—

: Back Seat for Wally :

AMES, IA.—The sunny south hasn't slowed Ames' Joe Gerbrach down a bit.

In fact, judging from a column in the Miami (Fla.) Daily News, January 10, Windsor and Wally had to hire a press agent to get any attention in Florida with Joe around making news.

His latest exploit is right in line with his theatre tactics, designed to pull two customers instead of one past the ticket-taker. He's using a 24-thread line down in Florida and landing two fish at once—sailfish.

Bob Munroe's "Fishing Guide" column in the Miami Daily News tells the story:

"Possibly I should try to appear professionally excited over the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's visit to Cat Cay, and toss off a three-star essay on the six barracuda and the yellowtail he managed to snag day before yesterday fishing with Uncle Lou Wasey on the Cookie; but somehow my perverted sense of values gets me off today on the subject of a 148-pound Allison tuna taken just offshore here Thursday morning by one of Captain Wall's customers aboard the Emergency II.

"D'ye mind?

"The customer's name is Joe Gerbrach and he hails from Ames, Iowa—but don't let that fool you. Joe is quite a deep-sea fisherman, as he demonstrated yesterday in more ways than one.

"As to the Allison—and by the way, I'm pleased to note they're running more man-sized as the season gets under way—it was only a 40-minute job for him with a 24-thread outfit. So what did he do then? Why, if you'll believe Captain Wall, and you'd better or smile when you call him that, this visitor from 'where the tall corn grows,' stepped out and caught himself two sailfish simultaneously! Yeh . . . two, that's right. The weights were 55 and 44 pounds, respectively. I asked about that particularly.

"Captain Wall says not two, but three, struck together. The third one just missed getting hooked, or the story might have been that much better. Gerbrach handled both rods without any sort of help (except a little advice) from the guide, standing one up on its holder while he pumped up the fish on the other for a while, and finally bringing both gamesters within gaffing distance of the Emergency's cockpit. Whereupon the crew stepped in and boated 'em.

"What a man, h'm? . . . But do you imagine that was all? No, indeedy; the angler still had time to gather in four albacore, five dolphin, and a kingfish before the boat returned to the Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce dock before mid-afternoon. Ho-hum . . ."

St. Paul Independents Agree to Rein Duals

ST. PAUL—In a move to halt the rapid spread of double features, independent neighborhood exhibitors here have agreed to eliminate the Thursday and Friday night twin bills and confine their dual shows to the special Saturday midnight performances. They also agreed that they'd only advertise one of the two features in the newspapers.

Like in Minneapolis, the St. Paul independents started by only double featuring on Saturdays in connection with their midnight shows. Then they started with Friday and lately Thursday also has been included. It has been feared that it would be simply a matter of time before dual billings would be a regular everyday policy.

In some St. Paul districts, overseating is acute and one hard-pressed exhibitor even used "Knute Rockne—All-American" as a surprise supporting dual on a midnight show. This particular section has eight houses within a six blocks' radius.

Friedl Finds Cheer in Forthcoming Product

MINNEAPOLIS—John J. Friedl, president of the Minnesota Amusement Company, the territory's principal circuit, is enthusiastic over the product outlook. It probably is the best, he believes, in the industry's history. The fine pictures now being released and impending make him optimistic over the 1941 prospects and he anticipates steady boxoffice gains.

State theatre bookings here constitute the strongest films ever booked into the house consecutively, Friedl feels. They are "Kitty Foyle," "Santa Fe Trail" and "Philadelphia Story," which have been designated "The Big Three" in the publicity matter and which follow "Love Thy Neighbor," "Comrade X" and "Tin Pan Alley." Friedl regards "Philadelphia Story" as "one of the finest motion pictures ever produced."

New Pacts by Local 343 Provide for Vacation

OMAHA — Two-year contracts recently signed between Local 343, IATSE, and about two-thirds of the Omaha theatres, contain two important features, union officials say.

They report them as: (1) a week's vacation with pay, (2) a five per cent pay increase. The vacation-with pay clause is new to Omaha operators and, according to Local 343 officials, is comparatively new in the nation. The contracts otherwise were the same as former years.

The contracts were signed with the Epstein circuit and all Omaha independents, officials said. The Epstein houses are: Benson, Berkley, Circle, Corby, Lothrop, Roseland, Tivoli; and the independents are: Beacon, Cass, Fort, Minne Lusa, Muller, Muse, North Star, Ritz and Vinton.

Local 343 is now negotiating the same two provisions in contracts with Tri-States Theatres and the Mort H. Singer circuit, due for renewal on February 1, 1941. Tri-States have the first-run Omaha and Orpheum, Singer has the first-run Brandeis.

Local 343's contract with Ralph D. Goldberg for his seven theatres expires October 1, 1941. Goldberg has the Arbor, Avenue, Dundee, Military, State, Town and Winn.

Dunn and Miskell Guests At Dinner for Balaban

DES MOINES—Eddie Dunn, Paramount Theatre manager here, and Bill Miskell of the Orpheum in Omaha, Thursday night were guests at the Paramount dinner for Barney Balaban in Chicago as winners of Tri-States Theatres' Thanksgiving-to-Christmas campaign.

Announcement of winners was held up until last week as a result of some close races. Dunn's "Tin Pan Alley" and "Westerner" showings put him over in this area.

Accompanying Dunn and Miskell to Chicago Wednesday night were A. G. Stolte, Evert Cummings, Joe Kinsky, Myron Blank and Joe Deitch.

A. H. Blank, listed as a speaker on the Balaban dinner program, G. Ralph Branton and Ray Blank went in Monday night to spend the week in conferences with Paramount executives.

Will Try to Get Product Via Arbitration Board

MINNEAPOLIS—An appeal to the arbitration board, as soon as it is established, to help him obtain product for his Esquire, local loop sure-seater, is contemplated by Bennie Berger, prominent circuit owner, he announces.

"I intend to lose no time in learning if I have any rights," says Berger. He asserts the Esquire is unable to obtain major screen product because practically all of it is sewed up by the Minnesota Amusement Co.

Irving Gillman, who took the Esquire from Berger and then gave it back, is suing Minnesota Amusement and major exchanges here because he says he couldn't get pictures.

Chain Opposes 50% Rentals on Film

Minneapolis—The Minnesota Amusement Co., the territory's principal circuit, has joined the independents in fighting against 50 per cent rentals. It has turned down both "Gone With the Wind" and "The Dictator" on such terms.

As far as "GWTW" is concerned, it is willing to pay 40 per cent, increase admissions, reserve seats, give preferred playing time and eliminate children's admissions in neighborhood houses and situations where it hasn't played the film yet. Independent exhibitors are opposing the other M-G-M terms, as well as the 50 per cent split.

While silent regarding the opposition to its terms, M-G-M here points out the picture even hasn't been offered to Twin City accounts as yet.

AFL Resolution Asks Film Problem Probe

MINNEAPOLIS—An investigation by the authorities of alleged unfair practices, regarding moving pictures as they affect the Minnesota Theatre, independently operated 4,000-seater, is called for by a resolution adopted by the Central Labor Union, which includes all of the A F of L bodies.

The resolution's passage was preceded by a discussion during which a mass meeting at the municipal auditorium in the theatre's behalf was advocated. However, no definite plans for the meeting have been made yet.

Patronage of the Minnesota and other theatres was urged. Charges were made that the erection of new theatres here has been blocked and suspicion was voiced as to motives preventing licensing of some theatres.

The Minnesota, using a policy of feature pictures, shorts and stage shows, has been unable to obtain major screen product, with one minor exception, because the Minnesota Amusement Company—Mort H. Singer pool—has practically all the major films sewed up for downtown Minneapolis. The owners themselves, previously operating the house, had the same difficulty and claimed their failure was due to it. However, a threatened suit based on the situation never materialized.

Bob Huffman wore an ice-pack instead of a hat for three days after the premiere—to bed and to work . . . Irvin S. Cobb said Lincoln had the nicest people he had ever seen, and the bumest big hotel . . . Biggest offstage hit: Albert Dekker, who couldn't tell his brand of stories on the stage . . . A swell disappearance publicity stunt for Mary Anderson backfired at Columbus, Neb., when coast p. a. Fred Stanley didn't wake up in time to wake her up . . . By the time Carl Reese (Republic) and Howard Federer got around to calling Lois Ranson, she had gone to bed . . . There wasn't a single squawk on the part of the townspeople regarding the affair—everything was ducky.

Yoo-hoo, Kansas City: Albert Dekker ate a total of nine steaks in Nebraska, breakfast, luncheon and dinner, and said they were the best he ever tasted! He was framed with fish on his last meal.

From Hollywood: Barbara Livingston, whose husband, Bob, runs the Capitol here, writes that she's finally up and around after that attack of the flu which put her in the hospital the day she landed for the express purpose of seeing the Rose Bowl game. She's Tucson bound . . . Seen at the Golden Gloves fights: Sol Yeager, who, standing with hands in pockets and look of disgust on his face, indicated his belief that he could have cleaned up the whole 24 fighters in a battle royal.

Coincidence: Gene Shanahan, Nebraska theatre manager, announced one week he would be married February 1, and the next week, received his draft questionnaire. That will list him as "un-married," with the draft board. There will be 2,064 Nebraskans called up in February.

Bigtime visitor: J. H. Cooper due in from New York to sound reactions on the premiere which was the biggest shot in the arm for local show biz in years, will probably stay in Lincoln two or three days.

Ten Best Poll stuff: Dean Pohlenz, who ran the Sunday Journal and Star 10 best poll of pictures, is almost ready for a strait-jacket. Winner turned out to be a woman who is partially invalided, and may not be able to make the jaunt . . . Not a single townsman won in the associated contest in York, all the prize takers in M. E. Lofgren's town scattered far west.

About managers: B. M. Montee of the Rivoli, Beatrice, was in Lincoln with a Beatrice Sun photographer shooting premiere pictures . . . Eddie Terhune, who was brought here to manage the Kiva, was hauled out overnight to take reins of the Chief, Colorado Springs, Colo., a much bigger job since it's the ace house of the L. L. Dent-Westland string in Colorado . . . There's a brother act at the Lincoln here—Bob Anderson ushers, and Paul Anderson manages.

DES MOINES

WAAAAAA! Waaaaaa! Waaaaaa! And lest you can't decipher that, my dears, it's little Carroll Segal . . . the new Segal infant must have some personality to get away with keeping Jack up all night with such a noise and still sell him the idea that it's something to go around bragging about. The Segals acquired Carroll recently via adoption.

About pets (the kind you can speak right out about in front of everybody): Chuck Elder has a cat, Alexander, who shudders at the sight of a mouse . . . Chuck says Alex will make a nice rug some day, but until then he's a total loss. Betty and Ralph's red-headed spaniel, Throckmorton (Throcky) Olson, is now in the pink, and Ralph still thinks he's cute despite his plumbing troubles (Throcky's, not Ole's).

Some of that fancy-looking lettering on those fancy-looking flashes of Burton Jerrell's is the handiwork of Opal Judd . . . our Opie is a very talented female . . . we had lunch with her last Saturday and she tells us she's going to change her name . . . Walt (Dimples) Lohman, now working in St. Louis, is the fella who wants her to take his and she flashes a diamond to prove it.

Once every five or ten years, Hollywood births a picture like "Philadelphia Story," and we scratch our bald head (we've got hair to burn, but we like the sound of that) and wonder if maybe we haven't been misjudging 'em out there. After the press preview the other night, we trudged up to the R&T with Clayton . . . while he was pushing out a most flattering review, we heard at least five different enthusiastic comments about the picture floating around the halls . . . to date, we've heard nothing but praise, even from the cash customers!

Munching a piece of Jack Segal's Christmas candy and thumbing through our BOXOFFICE notes, we see that Joe Garrison, Universal's district manager in Kaycee, was here last week dickering with Tri-States, Central States and Pioneer on product. Ole Olson says that Lou Elman is strutting around bragging about his ping-pong game and referring to himself as, "Champ," since he beat Ole one game . . . the pay-off: Ole had never played more than a couple of games in his life when he took on Elman! Lou, Bob Leach, Ole and Al Hill may be found these evenings at RKO busy batting the ball around and using some fancy language.

Lou Levy's little team mates cut loose and won another Universal drive . . . a short drive, we believe, although we can't see what difference it makes, since the film biz seems to be just one darn drive after another. Our pick-up man, Beverly Mahon, reveals the whereabouts of Jack Mathewson who resigned as chief of service at the Des Moines . . . he's tending door at the Tromar ballroom for Kermit Bierkamp . . . next time you want to tap a toe, drop around and say hello to Jack on your way in to do it . . . here's the spot to mention Harry the Holdsberg's latest attempt to crack the R&T front page wide open . . . he got a gal to go out to Fort Des Moines and teach some of the sojer boys the Dig-it . . . then Harry slyly mentioned it to Clayton, and raising an eyebrow pregnant with meaning, informed him that "Second Chorus," was probably opening at his theatre.

Gabe Yorke, fresh from cheering Miss Bishop for UA at Lincoln, popped into town last week to wave banners for the Hays office and the "Land of Liberty" and to spread the word that the one thing which kept Miss Bishop from turning cartwheels was the absence of BOXOFFICE & Co. who had too much work to do, Jack Moffett who had ditto, they say, and G. Ralph Branton, who was on ice . . . literally. Gabe and Jack Kennedy leased the Fox screening room for Friday night in order to show the film men how Hollywood says they won the liberties they prize.

Metro's Mr. Richey stood up Des Moines club women last week when ice forced him to cancel his date with them in Des Moines, but the gals are gonna have somebody to answer their questions about the film industry anyway . . . Gabe's promised to stand up and let 'em shoot at him after they see a screening of "Land of Liberty" Tuesday.

Emil Franke's idea for promoting his new stage show "Screwballs of 1941" consisted of putting Press Agent Charlie Riley into a strait jacket and a cell for the benefit of press and public . . . Emil got a strait jacket from Broadlawns hospital and a cell from the police department but the gag flopped when he failed to get cooperation from the press . . . A midnight dress rehearsal Thursday kept him from opening without advance warning though.

Everyone else may have been ogling Ruth Chatterton in the Fort Des Moines lobby Monday, but a fella with sharp eyes could have spotted Haskell Masters, western division sales manager for United Artists; Don McLucas from Omaha, and a coupla more visitors over in the corner . . . Keep it under your hat, but we could swear we heard 'em talking about Denver . . . and they weren't ordering sandwiches.

Wonder if Russ Fraser ever got lined up on the photo exhibit he wanted for the Parrot Film photo salon? . . . Russ spotted it while he was shooting Younkers tearoom footage for Tri-States and started bidding. Harry Hiersteiner's family has been smoking marihuana again. A note from Bobby Stone says he's signed a contract with Monogram . . . Which reminds us that we saw his picture identified as "Bobby Jones" in one of the trades (not BOXOFFICE) . . . It makes us feel good to know we're not the only ones who slip now and then, but we betcha Bobby ain't gonna like it.

"Ask your druggist for genuine Carter's Little Liver Pills" . . . Well, mebbe it isn't theatre news, but when we called DD for information she sez "justaminit" and the next thing we hear is the CLLP blurb.

DD attended the dinner ahead of the "Philadelphia Story" press preview with a game leg and without Harry Gottlieb . . . the ice was responsible for both . . . it hung Harry up in Coon Rapids and it threw Dorothy . . . The Lionel Wassons were in from Marshalltown for the affair (the preview, not DD's set-to with the ice) . . . being just a drab, brown-headed wench ourselves, we aren't exactly enthusiastic about our dazzling and preferred blonde sisters, but we have to concede there's something mighty purty about Mrs. Lionel . . . and we're willing to wager now that we've seen both of them, that she and Mrs. Harry Warren will stack up with any of the dazzlers in the biz.

G. Ralph Branton decorated his presence at the preview dinner with Mrs. B. and Nancy, who's prettiness he probably takes credit for, although anybody can see she's the spit'n image of her maw. Lois and Jack Kennedy sat across from us, and while we don't want to give the impression that everybody at the dinner was a raving beauty, we have to report the news as we see it, and we saw Lois looking lovelier than usual in a dubonnet hat sprouting dubonnet feathers. We rode from Younkers' Tearoom to the theatre with Ray Blank who was wondering how Emil Franke's "Screwball" show would stack up at the Orpheum.

Charlie Riley, "Screwball" advance man, settled down gratefully in the quiet, restful atmosphere of the Clayton household and began to discuss legit and relax . . . "Ah, Peace, it is wonderful," he muttered comfortably . . . suddenly, the doors burst open and in rushed Harry Holdsberg, the Eddie Dunns and a few other people . . . Harry hurried to the telephone and called Emil Franke, becoming disbelievingly vociferous and a little on the noisy side when Emil said he couldn't get over for a little while longer because he had a hold-out ("This Thing Called Love") . . . Harry hung up the receiver and he and Eddie spent the time until Emil arrived snorting to each other . . . Emil brought Vi, Bill Scholl and a merry soul (his own) . . . the congregation scattered at an unreasonable hour, and some of us ended up eating chop suey at the Hong Kong where who do you think popped up? Yeah, the inevitable Joe Ancher who asked us if we'd been out bicycle riding. Peace may be wonderful, Charlie, but how do you know?

A letter arrives from Mort Blumenstock in New York objecting with all 202 lbs. to being referred to as "Whispy."

Cent and a Half For Pictures

Minneapolis—The giveaway to end all giveaways occurred when the Alhambra, local independent neighborhood house, gave away a pie baker, costing 18½c at wholesale, to all feminine patrons buying a 20 cent admission. The picture was "Knute Rockne—All-American."

Jim Owen Wed

BRANSON, MO.—Jim M. Owen, owner of the Owen Theatre here, on January 18 married Miss Barbara Lewis of Pryor, Okla. Ceremony was held in Fairfax, Okla.

Says Trade Needs One Spokesman

Detroit—"There is a definite need for an informal organization that will be able to speak for all theatre operators of Detroit," says David M. Idzal, managing director of the Fox. "At present, there does not seem to be any one body or spokesman who can speak for the theatre industry when a common spokesman is required.

"The amusement industry will be called upon to do much in connection with national defense, with Red Cross activities, and other worthy local and national causes. There should be a common forum through which we can present our position and our willingness to do our share, and more, in which operators whether independents, owners of one little house, or of big chains, can unite whatever their individual business differences."

Sales Tax Income Is Increasing in Ohio

COLUMBUS—Assuming the generally accepted fact that an excellent barometer of business conditions in Ohio is the collection of the retail sales tax, the state treasury department gives out official figures showing that the retail tax for 1940 was 13½ per cent greater than the previous year. The same source reveals that although the sales tax increased 13½ per cent, the total admissions tax collected during 1940 increased only 3.2 per cent. Obviously the amusement business during 1940 failed to keep pace with the increased business in other lines.

The dollar comparison is that the 1940 retail tax netted $52,771,562 as against $46,504,018 in 1939. Opposed to this comfortable increase, the department states that the total admission tax collected during 1940 amounted to $1,694,120.39 as against $1,641,670.47 for 1939.

Solid in Support for Defense Program

PITTSBURGH—Independents of this territory in cooperation with Allied Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania have joined with IATSE Local 171 as wholeheartedly endorsing the national defense program as set forth by the President.

Both groups pledge their willingness "to continue uninterrupted an agreeable relationship and resolve to adhere strictly to the principles that are in accord with the government's national defense program."

Furthermore, they "stand in opposition to all individuals or groups that champion any 'isms' except Americanism" and offer their joint cooperative service in opposition to all elements who expound subversive un-American ideas or principles. They dedicate themselves "to maintain the democratic principles that we now enjoy."

Propose Licensing Theatre Games in Pennsylvania

May Legalize Bingo Games in Michigan

DETROIT—Michigan exhibitors who watched the disappearance of cash giveaways from their theatres in the past two or three years, find themselves faced with possible legalization of Bingo and similar games, including raffles, when operated by churches or veterans' or fraternal organizations. The move is threatened in a bill introduced by Senator Ernest G. Nagel at Lansing.

The bill does not, in the opinion of some showmen, do more than legalize the existing situation in most sections of the state where churches and lodges are generally conducting Bingo parties despite the official interpretation of the state gambling laws that such games are illegal. For this reason, because it would apparently offer little inducement for further spread of games, little effort has been made as yet to oppose it. The consensus, however, is that if cash prizes are to be allowed for one group, they should be allowed to all, although no exhibitors interviewed were prepared to advocate legislation for this objective.

Service Employes Union Keeps Pickets at Post

DETROIT—Difficulties of the Building Service Employes International with downtown theatres continued at a standstill last week, with pickets still on duty, particularly at UDT houses. No immediate settlement was in prospect.

Picketing appeared confined to downtown houses. An earlier statement printed in BOXOFFICE that pickets had been assigned to Wisper & Wetsman suburban houses, as given out by a union representative, was denied by spokesmen for W&W who said no pickets had actually appeared on duty at any of their houses.

Detroit Civic Leaders to See "Land of Liberty"

DETROIT—M-G-M's "Land of Liberty"—the industry's contribution to war emergency welfare, with all proceeds devoted to this purpose—will be screened January 31 for 54 representatives of Detroit civic clubs representing 14,000 civic leaders. Filming will be at the Film Projection Room.

Feel Immune

COLUMBUS, OHIO—Taking Gov. John W. Bricker at his word, it is now "officially" definite that there will not be an increase in the state's three per cent admission tax during the next two years.

HARRISBURG—Initial industry measure to be introduced in the Pennsylvania general assembly is a bill providing for the licensing of all theatre owners who operate "chance" games. A Senate bill, introduced by John J. Haluska, would tax the operators $600 in towns of over 3,000 population; $1,200, population from 3,000 to 10,000; $1,600 in cities over 10,000 population. Exhibitor additionally would deduct 15 per cent of the value of the prize award and make returns to the county treasurers' office, who would hire an additional employe to supervise such collections. All chance games, whether played in theatres or not, would be taxed $25, although special licenses would be issued to church and charitable organizations for $1.

Thirty-two organizations, with a membership of 800,000, will press for legislation designed to bar roadside signs from Pennsylvania highways during the current session. Billboard laws come before the general assembly regularly.

A political tabulation, unofficial, shows that the horse racing bill can win three-to-one.

There is a proposal for the placing of a tax on soft drinks.

Youngstown Council Zones Area to Permit Theatre

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO—City council has cleared the way here for the construction of a neighborhood theatre on the Northside at Belmont and Francisca Avenue, by passing an ordinance extending a commercial zone eastward along Francisca Avenue.

Herman Heller, spokesman for the group planning to build the theatre, assured councilmen in a letter that free parking space for 200 to 300 cars will be provided on the site.

Flu Closes Schools in Queen City Suburbs

CINCINNATI—While the flu has not as yet invaded downtown Cincinnati to seriously affect business, schools in adjacent suburbs are being closed. Schools in Ft. Thomas, Ky., have been ordered closed temporarily.

Reports are that the epidemic is menacing business in West Virginia and adjacent territory.

In Legislative Debut

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—Opening of the West Virginia legislature found an exhibitor as a new member of the house of delegates. He is J. C. "Jim" Shanklin of Ronceverte, vice-president of the West Virginia Theatre Managers Ass'n who was elected as a representative from Greenbrier county.

Shows Enjoy a Boom Week in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—A flock of exceptionally good pictures combined with unusually mild winter weather resulted in a holiday-time for the downtown first runs, while the flesh shows got their full share of the business as well. The Hippodrome enjoyed 11 big days with "Kitty Foyle" as the magnet, the engagement netting 45 per cent better than average. It moved over to the Allen for an extended downtown run. Over at the Palace, George Raft in person, drew 'em in from all corners of the city. His monologue and his dancing won him a place in the amusement field that will be hard to emulate. The Palace picture, "No, No, Nanette" the companion piece to the good vaudeville bill which Raft headed, brought the take to 35 per cent over par. "Flight Command" at the State was another winner going over usual take some 20 per cent and thereby winning a move-over engagement at the Stillman. The two holdovers, "Santa Fe Trail" at the Allen and "Comrade X" at the Stillman, both came through with better than average grosses. "Santa Fe Trail" in its third week downtown was five per cent over the line, while "Comrade X" in its second week soared to 35 per cent above the line.

Sonja Henie and her ice carnival played five SRO performances at the Arena and "Hellzapoppin" with Billy House and Eddie Carr in the Olsen and Johnson roles attracted comfortable crowds.

Weather was generally fair and unusually mild.

Omens Fine, But Business Only Fair in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI—Open weather, the settlement of the long drawn out street car and bus strike, and good boxoffice fare ought to have pepped up business; but it didn't. Receipts in all downtown houses were only fair, with the exception of RKO Shubert, where Sally Rand's revue and a screen offering, "Keeping Company," featuring Frank Morgan and Virginia Weidler took peak grosses of the week.

"GWTW," advertised as the third and final week, held over with 10 per cent above average grosses. "Kitty Foyle," pulled best of the first run screen offerings.

A New Branch Manager Is Honored—

At the testimonial to Bryan D. Stoner in Cleveland to celebrate the elevation of the Ohio salesman to the branch manager's berth in the Pittsburgh exchange. At the speaker's table, left to right, here are shown Jack Sogg, chairman of arrangements; Frank D. Drew, Cleveland Metro manager; Stoner, and his father Frank. The elder Stoner made a surprise trip from Buffalo for the occasion.

Weather-Inspired Caution Depresses Detroit Take

DETROIT—Local show business took a slight dip, including both downtown houses and neighborhoods, generally attributed to the prevailing wet weather, with several days of fog. Weather was considered ideal for spread of the flu which has begun to worry health officers in the state, but has so far been played down in press reports. Some fear of gathering publicly was responsible for a slight drop in attendance, exhibitors seemed to feel.

"Philadelphia Story" rated top drawing power of the week, surprising some advance predicters.

Detail for week ending January 16:

"Comrade X" Leads the Field in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—"Comrade X" grabbed the big dough as the first hit of 1941 at Loew's Penn. "Santa Fe Trail," in the Warner after a Stanley engagement, did upwards of double average. "Hudson's Bay" in the Fulton marked up a successful initial week. "Comrade X," "Flight Command, "Santa Fe Trail" and "Love Thy Neighbor," the latter another "hold over" film, were in exhibition for nine days.

Who's Paying Defense Tax, Queries Wood

COLUMBUS—Venturing the opinion that the defense tax is being paid out of boxoffice receipts and not by the theatre-going public, P. J. Wood, in a bulletin to the members of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, declares: "If this is true, exhibitors should know it and act accordingly in buying their film and setting up their other operating expenses."

The ITO secretary's bulletin followed the release by the United States Treasury of an estimate that total collections from the admissions tax for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, will amount to $69,000,000, an increase of $49,000,000 over the admission tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, with exemption set at 40 cents.

The answer as to who is paying the tax, Wood suggests, can be available to the exhibitors by comparing the net gross (that is, the total gross receipts less the amount of the defense tax collected and paid to the government) for the six months ending December 31, 1940, with the gross receipts for the six months ending December 31, 1939.

Hitherto M. D.'s From Law Schools

Columbus—A specialist, composed of "equal parts of producer, distributor, affiliated theatre executive and independent theatre owner" is the doctor prescribed to treat the industry's boxoffice ills by P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, in a recent bulletin. Wood's diagnosis that the industry is ill is predicated upon "the failure of boxoffice receipts to reflect the increases in most other industrial lines." His composite physician would "meet at some central point and decide upon some course of treatment that will bring about a quick recovery in boxoffice receipts."

New Zoning Schedule for Detroit to Get Hearing

DETROIT—Detroit's proposed new zoning schedule for alternate release of films, broached in these pages months ago by Frank J. Downey, M-G-M manager, after laying dormant for some time, is definitely on the agenda for discussions currently between Downey and representatives of the two largest exhibitor groups affected, United Detroit Theatres and Cooperative Theatres of Michigan.

Sentiment of exhibitors who have commented on the idea is generally favorable, provided that some means of making the plan general in the city is carried out.

Under the proposed plan, all pictures, beginning with the second runs, would play either the east or west side of the city the first week available, then move to the opposite side the next week, instead of playing at all houses of the same run simultaneously as at present. Houses on each side of town would get a break by having pictures of approximately even boxoffice value released at the same time, one to each side.

Milberger President Of Local No. 444

NEW KENSINGTON, PA.—New Kensington-Tarentum Local No. 444 has elected the following officers for 1941: R. Milberger, president; Anthony Haraznik, vice-president; I. E. Fike, business agent; Clyde Johnson, secretary; Charles Wolfe, financial secretary-treasurer; Joseph Milburn, sergeant-at-arms; J. J. McCloskey and Ray Craig, members of the executive board.

Theatrical Mutual Ass'n Re-elects McCloskey

NEW KENSINGTON, PA.—J. J. McCloskey, retired president of the local operators' union, has been re-elected president of the Theatrical Mutual Ass'n. Paul Milberger is the new vice-president, and other new officers are I. E. Fike, secretary; Charles Wolfe, treasurer; B. Zamparini, H. Hogge, A. Haraznik, trustees, and John Phillips, steward.

Lunds Open Remodeled Circle in Bobtown, Pa.

BOBTOWN, PA.—The Circle has reopened here after being streamlined. Features of the modernization include construction of new walls and other remodeling and the installation of new velour drapes, frames, lighting fixtures, screen and newly painted ceiling and lobby. John Lund, operator of five theatres with his son Werner, supervised the Bobtown streamlining.

New Front for WB Strand

PITTSBURGH—New modern marquee front and lobby floor is being installed this week at the Warner's Strand, Oakland district.

Horror Thrives in The Auto City

Detroit—Horror bills are continuing to grow into a regular trend. Currently, Monogram's combination of "The Ape" and "The Human Monster," after going a full week at each United Detroit's Regent and Annex, moved into Midwest Theatre's Colonial.

The Cinema, normally a first-run, special picture house, has shifted to a revival policy temporarily, and is "scaring" the customers in with the combination of "Dracula" and "Frankenstein."

Resume Midwest Suit Trial Next Tuesday

DETROIT—Trial of the lawsuit of Midwest Theatres against Cooperative Theatres of Michigan, which was slated to be resumed Tuesday, has been postponed a week to next Tuesday. A. J. Levin, attorney for the defendant, has been seriously ill and is now in Florida for a brief convalescence. The testimony of Cooperative, as defendant, is expected to start when the case is resumed in federal court.

The new trial date coincides with opening of the trial of another suit in which Midwest is defendant. It was brought by Jacob Schreiber in circuit court, but is expected to be postponed because of the physical impossibility of trying both cases simultaneously.

"Pop" Kane's Son Takes Over Pitcairn Theatre

PITCAIRN, PA.—William E. Kane, son of the late John B. "Pop" Kane, has assumed operation of the Nemo here. Follow Precedent in Clearance—Bevan

BOSTON—Al Bevan, M&P Theatres Corp. assistant booker, recalled to the stand in the Waldo Theatres Corp. vs. the late Joseph Dondis, et al. anti-trust suit, replied in the affirmative to plaintiff's attorney, George S. Ryan's question: "Did you find in your dealings with any distributor, take in 1930-31, that they gave as a reason for violating protection that another distributor had done the same thing?"

In further questioning Bevan declared that representatives of all the major exchanges, at different times, asked him what protection was being given him by the other exchanges.

Responding to questions on talks between Bevan and Paramount exchange officials Bevan told the court, presided over by Master Francis P. Freeman, that in a conversation on protection with Eddie Ruff, branch manager for Paramount at New Haven, he (Bevan) asked "for certain clearance for some of the towns in Connecticut" but that an accord had not been reached on what the clearance should be in towns in Connecticut.

"Too Much Sought"

When queries turned to Metro's attitude on protection requests, Bevan declared that Jack Byrne, branch manager for Metro in Boston at the time, dismissed arguments as to what other distributors were allowing in clearance as irrelevant. The discussion at that time pertained to the M&P theatres in New England outside of Connecticut.

The crux of the objections by Metro to the clearance requests was that too much was being sought, informed Bevan.

Concentrating upon the request for protection from one company by citing the fact that another company was according the desired protection, Ryan inquired as to the advantage to the company (desiring the protection) and was told its advantage lay in its convenience.

This was elaborated by the M&P assistant booker with: "Your local managers will call you up or write you a letter and tell you that someone is violating a clearance, and you forget what they had and have to look it up. If everybody is the same you don't have to look it up. Sometimes they complain of something that isn't so at all. Where there is a difference between the different exchanges over a given situation."

Lydon Will Confer With Allied States Leaders

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, eastern regional vice-president of Allied States Ass'n and president of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., planned to leave Boston over the weekend for the Washington conference of Allied leaders. Arthur K. Howard, business manager of the Independent Exhibitors, and Nathan Yamins, former local and national Allied president, expected to accompany Lydon in official capacity.

Massachusetts Solons Get Anti-Ascap Bill

BOSTON—An anti-Ascap bill has been filed in the Massachusetts legislature. The petition, some 38 pages long, had not been printed up to press time, and details, therefore, were not generally known.

Arthur K. Howard, Independent Exhibitors business manager, who last year came out against local action against Ascap in lieu of concentrated national Allied efforts, told this publication he could take no stand on the present bill until settling of an Allied States Ass'n national poll at the forthcoming Washington confab.

Other bills affecting the industry were filed but are still unprinted.

Legislative spokesmen agree off the scenes that no great amount of activity is to be expected on Beacon Hill for the next month. The legislative body has been slow, too, in forming committees.

An unusual quantity of labor legislation will probably be acted upon this year. The film industry, in recent past sessions, has come out unscathed on this score.

Grippe Hits Trade In New England

BOSTON—Grippe, which closed numerous New England schools and universities, hit hard at this territory's grosses this week and last. It has been estimated an average of one person out of every five, has already had the grippe in these states. Thousands have kept away from theatres becauses of fear of contagion.

In Boston and suburban towns, "Ice Follies of 1941" was no film hypo. The Boston Garden show played to some 100,000 during its seven days here. Only comforting point, as far as exhibitors were concerned, was the announcement that Sonja Henie would skip Boston this year, partly because of a proposed rental increase, which, based on last year's figures, would lift her lodging expenses 400 per cent.

The Cinema Club's Fifth Dinner-Dance March 16

BOSTON—The fifth annual dinner-dance of the Cinema Club will be held March 16. Executives of the bookers' organization have set the fete for the Cocoanut Grove, film district nitery.

William Cuddy, first vice-president and RKO booker, is in charge of the programs, assisted by Charles Wilson of Republic. Larry Herman of the Ralph Snider circuit is in charge of printing. Tom Fermoyle of M&P has been appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements. Abe Barry of Columbia has supervision over tickets.

Aiding in general supervision of the affair are Charles Repec, M-G-M head booker and Cinema Club second vice-president; Dave Grover of RKO, Cinema treasurer; and Harry Smith of RKO, Cinema Club secretary.

"Slot" Films Franchise To Wm. McLaughlin

BOSTON—William H. McLaughlin, who recently sold the Stoneham in Stonham to Al Rudenstein, has taken over the Essex county, Massachusetts, franchise for the Mills-Roosevelt screenings. A number of other local film men, including members of the exhibition, equipment, and distribution fields here, have financial interest in the New England promotion of the machines.

Nominate in March

BOSTON—Nominations for new officers of the Exchange Employes Local, AFL affiliate, will probably take place in March, followed by April elections. Mathew Moriarty of Universal heads the union local.

Saltonstall Advocates No New Taxes for '41

BOSTON—The film industry looks for one of its best legislative years in some time here, although a new record total of bills was filed in both the Massachusetts senate and house.

One of the brightest signposts was Gov. Leverett Saltonstall's announcement he would advocate no new taxes. His stand resulted in the absence for the first time in years of a proposed sales tax, perennially filed by State Commissioner of Taxes Henry F. Long.

A bill did get in though for imposition of a three per cent tax on luxuries, the proceeds to be divided between public welfare and reduction of local levies.

New Lottery Proposal to New Hampshire Solons

CONCORD, N. H.—Despite defeat of a similar bill in 1939, a new state lottery proposal designed to provide revenue for old-age assistance, is sought in House Bill No. 78, which has been introduced at the new biennial session of the legislature here by Rep. John C. O'Brien of Manchester.

A referendum would be submitted to the people in the various cities and towns at a special election and a majority of the voters would have to approve the plan before the lottery could be held. Fifty per cent of the lottery receipts would go toward prizes, the state would receive 25 per cent, and the remaining 25 per cent, less expenses of a commission conducting the lotteries, would be distributed to various cities and towns in the state.

The bill has been referred to the house ways and means committee for public hearings.

"Kitty Foyle" Leads in Second Boston Week

BOSTON—"Kitty Foyle," in its second week at Keith's Memorial, led the field last week in first-run Boston. Heavy concentration of grippe and flu here did no good for boxoffices. A streak of record cold weather for the winter kept others at home. Detail for the week ending January 16:

(Average is 100)

"Kitty" Holds On

BOSTON—Harry McDonald, RKO divisional manager, put "Kitty Foyle" into a third week at Keith's Memorial to make it the town's only holdover. "The Saint in Palm Springs" also stayed for the three weeks. Common RKO Memorial practice is to shift subsequent-features on holdovers.

To a Friday Change

HARTFORD—The M&P's Allyn, managed by Walter B. Lloyd, is now starting all new shows on Friday instead of Thursday.

PORTLAND

AN EPIDEMIC of influenza is spreading throughout the state with schools and many public gathering places closed. The epidemic seems most severe at Waterville, Bangor, Lewiston and Auburn. Doctors have publicly warned the public to "stay away from crowds." All local theatres are being affected but, at present, the situation is not critical.

Ralph W. Pinkham, manager of the Temple, Houlton, Me., for the past ten years, has been transferred to Bath to take charge of the Uptown, formerly managed by Francis J. Gooch. Gooch, at the same time, went to Houlton to manage the new Houlton, directly adjacent to the Temple.

The Strand here is being remodeled and redecorated, with fluorescent lighting fixtures installed in the lobby. New carpets will be laid throughout the theatre. Walls are to be repainted for the most part, except those in the remodeled inner lobby. These will have a leather covering with walnut agate glass and clear glass doors and display frames, according to Leo Young, manager.

Marjorie Peterson, screen and stage star, played the leading role in Victor Herbert's "Babes in Toyland," presented by Guy Palmerton at the Civic Theatre last week. She was supported by a New York company.

Luxury Tax Bill to Include Theatres

PORTLAND—A broad luxury tax bill, which provides levies on amusements, cosmetics, candy, jewelry, soft drinks and tobacco, has been drafted by Rep. E. Sam Farwell for introduction in the Maine legislature in the near future.

The purpose of the bill is to obtain "new money" by which the state can finance old-age assistance, welfare programs, including pauper support, and meet increasing costs of expansion of governmental activities.

A tax of one cent for each 10 cents or fractional part thereof on theatre admissions will be provided by the bill. The tax on cigarettes and all other forms of tobacco would be five per cent of the retail selling price of each article.

A 10 per cent levy would be imposed on the retail price of cosmetics or toilet preparations; a two per cent levy on all jewelry sales and a similar tax on all candy sales. The soft drink tax would include one-fourth cent on each five cent bottle; 20 cents a gallon on syrups.

Change Vaudeville Days

HOLYOKE, MASS. — The Holyoke has vaudeville Thursday, Friday, Saturday, instead of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

PROVIDENCE

PREVALENCE of grippe epidemic in Rhode Island has many theatres working with reduced staffs, but still worse, preponderance of illness is now being noticed in theatre grosses . . . Providence theatre managers who in the past couple of years have ran up against censorial troubles, now face new headaches along these lines in Chapter 1047 of city ordinance, No. 495, approved by City Council December 31 and now in effect. Ordinance regulates billboards and outdoor advertising. Portion directly due to bring worry to theatres is Section 16, which reads: "No outdoor advertising of an obscene, indecent, licentious or immoral character or kind, or depicting the commission of any crime, shall be displayed or maintained on or as part of any billboard or structure . . . In order more effectually to secure compliance with this regulation, no outdoor advertising shall be displayed, exposed, posted up or exhibited . . . unless the subject matter thereof shall have first been approved by the bureau of police and fire of the city in writing." Violations will be subject to $10 per day fine for every day display continues.

Fay's Theatre, which dropped its vaudeville-film policy eight months ago, returned to stage shows January 24. House has done well with first-run westerns and melodramas but, according to Operator Edward M. Fay, lack of product necessitates dropping of the dual-feature policy and resumption of single features and variety acts.

New fronts have recently gone up on Associated Theatres' Empire and Bijou and District Manager George Cronin is sporting a new car—all indicating business good at these theatres. Empire staff is awaiting delivery of new uniforms . . . Manager Matt Reilley of Associated's Palace, Cranston, has effected a tieup with Marty's Clothing Mart through which super clothing store carries advertising in theatre programs and contributes a suit of clothes as prize in a number drawing conducted at the theatre once a month.

George Sarrais, Providence College footballer, is that husky new outside doorman wearing the Strand Theatre uniform . . . Providence newspaper critics tossed orchids galore to Ruth Hussey, Providence gal, for her work in "Flight Command" following film's opening at Loew's State. Which pleased Manager Ed McBride plenty and helped film's grosses no end.

M&P circuit is running cooking schools at their Strand, Pawtucket, and Stadium, Woonsocket, one matinee weekly during this month. Florence Buxman of Spry Research Kitchen conducting the school . . . Hugh Kelly, special officer at the Strand, Pawtucket, for the past seven years and who was stricken ill Christmas Eve, died at his Pawtucket home, January 12.

BOSTON

Phil Berler, E. M. Loew head booker, has had the grippe.

Ann McClellan, Universal contract clerk, has resigned because of a change of residence to California . . . Ben Domingo, city manager for the RKO Theatres, has been mourning the death of his mother. His mother-in-law passed away a few days previously . . . Ed Morey, Republic branch manager, has had the grippe . . . Bill Hawkins of Capitol Theatre Supply Co. has been out . . . Joe Stanzler of East Greenwich, R. I., has had the grippe . . . Roy E. Heffner, local distributor and exhibitor, bagged three deer during the course of a recent western hunting trip.

Ann Harrington of M-G-M has been out with the flu . . . Helen Glazier of Producers' Releasing Corp. had the grippe . . . Shep Epstein, field representative for Arthur K. Howard of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., had the grippe last week . . . Al Gould of Mount Pleasant, R. I., had the grippe . . . William H. McLaughlin jr., son of the former Stoneham exhibitor, has been named an alternate for Annapolis by Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers.

Katherine Galvin of Columbia was to have become a bride this week . . . Anna Krim, personal secretary to the local Columbia branch manager, has a diamond . . . Lou Newman has been appointed manager of the Trans Lux in Boston, operated by Interstate . . . Harriet Botnick, veteran Columbia employe, was absent for the first time in years because of the grippe.

Shirley Rachlier of Universal has been out with the grippe . . . Miriam Haines of Universal was also ill . . . Bernard Levin, local Columbia accessories manager, had the grippe . . . the combined personnel and mechanical equipment of the two largest projector repair shops in New England under the personal direction of Mr. P. E. Comi of Theatre Service and Supply Company and Mr. Al Nasif of Capitol Theatre Supply Company.

We believe that this combination of experience, personnel and equipment, located under one roof, in our recently enlarged quarters, will provide the finest possible service to our customers.

After February 1, 1941, we invite you to inspect these enlarged and modernized shop facilities at this handy location.

CAPITOL THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY

A NEW ENGLAND ORGANIZATION FOR NEW ENGLAND EXHIBITORS

28-30 PIEDMONT STREET • BOSTON, MASS.

NEW HAVEN

EXHIBITORS have until January 31 to worry about new legislation in the current session of the state legislature. After that no new bills can be filed . . . Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut met Tuesday for lunch and the regular bi-weekly talk on problems of the business . . . A big social event was the Donaldson dinner which expressed the good wishes of the trade to the departing and the new local Metro exchange manager. Bouquets to the committee for arrangements. Maurice N. Wolf was in fine style as toastmaster. Twenty-two Boston film men including the entire Metro office staff came down in a private railroad car. Donaldson bade the boys goodbye in an earnest speech. The film circle liked Morey Goldstein at first sight and predicted he would receive the cooperation he asked for in his talk.

Harry Shaw was to the point in his own inimitable style at the banquet. Jack Fishman did a smart job of presenting the beautiful parchment scroll and a handsome radio-Victrola combination to Donaldson. Hy Fine was given his usual enthusiastic reception. Ben Simon, Walter Higgins, Herman Rifkin and Joseph Stein added speeches. The governor of New Hampshire, mayor of Berlin, N. H., and headmaster of Donaldson's school in Berlin sent wires. Mack Murray floored them with his "psychic" reading. Virgie Scott contributed hilarious lyrics. And another New Haven manager makes good.

The grippe bug is becoming increasingly active. Latest on the sick list include I. J. Hoffman and B. E. Hoffman, Warner theatre department executives; Lou Phillips, Modern Theatre Supply manager; Max Melincoff, Warner theatre department; Norman Randall, assistant at Paramount, New Haven . . . Jeanette Berliner keeping to her Republic booking post in spite of a bad cold . . . Marian, daughter of the late Abe Fishman, home from University of Connecticut with the grippe . . . "Dean" Morris Joseph, looking himself again, visited Meadow Street and his Universal office before leaving for a Florida vacation . . . Lucy Flack escaped unhurt when her Pontiac car was badly damaged in a collision . . . J. H. Reilly jr., WICC news reporter, died of cerebral hemorrhages after being stricken in his car.

Peter Perakos and Joseph Quittner are reported erecting a 1,000-seat theatre in East Hartford . . . The Albert Smiths have a new vertical neon sign on their 500-seat Colonial, Walnut Beach . . . Morris Drucker, assistant at the Poli, Worcester, has been transferred to the State, Cleveland, to substitute for Everett Steinbuck, on leave of absence, while Max Nevetsky, assistant at Elm Street, fills Drucker's Shoes.

The Barney Pitkins (he is RKO manager) are in Florida and may take in Havana, too . . . Sam Rosen of Rosen Film Deliveries is getting set for a visit to Florida and some fishing . . . Earl Wright, 20th-Fox, just back from St. Petersburg, says he caught enough fish to supply all the neighbors. He has pictures to prove it . . . Ben Cohen, former College manager, on leave from Calcutta, still visiting in town.

New Haven 20th-Fox exchange rated eighth in the country in the Sidney R. Kent Drive . . . All Poli houses played the special newsreel shots of the Hurley inauguration, including not only the inaugural ceremonies and parade, but also the ball at the armory. Opening day at the Poli, Hartford, had the governor and staff members as honor guests . . . Martin Larkin of the Hays office is spending some time in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, and other New England towns on "Land of Liberty," documentary "war relief" film which soon plays all Poli towns. Bert Mackenzie, Boston M-G-M exploitation man, also spent a few days in the territory on exploitation of the picture.

Bob Russell and Nat Rubin gave "GWTW" a second big sendoff in New Haven . . . "Love Thy Neighbor," back for a six-day re-engagement at the Paramount, after a tremendous first week, was co-featured with "World in Flames" this time . . . Morris Rosenthal staged a special screening at the Majestic, Bridgeport, of "Land of Liberty," inviting 150 publicity and personnel executives of leading factories, educators, city officials, and the press.

Projector Repair Shop Above Capitol Supply

BOSTON—Kenneth R. Douglass, Capitol Theatre Supply head, has turned the second floor of Capitol quarters into a projector repair shop to accommodate the combination of personnel and mechanical equipment of Capitol with that of the Theatre Service & Supply Co. The move gives Capitol the largest projector repair shop in New England.

P. Edward Comi of the Theatre Service & Supply Co. and Al Nasif of the Capitol Theatre Supply Co. will personally supervise the shop when the new setup goes into effect February 1. The enlarged and modernized shop facilities will be open to inspection at that time.

Al Herman New England Manager for Monogram

BOSTON—Al Herman has been installed here as New England manager for Monogram, succeeding Steve Broidy who became national sales manager. Herman was recently New England district manager for Universal and before that was connected in an executive capacity with several other major distributors.

Weekly Quiz Program

HARTFORD—A quiz program which will be a regular Friday feature, has been started at the State here. Cash awards totaling $100 will be given away weekly for correct answers. Jack Lacey, local radio station announcer, will be the quizmaster.

Martha Scott and Brent

HOLLYWOOD—Martha Scott has been set for the lead opposite George Brent in "They Dare Not Love," Sam Bischoff production for Columbia.

Turn to Radio When Printers Walk Out

NEW HAVEN—Theatres, along with other advertisers, took all available air space on local stations WELI, WBRY and WICC when they were confronted last week with a two-day suspension of publication of the Morning Journal-Courier and a one-day suspension of the evening Register, both John Day Jackson papers.

A strike by Local 47, International Typographical Union, for a $3 weekly wage increase, a written contract and a two-week vacation with pay, caused the tieup, first in the history of the Courier and second for the Register, the only New Haven dailies.

Theatres were swamped with telephone calls, and business showed a drop, although it was impossible to trace this directly to the lack of a press.

The Register has resumed publication under a temporary agreement with the union.

Sunday Censor Gives 31 Clean Bill of Health

BOSTON—Films were given a clean bill of health by the Sunday Bureau of Censorship when the entire list of 31 went through without eliminations. The features surveyed included M-G-M's "Maisie Was a Lady," 20th-Fox's "Girl in the News," and Monogram's "You're Out of Luck."

The title change of Paramount's "Magic in Music" to "Hard-boiled Canary" was noted.

The Cathry Dancers was the only vaudeville routine to be refused a Sunday license, although four other acts including the George White "Scandals" tab, were clipped. Ben Blue and 16 other vaudeville acts were okayed for Sabbath showings.

Horace Decelles to Helm Of Richmond, N. Adams

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.—Horace Decelles, assistant manager at the Capitol, Pittsfield, and formerly assistant manager of the Paramount, has been appointed manager of the Richmond, succeeding Thomas W. Chatburn who has resigned due to poor health. Gerald Savoie, former manager of the Richmond, was shifted from the Victory, Holyoke, to the Capitol, Pittsfield, replacing Decelles.

Boost Elizabeth Wilson To Academy Manager

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—Elizabeth Wilson, cashier and assistant manager of the Academy here, has been upped to manager, succeeding M. Frank Shaughnessy, who is now recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident.

It was announced earlier in Springfield that Carl Jamroga, manager of the Phillips in that city, would handle the Academy, a Herman Rifkin house.

May Have to Resort To Female Help

Hartford—Factories and shops in this area participating in the defense program are cutting heavily into the personnel of local theatres and creating for exhibitors a first-class problem.

Ushers are being lured away almost daily as well as a number of higher-placed employes, including student assistants and assistant managers.

Exhibitors generally believe they will have to resort to female employes to solve the problem for the duration of the war emergency, at least.

Birthday Ball Plans in Charge of Jack Simons

HARTFORD—Jack A. Simons, manager of Loew's Poli, has been appointed chairman of the President's Birthday Ball to be held January 30 at the Hartford Club.

Rudy Frank, publicity director for the State, and Wallace J. Cooper, assistant manager of Loew's Poli, are in charge of entertainment. Other committees: Reception, Morris Schulman, Schulman Theatres; George E. Landers, E. M. Loew's; David E. Sugarman, Colonial. Concessions: Walter B. Lloyd, Allyn; James F. McCarthy, Strand; Personnel: Louis A. Cohen, Palace; Michael J. Daly, Daly.

Springfield Local 186 Inaugurates Officers

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Officers for the new year were inaugurated recently by Local 186 at the Central Labor Union hall here. They include: Benjamin G. Hull, Bijou, business agent; Louis Williamson, Bijou, president; Granville G. Best, vice-president; Arthur J. Payette, Arcade, secretary-treasurer, and Owen Holmes, Garden; Yvan Ellia, Paramount, and Edwin B. Webber, Broadway, executive board members.

The Local's next meeting will be held February 3 at the labor union hall.

Joseph Ehrlick to Manage Gayety for E. M. Loew

BOSTON—Joseph Ehrlick has been appointed manager of the Gayety by E. M. Loew. Ehrlick, former assistant publicist for Loew's State and Orpheum here, was for several years assistant to Advertising Manager Jack Granara at local RKO theatres. Ehrlick has also been connected in an exploitation capacity with United Artists and the handling of roadshows last summer for Harry Segal.

The play, "Ladies in Waiting," is due at the E. M. Loew's Court Square, Springfield, Wednesday, February 5, as the first in a series to be shown at that E. M. Loew house under the sponsorship of the Springfield Playgoers' League. Such big productions as "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "The Little Foxes," and "Life With Father," are due at the same theatre . . . Schulman's Plaza, Windsor, brought back "Mikado," starring Kenny Baker . . . Mrs. M. Oakley Christoph, film columnist on the Hartford Courant, spoke on "The Theatre of Today," at a meeting of the Guild of St. Theresa in the Sacred Heart parish, Wethersfield . . . Betty Van Dyke, former director of publicity at the State, Hartford, appeared in the Hartford Players' production of "Shadows and Substance," at the Avery Memorial.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

WHEN the epidemic of cold and influenza cases began to reach disturbing proportions in New Hampshire, children were refused admittance to theatres in Dover. City Health Officer George Brennan barred youngsters from all public gathering places in an effort to curb further spread of the flu. Later a similar order was issued in Keene, where more than 700 school children were ill.

Arthur Brock of Laconia, a member of the "Mimic Four," famous vaudeville team of the early 1900's, has received word of the death of one of the quartet, William B. Van Duser, in Davenport, Ia. At one time, Van Duser leased the Moulton Opera House in Laconia for theatrical productions.

In the neighboring state of Vermont, the inauguration address of the new governor, William H. Wills, included a recommendation for direct repeal of the state law legalizing amusement machines. The new executive favored abolishing the machines regardless of the loss of revenue involved.

Keene's new radio station, WKNE, was dedicated recently with nearly 100 guests in attendance. Special guests included Gov. Robert O. Blood and members of his military staff and executive council.

Show German Comedy

HARTFORD—The German comedy, "Das Ekel," was shown at Saegerbund Hall.

To "Episode in Lisbon"

HOLLYWOOD—"Episode in Lisbon," an Edgar Selwyn production for Metro, is being adapted by Everett Freeman.

Women's Civic Federation Hears John Mason Brown

BOSTON—John Mason Brown, New York dramatic critic, spoke at the Copley-Plaza last week before the Women's Civic Federation of Massachusetts on "The Theatre and the Movies."

Brown said the art of the motion picture is lagging behind its mechanical achievements, and he called Walt Disney's "Fantasia" the purest picture of the winter in camera terms, suggesting that it travels from the sublime to the ridiculous and has a mixture of good and bad which, according to Brown, "is so typical of Hollywood."

New Tax Proposal By Gov. O'Daniel

AUSTIN, TEX.—Places of amusement are slated for additional taxation if a proposal submitted by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel in his message to the legislature goes through.

"Every person," reads the proposal, "firm, association of persons, or corporation, owning or operating any place of amusement which charges . . . admission . . . shall file with the state comptroller of public accounts a quarterly report on the 25th days of January, April, July and October for the quarter ending on the last day of the preceding month; said report shall show the gross amount received for admissions and said person, firm, etc., at the time of making such report shall pay to the treasurer of this state a tax of one and one-half (1.5) per cent of the total gross receipts . . ."

The proposal provides, further, that "this tax shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other taxes now levied by law."

Postpone Passage of Operators Ordinance

MEMPHIS—The city commission has postponed passage, on second reading, of the proposed operators' ordinance for further consideration, after John Shea, attorney representing the operators' union, entered an informal protest.

Mayor Chandler advised Shea that union representatives could meet with members of the commission to discuss objectionable phases of the bill, after the attorney told the commissioners he had been instructed by the organization's executive board to enter the protest.

One of the main objections to the proposal, according to Shea, is that section requiring health examinations of operators. He charges that portion of the ordinance is not definite enough and "should be defined fully as to what disabilities would include."

$20,000 Loss When Fire Levels Royal, Newark

NEWARK, ARK.—The Royal in Independence county was leveled by fire recently with the loss estimated at $20,000. The blaze originated from a defective flu. It spread quickly to other part of the building.

Newark has no fire department, but a "bucket brigade" prevented the fire from spreading. The theatre, owned by O. F. Craig, editor of the Newark Journal, was the only one in town. It was partly covered by insurance.

Plans are under way for rebuilding.

Theatre for Gillette, Ark.

GILLETTE, ARK.—R. A. Wilson's new theatre here is to be completed within the next few weeks. This is the first theatre operation in this town.

Interstate Wins Suit Via An Instructed Verdict

DALLAS—Before the defense had presented any testimony, R. Z. Glass, former Dallas exhibitor, lost his triple-damage suit totaling over $50,000 against the Interstate circuit via an instructed jury verdict Monday afternoon in Judge W. H. Atwell's federal court.

The hearing started at 10 o'clock in the morning. Glass, who owned the Fair and Knox theatres here during 1935-36 and '37, when he claimed he was damaged by Interstate because of the 25-cent minimum restrictions price clause, took the stand before noon and recounted his alleged damages from his records. Then, after a recess, Glass told how he had sold his three theatres here to Karl Hoblitzelle for $40,000 and also of a partnership later between himself and Hoblitzelle in the new Stude at Houston. The damage suit was filed some time after this partnership had been in operation, it was disclosed.

Following this initial testimony, the plaintiff's father, R. W. Glass, who said he was manager of the Fair in those years and kept books for all three theatres, said the balcony at the Fair had about 130 seats and that on occasions he had sold from 500 to 650 balcony tickets in one night. He added there was no attendant to see whether these patrons sat downstairs in the 25-cent seats or not.

He said he could not answer from the stand without his records as to whether the Fair had played a certain list of pictures restricted to 25 cents or whether it had played any of these pictures on double bills, restrictions on which were also claimed as part cause for the alleged damages. Testimony on the balcony 15-cent tickets and the double billing of "A" pictures was taken by the defense, and within a few minutes the plaintiff rested his case.

Grants Motion

Judge Atwell then allowed a brief recess, the jury retired and the motion for an instructed verdict was put and granted. The judge pointed out to the jury that Glass had all of his records with supporting evidence of his alleged damages in '35-36 and '37, including bank checks and boxoffice statements, but that in connection with 1934, the year Glass used to gauge later losses, he had only book entries without the customary supporting records.

Judge Atwell told the jury the plaintiff admitted he had sold, as a general practice, several times the number of balcony tickets that he had balcony seats, and that none checked where these patrons sat, and therefore a jury could only guess at damages, if any, on the 25-cent restriction clause. In conclusion, he instructed the jury to render a verdict in favor of Interstate.

There were indications this week that Interstate would ask Judge Atwell to set aside the jury verdict in the Jorgensen case on the grounds it was at variance with evidence presented and, further, that a new trial be granted.

Other possibilities expressed were that Judge Atwell might reduce the damages granted to a lower figure. Jorgensen, who operates the East Grand Theatre here, was awarded a total of $4,500 by a federal jury last week, plus $500 attorney's fees, on claims he suffered damages because of the 25-cent minimum restrictions and because of an alleged agreement existing between Interstate and film companies to hold back the East Grand 15 days behind the White Theatre, owned by Interstate.

The Glass case winds up all pending damage suits against Interstate resulting from the government's case against the circuit on the 25-cent and double-bill provisions. One case from Houston, however, that of O. B. Bridges vs. Interstate covering the time Bridges operated the Palace there and docketed to be heard before Judge Atwell here later, may or may not be tried, it was advanced in local theatre circles.

Ascap Wins Royalty Rights in Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS—A cheering episode in a currently dark chapter has been written for Ascap in Louisiana where the state supreme court ruled for the music writers and publishers society.

The high court upheld a district court's decision that a law passed in 1934 imposing a fee on the society's right to collect on its copyrighted pieces when these were presented for profit was illegal.

The law which failed to stand the test of constitutionality demanded a license fee of $5,000 a year for each parish in which Ascap sought to collect fees from taverns, hotels, clubs and the like that used its copyrighted music. Ascap's winning contention was that the law was unconstitutional because it imposed a local criminal penalty for compliance with a federal law: the copyright act.

Sunday Night Show Ban Will End in Abilene

ABILENE, TEX.—This "blue law" West Texas town, soon to be the headquarters for the 45th Division, is going to do away with its ban on Sunday night shows. A city ordinance, recently passed, allows films to operate on Sunday nights until 11 p. m. in place of the former 7 p. m. closing hour.

Flu Epidemic Is Taking Big Toll in Carolinas

CHARLOTTE—The flu epidemic now sweeping the Carolinas has caused a number of theatre towns to close and local health authorities to restrict patronage to persons above 16 years of age.

In South Carolina, theatres in the following towns have been closed: Parris Island, Walterboro, Ridgeland, Lancaster, Marion, Fairfax, Abbeville, Ware Shoals, Woodruff, Greer and Honea Path. North Carolina towns ordering theatres to close include Cherryville, Belmont and Kings Mountain.

In Charleston, S. C., the Pastime Amusement Co. (Albert Sottile) has closed its Majestic and canceled all flesh attractions at the Victory because of the epidemic. Also, the company's Riviera, Gloria and Garden theatres have been required to rope off every other row of seats.

Like Charlotte, Gastonia, N. C., and a number of other Carolina operations are refusing to sell tickets to children under 16. Also, local authorities are urging the public not to attend church services as a health measure.

That the malady is showing signs of letting up in some sections, is indicated by the reopening of all theatres in Anderson and Belton, S. C., following a temporary shutdown.

Flu Whips Carolinas; Grosses, Service Hit

CHARLOTTE—The Carolinas are confronted with the worst epidemic of influenza since 1918. Health authorities, however, announce that the type is not so severe as that in 1918. Many exchanges are seriously crippled on account of illness of employes. The following is a partial list of flu victims:

Republic: Roy Bradley and Berda Griffith.

RKO: Roger Mitchell and Gene Dyer.

Columbia: Skinner Williamson, Nellie Lay, Janie Choate and the wife of Carl Patterson, booker, his daughter, Beulah Margaret, and his sons, Carl jr. and Jimmy.

Metro: Margaret Adams, Rose McIlroy and Jewell Terry.

Jacksonville, Fla., House Is Robbed of $2,500

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—The Sunday receipts totaling $2,500, garnered from a capacity crowd, were lost by Manager Robert C. Heekin, manager of the Florida Theatre, to a bandit who apparently waited in the theatre until the last show was over.

At gun's point the bandit compelled Heekin to take the money from the safe. He then tied Heekin, Assistant Manager Francis Seel and Baxter Weeks, doorman.

The Florida is the ace Sparks house in Jacksonville.

Stengel Adds Two

MEMPHIS—Kermit C. Stengel of the Rockwood Amusement Co., Inc., has announced the opening of two new theatres in western Tennessee, one to be located in Humboldt, and the other in Milan, Tenn. These houses are expected to be completed by early spring.

"Philadelphia Story" Strongest in Dallas

DALLAS—Extreme cold here found "Philadelphia Story" getting the most customers at the Majestic. Hepburn starred in the play on the Melba stage only two weeks ago. Two New Azteca Films

SAN ANTONIO—Azteca Film Exchange announces two new films for current release, "Milagro de la Calle Mayor" and "La Noche De Los Mayas."

NEW ORLEANS

FILMROW enjoyed a boat ride and dance sponsored by Mike Pisciatti, on the evening of January 24. Another one is scheduled later in the year.

Deanna Durbin will visit New Orleans, February 3, accompanied by her mother and manager, for a couple of days stopover following her appearance at the President's Ball . . . While attempting to quell a disturbance in the Casino Theatre on North Rampart Street, James Lansiter, an usher, was shot in the neck.

Among visitors to the Row: Louisiana—J. Gaude, Magic, Port Allen; L. G. Langlois, New Roads, Alamo; O. A. Ott, Kentwood, Kentwood; Vic Maurin, Fox, Houma; Gordon G. Ogden, Chimes, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Gene Anthony, Ideal, Ponchatoula; J. C. Keller, Eunice; L. C. Lampo, Avalon, Jeanerette; Mrs. H. H. Everett, McGee, McGee; A. Marrelo, Rendevois, Grand Isle; Morris Meltz, Arcade, Ferriday. Mississippi—Stanley Taylor, Crosby, Crosby; Ed Delaney, Pike, Magnolia; Frank Bishop, Variety, Ellisville.

John Caldwell of the Royal Theatre, Bernice, is preparing for the opening of a new house at Ruston, La. It will have a seating capacity of approximately 450 and will be modern in every detail, as well as independent . . . Houses catering to colored patrons report a great increase in business, attributed to the number of men employed by the WPA and various defense programs. Over 1,000 have recently been put to work on street improvements and the erection of the new U. S. hospital on the lake front.

Many upstate houses thoroughly disinfect the premises after each performance as a precaution against the spread of the flu and open all windows and doors a few hours before the regular opening time. A few of the local neighborhoods are adopting the same method and report favorable results as regards coughing.

The Writers Project (WPA) is preparing to formulate a history of the motion picture industry in New Orleans. It is estimated that three or more years will be necessary to complete the work.

The Atlantic Films (Goodrow and Sliman) are now the official representatives of the Producers Releasing Corp. . . . Willis H. Cobb, president of the Exhibitors Poster Service who has just returned from a business trip upstate, reports business increasing. He finds that the firm's advertisement in BOXOFFICE carries his message to hundreds of exhibitors in a short space of time, to exhibitors he could not visit in many weeks. His clerical force has been enlarged to take care of additional orders.

THAT HUNTING CLUB AGAIN:

The last session of the Filmrow Hunting Club was held with open doors and windows after the arrival of a committee that accepted an invitation to act as judges at the beauty contest, held on the night of the session, at the Shrimp Packing Plant to select Miss Fertilizer for 1941. The committee reported that as the weather was slightly chilly the promoters insisted that the contest be held with closed doors and windows. Heading the committee were Bob Kelly, Columbia, and W. H. Cobb of the Exhibitors Poster Service who were excused by the president on account of sudden illness.

The business session was cut very short on account of the moonlight excursion given by the Filmrow inhabitants on the steamer Capitol. As the boat was about to leave, the assemblage threw care up against the rear end of the 20th-Fox exchange and made a hotfoot for the boat, as tickets were not good after the date stamped on them. The boat had already pulled out, but backed up to accommodate the late comers. Arriving there they discovered that a vaudeville performance was already in progress, a turkey-in-the-straw contest between Vic Maurin of the Fox Theatre of Houma, and Lou Langlois of the Arcade of New Roads for the championship of Louisiana. So realistic was the contest that the judges, Anthony Sumpia of the Raceland Theatre, Raceland, La. and A. J. Brussard, Bruce, Crowley, reserved their decision until later. One of the highlights of the affair was the presence of the treasurer, who, it is said, accidentally dropped the books of the club in the middle of the Mississippi River.

Honorary members elected at an executive session held in the boiler room of the steamer were: A. Marrelo, Rendevois, Grand Island; A. L. Runbach, Algy Theatre, New Orleans. Music for the turkey-in-the-straw contest was furnished by the Atlantic Films string orchestra and sound effects by the National Theatre Supply Co.'s mechanical force, led by Frank Ruffino of the Gaiety Theatre.

CORRECTION

Through a typographical error, the address of the EXHIBITORS POSTER SERVICE, Inc. in New Orleans, was given as 218 So. Liberty in the last issue. The correct address is 221 So. Liberty St.

Ark. Theatres Join in Polio Fund Campaign

LITTLE ROCK—It is announced that 150 motion picture theatres in the state will participate in a program Thursday evening, January 30, in connection with the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign. The program will be held in 110 or more independent houses and between 30 and 40 chain theatres. The program was arranged by Eli Collins, former MPTOA president, who is now unemployment compensation commissioner for Arkansas.

O. G. Wren, Little Rock, president of the Arkansas ITO, and K. K. King, Searcy, secretary, are working with Collins in arranging the program for film houses in the state. Malco theatres and the R&R theatres also are co-operating with Collins and others in the plan.

Holden in "Texas"

HOLLYWOOD—William Holden has been selected to play the male lead in Columbia's "Texas," temporary title. The production will start within a few days, with Stuart Heisler directing and Sam Bischoff as producer. "Texas" tells a story of the cattle wars in the Panhandle state, in the days immediately following the Civil War.

Fourth for Gulfport

GULFPORT, MISS.—With three theatres already operating, plans are being made to establish a fourth here, according to announcement by Joe Graham Post, American Legion, that tentative plans have been made for the establishment of a theatre building in which picture programs may be shown.

SAN ANTONIO—The Texas adopted a vaude-film policy last week presenting the "All American Revue" in conjunction with Universal's "One Night in the Tropics."

DALLAS

HENRY FORD, west Texas chain operator in the silent days, and now a hotel and property owner in Wichita Falls, spent a few hours on the Row visiting with friends. Ford also owns the Ambassador Hotel, bordering Sullivan Park here, where several in the business have established residence . . . Gene Hendon, former manager of the Grand in Pecos for Oskar Korn, and who managed theatres in East Texas and Louisiana before that, was here renewing old acquaintances. He is seeking a new connection.

Projection and sound men were here from the north and east holding conferences on equipment distribution. They were Wayne Brenkert, head of the Brenkert Electric Co.; Homer Snook, sales manager of RCA Photophone, and Edward Auger, also of RCA's Photophone division . . . Herbert and Mrs. Stroud of the Texas and Strand, Hamilton, were here Monday . . . Ben Ferguson, manager and part owner of the new Campus at College Station, was here for a short visit. With him was his wife.

E. R. Rainosek of Iraan finished up his quarterly trip to the Row and returned after two days here to that far west Texas town. He is owner of the Texas Theatre there and also operates a grocery store . . . Phil Isley, who will soon open his third Texas theatre at Abilene, dropped in between visits there and to Brownwood and Palacios, spending a few hours in his Filmrow office.

R. H. and Mrs. Thompson, owners and operators of the Mecca in Jacksboro, were here booking. She is quite active in the theatre's management as well as in handling business details on the Row.

J. I. Roberts Dies In Highway Crash

DALLAS—A major shock to Filmrow and to exhibitors generally over Texas was the sudden death Monday night of J. I. Roberts, National Theatre Supply Co. manager, a victim of an automobile crash on Houston Highway about ten miles south of Corsicana.

Actual details of the accident were lacking, but it was reported he was killed instantly.

Roberts was identified through cards in his pocket. Corsicana authorities notified Mrs. Roberts of the tragedy in Dallas.

With the arrival Wednesday of Oscar Oldknow, southern division manager for National Theatre Supply, burial arrangements were completed. Exhibitors from over a wide area came in for the last rites.

Pallbearers were: E. S. Gardner, W. B. Hardin, M. J. Koneman, A. G. Smith, F. R. Hansen and C. W. A. McCormack. Honorary pallbearers were: Charles Dunn, Don Douglas, John Miller, J. I. Watkins, Herb Griffin, P. G. Cameron, F. C. Nance, C. C. Ezell, Jack Zern, S. G. Fry, H. P. Nettleton, W. E. Green, E. H. Rowley, H. B. Robb, Oldknow, W. G. Underwood, R. J. O'Donnell, E. C. Zrenner, T. R. Clemmons, F. D. Wilkie, Will Horwitz, Burt King, Arthur De Stafeno, R. D. Thrash and Howard Thrash.

Roberts is survived by his wife, a son, Jim; a daughter, Virgie Bell, and a brother Winifred.

Roberts was 47 years old. He came to Dallas from Atlanta in 1923 as manager of Southern Theatre Equipment Co. for the Oldknow interests.

He continued in this capacity until the organization of National Theatre Supply Co., which absorbed the Oldknow business. His ability brought a transfer to New York as a home office executive for the new company. During his residence east, he also served as manager of the New York distribution branch.

Some time later, Roberts was transferred back to Dallas as branch manager with supervision over Oklahoma as well. In 1933 he put on a sales campaign celebrating his 10th year with the company.

Among organizations with which he was identified were the Shriners and the Variety Club of Texas.

Variety Installation Appears Promising

ATLANTA—February 1 has been selected by directors of Variety for their banquet to be highlighted by the installation of officers and the appearance of Deanna Durbin as guest of honor.

Officers to be installed include: William K. Jenkins, chief barker; Harry G. Ballance, first assistant chief barker; Charles E. Kessnich, second assistant chief barker; R. B. Wilby, dough guy, and E. E. Whitaker, property master.

At a meeting of the board last week, arrangements committees were appointed. They already are hard at work on plans which should make this banquet one of the most outstanding events ever conducted by the local Tent.

The guest list is expected to read like a "Who's Who." Governor Talmadge of Georgia and city and state officials as well as national Variety officers, will be present.

The banquet will be held in the Dixie Ballroom of the Henry Grady Hotel starting promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Chief Barker Jenkins announces tickets will cost $1.50 per person for a barker and his wife or guest. Tickets for additional guests, however, will cost $5. Reservations may be made through Willis J. Davis, Fox Theatre Bldg., Atlanta.

The number of outsiders is being held down to 100. All members of the club, both resident and non-resident, are requested to send in their reservations as soon as possible.

Second Fordyce House For K. Lee Williams

FORDYCE, ARK.—K. Lee Williams, manager of the K. Lee Williams Theatres, Inc., announced on a visit here last week the leasing of a Main Street building which will be remodeled into a modern theatre.

Plans also have been made, Williams said, to enlarge his company's Dallas Theatre here and to install a new cooling system.

JOHN JENKINS

Toddy and Jenkins Merge; Form Exchange Company

By HELEN HARDY

ATLANTA—Ted Toddy of Dixie National Pictures and John Jenkins of Million Dollar Pictures have merged and formed a new company, Consolidated National Film Exchanges, closing a long-term contract for exclusive national distribution of all product released by Million Dollar Pictures and Dixie National Pictures.

The consolidation involves $250,000 for the present exchanges and their pictures and an additional eight pictures each year from the combined studios. The new company controls national distribution of eight all-colored cast features for immediate release, with a release schedule of four pictures a year from Million Dollar and a like number from Dixie National, in addition to three series of shorts.

Home office of Consolidated will be in Atlanta, in the firm's own building at 141 Walton St. Dallas office is at 302½ S. Harwood. In addition, exchanges will be opened in New York, Chicago and on the west coast.

Toddy long has been associated with Columbia in the southeast. Four years ago he organized Dixie Film Exchange, and a year ago the national organization bearing a similar name. Jenkins, for the last five years, has been southern representative for Million Dollar Pictures and a year ago was named executive representative of the company.

The new firm will release all-colored cast pictures and specialty white exploitation attractions for various producers in Hollywood and New York.

CHARLOTTE

CHARLES H. ARRINGTON, president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, and Mrs. Aureola D. Wharton, who assists him in the management of his Cameo Theatre in Rocky Mount, N. C., paid the local office of the association a week's visit. Arrington was elected to the presidency at the December meeting and his visit was for the purpose of making himself thoroughly familiar with the association's activities. He expressed his desire to meet personally every exhibitor in the Carolinas and that this thought may be carried out, he is planning many trips throughout the territory. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Walter Griffith, the association's secretary.

The Princess, Ayden, N. C., recently acquired by C. E. Myers of Rich Square, N. C., from W. C. Ormond, was destroyed by fire . . . The Grand, Charlotte's leading colored theatre, has just been renovated. The theatre is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Nuger . . . Charles A. Harper is opening his new Ann in Estill, S. C., on January 27 . . . Joe Brecheen, local RKO manager, announces that the Depinet drive, which starts on January 25 and ends on May 9, will keep him on the jump inasmuch as two of his salesmen are confined with flu. On Saturday, January 25, the first of the drive meetings was to be held at the local branch. Attending were to be Leo Devaney, drive captain, and also Canadian division manager; T. Harry Gittleson, from the New York office, and Dave Prince, district manager, Atlanta . . . George W. Parr, who has just completed his new Parr in Lancaster, S. C., which was to have opened January 21, advises of an indefinite postponement due to the flu epidemic.

Jack London, Republic salesman in eastern North Carolina, arrived for the weekend laden with a supply of wild geese and country hams (roast beef to Jack), which he confiscated from a customer exhibitor . . . The Lyman in Lyman, S. C., operated by J. C. Holland and his wife, is no place for thieves. Two youths who recently attempted robbery of the theatre were sentenced to life imprisonment. Later a Negro youth made the same try. He failed to open the safe, but was awarded a three year prison term . . . Benny Ralston of Sound Engineering Service Co. has returned from New York where he spent a week on business.

The New Theatre in Hamlet, N. C., owned by K. E. Bryson, has been closed after two months operation . . . J. H. Webster, manager of Captain Willie Culpepper's theatre operations in Elizabeth City and Hertford, N. C., and Craddock, Va., has just completed a 12-family apartment in Craddock . . . Ralph Cook, associated with his brother, Henry, in the operation of the Ritz, Walterboro, S. C., returned in his plane from the air races in Miami. Cook already has his private pilot's license and will take an examination for a commercial license within a few days.

Harry K. Lucas, formerly owner and operator of the Charlotte here, is confined to Presbyterian Hospital after a tonsillectomy. He is improving and hopes to be home shortly . . . John H. Vickers of Carolina Delivery Service and his son, John H., jr., are visiting his mother in Tifton, Ga. . . . Mrs. Sarah Ritchie has been added to the booking department of Universal.

Verne Davis, owner and operator of the Alva and Mimosa theatres in Morganton, N. C., and the Marion in Marion, N. C., is taking his usual mid-winter fishing sojourn in St. Petersburg, Fla. W. P. Erwin, his Marion manager, is now booking the theatre and paid his first visit to the Row last week . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lamont of Saginaw, Mich., will arrive this week for an extended stay with their son, Jack Lamont, manager of Monogram . . . Judging from recent stork showers, it appears as though the old bird will be mighty busy in February, especially at the homes of "Happy" Bell (Metro) and Ernest Stellings (Everett Enterprises) . . . The handsome young gent in the local Metro office is Vince Thompson, student booker.

Metro salesmen are busily engaged in taking photographs of every theatre in the territory . . . Visitors on the Row: Senator-exhibitor Roy Rowe of the Pender Theatre, Burgaw, N. C.; O. T. Kirby of the Palace and Dolly Madison theatres, Roxboro, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Anderson, Ritz, Tabor City, N. C.; Jeff Wilson, Biscoe, Biscoe, N. C.; George Carpenter, Colonial, Valdese, N. C.; the Patovi, Madison, N. C., and the Main, Granite Falls, N. C.; Albert Powell of the B. B. Anderson circuit, Marion, S. C.

Mrs. S. S. Stevenson is still seriously ill at her home in Henderson, N. C. Her husband is a former president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina and operates the Stevenson, Embassy and Vance theatres in Henderson and also the Stevenson and Carolina theatres in Rock Hill, S. C.

After Seizure of Films Officials Face Jail

By A. JULES BENEDIC

BIRMINGHAM—The public prints are rife with a big motion picture story. In short, the police chief and three other prominent officials were given 48-hour jail sentences over the seizure of the motion picture, "French Girls' Club," starring Danielle Darrieux, which ran last October at Frank Merritt's Galax Theatre. As this is written, one convicted official, City Attorney J. H. Willis, said he would seek a review of the case by the Alabama supreme court. The other three, Police Chief T. A. Riley, Assistant City Attorney John S. Foster, and City Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, were silent as to decisions to serve the contempt-of-court sentences or appeal. At this writing, none of the quartette actually had begun serving the sentences, which had been meted out by Judge E. M. Creel in circuit court.

BENEDIC

It was contempt of court, Judge Creel ruled, when police seized a print of the controversial film last October 26, several hours after Circuit Judge John Denson had issued an injunction to prevent interference with its exhibition. A fifth city official, Police Judge Henry J. Martin, had been cited for contempt, but charges were dismissed after it was shown he had had no knowledge of the court order.

Theatre Wins In End

Attorneys for W. M. Merritt, manager of the theatre, a brother of the circuit head, charged that Riley and Connor banned the picture because Merritt had failed to submit to them newspaper proofs of ads for the picture. A police sergeant had approved the film on moral grounds, but, in subsequent court proceedings, the content of the film was attacked as salacious.

During the last week of October, numerous court proceedings were held, with first the theatre interests, then the city, holding the whip hand. There were three injunctions issued, one of which prevented police from picketing the theatre and stopping patrons from entering.

Once-Overing the Orr Circuit

ALBERTVILLE, ALA.—We angle into Albertville, hoping to see Colonel Thos. E. Orr, head of the Alabama theatre circuit bearing his name, but history repeats, and he's out of town, and we see instead Hammond Green, the Colonel's Man Friday, whose other title is circuit manager. We chat with Hammond, who recalls our visit six years ago, when we were his guest at the Albertville horse show. The Colonel, we find, is in Birmingham with his family, for a short visit.

We're next into Boaz, and shake hands with Carl Medlock, Rialto impresario. This is another Orr stronghold. The Rialto is a new theatre erected last summer and replaces the old Rialto . . . At Attalla we renew acquaintance with Jack Brown, who's been at the helm of the Liberty for Colonel Orr these two score years or more . . . At Tallapoosa, just over the line in Georgia, we gallop to the Grand and there meet T. R. Harris . . . Another pleasant Orr call was upon S. S. Barksdall, in charge of the DeKalb and Strand at Fort Payne, Ala.

We clip to Collinsville in Alabama, and at the Cricket Theatre wangle a bit with M. G. Weaver, owner-manager, whose multitudinous duties include theatre operation, being head of the waterworks and other enterprises. Weaver's also chief stockholder in the new hosiery mill here and in his spare moments conducts a realty enterprise. He's very proud, and justly so, of the new improvements at the Cricket, completed Christmas Eve, which include new chairs, screen, sound equipment and projectors. Other improvements are contemplated for the theatre, in anticipation of expected good business through the influx from the new industry.

WEAVER

We peregrinate to Piedmont and renew acquaintance with J. G. Varnell of the Princess, who is under the weather temporarily from the well known flu . . . At the Allison in this town we meet J. E. Aaron, who conducts an operation quite creditable to this Alabama town.

Gadding about Gadsden, we meet Messrs. Dixon and Parker of the Princess and Capitol respectively, Sudekum holdings, while out in East Gadsden we meet H. T. Bailey, who runs the independent Dixie . . . Roy Gamel of the Bremen in Bremen, just over the line in Georgia, a Martin stronghold, is another call before ambling back to Atlanta.

Atlanta Merger Interests

ATLANTA—Back to Atlanta, The Row's chief topic for the week is the merger between Ted Toddy and John Jenkins, of Dixie Films Exchange and Million Dollar Distributing, respectively. These concerns, both handling pictures with colored casts, as well as other product, decided on cooperation and expansion. John tells us some big things are in prospect when the concern gets its new offices opened in Chicago and New York. At present, offices are being maintained in Atlanta and Dallas. Both principals in the transaction are well known along the Row.

: There's Gratitude :

OKLAHOMA CITY—Paul Harrup, secretary of the Hi-Y Councils of the YMCA in Oklahoma City, paid a tribute to the local Variety Club in a letter sent last week to Louis C. Griffith, chief barker.

"Wise men of the ages have proclaimed Christian character the gem that sends forth more brilliance and affords more genuine happiness than all other jewels," Harrup said, "You have shared generously in our humble efforts to develop this gem in the hearts and minds of our youth.

"Your generous and substantial gift to our new camp development has helped to erect a monument to the character service of scores of youth down through many years to come.

"We are grateful for your fine interest, express our sincere appreciation for the good work and warm friendship of you and the Variety Club and wish for everyone the most bountiful blessings."

The letter was in particular appreciation of the club's furnishing a truck and equipping it with portable motion picture equipment to furnish pictures for shut-ins. Howard Wortham, Horace Falls and Hy Berling are members of the joint committee in charge of this part of the club's activities.

BOB BUSH, manager of the Midwest Theatre here, has resigned to become manager of the new Uptown at 12th and Hudson, opening within the next two weeks. Bush has been manager of several Standard Theatres during the past few years. The Uptown is being built by the Sieber interests here. It has been leased by Charles "Chuck" Ferris.

Jake Jones has resigned as assistant manager of the Liberty and left for Shawnee, where he will again join the staff of his father's theatre operating organization in that city . . . Fred White, former State chief of service and assistant manager of the Tower, has left to take a job with the Malco organization.

E. H. Husley jr., former doorman at the State, and more recently with the Peak Theatre at Colorado Springs, was a visitor last week. He has resigned from the latter position and is awaiting his call to join the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Fred White has taken himself a wife; former Shirley Davis. Criterion cashier . . . Paul Verderey, State Theatre usher, was one of the boys caught in the draft and is set to leave for Fort Sill February 5. Incidentally Paul told us something the State's management didn't mention: That T. B. Noble jr. ordered a two weeks salary check for him as a going-away present.

RKO exchange held a special press screening of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" January 21 at the State with newspaper folk from all over the state sitting in . . . Bob Pfotenhauer has returned from Tulsa bragging heavy about Talbot's remodeled Majestic there which Bob says is one of the finest show houses in the Southwest. The new Majestic was set as the site of an indefinite "Gone With the Wind" run last week. Same film is playing Oklahoma City a second time at the Criterion to very nice business on three a day.

Work is progressing on Griffith's new Main Street Theatre in Tulsa with a stucco front up and work starting on the remainder of the outside walls.

Andy Higgins was a recent visitor. Things are going good for Higgins who is now working some 60 hours a week in an airplane factory at Wichita, Kas. He's traded in his old bus on a new wagon . . . Sam Caporal is putting the finishing touches on his new Bison on Northeast 23rd Street.

C. A. Gibbs, Columbia exchange manager, is back from an extended vacation and a much happier man for the rest. All set to go to work on selling Columbia this year . . . Bud Gray, RKO exploitation man, was in-again and out-again last week doing some exploitation work on "Kitty Foyle" which started its run at the State last week . . . Frank Bruner of United Artists was also in town to do some "pushem" on "The Thief of Bagdad" which played at the Midwest. And Jimmy Birge has a two city exploitation job on "Gone With the Wind," it playing Oklahoma City and Tulsa simultaneously.

Those pictures Burley Hyde, Tower Theatre operator, took at the state convention are worth seeing. Hyde filmed the annual banquet and caught all the boys when they thought the reels weren't spinning. The Variety Club has the films for showing to any who may desire to see.

Mary Ellen Foster, cashier at the Liberty Theatre, is back on the job following an attack of the flu . . . Oklahoma's Bob Wills really brought the business to the Rialto last week when the Griffith house showed his picture, "Carry Me Back to Oklahoma." It wowed 'em in Tulsa at the Rialto also and we understand in the latter spot it did more business than "Boom Town." No exhibitor has to be told of Bob Wills' pulling power in Oklahoma.

Word comes back from Montgomery, Ala., of Charles T. Rook's new house, said to represent some $100,000 investment . . . A pat on the back to J. Eldon Peak whose Oklahoma Theatre Supply Co. is leading the nation in sales for Brenkert projectors . . . The draft got Paul Townsend, Liberty manager, but the board turned him down due to his high blood pressure.

Chet Humphreys has made Jimmy Adams, who has been around in local theatre circles for quite a spell, new manager of his Log Cabin Theatre.

B. H. "Bob" Pfotenhauer, manager of the State, Oklahoma City, is enjoying a series of anonymous love letters from an admirer who has started writing him a note every time she plans to come to the State and is hoping that he will be around so she can "get another look at him."

Walter Shuttee Acquires Two Houses in Cherokee

OKLAHOMA CITY—Walter B. Shuttee, until recently general manager of Standard Theatres, Inc., here, has purchased the Mex and Ritz in Cherokee. He will move to Cherokee about March 1, personally directing the two houses. He resigned his post here December 15.

Shuttee came here three years ago to become manager of the Criterion, Midwest and other houses in the Standard group. Before that he was engaged in the theatre business in Nebraska and Colorado for eight years. He was reared in El Reno and served as a bank clerk before entering the motion picture business.

A New Way to Get Into a Theatre

Charlotte—Mr. and Mrs. Morris Nuger, who operate the Grand in the Biddeville colored section, had a novel experience recently which neither hardly will soon forget.

Mrs. Nuger, who assists her husband as cashier, was approached one evening by a woman who said "I'd like very much to see Mr. Nuger," then turned and walked to the street.

Mrs. N. pushed the buzzer summoning Mr. N. to the boxoffice and informed him a party wished to see him, so he walked to the street entrance and asked the woman what she wanted. In reply, she reached into her coat and brought forth a shiny revolver, which she pointed at Mr. N., stating that she wished him to take the revolver as security for two theatre tickets for her and the boy friend. Speechless, he merely indicated with his thumb to go ahead.

"Land of Liberty" received a big send-off by local newshounds who caught the screening . . . Lena and Earl Podolnick are planning to build a little nest of their own soon. Earl is the State's well-dressed skipper.

Sam Stokes Will Helm Corpus Christi String

MCALESTER, OKLA.—Sam Stokes, manager of the three McAlester theatres here for the past 13 years, has been promoted to manager of 13 theatres with headquarters in Corpus Christi, Tex. He will be succeeded by Alex Blue of Palestine, Tex. Alston Hardin will continue as assistant manager in McAlester.

Gadsden Theatre Man Injured

Gadsden, Ala.—A second blood transfusion was deemed necessary for Benton W. Pierce jr., assistant manager of the Princess Theatre here, after an incident highly unusual.

A monument to a war hero stands in the heart of town. It divides traffic into right and left movements.

During a fog on January 9, Pierce drove into the monument after his windshield became cloudy. His car was demolished and he was critically injured. At this writing his condition warrants the belief he will pull through.

Fourteen hours later, a similar accident happened at the monument.

In this, two persons were killed, two hurt rather badly.

Now the city, after placing red lights on all sides of the obstruction, has decided to do away with the monument, at least in its present position.

SANTONE

INTERSTATE City Manager E. E. Collins has been chosen to head the Bexar county President's Birthday Ball committee. Dance and floor show will be held at the Municipal Auditorium Thursday night . . . "Buzzo" has been transferred from the Texas over to the Empire in conjunction with "Gift Night" every Wednesday . . . Lawrence Landers of the Landers at Batesville, Ark., was in a very unhappy frame of mind on his recent visit here. The day before he had arisen at the crack of dawn to go quail hunting, and on his way to the game preserve he had two flat tires, and after finally getting there, lost his cigarette lighter and his favorite bird dog decided to run away.

C. V. Jones, R&R executive of Dallas, spent a couple of days in Memphis recently with his local booker, Alton Sims . . . Richard Bryant, booker for Strand Enterprises, Inc., is driving a new car.

George Simpson, traffic manager for Film Transit, Inc., had his little eight-year-old daughter down to spend the holidays with him . . . M. V. Smith of the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service was in booking for Camp Joe T. Robinson in Little Rock.

G. W. Haynes of Strand Enterprises has installed new seats in his Roxy here, Strand at Philadelphia and Star at Marked Tree . . . Malco Theatres have announced the opening of their new Park Hill Theatre in North Little Rock for approximately March 1. This will be their third theatre in N. Little Rock.

The stage attraction at the Malco Memphis featuring Milton Slosser, organist, Berl Olswanger, pianist, and the Blue Belles, three local girls, have been booked for the second week.

M. A. Connett and J. A. Owen have opened a new theatre in Philadelphia, Miss., during the last few weeks.

Lyle Richmond and John Mohrstadt, who in the past have done the booking for their circuit of Missouri theatres, now find it necessary to have some one else do their booking in order to give them more time to devote to other business interests. Accordingly, Charles Ferry will handle their feature bookings and Maurice Olds will book their shorts. Ferry and Olds paid the Row their initial booking trip a fortnight ago.

DALLAS, TEXAS

HOUSTON

THE opening of the Motion Picture Operators new club rooms was a gala affair attended by city and county officials, representatives from Dallas, Beaumont, San Antonio, Tyler, Lufkin and many other Texas towns. All independent theatre owners of Houston were present as well as officials of Interstate theatres from Dallas and Houston. Operators' wives and friends were well represented and were given souvenirs along with plenty to eat and drink. Dancing followed the reception.

O. B. Bridges, former owner of the Crown, Cozy and Midway theatres here, was a visitor from New Orleans where he is now managing the Joy-Strand Theatre . . . Mr. McDaniel of the Queen has returned to the job after two weeks of illness.

Murry Smith of Beaumont and Harvey Hill of Dallas were visitors the past week . . . Houston's Drive-In Theatre still is going strong despite the cold weather.

Cotton Mulliniz of the Joy Theatre entertained four friends from Ft. Worth the past week, showing them the town and feeding them fried chicken at the Dixie.

L. W. Merchant, Tower Theatre projectionist, also in the sound business, equipped the Operators Club with the communicating system . . . Raymond Hay, manager of the North Main Theatre, has been appointed chairman of the underprivileged children's committee in his local Kiwanis Club.

Jerry Jobin, assistant chief usher at the Metropolitan, has been transferred to Lever's office with J. T. Baine, who was only recently rehired, taking Jerry's post . . . Weldon Parsons, city manager of the neighborhood houses, is looking at homes.

In spite of a broken blood-vessel in his right leg, W. E. Bremer, Kirby manager, has been valiantly pushing his plans for entertainment at the President's Ball and has promised that the entertainment this year will be the best ever presented and worth the price of admission.

F. B. Logan, Kirby electrician who has been recovering from a serious operation, is resting at home and is feeling fine . . . Miss Thelma Ward, an employe of the Horwitz Theatres for 18 years, was recently married to Dewey Edgar.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Horwitz have returned from an extended trip that included New York, Florida and Panama . . . Add to the growing list of Houstonians who have gained recognition in Hollywood the name of Don Castle. He was signed to a long-term contract by Paramount and has a featured role in the film "So You're the One" with another Houstonian, Bonnie Baker, and Orrin Tucker.

When Mrs. "Chang" Jackson, secretary to Al Lever, left this week, she could not be accused of being hasty—she resigned the last of March. As it was then planned, Mrs. A. C. Driver (formerly Miss Mildred Jones) will replace her.

Protest Proposed Amusement Tax

Oklahoma City—Members of the Theatre Owners of Oklahoma, Inc., headed by President Morris Loewenstein, have protested to Gov. Leon C. Phillips against a proposed five per cent amusement tax as provided in a bill introduced in the current legislative session last week.

Approximately 15 members of the association met with Phillips to discuss the bill and the tax problem. A committee is to be named to study the question.

The association members protested that they were already overtaxed.

New "Beast" Deal

NEW YORK — Pathe Laboratories announces its Atlanta franchise-holder, Ike Katz of Producers Releasing, has consummated a deal on "Beast of Berlin" with the Publix-Wilby Kincey circuit for the Carolinas. The picture had extended runs throughout the Interstate and the Jefferson circuits in Texas.

Alsina Sells to Saenger

NEW ORLEANS—The Famous Theatre, one of the largest in the lower section of the city, has been taken over by the Saenger interests. Joe Alsina, proprietor hitherto, who has been in ill health, it is said is planning an extensive tour in the endeavor to regain his health.

A Great Educator

NEW ORLEANS—A tribute to motion pictures as "one of the greatest educators outside the classroom" was paid by Mrs. E. Williams, newly elected president of the Louisiana Better Films Council. Another new officer of the organization is Mrs. L. A. Zollinger, secretary.

Atlanta—A regional tribunal for arbitrating disputes in the industry will be opened here February 1 following selection of a panel of 40 arbiters from this area, it is reported. It will be composed of business and professional men.

MIAMI

AL WEISS of the Olympia had to hang out the SRO sign as thousands of Miamians stormed his boxoffice to be part of the audience of "Dr. I. Q.'s" initial Miami coast-to-coast broadcast. This was the first of a series of six programs to be broadcast from the stage of the local theatre on successive Monday nights . . . Friends of A. R. Ninninger, veteran Fort Lauderdale showman, are congratulating him on having passed his 40th anniversary as a theatreman . . . The Max Fleischers have moved into a handsome new home they purchased recently on North Bay Road, Miami Beach.

Latest threat to Texas' claim for being the best producer of beautiful girls, is quite obviously Miami. And the latest personification of this threat is Mary Joyce Walsh, recently "Miss Florida," who has gone west with a 20th Century-Fox contract in her handbag.

Current activity at the Colonnade Studios is in preparation for the filming of an English war feature to be titled "Bomb Shelter." It will take precedence over the previously scheduled "Tigress and the Lady."

With the opening of the new British-Colonnade Theatre School being started at the studio, additional space and facilities are being made available at the Coral Gables production center where actual shooting and sound reproduction have been underway since midsummer. Among the school's sponsors are Lady Louis Montbatten and Alexander Korda.

Honor Picquet

CHARLOTTE—Charles W. Picquet, president for many years of the Theatre Owners Ass'n of North and South Carolina, and who operates the Carolina theatres in Southern Pines and Pinehurst, N. C., was honored recently by the Kiwanis with the "Builders Cup" for outstanding civic endeavor during 1940.

Laying Foundation

HOUSTON—Foundation work is under way on a $30,000 theatre and store building for Negroes at 3404 Holman St. The theatre will seat 550, according to M. M. Lewis, builder.

About a Little Man

OKLAHOMA CITY—The local sheriff was very angry last week.

A certain H. J. Wallingford came into his office and used the phone. The next thing the sheriff knew, Wallingford was soliciting funds for the sheriff's "Littlejohn Memorial," a quite non-existent project.

Sheriff Goff and his boys were raging mad about the whole thing when the phone rang. A call came from the manager of the Joy Theatre who said that a little fellow, who said he was a pal of the sheriff, was there to collect the theatre's contribution for the sheriff's memorial.

The sheriff sent his men flying, but by the time they arrived the little man was gone.

However, as they still stewed moments later, another call came in, this time from the manager of the Jewel, a colored house here. This time the sheriff suggested to tell the man to come and get a check from them.

When they arrived, they found Wallingford had already picked up the check, but caught him a moment later when the little man stopped to ask a Negro policeman whether the check was any good or not and where he could cash it.

With Army Theatre

BRISTOL, TENN.—Lieut. Jay Baumgartner, with former experience with local theatres, is credited with excellent management of the government training camp theatre at Camp Jackson, S. C.

Reports Increase for Tennessee Circuit

CHATTANOOGA—Emmet R. Rogers, district manager for Eastern Theatres, states that its largest local theatre, the Tivoli, had an increase of 20 per cent for 1940 over 1939, and that increases for the State, Bijou and Rialto were even greater. He attributes increases to better business conditions and better pictures. Independent Theatres, which last month opened the New Capitol, reported increases for the Riveria, Park, American, Cameo, Ritz, and Rivoli. The Grand Amusement Co., operating local Negro theatres, recently opened the Harlem and plans another soon which will double the seating capacity for Negro houses.

Elm Street Hippodrome Undergoes Remodeling

DALLAS—One of Elm Street's old theatrical landmarks is now going modern.

The old Hippodrome, whose marble walls, big pipe organ and first run pictures were the pride of Dallas entertainment during the regime of E. H. Hulsey, is now getting a new front, streamlined marquee and other improvements to bring it up to date.

For the past few years it has been operated as the Joy with burlesque and pictures. It is owned by Percy Wade of Oklahoma City and operated by his son, Gene. Incidentally the house name is being changed to the Wade.

W. C. Tyers Campaigns Earn Hanson Award

TORONTO—W. C. Tyers, manager of the Granada at St. Thomas, Ont., has been awarded the plaque as the grand prize for the best picture exploitation throughout 1940 among the managers of the Hanson Theatres Corp., according to announcement by H. C. D. Main, general supervisor of the circuit. Tyers rolled up a total of 130 points with one "Best Campaign of the Month," seven honorable mentions in the competition and 45 promotional highlights, indicating that he kept plugging with promotional features every week throughout the year.

Coincident with this award, Pres. O. R. Hanson has approved a competitive award system for 1941 to be featured by the presentation of an annual trophy, plus a personal prize of an attractive plaque which is to remain the permanent property of the winning manager. In addition, there will be quarterly competitions for cash prizes, with $100 to be distributed for each three months' exploitation on the basis of $50 to the leading manager for the period, $30 for second place and $20 for third manager in the standing. This makes it possible for one manager to win $200 during 1941. The competition will be conducted on the point system and additional points will be awarded for practical suggestions on theatre maintenance, accounting, equipment operation, staff management and other features, according to information supplied by Mr. Main. The plaque to be awarded at the end of 1941 will be similar to that which has been sprung as a surprise for 1940 exploitation work, the winner being Wannie Tyers.

Grant Garrette Runner Up

The runner up in the 1940 compilation was Grant Garrette of the Geneva, Orillia, Ont., who captured 104 points with one best campaign of the month, two honorable mentions and 69 promotional highlights. The third manager was T. A. Mascaro of the Capitol, Belleville, who scored 67 points with three best campaigns and 22 highlights and fourth was Lorne Moore of the Grand, Sudbury, with 61 points for two best campaigns, one mention and 21 highlights. G. D. Beavis of the Royal, North Bay, earned 59 points with one campaign, two mentions and 24 highlights.

Next in order were Tom McKnight, Patricia, London, Ont., with 52 points; seventh, Emmett Stark, Palace, Timmins, 43 points; eighth, Henry Marshall, Rideau, Ottawa, 30 points; ninth, Frank Miley, Granada, Nepanee, 26 points, and 10th, Don Doberer, Granada, Dunnville, 23 points. Supervisor Main pointed out that the showings were made with limited budgets but that continuous plugging with inexpensive ideas had brought results. Miley and Doberer have small theatres, for instance, but they were among the first 10 in the exploitation records of the past year.

Adapt a "Michael Shayne"

HOLLYWOOD — "The Dead Take No Bows," next in 20th-Fox's "Michael Shayne" sleuth series, is being scripted by Stanley Rauh and Manning O'Connor.

Report Tracy Flies Planes to Canada

Regina—Belief that Spencer Tracy was a recent visitor in Regina and Lethbridge, was expressed in the Lethbridge "Herald" the other day. The story going the rounds in the Alberta city was that Tracy, a pilot of some experience, is one of a number of American fliers who have been ferrying American-built planes into Canada. The system calls for the pilots to fly the planes in and then return to the United States via commercial airlines.

According to the story, Tracy had been unable to fly out of Regina owing to the weather, so he traveled to Lethbridge by train. A porter on the Lethbridge-Regina run claimed to have talked to him.

Plans Advanced for War Stamps Drive

TORONTO—Plans for the Dominion-wide campaign for the sale of War Savings Stamps were advanced at a luncheon meeting in the Royal York Hotel, at which Walter P. Zoller of Montreal, general chairman of the government committee, was present. Theatres across Canada are preparing to cooperate in this drive during February and March under the sponsorship of the Canadian Motion Picture War Services Committee of which N. L. Nathanson is chairman.

Handling details for theatre cooperation is a sub-committee which has already held several meetings, the personnel being Chairman Nathanson, Col. John A. Cooper, O. R. Hanson, T. J. Bragg and N. A. Taylor. Physical distribution of campaign trailers and advertising accessories will be done by Regal Films, Ltd., through its six branches. Henry L. Nathanson, general manager of Regal, was recently added to the Motion Picture War Services executive in succession to H. M. Masters. During the absence of N. L. Nathanson in Florida for a rest, chairmanship duties are being performed by J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of Famous Players Canadian Corp.

Intimate Grierson May Keep Commissionership

OTTAWA—From the office of the National Film Board has come an intimation that John Grierson of London, England, is reconsidering his resignation as film commissioner of the Dominion government and may decide to continue in the post indefinitely, although he had announced that the supervision of the Board should be in the hands of a Canadian, in view of the fact that the organization work has been completed.

The chairman of the board is Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce in the federal cabinet, but no announcement has been made by him because of absence from the country and subsequent illness. The resignation of Grierson was scheduled to take effect at the end of January.

Effective Treatment For "Hudson's Bay"

WINNIPEG—The opening of "Hudson's Bay" at the Capitol was attended with as complete a publicity campaign as has ever been attempted here. It was carried out by George Fraser of 20th Century-Fox and Harold Bishop and Jack Fitzgibbons jr.

The campaign included a telephone hookup between John Sutton, who appears in the film, speaking from Hollywood, and Clifford Wilson, official historian of the company at Winnipeg. A 15-minute narrative script prepared by Wilson was aired over CJRC. In addition, through an arrangement with CJRC, two announcers attended the opening night at which they carried out interviews with local celebrities. Another good move was the featuring in the company's window of an autographed copy of the script.

Letters to Schools

The T. Eaton Co. tied in with a full window display as well as cooperative ads, and the lobby of the Capitol was furnished with models of early forts, blankets, muskets, bead work and a variety of other articles loaned from the HBC Museum. Doormen and ushers at the Capitol were dressed in trappers' costumes and the front of the house was built up to represent an old-time stockade.

Letters were circulated to school principals and teachers and also to the fur trade in the city. The HBC distributed 50,000 stuffers and mailing inserts calling attention to the opening. Excellent cooperation from the film trade was manifested through the efforts by which Frank Vaughan, Universal manager in Winnipeg, arranged to have his father-in-law, oldest living Hudson's Bay factor, to be available for newspaper interviews.

Toronto Clearance Board Has Rosenfeld, Cohen

TORONTO—Louis Rosenfeld, general manager of Columbia Pictures of Canada, Ltd., and Wolfe Cohen, Canadian district manager of Warner Bros., have been named as the representatives of the film distributors to the newly created Ontario clearance board to act in an advisory capacity in dealing with booking reforms.

They are working with Nat Taylor, vice-president of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, in studying the priority schedule situation as a further step toward reorganization of trade regulations.

Sees "Ski Patrol"

MONTREAL—Through the combined efforts of Empire-Universal Films and R. L. Vallee, manager of the New Premier Theatre, Sherbrooke, Que., officers and men of the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment, A. C. A., attended a free presentation of the picture "Ski Patrol." Canadian regiments are introducing ski-training, and newsreels recently pictured Canadian troops on skis. Montreal police force also has established a ski patrol.

TORONTO

J A. McCULLOCH had an overflow crowd at his Royal George, Toronto, for a Sunday night patriotic performance at which Mayor F. J. Conboy officiated, with other members of the City Council present, the result being a donation of $106.10 for the British War Victims' Fund. The extra 10 cents was a dime which was found on the floor after the show . . . W. E. "Ted" Fraser, manager of the Century, Trenton, Ont., has been cooperating with S. J. McMaster, publisher of the Quinte Sun, in a "Find-the-Name" contest for which he has provided all the passes as prizes. Editor McMaster says: "Ted Fraser is about the livest man in Trenton. He has a keen sense of advertising values and he certainly makes use of them."

Roy Miller, assistant manager of the Patricia, London, has been appointed manager of the Marks at Oshawa in succession to Keith Wilson, resigned. Howard Binns, formerly doorman at the Granada, Hamilton, has been transferred to London to succeed Miller . . . G. J. Lofty has joined the Royal Canadian Air Force and is now in training at Toronto. He was formerly an operator at the Corona, Winnipeg, owned by J. Pearson . . . J. J. Allen, prominent theatre pioneer, has been confined to his home in Toronto once more after showing evidence of permanent recovery from a previous lengthy illness. Ray S. Allen, supervisor of the Allen chain, spent a brief period in a local hospital because of kidney trouble but has returned to his business duties.

Mrs. Joshua Smith, owner of the Avenue, Toronto, has contributed the receipts, amounting to $127.50, to the British War Relief Fund, this being the take for the New Year's Eve show at which John Lodge, star of the picture "One Night in Paris," made a personal appearance. It was at this performance that Boris Silver, president of Colonial Pictures, last appeared in public before his sudden death in New York a few days later . . . Syd Taube, energetic member of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, has been compelled to take a rest in the southern states because of overwork in connection with the campaigns of the Motion Picture War Services Committee, including the rodeo which featured Gene Autry.

Harry J. Allen, general manager of Grand National Films, Ltd., Toronto, spent several days in Winnipeg where he formerly resided and was met by a roundup of old friends. Allen made the western business trip to arrange for the release of a group of features . . . Two sons of Capt. W. M. Gladish, Canadian film writer and organizer, are now in uniform for active service with the armed forces. The eldest is with the Royal Canadian Air Force and the second is with the infantry . . . Emmett Stark of the Palace, Timmins, turned out a novel front for "New Moon," consisting of fibre board done in dark blue with brilliant stars and quarter moon on each panel and sailing ships, the title being displayed in large cutout letters.

Harry Neun, manager of the Granada, Chatham, pulled off a three-way stunt when he distributed sticks of chewing gum attached to small cards which bore the message, "Three Big Treats for You." One was the showing of "Melody Ranch" at the Granada, the second was a suggestion to listen to Gene Autry on the Sunday evening radio program and the third was the gum . . . In a review of the past year, H. C. D. Main, supervisor of the Hanson Theatres Corp., pointed out that this company inaugurated holidays with pay for all employes, group insurance, a Christmas bonus plan, various salary increases and more adequate staffing of theatres. And now President Hanson has authorized cash prizes for exploitation competitions throughout 1941.

Tom Pringle, proprietor of the Ideal, Toronto, held a special matinee on a weekday, the proceeds from which were donated for the relief of bombing victims in Great Britain . . . According to Ernie Moule, veteran manager of the Capitol, Brantford, the theatres of that city recently cooperated with the local women's organizations in staging a performance for which the admission price was an aluminum cooking utensil which is to be converted into an implement of war.

Leonard Levy of the Toronto office of Columbia has joined the colors and is now wearing the uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force . . . George Degnom is now in charge of feature publicity for the Canadian branches of RKO Distributing Corp. of Canada under the direction of Leo M. Devaney, general manager for the Dominion.

Ten Toronto Theatres Will Auction Gifts From Stars

TORONTO—The 10 theatre managers of Toronto's North End are cooperating in the preparation of a combined stunt for the auction of numerous articles which had been donated by actors and actresses of Hollywood some weeks ago as a contribution to the war effort. It has been decided to stage simultaneous "sales" of the gifts in each of the 10 theatres, the proceeds to be turned over to the Toronto Telegram for the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relief of British war victims. Practically all of the donations are accompanied by personal letters or certificates which denote that the article had been used in designated sequences of feature films or had been the personal property of the star. Some of them are quite valuable, apart from intrinsic interest.

This auction, which is scheduled for the near future, is the outcome of the cooperative activity of the 10 managers in connection with the War Savings Stamp Campaign by theatres across the Dominion last July. The North Toronto theatres comprise the Belsize, Bedford, Eglinton and Capitol of the Famous Players' chain; Oriole, Circle, Avenue and Hudson, independent houses; the Beverly of the Hanson circuit and the Hollywood, leading local cinema of the Allen chain, all of whom are actively cooperating on a common basis for the cause.

Critics, Exhibs Agree On Four Out of Ten

TORONTO—A poll of Canadian critics resulted in the selection of the following as the 10 best features of the past year:

1. "Gone With the Wind;" 2. "Rebecca;" 3. "Foreign Correspondent" and "North West Mounted Police;" 5. "Our Town;" 6. "Mortal Storm" and "Pride and Prejudice;" 8. "Abe Lincoln in Illinois;" 9. "Pinocchio," "Convoy" and "Waterloo Bridge."

A vote of theatre managers on the 10 biggest features of the year had the following result:

1. "Rebecca;" 2. "Northwest Passage;" 3. "Swanee River" and "Waterloo Bridge;" 5. "North West Mounted Police;" 6. "Irene;" 7. "Gone With the Wind," "My Son, My Son," "Four Feathers" and "Shipyard Sally."

The exhibitors named the 10 most popular stars in the following order:

1. Spencer Tracy; 2. Clark Gable; 3. Mickey Rooney; 4. Gary Cooper; 5. Deanna Durbin; 6. Jeanette MacDonald; 7. Bette Davis and Nelson Eddy; 9. Tyrone Power; 10. Gene Autry.

Incidentally, the Toronto Daily Star is in the midst of compiling a vote among the film fans of the Dominion to secure a rating of pictures and stars of the past year according to public taste but the outcome will not be ready for several weeks.

Westboro Will Have Its First Theatre by May

TORONTO—A syndicate has been organized for the construction of the first theatre in Westboro, a town in the Ottawa Valley, for which a site has been purchased on Main Street on which a theatre to seat 500 persons has been started, the contractor being Baker Bros. of Ottawa. The house is to be opened in May.

Biltmore Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, has bought a theatre site on Princess Street in Kingston, Ont., at a cost of $25,000 for the erection of a house to seat 750 and measuring 60 by 140 feet. There are already three theatres in Kingston, all operated by Famous Players Canadian Corp., the population of the city being approximately 25,000. The largest is the Capitol which has accommodation for 1,177. Biltmore Theatres, which is headed by B. Laxer, constructed the Biltmore at Oshawa, Ont., more than one year ago, this being classed as the first all-concrete cinema in the Dominion. The Kingston theatre will be of similar type.

The Theatre Holding Corp., operating the Allen chain, has closed the Capitol in Kirkland Lake, Ont., following the acquisition of the LaSalle in that city from the Cinemas Rousson-Trudeau Limitee and will continue to operate the Strand, Uptown and LaSalle in the gold mining center. The Capitol seats 516 while the LaSalle has 716 seats.

The Marks, Oshawa, Ont., has been modernized by the construction of a new front, sound equipment, seats and other new features. This house is a unit of the Hanson chain.

WINNIPEG

A PAT on the back and a kick in the pants were simultaneously administered to showmen here last week by the Rev. J. W. Clarke of Knox Church. Doctor Clarke, speaking at a meeting of the Winnipeg presbytery of the United Church of Canada, praised house operators for their cooperation in discontinuing Sunday midnight shows. At the same time he urged suburban residents to be on the strict lookout for any neighborhood houses which might be tempted to sneak through the occasional midnight filming.

Britain is still producing films in spite of air raids and blackouts. This statement was made here last week by Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire-Universal. Nathanson also said that new pictures in production in Britain are designed to raise the morale of the people. To do this, the films either deal with the heroic elements of the fight which Britain is now carrying on, or are of a comedy nature designed as relief. A. W. Perry, general sales manager of E-U, who was here with Nathanson, said Canadians are showing considerable liking for British films and this has been on the increase since the war broke out.

Jack Randall, College Theatre manager, carried off the biggest bonus at the end of the year of all manager of Western Theatres, Ltd. . . . "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" is being used to swell the Lord Mayor's Fund . . . "The Warning" is being widely booked. Another film, "One Night in Paris," recently reviewed for the trade, is described as one of the most unusual of the season in the field of musical melodrama.

Vaudeville acts have been introduced at the Times and the Plaza here and seem to be going over very well judging by the reaction of patrons. An excellent house saw this type of entertainment introduced last week at Billy Williams' Plaza. Mike Goodman, Times manager, emceed the show in a professional manner. The undertaking is under the personal supervision of Sam Rosenblatt, supervisor for Western Theatres, Ltd.

"Mein Kampf," recently screened for the press, earned praise in the dailies . . . "Scarface," with Paul Muni, has been reissued to the accompaniment of favorable critical comment . . . At the Metropolitan, Syl Gunn has been making extensive use of Radio Station CJRC to plug his films. Recently Gunn used this medium to ballyhoo "A Dispatch From Reuter's" and "Second Chorus."

A visitor to the city was Leon Asper, whose Lyric burned down in Minnedosa recently. Asper returned to Neepawa where he will run his Roxy . . . Jack Kurk, manager of the Neepawa Roxy, has gone to Carmen, where he is to manage the Boyne . . . Frency Noel, well-known theatre man, who is now operating the Nola at Binscarth, was in the city recently on his way to Fort William . . . Max Heppner of the Colonial is in Montreal . . . J. P. O'Loghlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox, was here for the opening of "Hudson's Bay." . . . George Dowbiggin, F-P booker, has been made a corporal and instructor in the Winnipeg Light Infantry.

Commercial Sponsor For a Stage Show

TORONTO—Commercial sponsorship has invaded the realm of theatres in the Dominion through the presentation of a musical program of the Weston Biscuit Co., Toronto, on the stage of the Imperial, ace house of the Famous Players' chain, one night of the week, namely Wednesday at 9:30 o'clock. The program, which has been featured on the air for some time as "Memoirs in Music," is comprehensive in scope and includes Lou Snyder's 20-piece orchestra, the 40 Weston Singers, Lawrence Defoe, Marilyn Stewart and Duncan Gillard, with the latter as master of ceremonies, produced and directed by Frank Dennis.

The series, which forms practically the first tieup with commercial sponsorship in actual conjunction with regular screen performances, is being featured by cooperative advertising, a separate newspaper display being used to announce the one-night attraction which runs for 30 minutes, with the volume and flash proportions to provide adequate showmanship.

Radio programs have been conducted in theatres in recent years but these have been in the nature of amateur competitions and quiz contests, some of which have been scheduled at hours when regular performances were not being presented. Another current stunt in Toronto has been the recording of quiz programs on the stage of neighborhood theatres and the presentation of the recorded questioning as a radio feature a day or two later when the theatre obtains a plug on the air.

Secure Greater Income for Maple Leaf Fund Benefit

NEW YORK—A special press preview of "Virginia" has been arranged by Paramount for the Paramount Theatre here on Monday, January 27, preceding by a day the premiere, proceeds of which will go to the Maple Leaf Fund, national Canadian organization for British war relief.

The great demand for tickets to the premiere impelled Paramount to schedule the press preview, thus releasing for sale a large block of tickets.

Among notables who will attend the premiere Tuesday are Loring Christie, Canadian minister to the United States and Mrs. Christie, and the British consul at New York, Godfrey Haggard.

The program to precede the picture includes Raymond Massey as master of ceremonies; Glenn Miller and his Orchestra; a talk by Victor Guggin, president of the Maple Leaf Fund, and a telephone message to the audience from Madeleine Carroll, co-star with Fred MacMurray in "Virginia," from Hollywood.

Terence O'Neill Is Named Victoria York Manager

VICTORIA—Terence O'Neill has been appointed manager of the York Theatre which is operated by the David Theatres, Ltd., of Vancouver. O'Neill was formerly a free lance newspaper writer and at one time on the staff of the Toronto Star. He also is an experienced radio announcer.

MONTREAL

NEWSREEL and radio operators from all over America will attend the great Victory Mass which Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec has arranged to be held in the historic church of Notre Dame in Montreal, February 9. A great gathering of notables will attend and special facilities will be given the cameramen to picture the historic ceremony.

Slowly recovering from Quebec's long Christmas and New Year's holiday which extends to January 6, exhibitors are beginning to find their way to Filmrow again. M. Rozon of the Royal, Hudson, and George Champagne of the Roxy and Auditorium, Shawinigan Falls, were amongst the earliest to show up.

"Un Royaume du Cheval," French version of "Kingdom for a Horse," Canadian Cameo short produced by Associated Screen Studios, is playing at the Cinema de Paris . . . Montreal branch of the National Film Society is holding its evening showings weekly on Thursdays instead of Fridays until the end of February . . . United Amusement is leading in the Filmrow Bowling League race, with Regal, second, and Paramount, third.

Sympathy is expressed with Ben E. Norrish, president of Associated Screen News, on the death of his sister-in-law, Miss Lillian A. Cowan, who served overseas as a nurse in the first Great War . . . Roy Tash, news cameraman of Associated Screen News, filmed a ski picture at Huntsville, Ont., and then pictured the manufacture of airway beacons near Toronto for the National Film Board.

Arthur L. Brown, assistant general sales manager of the Northern Electric Company, has returned from a business trip to the west during which he took charge of the office at Vancouver, B. C., until the recovery of T. C. Clarke, district manager, from an illness. Brown's return was suitably celebrated at an informal luncheon given by the vice-president, M. K. Pike, at the Mount Stephen Club of which Brown is president.

J. W. Campbell, newsreel editor, and Ross Beesley, cameraman of Associated Screen News, were in Ottawa filming a story of "Science at War" as represented in the wartime work of the National Research Laboratories. Beesley also covered preparations for the National War Savings Campaign, and then swung eastward to get additional war slants for the newsreels.

"The Thief of Bagdad" completed four weeks at the Orpheum . . . Change of ownership of the Amherst is marked by the omission of that theatre from the column of announcements run by the United Amusement Corporation chain. The Amherst runs a separate ad in the evening papers . . . Mayfair is staging amateurs Friday nights.

Parisian films showing in Montreal theatres include "Le Charme de la Boheme" and "Une Femme par Interim" at the Dominion; "Le Pere Lebonnard" and "Le Fantome" at the Cartier; "Le Maitre de Forges" and "Monsieur Sans-Gene" at the Maisonneuve; "Coup de Bourse" and "Les Fregates du Ciel" at the Chateau.

EDMONTON

MANAGERSHIP of the Dreamland, one of the Entwisle chain, has been taken over by Clarence Entwisle, former manager of the Princess. F. Tickell, formerly assistant manager of the Capitol in Calgary, has been appointed manager of the Princess.

Regular weekly meeting of the Theatre Managers' Ass'n held recently, saw the enrollment of all Edmonton managers. Last to become members of the association were W. Wilson jr., manager of the Roxy and Garneau, and W. Shaker, manager of the Avenue.

Leo Maher and W. Yuill of the Majestic and Monarch, Medicine Hat, were recent visitors. While here, they visited the Garneau in order to obtain first-hand information on the most up-to-date theatre equipment before launching an extensive program of alterations to the two Medicine Hat houses . . . Harry Phillips, Abe Feinstein and J. Cohen, all of Calgary, were recent visitors.

As a former outpost, long known in the history of the Hudson's Bay Co., great interest is being shown in the premiere of Paul Muni's latest, "Hudson's Bay," which opened at the Capitol last week, states Manager Walter Wilson.

W. Shaker of the Avenue is receiving congratulations on the recent birth of a daughter.

Silver's Death Occasions Revamp for Colonial

TORONTO—A business trip was made to Toronto by Budd Rogers, general manager of Alliance Films Corp., New York, following the sudden death in that city of Boris W. Silver, president of Colonial Pictures, Ltd., Canadian distributing agency for Alliance and British pictures.

The business is being continued, it has been announced, but a reorganization is said to be necessary, this being the reason for the visit of Rogers who has an interest in the enterprise, for which a new head will have to be appointed.

Gift Devotees Stress British-Made Angle

TORONTO—A number of exhibitors who have engaged in the practice of giving merchandise as patronage builders have played up a British angle in connection with giveaways, since the Dominion government placed an embargo on the import of dishes, cutlery, jewelry and other articles from other than "sterling countries" which had been used for premiums. Products from Britain are now being emphasized.

"Britain Delivers the Goods," "Help Win the War," "Made in England" and "Buy British" are the slogans which are being used by Manager Howard Elliott of the Beverly, a Toronto neighborhood house, for his giveaways which are dishes from Great Britain.

"London Under Fire" to The Dominion Shortly

TORONTO—Warner will shortly release "London Under Fire" in Canada as a sequel to "London Can Take It," and the exchange will again turn over the total rental proceeds to the British War Relief Fund. In the case of the previous picture, which was produced under official auspices, the distributing company in the Dominion added a contribution of 25 per cent to the rentals and it is expected that the total gross on "London Can Take It" for the whole continent will be in excess of £15,000, of which £6,000 has already been paid as a first installment.

Grand Forks Exhibitor Acquires Alta. House

GRAND FORKS, B. C.—Mr. Tillie, exhibitor here, has entered the prairie territory by securing control of the Opera House at Pincher Creek. When alterations are completed the name of the Alberta house will be changed to the Fox.

In the Turner Valley oil fields district, the Sharp Circuit has acquired the Diamond Hall at Black Diamond. It will be opened as a motion picture theatre under the management of Harry Patten.

VANCOUVER

BEN PLOTTEL of Empire Universal is going around these days with a large smile on his face, the reason being the many holdovers that his pictures are enjoying . . . Nat Levant of Columbia and Sam Nagler of UA enjoying the pleasures of buying new cars . . . G. G. Baiss of the Capitol Theatre, Duncan, ill in bed with influenza.

O. R. Hanson, president, and Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire Universal Films, visiting Vancouver. This is Hanson's first visit to the city in a good many years and both he and Mrs. Hanson, who is accompanying him, are thoroughly enjoying the mild weather.

Ralph Calladine of the Plaza, Victoria, is very busy these days arranging the many details of the new home he is building on Cadboro Bay Rd. . . . Les Allen announces that Terrance O'Neill has taken over the management of his York Theatre in Victoria.

Building has been started on one of the largest drydocks in Canada at Esquimalt and when completed should increase the number of naval men stationed at that base . . . Jim Haworth of Rio Ladysmith reports record business for his engagement of "It's in the Air" . . . Ray Tarling of the Film Exchange Tennis Team was selected to play in the Burnaby league and managed to win the first game for that team.

Sympathy to Gordon Kerr, whose father died Monday, January 13.

SASK'WAN

THE Strand, Prince Albert, missed a Monday's business recently due to the non-arrival of the feature picture, "Second Chorus." Delay was due to bad weather for flying in the south of the province . . . Credit for buying the first 1941 city business license in North Battleford went to the Empress Theatre.

Lenore Williams, secretary of the Capitol, Regina, is back on the job after an extended vacation in British Columbia. During her absence she was relieved by Nora Runciman . . . Marjorie Hawe, treasurer at the Met, Regina, is out with the measles.

Friends in Regina were glad to hear that Fred W. Tickell, for many years on the staff of the Capitol, Calgary, had left his position as assistant manager to take over managerial duties at the Princess, Edmonton. Tickell spent some weeks in Regina last fall managing the Capitol in the absence of Larry Graburn. Bert H. Wiber has been promoted from floor manager to assistant manager at the Capitol, Calgary.

Jack Reid, United Artists, Winnipeg, was a recent visitor in Regina, paving the way for "The Thief of Bagdad," due at the Rex soon. During his stay, he received a letter from Bernice Bailey, 18-year-old daughter of Marsh Bailey, manager of the Strand, Bryden, Ont., telling him that she had just become a licensed apprentice projectionist.

Film Board Completes "People of Canada"

MONTREAL—The National Film Board's latest motion picture "People of Canada" was rushed to completion this week by Associated Screen Studios for its Canadian premiere at Ottawa.

One of the most ambitious undertakings to be handled for Canada's Film Board, the picture has been nine months in the making. It was directed by Gordon Sparling, production chief for Associated Screen Studios, and tells the story of the variety of racial strains making up the nationhood of Canada.

John Grierson, Canada's film commissioner, said that while the film contains no mention of the war, he felt it was the best war picture produced so far. "It is a film," Grierson said, "that shows the contribution of these people, and at the same time shows their skill, persistence and culture. It also brings out the blessing of religious and racial tolerance."

Interest-Free Income Tax Payments Are Now Due

MONTREAL—To take advantage of interest-free installment payments of income taxes, payments must commence this month, the minister of national revenue is informing theatre audiences.

Hon. Colin Gibson, minister of revenue, spoke on this subject before the news camera of an Associated Screen News crew. The interview is now being carried by all major newsreels. The minister explains that while Dominion income taxes are higher, the government is easing the burden by making provision for payment in instalments.

"Land of Liberty" Is A Publicity Magnet

The campaign put on for the run of "Land of Liberty" at the Rialto, Williamsport, Pa., is viewed as the most comprehensive on the picture to date. As a pattern of what might be done elsewhere, BOXOFFICE, therefore, publishes the detail.

Exhibitors are reminded that this is the attraction which is being released by M-G-M with the net proceeds to go to war emergency relief as the organized industry's contribution.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—The campaign here for "Land of Liberty" took the school angle as the initial selling point.

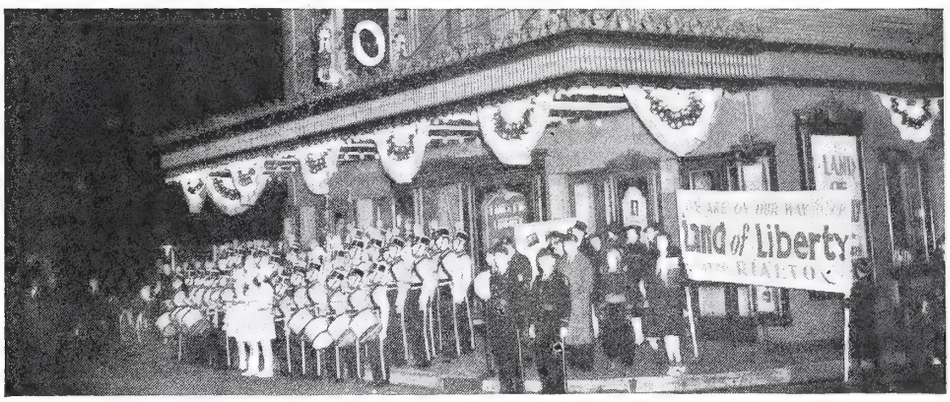
This was based on the theory the film is a graphic portrayal of memorable events in the progress of this country which students have either read or are reading about. Dr. A. M. Weaver, school superintendent, called a meeting of all principals and urged them to give the engagement every possible support in the school assemblies, classrooms, on bulletin boards, etc. Students were dismissed earlier than usual during the three-day engagement to enable them to attend matinees.

The next most important point stressed in the campaign was cooperation with churches. Every clergyman received an invitation to a private, advance screening. It was well attended and many openly expressed their approval of the film. Timed to coincide with the screening, these clergymen received special letters from the Hays office in New York enlisting their support. The result was that the film and theatre were mentioned on numerous pulpits during Sunday sermons.

Message to Women

Church and religious cooperation was heightened through contact with the Knights of Columbus, which passed a resolution endorsing the film, as did the YMCA and the YWCA.

While it was still undetermined at the time of the engagement as to just what charities would share in the profits, the management was able to secure a strong testimonial from the local head of the American Red Cross. This was printed in newspapers as "A Message to the Women of Williamsport." Permission to use this endorsement was granted in a telephonic message with the national headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington.



A heavy barrage of correspondence emanating from the MPPDA was important. The association sent letters to leaders in public and civic life, city officials, leading clubwomen, and ministers and, through MPPDA intervention, letters were also sent out from headquarters of the Legion of Decency, Boy Scouts, Boys' Club of America, Lions International, American Legion, etc., to units of their organizations here.

Normally there is an ironclad rule on Williamsport newspapers not to give any publicity to theatres. However, because of the charity nature of the film, an exception was made and both papers offered exceptional cooperation. As soon as the management secured official proclamations from the government and mayor establishing "Land of Liberty" Days, both were printed by the papers, which, additionally, had their city editors attend the opening night and write reviews.

Public Officials Cooperate

Cooperation was extended by every public official contacted, whether in a state, city or town capacity. Mayor Leo C. Williamson not only attended the private screening but agreed to lend his name in any way possible that would help publicize the film. His first official act was to write a statement of thanks for the screening to the theatre manager. This letter carried the playdates, sincere praise of the film and congratulations for bringing the world premiere here. His proclamation of "Land of Liberty" Days, the first he had issued in connection with a film, as well as his letter of praise were picked up by the newspapers. He also helped by speaking of the engagement at meetings and social functions he attended prior to the opening.

The opening night was designated American Legion Night and was so advertised. The organization's Junior Drum and Bugle Corps, consisting of 50 members and three girl drum majors, marched through the streets opening night carrying banners and proceeded to the theatre. Here they held a short concert in front of the house. They then proceeded down aisles of the theatre to the stage, where a Color Guard ceremony was held. A mailing list to 500 members announcing the event was used over the signature of the unit commander.

With Fanfare—

A brief concert is put on in front of the Rialto in Williamsport, Pa., by the Junior Drum and Bugle Corps of the American Legion. The occasion was the opening night's show of "Land of Liberty," designated American Legion Night. To the side are the Legion's girl drum majors in a Color Guard ceremony that was part of a stage presentation.

Capital Responds to "Land of Liberty"

WASHINGTON—Congressional leaders, British War Relief agencies and capital reviewers combined their enthusiasm to make the premiere of "Land of Liberty" here an outstanding publicity and boxoffice success. The designation of $50,000 derived from the release of the picture for British air raid victims, struck a responsive chord, and legislators and war relief agencies were active in supporting the engagement.

Highlights of Dan Terrell's campaign for the Columbia Theatre engagement follow: An advance screening for representatives of 16 educational, civic and patriotic organizations. Later, bundles of cards were handed out, with this copy: "I have just seen 'Land of Liberty,' a motion picture which deserves our full support, and take this means of letting you know that it opens its Washington engagement next Thursday." The message also included other facts about the film.

For the first time, the local public school system permitted the hanging of placards in every school building in the District of Columbia. In addition, 10,000 heralds were distributed in schools and special material was sent to all high school newspaper editors.

Special postcards were imprinted and distributed at the end of each performance to those wishing to advise friends about the picture. The Boy Scouts included a special announcement on the picture in their mimeographed bulletin which goes to every troop in the city. Announcements also were made at the weekly meetings of Rotary, Kiwanis and other local civic organizations.

Arrange Three-Way Tie For Sheridan's Latest

HOLLYWOOD—A three-way tie involving RCA-Victor, Warner Bros., and Chesterfield, resulted in exploitation of "Honeymoon for Three," starring George Brent and Ann Sheridan, in 2,000 daily papers and 300 weeklies, beginning January 20. By arrangement with Chesterfield, a half-page ad ran in the 2,000 dailies featuring a picture of Miss Sheridan standing by an RCA-Victor radio, and a credit line for "Honeymoon for Three." In addition, cutouts of Miss Sheridan, mentioning "Honeymoon for Three," will be displayed by several thousand Victor dealers.

Deliver the Tunes—

Some of the 20 girls David Edwards of the Rialto, Salt Lake City, outfitted with portable radios which were tuned in to a special "No No, Nanette" broadcast. Visiting downtown stores, the girls distributed candy novelties plugging the picture, while shoppers listened to the Nanette tunes.

"Kitty" on Shopping Tour To Sell Film in Dayton

DAYTON, OHIO—A "White Collar Girl" shopping tour, sponsored by a local paper, featured the campaign by Manager Bill Clark of the Keith here for "Kitty Foyle."

A girl dressed as Kitty visited stores and public places at specified times. People recognizing her and tapping her on the shoulder with certain editions of the co-operating newspaper received passes for the picture.

The stunt was started a week in advance of opening with co-op merchant ads and story breaks.

Ryan on Ushers

CHICAGO—The problem of selecting and training ushers is discussed by Charles H. Ryan in a recent bulletin which went to Warner theatre managers. It's Ryan from now on, but to the trade.

"In selecting ushers, see that they have a good education, speak properly and have good breeding. They should be coached on how to handle cranky patrons, remembering that your customer is, after all, their employer and pays their salary, and is therefore entitled to every consideration that they can give them.

"In addressing patrons, the usher should say 'How far down, please?' and to patrons whom he disturbs on the aisle or obstructs their vision of the screen, say 'Pardon please.'

"In most theatres in handling crowds, ropes are an important part of theatre equipment. Everybody on the staff must be particularly cheerful when the house is full and people are standing in the rear and in the lobby. The manager, his assistant and chief of service should wear a broad smile, helping create 'Good Will' and saying pleasant things to those standing so that the standees will not become impatient.

"Patrons should never be spoken to crossly at any time, particularly in a crowd. The reason for this is that too many people hear you and take sides—not with you, but with the patron. Handling crowds is difficult and courteous attention is everything in business today.

"Have the chief of service bring to your attention any remarks overheard in the lobby in regard to the likes or dislikes of your program and house service. At your weekly service staff meeting, give a resume of the mistakes made during the week, such as poor handling of crowds, employes saying the wrong thing at patron, neglecting to say, 'Thank you,' 'This way, please' or selling single seats.

"Call attention sharply to the fact that they must hustle and use their utmost efforts to keep all seats filled. You are protecting the theatre's investment when you give your personal attention to this item."

(March of Time, Vol. 6, No. 7)

Timely. A composite picture, not necessarily embodying all the contributing elements with which the man in the street is continually buffeted, emerges from the chambers of the editors of March of Time in the first issue of the new year. March of Time's connections with the Canadian Film Commissioner are good because they have again obtained interesting footage filmed by German army cameramen which show life in France under the heel of the Nazi boot and a few of Hitler's military shenanigans—the 100-mile gun which looks like a phoney. Additionally, the local footage offers a picture of the lineup in the isolationism-interventionism battle which is brewing in Washington, the Gallup poll of public opinion on aid to Britain, and a few main streeters who voice their opinions on the last mentioned issue. It is as timely as last week's headlines and as current as the weekend review of the news. "Uncle Sam—Non Belligerent" takes place as a revelation of what is happening at the moment here and abroad.

All's Well

Paramount (Gabby Cartoon) 7 Mins.

Amusing. Most audiences should get a kick out of Gabby attempting to diaper a baby. While overdone, it's probably not much out of line with what usually goes on when it comes time for an infant's change of dress. In this instance, the little one, somewhat precocious for its age, gives Gabby a severe beating before the effort is accomplished.

Unusual Crafts

Columbia (Cinecolor) 9 Mins.

Interesting. The arts and crafts of the inhabitants of the Scilly Islands off the coast of England are offered here. The folks makes various objects from stone for jewelry, model ships and the like.

U. S. Naval Academy

Columbia (Washington Parade) 10 Mins.

Good program filler. Annapolis, the naval academy and the midshipmen are smartly filmed here. It shows the boys at their studies, making muscles, parading and eventually being assigned to the fleet.

Take It Or Leave It, No. 2

Columbia 11 Mins.

Fair. Bob Hawk gets four people, from all indications carefully picked and rehearsed, up on the stage of a theatre and pops questions at them about crime, languages, etiquette and sound. One makes off with $64. Where they like this sort of thing, it should go over.

Ali, the Giant Killer

Columbia (World of Sports) 10½ Mins.

Average. Ali Baba, a Turkish wrestler, and Hardboiled Haggerty, a native grunt and groaner, have it out in the ring. The Turk is a little guy, the American over six feet. It is a case of David and Goliath. After the first hundred feet, it becomes tiresome.

Columbia 10 Mins.

Usual stuff. The Invisible Man attends a party at the Hollywood Pirate's Den where Bob Hope and his radio troupe, plus Harry Ritz and Andrea Leeds are present and go through their shenanigans. Jerry Colonna does his familiar double talk poem routine.

The New Glamour Girl

"RADIO-TELEVISION on 15 by 20 Foot Screen Called Epochal" went that headline two weeks ago. It was not designed to frighten. And the story, definitely, was not blown up beyond its worth. In fact, it climaxed a series of yarns which BOXOFFICE had been reporting in the last few weeks based on demonstrations arriving in one lump.

The first startler was a coaxial cable enterprise on the part of Columbia Broadcasting System to show how, in a handful of months, it had advanced experimentations in full-color television to a point where whatever wonderments may have prevailed over the black and white kind faded into complete obscurity. No doubt you may have read the occasion then had two receiving sets flanking each other. Over each came the same demonstration and, while the small, telecast images were identical, of course, the similarity in eye values ended there. The difference was marked to a degree which induced the impression, if not an irrevocably final conclusion, that television in black and white might be outmoded before actually getting under way.

The current startler deals with the headline reference at the top of the column and a bit of RCA wizardry which picked up scenes at Camp Upton sixty-eight miles from New York and others over a 102-mile circuit and televised them on a theatre-size screen. The significant point here is that television through the air and without dependence upon coaxial cables, or wires between point of transmission and point of reproduction, is a fact.

This briefest sort of account tends to reduce the situation to a more simple statement than the facts themselves allow. It is quite essential to observe all television continues in its experimental stages; that, aside from technical developments and further perfections, there is the economic side which, clearly enough, means ways of absorbing investment and conveying television to the market place.

She Bears Watching

TIME was when activity in television was surrounded by an aura of mystery and much uncertainty. No one quite knew what the gain was, although widespread was the general realization the various experimenting leaders were hard at it. Even now, it is difficult to know exactly whether current progress, coming at one time, merely happened that way or was designed that way to indirectly serve notice the time is close.

What do these events suggest insofar as the film industry is concerned? They might suggest many things. It seems on the conservative side to assume television will excite a vast public interest if and when the invention can become a nation-wide factor. Whether this will be, or indeed can be, in terms of one program televised to the entire country or whether in terms of the same program originating simultaneously in a series of telecasting centers is an engineering problem, not one this column presumes to answer.

No matter how it comes, when it does, likewise does it seem on the conservative side to predict a powerful competitive attraction for motion pictures is on the way. Casually prevails the vague realization here is something about which something ought to be done. Paramount holds an interest in Dumont and RKO is tied structurally to RCA, but beyond that this entire business has no known working agreements or understandings with television groups, nor has it sought any.

It became painfully apparent this is a state of affairs requiring attention, not the frenzied attention which accompanied the onrush of talking pictures after they had arrived, but a planned and plotted attention prior to the event and as far ahead of it as might be possible and feasible. This industry was taken for one beautiful ride in assorted sound-proofing mish-mosh at the studios and on interchangeability, as well as on price, in theatre sound reproducers; it could very easily face an identical ride in television.

Courtship Time

HOWEVER, this department, to its honest discredit, has no specific proposals to advance. It has no idea whatsoever as to the willingness or otherwise on the part of television interests to effect an arrangement with the film business, but it does know this should not rule off the attempt.

The industry has the talent which many believe television, if and when, will need. But, assuming this will not be so, there remains an important function for those in this business to undertake on behalf of their own interests.

For, if television is not here now, it will be and in order would appear to be another courtship. Film may not win the girl, but they should try. Television may grow up into one helluva glamour girl.

AFTER $27,629,556, NEW HIGH, IN TRUST ACTIONS VS. MAJORS

Additional Twenty Cases Disposed Of; 58 Now Pending in Courts

NEW YORK—A record sum of $27,629,556 damages is sought from major distributors in 58 pending anti-trust suits. This is exclusive of 20 cases that have been disposed of and which sought an additional $1,637,750 damages since February, 1940.

Of the 58 cases still alive, 46 seek monetary satisfaction, some with coupled demands for injunctions of one form or other. The other 12 make no demands whatsoever for money, seeking injunctive relief only. The list includes two actions filed last month and represents authoritative information up to and including January 31, 1941.

It reveals 23 suits were filed during 1940, as compared with 33 docketed in the preceding 12-month period. While there was a noticeable reduction in private actions last year, the figure is still well ahead of the 11 filed in 1938. The government, which filed three regional anti-trust actions against Schine, Crescent and Griffith in 1939, did not move against any circuits last year.

The present crop compares with 58 suits, seeking $23,904,431 pending in February, 1940. This was exclusive of 26 cases, seeking $4,143,541, that were disposed of in the 12-month period prior to last February. Of the 26 cases settled, only 14 sought monetary damages.

Of the pending litigation, the government's New York equity action still open against Columbia, UA and Universal is probably the most important from an industry point of view. The same undoubtedly also is true of the department of justice suits against Schine, Crescent and Griffith, although settlements are being attempted in two cases, with Crescent not yet being reached.

Big Claim by Momand

The most important private action pending, if only from a monetary consideration, is that of A. B. Momand of Shawnee, Okla., which in three separate petitions, the earliest dating from June, 1937, seeks damages aggregating $9,636,631.

Of the cases disposed of in the past year, the government's criminal contempt proceedings against Balaban & Katz in Chicago and Fox West Coast in California, claiming violations of consent decrees were outstanding. Runner up was affirmation of a decision in favor of the majors in the significant Westway case in Baltimore, involving clearance.

From a standpoint of money involved, dismissal of the $876,600 suit brought in Indianapolis by Apollo against Warner and the other majors last June ranks first. Other settlements affected during the year, either for want of prosecution, dismissal by the courts, monetary consideration or compromise of demands, include:

Earl Whittaker against Vitagraph, four other majors and competitive operators in Utah; New Haymarket against B&K in Chicago; Peck against Paramount in Georgia; Linden against Vitagraph in Maryland; K-M-K against Miller in Chicago; Odom against Paramount in Atlanta; Rosewood against Silverman in Chicago; Byers against Murphy in Roanoke; Commonwealth against Colonial in Boston; Smith against M-G-M in Georgia; Gittone against Warner in Philadelphia; Aetna Amusement against Maine & New Hampshire in Boston; William and Elsie Haas Littlejohn against C. E. Huish in Salt Lake City; Schwartz & Myers against 20th Century-Fox, Frankfort, Ky.; Pollard against Maine and New Hampshire in Boston.

At a Glance

New York—The anti-trust suit picture, nationwide and in boildown:

As of February, 1939, pending were 36 actions seeking $23,366,081 in damages. This was exclusive of 11 suits seeking $4,263,224 disposed of variously in one year up to that time.

As of February, 1940, pending were 58 actions seeking $23,904,431. This was exclusive of 26 suits seeking $4,143,541 disposed of variously in one year up to that date.

As of February, 1941, pending were 58 suits seeking $27,629,556, or an all-time money high. This too, was exclusive of 20 actions seeking $1,637,750 disposed of variously in one year up to that time.

One Plaintiff Alone Asks $9,636,631; Five Are Settled in Texas

Defense attorneys have filed briefs in the Gary, Ind., action, which may take this case off the calendar.

Five cases against Interstate Circuit in Texas were disposed of during the year. These are not included in the survey because, while the distributors were named as conspirators with the defendant, they were not named parties defendant. The action brought by Dunbar for $54,443 and $5,000 attorney's fees was settled; the complaint filed by Paul Scott seeking damages of $315,000, plus an injunction, was to be reached for trial about March, 1940, but was settled before trial; the suit filed by H. N. Jorgensen for $35,556 was tried last month, resulting in a judgment of $1,500 treble damages for the plaintiff, and defendants will move to set aside the verdict; the Kirchheimer action for $16,344 was settled last month, and the R. Z. Glass action for $68,443 was also tried last month resulting in a verdict for the defendants.

Of the cases instituted in the past 12 months, that filed in Los Angeles by Criterion against the MPPDA and other defendants for $1,500,000 damages ranks topmost from a monetary viewpoint. The eight majors as well as Will H. Hays, Joseph I. Breen and Samuel Goldwyn are named. It is noteworthy that a practice seldom pursued in the filing of anti-trust cases in the past—the naming of the MPPDA as co-defendants—has taken on new life. Of the suits started since Janu-

Changes in "This Thing" Not Likely, Despite Legion Ban

HOLLYWOOD—Unofficial spokesmen for Columbia regard it as very unlikely any effort will be made to re-edit "This Thing Called Love" in an effort to have the film removed from the "C," or "condemned" classification imposed upon it by the National Legion of Decency. This viewpoint traces to the fact the picture has played widely in key runs and is heavily sold.

Music Hall Opening on Schedule, Sans Change

NEW YORK—Despite pressure presumably focalizing from sources affiliated with, or close to, the National Legion of Decency in Brooklyn, "This Thing Called Love" opened on schedule at the Music Hall, Thursday.

Columbia has on hand a number of letters from various organizations, the communications having been mailed from Brooklyn and registering their protests in what is understood to be an identical vein which suggests they are following a general line of predetermined attack.

When the Legion first saw "This Thing Called Love," it placed it in the "B" group, or suitable for adults. It is understood that, when the attraction began to play first run around the country, a number of Catholic priests filed protest with the Legion, this, in turn, leading to a second review and the current "C" grouping.

Meanwhile, the film has completed approximately 40 key city engagements and now reaches its New York first run late because of prior picture commitments at the Hall. Columbia points out all state censor boards, including New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kansas and Maryland passed the film without deletions, that

BOXOFFICE Barometer for 1941

It's the TOPS in Service to ALL of the Industry!

The splendid informative and interesting editorial content of BAROMETER makes it a "desk" and not a "bookshelf" publication. It has a year-through, almost daily utility value to our entire circulation in every branch of the industry. It is the only annual publication issued by a tradepaper—local or national—which covers the field, being the only annual publication reaching the entire industry and paralleling BOXOFFICE's wide circulation.

Not only does BAROMETER do a thorough job of coverage on product for the past year, but also on the physical phase of the theatre—inside and out. Besides there's a very good look into what is coming for the year ahead.

PUNITIVE DAMAGES ON OLD ILLS OUT UNDER DECREE, SAYS MYERS

Rates Clearance Clause Decree's Most Vital; Criticism Is Mild

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—"The decree offers nothing to the exhibitor who is looking for punitive damages for past injuries. He still has his right of action under the Sherman act. But to the exhibitor seeking a quick and specific remedy, arbitration under the decree may fill the bill."

This is but one of many observations made by Abram F. Myers, Allied's general counsel, over the decree, arbitration, the Sherman act and phases of trade practices affected by each in an article entitled: "Arbitration and the Independent Exhibitor," appearing in Arbitration Journal, published by the American Arbitration Ass'n.

Others who are represented with articles in the publication are James V. Hayes, who was considered the decree expert by the government in drawing up the document's provisions; Austin C. Keough, Paramount's general counsel, and Paul F. Warburg, chairman of the AAA's administrative committee.

Clearance "Most Important"

Myers states the most important of all remedies provided by the decree is that against unreasonable clearance. However, he sees this factor and all others designed to revert to the benefit of the independent exhibitor as depending in large measure "on whether the tribunals function quickly and cheaply. Unless hearings on proceedings under Sections IV, VII and IX can be disposed of quickly, they will be of absolutely no benefit to exhibitors. Delay of even a few weeks would amount to a denial of justice. And unless the costs can be kept within reasonable bounds, exhibitors will not be able to arbitrate at all."

The Allied counsel states "there is reason to believe distributors would rather see the system succeed than to see it fail." He then discusses the "main remedy" sought by the government in its original petition—theatre divorcement—which the decree postpones for three years.

"Upon the conduct of the consenting defendants during the trial period, as evidenced by the records of the arbitration tribunals, depends the ultimate decision of the attorney general whether to stand on the decree as entered or to proceed with the demand for the divestiture of theatres," Myers asserts.

"The more cases filed and the more awards entered against distributors, the worse will the record appear," he adds. "Taking a broad view, it is decidedly to the advantage of the distributors to settle as many claims as possible before proceedings are begun. If, at the end of three years, it should appear that no cases have been filed and no awards have been made, there would be no record on which the attorney general could apply to the court for further relief."

Characterizing the decree as "reasonable and mild—perhaps too mild," Myers contends many of its provisions are complicated and technical.

"They are surrounded by safeguards designed to protect the distributors and the theatre circuits in the enjoyment of their lawful rights as distinguished from their monopolistic privileges. Resort to interpretation will be necessary to ascertain the true meaning of many of these provisions. In clearance cases, arbitrators will require extrinsic aid in determining what is reasonable and what is unreasonable.

"The purpose of the decree to remedy conditions graphically depicted in the government's complaint shines through every line of its verbiage," Myers continues. "Arbitrators both on the local tribunals and on the appeal board in interpreting and applying the decree will give full scope to its remedial purpose. It will be liberally construed in favor of independent exhibitors."

Discussing the effects of some of the awards which arbitration tribunals may make, Myers includes these:

(1) If an exhibitor has had unwanted features or shorts forced on him, the arbitration tribunal may cancel the exhibitor's license so far as the unwanted product is concerned.

(2) If an exhibitor has been denied a run of pictures, and he can qualify under conditions of the decree, the tribunal may order the distributor to offer its pictures to the complaining exhibitor.

(3) If a distributor has sold its product away from an independent exhibitor and to a circuit theatre, and the independent can qualify under the decree, the tribunal can pit the two contending theatres against each other in bargaining for film without regard to circuit buying power. If, in the latter case, its award is not obeyed in good faith, the tribunal may award compensatory damages to the independent exhibitor.

Myers regards the following as among "unique features" of the arbitration system:

(1) The decree provides for the institution of arbitration proceedings by distributors against exhibitors.

(2) Although exhibitors stand to gain by the awards, actually the proceedings have for their main purpose the enforcement of a decree entered in a suit by the government under a public statute.

(3) Controversies can be arbitrated which could not be the subjects of civil actions at law; not, at least, without allegations and proof of combination and conspiracy, which will be unnecessary in proceedings under the decree.

(4) The arbitration tribunals are charged with the duty of deciding certain controversies on abstract principles of

How Clerks Were Chosen

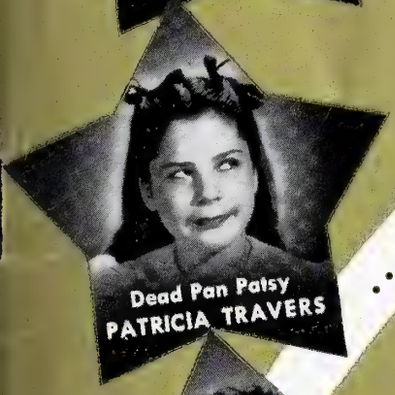
New York—For the first time, Paul Warburg, chairman of the AAA administrative committee, reveals the manner in which the organization selected arbiters for the 31 key city tribunal panels. He explains the process in the "Arbitration Journal," as follows:

"First of all, we are giving priority to men who have served as honor men on our national and special panels for many years. When men are chosen who are not on our panel, they must be sponsored by at least two business organizations in their locality—all of which must agree upon the nominee according to the qualifications we prescribe and send them.

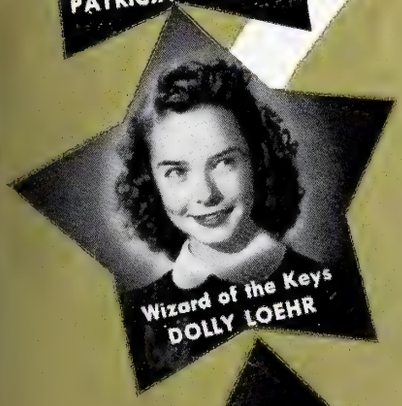
"But no matter from what source men are drawn for the panel, we require the following information: age, citizenship, education, honors and positions; business experience, public or non-profit making positions held or services rendered; law school and date of graduation, bar association membership and field of practice; whether nominee has or has had any connection with the motion picture industry; his previous experience as an arbitrator, other data which has a bearing upon a nominee's qualifications; and lastly, references from at least two organizations acceptable to the administration."

Sees Return of Good Sans Former "Abuse"

New York—In the article he contributes to "Arbitration Journal," Abram F. Myers, Allied's general counsel, known for a subtle wit, buries this dandy: "The Sherman Law giveth as surely as it taketh away."



But immediately preceding this line, Myers is serious, and offers this: "Section XX of the rules of arbitration wisely provides for submission to the tribunals controversies between exhibitors and distributors other than those arising out of the decree itself. This opens the way for the restoration of commercial arbitration in the motion picture business with ample safeguards against a return of the abuses which discredited the former (compulsory arbitration) system.



"It is to be expected that the distributors will hereafter include in their licenses an optional clause which will make use of the arbitration machinery established by the decree. If so, I hope the exhibitors will sign it."

Washington Tribunal Gets First Plaint

BALTIMORE—Declaring the Durkee house, the Ambassador, is not entitled to a seven-day clearance over his Walbrook here, Thomas D. Goldberg of the Walbrook & Hartford theatres has filed the first complaint before an arbitration tribunal. The demand was filed with the Washington board February 7 and will most likely be heard the first week in March.

Over a number of years, according to Goldberg, the Walbrook has participated in a 21-day subsequent clearance following first run, together with similar houses in their respective zones. The Forest, two miles from the Walbrook, and owned by Durkee interests, also operated on the same setup. Not far distant the Gwynn was taken over by Durkee from an independent some time ago.

As soon as Durkee built the Ambassador, an "A" house, a demand for seven days' clearance over the Walbrook was made of all distributors. M-G-M and Paramount declined to accede to the demands, according to Goldberg, these companies purportedly basing their decision on precedent of dealing with the Walbrook over a score of years.

It is said Durkee asked for the clearance because of the Walbrook's admission scale of 10-25-40 cents, while the Ambassador had a 30-cent evening admission. The 40 cent price for the Walbrook applied only for loges.

Durkee has played M-G-M and Paramount "A" films in the Forest, a 25-cent house.

Early this month, Durkee booked "Comrade X" at the Ambassador on practically a day-and-date run with the Walbrook. This was followed with "Northwest Passage" the following week, on the same setup. "Flight Command" has been dated into the Walbrook for February 23-25 and for February 23-26 at the Ambassador.

Goldberg has also bought 20th-Fox and Warner, signatories to the decree, in addition to other product. He did not buy RKO, the fifth decree company. And since he is enjoying a virtual day-and-date policy with the Ambassador and Forest on M-G-M and Paramount product, the complaint filed is against 20th-Fox and Warner which are reported to be giving Durkee the clearance he demanded.

Another feature to be discussed at the arbitration preceeding is the 20th-Fox franchise with Durkee. It does not expire until 1942.

In talking about the case, Goldberg emphasizes the friendly relationship which has existed between him and M-G-M and Paramount. He also points out his theatre is two miles from the Ambassador, yet the Pimlico and Avalon are about a mile away in another direction but do not figure in the clearance angle.

Currently being built opposite the Walbrook by Goldberg is the Hilton, which is expected to be ready soon.

"Pal Joey" to Columbia

NEW YORK—Columbia has bought the film rights to John O'Hara's stage play, "Pal Joey." George Abbott, who produced, will make the film.

—Bachrach

First Over the Line—

So far as is known, the first complaint lodged under the arbitration section of the consent decree was filed by Thomas D. Goldberg, an oldtime fire-eater in exhibitor organizations and representing the Walbrook Amusement Corp., operating the Walbrook and Hartford theatres, Baltimore. Filed with the Washington tribunal, the complaint concerns clearance.

Indep't Supply Men In Goodwill Move

CHICAGO—P. S. Guss of Intermountain Theatre Supply Co. has been named chairman of a committee set up by members of Theatre Equipment Dealers Protective Ass'n to foster goodwill and ethics between manufacturers and dealers. The annual convention was held at the Congress. Arthur Theil of the middle west and John Philbert of the coast also are on the committee.

The consensus among the independent dealers is that there is more activity in new building in the middle west and the south than ever before.

Manufacturers who spoke to the group present assured a steady supply of equipment, barring emergencies brought about by the national defense program, and urged all dealers to stack up on supplies to obviate shortages which might crop up if the defense program seriously cuts into production.

The next meeting is slated for June, the city yet to be decided. Harry Graham of Denver presided as acting chairman. The only officer named, Graham was elected executive secretary.

Among the speakers were E. A. Williford of National Carbon, William Gedris of Ideal Seating, Fred Matthews of Motiograph and Oscar Neu of Neumade Products. The meeting, instead of lasting three days, continued to a fourth.

Schenck Is Called Loew's "Churchill"

NEW YORK—One of the greatest tributes ever paid a film executive was the description given Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M, by David Warfield at the company's stockholder's meeting when he referred to Schenck as "The 'Churchill' of our company."

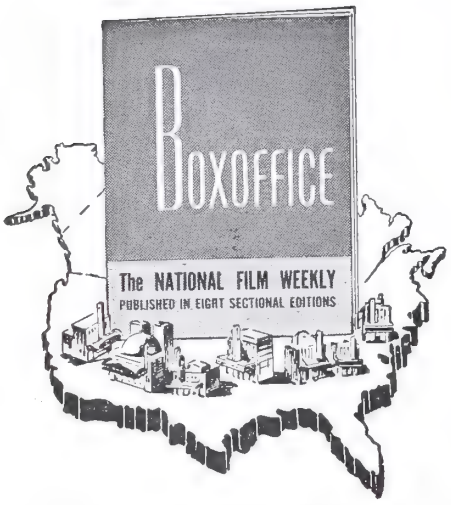
Warfield, who owns a big block of stock and is a director, was sitting in the audience listening to a minority stockholder heap praise on Schenck. He waited until the stockholder finished and without rising shouted across the room, "Mr. Schenck is the Churchill of our company."

Warfield was applauded, following which J. Robert Rubin, chairman of the meeting, introduced him and alluded to the fact he was the star of "The Music Master." The former stage star then became the idol of most of the stockholders who later rushed to shake his hands, and compliment him.

One stockholder, who declined to give his name, started the ball rolling when he got up and out of a clear sky began, "In no small measure the leadership of Mr. Schenck is what keeps Loew's out in front. There is none other as capable or as qualified." This was seconded by Rubin, who said, "He is very able. His leadership is more essential in these times."

Going further, Rubin added, "Everything I own is invested in the company and I am heartily in sympathy with your sentiments."

Joseph Pulvermacher, an attorney who said he represented a substantial amount of stock, then took the floor. "We are very fortunate to have the type of leadership we have in our organization." He then reflected on the past 10 years when times were not so good but the company continued to pay dividends regularly.



George N. Armsby, a director and stockholder, was of the opinion, and so expressed himself, that he would like to see Schenck continue on the job for life rather than for another five years.

Schenck's new five-year contract was voted by an overwhelming majority. All directors were continued for another year. Officers were elected the afternoon following the stockholders' session.

Asked for a picture on the outlook, Rubin asserted "It is very encouraging. South American business is improving and we are hopeful everything will be good in the next year."

3,000,000 See 'GWTW' In New York Area

New York—At M-G-M where statistics frequently reach the stratosphere, or the sub layer of it anyway, they have figured out that "Gone With the Wind" by Tuesday had been seen by 3,000,000 people in the New York area alone. The word came in connection with decision to hold the film for a fourth week at the Capitol which it did on Thursday. Manager Herman Landwehr stated 350,000 had caught the attraction at his theatre thus far. That is, at regular prices.

Expect 10,000 Theatres To Play Defense Shorts

NEW YORK—Ten thousand theatres are expected to join hands in the industry's move to cooperate on national defense through trailers and shorts which will reach them without rental. Certificates of cooperation to a total of between 5,000 and 7,500 already are reported by Harry Brandt, chairman of a special subcommittee, to the theatre division of which Joseph Bernhard of Warner is chairman and E. V. Richards of Saenger Theatres, co-chairman. Working with them are A. H. Blank, Des Moines; Si H. Fabian, Albany; John H. Harris, Pittsburgh; Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA; Sam E. Morris, New York; Charles C. Moskowitz, New York; John J. O'Connor, New York; R. J. O'Donnell, Dallas; Spyros Skouras, New York; Robert B. Wilby, Atlanta, and Nathan Yamins, Fall River, Mass.

In transit are 12 one-minute trailers made by the war department to stimulate recruiting. They will be released three at a clip at three-week intervals through a series of clearing houses, based on exchange centers, which have been set up by William A. Scully, chairman of the distributors' division of the Motion Picture Committee Cooperating for National Defense. George J. Schaefer, RKO president, is chairman of the national coordinating committee and Francis S. Harmon, of the Hays organization, is coordinator. Three hundred prints of each trailer have been struck off. By titles, the series embraces:

"The Infantry," "The Air Corps," "The Armored Force," "The Coast Artillery," "Flying Cadets, No. 1," "Flying Cadets, No. 2," "Flying Cadets, No. 3," "The Field Artillery," "Oversea Commands," "The Signal Corps," "The Medical Department" and "The Quartermaster Corps." Additionally and thus far, at least, "Power for Defense," a 10-minute short, is also available. It was made by the National Defense Advisory Commission and narrates the story of the use of TVA power for defense industries in the southeastern portion of the country.

National Film Carriers, Inc., with approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has volunteered to handle shipments of these and other films sponsored by the committee without charge. Special red, white and blue labels, carrying the shield of the committee, are being forwarded to exchanges to be affixed to all shipments.

Zukor Industry Chairman For Greek War Relief

NEW YORK—Adolph Zukor, functioning for several weeks in that capacity, now emerges officially as chairman of the amusement division of the Greek War Relief Ass'n. Offices have been established in the Paramount Bldg.

On his advisory committee are Will H. Hays, Sidney R. Kent, Joseph Bernhard, W. G. Van Schmus, Martin Quigley and Sam H. Harris. Gradwell L. Sears is chairman of the distributors' division and John H. Harris, Pittsburgh, chairman of the exhibitors' committee. The nation has been cut up into a dozen zones of which prominent theatremen are local chairmen.

This list includes Arch B. Bowles, Fox West Coast, San Francisco; John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusements, Minneapolis; Harry M. Kalmine, Warner theatres, Pittsburgh; M. A. Lightman, Malco Theatres, Memphis; Martin J. Mullin, M. & P. Theatres, Boston; Robert J. O'Donnell, Interstate, Dallas; E. C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest, Kansas City; E. V. Richards, Saenger Theatres, New Orleans; Rick Ricketson, Fox Intermountain, Denver; Jules J. Rubens, Great States Theatres, Chicago; Joseph R. Vogel, Loew's, New York, and Robert B. Wilby, Valatenga Theatres, Atlanta.

Organizational Committee

Additionally, there will be a committee representing exhibitor organizations composed of Harry Brandt, H. A. Cole, E. L. Kuykendall, Abram F. Myers, M. A. Rosenberg, W. A. Steffes and Nathan Yamins.

Leslie E. Thompson, who has handled the Will Rogers drives and for two years hand-running handled the industry's Red Cross drive, will be chairman of this one, and A. P. Waxman, its director. Assisting them will be Jack Connolly, Leonard Goldenson, Paramount, and George P. Skouras, Skouras theatres.

The drive runs from March 25 to 30.

Damages for Old Ills "Out" Under Decree

"reasonableness," with no fixed standards to guide them.

(5) A complaining exhibitor may be awarded a run, or be given a reduction in clearance, at the expense of another exhibitor, without joining the latter as a party; although, of course, the affected exhibitor may intervene.

The article presented by Hayes is a compilation of excerpts from his opening statement before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard at the time the proposed decree was presented to the court and which has previously been reported by BOXOFFICE. The highlight of his statement, it is recalled, was his assertion that "the approach on the part of the defendants filing the consent and on the part of the government, was an endeavor to meet, through the terms of the decree, a solution of the alleged evils and the alleged abuses in the industry, without resorting to the very drastic remedy of divorcement."

Still May Sue

Keough devotes the bulk of his article to a review of the various sections of the decree and the part the AAA will play in administering arbitration. He makes the point at the outset that the decree gives exhibitors certain privileges not otherwise provided by law; namely, the settlement of disputes arising under the document. "However," he states, "the decree does not take away an exhibitor's right to sue where he believes he has been injured either by a violation of law, breach of contract or other alleged wrong."

Observing exhibitors generally are opposed to trade showings and groups of five selling sections of the decree on the ground the new selling system will impose hardships in time consumed and costs increased that will outweigh any good that can possibly come from it, Keough asserts: "It is to be hoped they are mistaken. In any event, the decree can be amended if the experiment does not prove the new system a good thing for all concerned."

The Paramount counsel, after offering numerous "considerations" that played a part among the consenting distributors in promulgating the rules of arbitration, concludes with this:

Imposes New Rules

"To the extent that the decree imposes obligations voluntarily undertaken by the distributors, it imposes upon them new rules of trade conduct. It does not go beyond this. It does not make new law. It does not empower the arbitrators to establish additional trade practices or put additional restraints or limitations upon either the distributors who consented to the decree or exhibitors who arbitrate under it. Economic and social theories are not to be legislated into existence by arbitration."

The AAA's views of how it is going to administer "the most comprehensive system of arbitration ever set up in this country for a single industrial group" is the subject of Warburg's article.

"We want to use the first year to find out whether arbitration is a system which business groups can afford to install and to run practically as a method of self-regulation and as an integral part of their business mechanism," is the way he puts it.

No bottlenecks in settling disputes will be allowed to arise, he states, "for cases will be put on the calendar and settled with the greatest possible speed so no hardships will result either to distributor or producer, or to the public that wants to see a picture."

In citing what he terms the AAA's "own problems" in relation to the administration of film tribunals, Warburg states that hitherto, commercial arbitration proceedings conducted by the AAA "have had behind them centuries of experience and court decisions. This practice is founded upon arbitration law and its legal interpretation, which afford a competent guide. Under the decree, the AAA sets out without any such seaworthy law boat and with no legal compass."

No "Experts" Allowed

One of the strongest arguments in favor of arbitration, he continues, has been the reference of a dispute to experts, a principle strongly adhered to by the AAA in all its practices.

"The decree applies a contrary principle and imposes as a condition of appointment ignorance and lack of experience with the industry. This necessitates the training of arbitrators to become experts in the motion picture industry," is Warburg's conclusion.

Another AAA "handicap" recognized by Warburg is the lack of "advisory committees" which existing tribunals can go to for expert advice on trade practices in various trades and industries. "From such friendly and experienced sources of advice, the new motion picture tribunal is completely divorced as to membership on the board or membership on any of its relevant committees."

He goes further to say the introduction of paid arbitrators, contrary to the AAA's practice of utilizing "honorary services of arbitrators," presents a "challenge to maintain the high prestige and integrity of this new panel."

Still another problem Warburg refers to is the "unprecedented pace" at which arbitration is expanding throughout the country. "In the 31 cities, one in each motion picture exchange-arbitration district, this tribunal will be the only visible center for the convergence of controversies arising in other industrial groups."

"Liberty" in 54 Dates Draws 450,000 Persons

NEW YORK—The first 54 engagements of "Land of Liberty" have played to approximately 450,000 persons. Figures indicate the film is doing "good 25 per cent business," according to an M-G-M spokesman.

Lead in UA Drive

NEW YORK—Charles Stern, Jack Goldhar and Bert Stearn, district managers, are up front in the UA standings after one month of the Arthur W. Kelly drive.

"This Thing" Changes Termed Not Likely

no protests have been received from any exhibitors who thus far have picked up their playdates or from any of the public who thus far have seen the film. Furthermore, headquarters sentiment matches studio sentiment in that changes are probably out of the question because of contractual commitments and fundamentals in the structure of the story itself.

It is also pointed out at Columbia that the film was passed by the National Board of Review, that it was approved in script and in completed form by Joseph I. Breen, production code administrator, and given code seal No. 6,846. The current attitude of the Legion and its latter day "C" grouping therefore, largely sound a mystery note insofar as the producer is concerned.

The Legion's explanatory notation follows:

"The treatment of the plot concentrates throughout the greater portion of the film upon a marriage situation which as screen material is highly suggestive and objectionable. The film, moreover, reflects ideas contrary to the Christian concept of marriage."

Wholesale condemnations are rare in the Legion's career. "Strange Cargo," an M-G-M release, was so rated. It had played a few situations before seen by the LOD. When it arrived in Detroit, the police censor there attacked it. This drew the LOD's attention to it, it is understood, and a condemned rating followed because of a religious, not a sex, approach. The film was finally LOD-approved after M-G-M made revisions which proved acceptable.

LOD headquarters, via Father McClafferty, explain the Legion will be glad to look at "This Thing Called Love" a third time with the idea of again revising the classification provided Columbia, if it is willing, can make satisfactory alterations.

This is what BOXOFFICE thought of the film:

"Like an avalanche, this is slow in starting, but once it attains speed . . . it carries everything before it with a crash and roar of laughs. Being another in the substantially-produced, smartly-lined, impressively cast comedies in which Columbia has been specializing, there is no reason why the film should not follow in the financial footsteps of its illustrious predecessors."

Paramount Net Last Year at $7,617,000

NEW YORK—With net earnings for the fourth quarter ended January 4, 1941, estimated at $2,807,000, Paramount's profits for the 53 weeks to that date amounted to $7,617,000, including $974,000 share of undistributed profits of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries and $98,000 profit on purchase on debentures. Earnings for the year ended December 31, 1939, were $3,874,000, including $1,117,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries. Earnings for the last quarter of 1939 amounted to $1,030,000, not including $245,000, representing the amount of dividends received by the corporation and its consolidated subsidiaries.

Increasing the dividend by five cents, directors declared a 20 cents payment on the common, together with a quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the first preferred and the usual 15 cents on the second preferred, payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 14.

During 1940, the company acquired 10,482 first preferred shares and 22,600 second preferred, of which 2,500 shares and 11,400 shares respectively were purchased in the final quarter. These were acquired at a discount of approximately $203,500 which amount has been credited to special capital surplus. Also acquired during the 12-month period were $925,000 principal amount of 3¼ per cent debentures at a discount of approximately $98,000.

Guaranteed Gets Eleven Condor Productions

NEW YORK—Guaranteed Pictures Co., Inc., has secured world distribution rights to the following Condor Productions formerly distributed by Grand National:

"Captain Calamity," "Devil on Horseback," "We're in the Legion Now," "Love Takes Flight," "Yellow Cargo," "Navy Spy," "Gold Racket," "Bank Alarm," "King of the Sierras," "Trailing Trouble" and "Boots of Destiny." The first three are in color.

Sell "Dugan" Outside in "Wind" and "Story" Jam

NEW YORK—M-G-M has booked six test runs of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" away from the regular first-run accounts because the latter are tied up with "Gone With the Wind" and "The Philadelphia Story." The spots are Charlottesville, Va., Charleston, West Va., Youngstown, Ohio, Elmira, N. Y., Memphis and Williamsport, Pa.

This Is De Sylva—

New executive producer at Paramount succeeding William Le Baron. B. G. "Buddy" De Sylva went from De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, song publishers, to production via Fox and Universal. In between were stage plays in New York where he can boast three current hits—"Louisiana Purchase," "Du Barry Was a Lady" and "Panama Hattie." Finishing up at Paramount under his aegis is "Caught in the Draft," co-starring Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour.

Flashes From the News Front

WB Wins "Spy" Suit

NEW YORK—Katherine Moog is not entitled to damages in connection with Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," a federal court jury ruled here in her suit for $75,000. She charged that the film libeled her.

Largest Stock Month

WASHINGTON—Rolling up the largest total of film stock deals ever reported to the SEC for one month, officers and directors of film companies and large holders of film securities moved 155,000 shares. Atlas Corp. alone acquired 140,000 RKO common and preferred.

Yorke Rejoins 20th-Fox

LOS ANGELES—Gabe Yorke, recently handling special exploitation on "Cheers for Miss Bishop" and on "Land of Liberty," has rejoined 20th-Fox as western divisional promotion manager. His headquarters will be here.

Would Legalize Beano

CONCORD, N. H.—A bill to legalize Beano, with a 50 per cent tax on the prizes, has been introduced in the state legislature. Bank Night was cleared of anti-lottery charges in the first such test case in the country.

Near-Epidemic in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD—Roland R. Cross, state health director, says cases of measles and scarlet fever are approaching epidemic proportions.

Sues Yamins for $10,650

BOSTON—Suits for collection of Bank Night royalties allegedly due Roy E. Heffner as assignee of Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., have been filed in Taunton superior court against Nathan Yamins of the Strand and Park at Fall River. Heffner asks a total of $10,650.

Defense Questionnaire

COLUMBUS—The ITO of Ohio is asking exhibitors for data on admission prices charged prior to July 1, 1940, and those charged today. The figures are to be used when and if the federal government seeks to lower the ticket tax exemption from 20 cents.

Operate Cleveland House

CLEVELAND—Harry Brandt, New York ITOA president, and Louis and Marty Levine have formed a company to operate the Lake Theatre here, recently leased from Warner.

On Individual Basis

MINNEAPOLIS—Acting individually, independent exhibitors are demanding film rental reductions. Northwest Allied recently urged exchanges to grant adjustments. Distributors are holding out against immediate cuts.

DES MOINES—A bill has been introduced in the legislature to tax exchanges $1,000 per year for a license, plus $1 per reel for films, including newsreels and shorts, brought into the state.

Nat'l Theatre Supply In Six-Day Meeting

NEW YORK—Internal problems and a discussion by manufacturers of their product highlighted the six-day meeting of 29 National Theatre Supply branch managers at the Belmont Plaza Hotel. Walter E. Green, president, wielded the gavel and Oscar S. Oldknow, vice-president, western and southern division manager, acted as vice-chairman.

On Wednesday afternoon the managers visited the Alexander Smith factory and on Saturday visited the Broadway Theatre where the company's new E-7 projector is in operation.

Among the manufacturers who spoke were Herbert Griffin and Arthur Meyer of International Projector, Cy Dash of Hertner Electric Co., W. W. Irwin of Irwin Seating, J. E. Macauley of Macauley Mfg., J. A. Scheick of Bausch-Lomb Optical Co., H. B. Myrtle and H. A. Olson of General Electric, H. E. Barth, vice-president of American Blower Corp., E. Wagner of Wagner Signs, J. S. Mill of Rowe Mfg. Co., J. P. Travis of Universal Building Products and E. A. Williford of National Carbon.

"U" Parent Shows Loss

NEW YORK—Universal Corp., on last November 2, had a deficit of $553,039 despite the fact its principal subsidiary, Universal Pictures, showed a 53-week net profit of $2,232,805, it is revealed in the company's annual report.

"U" Hammers Away On Star Lineups

CHICAGO—Definitely listing 23 stellar vehicles for 1941-42, an analysis of Universal's program makes it clear the company is driving harder than ever in the direction of personalities and stars.

Of the 47 features plotted for the new season, as reported exclusively in BOXOFFICE last week, William A. Scully, general sales manager, divulged detail on 36 as the three-day convention drew to a close at the Blackstone Monday, although in some instances titles were not revealed.

As far as it went:

Deanna Durbin will star in two. Joe Pasternak will produce both. Henry Koster and William A. Seiter will direct one each.

To Film Stage Hit

"Hellzapoppin'," Broadway musical comedy hit with Olsen and Johnson featured. Jules Levey and Mayfair Prod. will make it.

Three from Frank Lloyd Productions, Inc.; no detail.

One starring Irene Dunne. Bruce Manning will produce from his own and Felix Jackson's script.

Charles Laughton in "Almost an Angel." Joe Pasternak will produce and Henry Koster direct.

Boyer-Sullavan Again

Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan in one produced by Bruce Manning.

Margaret Sullavan and Franchot Tone co-starred in one, produced and directed by William A. Seiter.

One starring Carole Lombard.

One starring George Raft, with Carol Bruce and Broderick Crawford featured. Bruce Manning will produce from a script by himself and Jackson.

One starring Loretta Young.

"Hilo Hattie," starring Marlene Dietrich. Joe Pasternak will produce.

Hints Theatres Are Today's "Bottleneck"

Chicago—As a one-time exhibitor—about 20 years or more, in fact—Nate J. Blumberg qualifies as an observer on exhibition and its trends. Said he to the Universal convention here:

"Exhibitors must come to realize that all we can do is make the finest pictures we know how, make them available when they are needed and inject in them that certain something that is called boxoffice appeal. After that, it's the exhibitors' job to make the public come to his theatre to see them. If there is a 'bottleneck' in this business today, it's in the theatre."

One to be produced and directed by Sam Wood.

"Badlands of Dakota" described "as an epic production for which one of the finest casts and directorial combinations of the year is being assembled."

Franchot Tone and Virginia Bruce co-starred in one to be produced and directed by Seiter.

W. C. Fields in "Never Give a Sucker an Even Break," featuring Gloria Jean, Baby Sandy and Butch and Buddy. Eddie Cline will direct.

Laughton, Lombard, Dunne Included

One featuring "a new figure of grotesque horror." It will be billed as "The Wolf Man."

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello in "Ride 'Em Cowboy" and "They're in the Navy Now."

"The Yukon Trail."

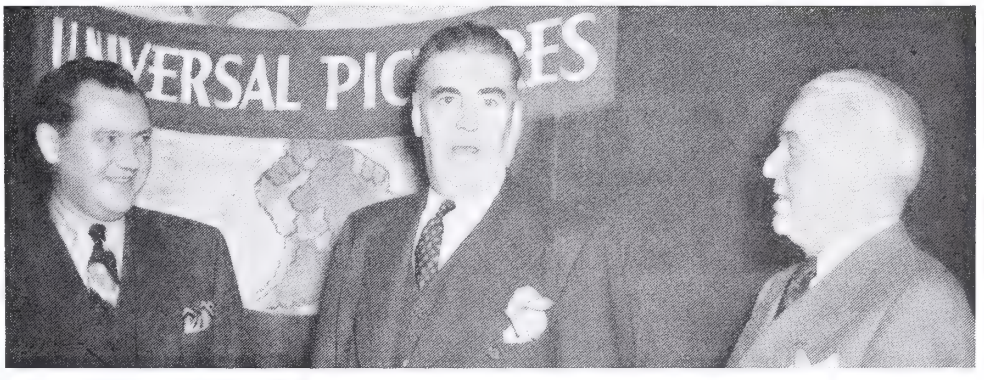
"The Ghost of Frankenstein," a sequel, of course, to "Frankenstein."

"Bombay Clipper," based on exploits of cross-ocean flyers.

"Straight From the Heart," starring Gloria Jean. Islin Auster will be associate producer.

Two starring the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys.

A "Novelty" Film



"Mermaid in Distress," a "novelty idea production" with Vaughn Paul as associate producer.

"The Black Cat," starring Basil Rathbone and featuring Broderick Crawford, Hugh Herbert and Anne Gwynne. This is described as a "wacky horror picture."

Two starring Baby Sandy.

"Captive Wild Woman," featuring "a

Something Amusing Lights Up Faces at Universal's Convention—

Maybe it was merely the cameraman after a pleasant shot of the rostrum. Anyway, here they are at the Blackstone, Chicago. Top row, left to right: Matty Fox, vice-president; Cliff Work, vice-president and studio manager; Nate J. Blumberg, president; William J. Heineman, western sales manager; on his feet, William A. Scully, vice-president and general sales manager; J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board; his face hidden, Joseph H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales, and Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager. Bottom row, in the same order: John E. Joseph, director of advertising and publicity; Adolph Schimel, attorney; B. B. Kreisler, short subject sales manager; Clair Hague, Canadian representative; Paul J. Nathanson, vice-president of Empire-Universal; A. W. Perry, general manager of that company; James J. Jordan, manager contract department, and F. T. Murray, manager of exchange operations. Above, a closer view of the sales phalanx—Heineman, Scully and McCarthy.

Hollywood Selecting Academy Award Recipients

HOLLYWOOD—With the final results, as tabulated by certified public accountants, to be announced at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science's 13th annual Awards banquet February 27, some 12,000 industry workers are now engaged in selecting those they consider most worthy of recognition in the yearly event from among the list of ten films, five actor and five actress performances. Candidates for best production honors are Warner's "All This, and Heaven Too" and "The Letter;" Walter Wanger-UA's "Foreign Correspondent," 20th Century-Fox's "The Grapes of Wrath," Charles Chaplin-UA's "The Great Dictator," RKO Radio's "Kitty Foyle," Argosy-Wanger-UA's "The Long Voyage Home," Metro's "The Philadelphia Story," David O. Selznick-UA's "Rebecca" and Sol Lesser-UA's "Our Town." Best actor performance nominees are Charles Chaplin, "The Great Dictator;" Henry Fonda, "The Grapes of Wrath;" Raymond Massey, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois;" Laurence Olivier, "Rebecca;" James Stewart, "The Philadelphia Story." Best actress: Bette Davis, "The Letter;" Joan Fontaine, "Rebecca;" Katharine Hepburn, "The Philadelphia Story;" Ginger Rogers, "Kitty Foyle;" Martha Scott, "Our Town."

Speculate on Where Goldwyn Will Turn

Settlement of the Samuel Goldwyn-UA lawsuit, with Goldwyn now released from his UA distribution contract, is giving rise to conjectures as to where the producer will henceforth release his films. Only definite information available is that his next will be "The Little Foxes," starring Bette Davis. The fact Miss Davis was borrowed from Warner, in exchange for the loan of Goldwyn's Gary Cooper, strengthens reports that the most likely possibility is Goldwyn will release through that company, plus the fact Goldwyn had once tentatively planned to distribute "The Westerner" through Warner and cancelled out when UA threatened legal action. 20th Century-Fox is mentioned as another candidate, while there have been rumors Goldwyn may even release through UA . . . Four UA units, Edward Small, Sol Lesser, Argosy Corp.-Walter Wanger and David O. Selznick, are planning March starts on new films . . . George W. Weeks is preparing "Tumbledown Ranch in Arizona" as his next "Range Busters" western for Monogram . . . Also for Monogram, Sam Katzman is readying "Murder by Proxy" and an East Side Kids vehicle, "Ghosts of the Night."

Dramatic Films Hold Production Spotlight

Dramatic offerings hold the dominant position in the lineup of product to be made during the next three months. Sharing the second ranking position are westerns and comedies, with musicals bringing up the rear of the procession. Dramatic entries numbered 15, with six each of westerns and comedies and five musicals.

Intensive Exploitation For "The Lady Eve"

Paramount has lined up an intensive field exploitation campaign for "The Lady Eve," covering openings in 30 key cities following its New York premiere February 26 . . . Extensive tieups whereby Western Union offices everywhere will plug "Western Union" have been set by 20th-Fox.

23 "A" Productions On Universal List

CHICAGO—Universal will have 23 "A" pictures, three of which are to be produced by Frank Lloyd and one ("Hellzapoppin'") by Jules Levey, William A. Scully, general sales manager, told BOXOFFICE at the conclusion of the company's four-day convention at the Blackstone. The budget for the feature program will range from $16,000,000 to $18,000,000, he added, this representing the greatest outlay under the new regime.

Discussing sales policy, the general sales manager asserted "it will be flexible and made to fit each and every situation. Universal Pictures is an insurance policy for the exhibitor," he added. In addition to the 47 features, 14 outdoor and action pictures, four serials there will be 13 two-reelers and 43 singles with a special two-reel subject to be made up by the newsreel department, as yet untitled.

"Selling will begin right away," Scully stated. Divisional Heads William J. Heineman and Frank J. A. McCarthy will hold a series of meetings with district, branch and other members of the sales force. On Thursday, Heineman met here with the districts supervised by E. T. Gomersall and Joseph E. Garrison. He returned to New York after the sessions, leaving Sunday for the coast where he will convene in San Francisco with the district handled by A. J. O'Keefe.

On Saturday, McCarthy met with Dave Miller and his mideast branches in Cleveland. On Tuesday next he will be in New Orleans where he will go over details of product and sales policy with Harry Graham and his southern forces.

Discussing the personnel, Scully said, "We are always interested in the right manpower and prefer to promote within the ranks." In this connection he mentioned the promotion of James Frew from salesman to New Orleans branch manager, succeeding W. M. "Snake" Richardson who is now holding down the managerial reins in Atlanta.

new type of star aimed to capture the interest of novelty seekers."

Rudy Vallee starred in "Radio Follies."

Two starring Hugh Herbert. One will be "Hello, Sucker" and the other "Man or Mouse."

"Juke Box Jennie," based on the juke box craze.

The rest of the program will be drawn from these properties:

"Havana Nights," "Moonlight in Hawaii," "You've Got to Have Rhythm," "Men of the Mounted," "Sea Spoilers," "Frisco Kate," "Half Way to Shanghai," "Mississippi Gambler," "Black Fleet," "Terror of the South Seas" and "Flying Cadets."

The seven actioners to star Dick Foran, Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine generally will deal with American adventure along the Mexican border in the days of Spanish, Mexican and American conflict. They will be "Beyond the Pampas," "In Old Monterey," "Viva Pancho," "Sunset on the Sierras," "Dons of San Marcos," "The Fighting Padre" and "The Americanos."

The seven westerns designed for Johnny Mack Brown, with Fuzzy Knight and Nell O'Day featured, are not listed by title.

In serials, Scully stated the company planned two with adult appeal. First will be "Riders of Death Valley," starring Foran, Carrillo, Buck Jones, Charles Bickford, Jeanne Kelly and Lon Chaney jr. It will be in 15 chapters. In 13 episodes, will be "The Gang Busters" and with it goes the possibility it may be remade into a series of featurettes or a full-length feature. "The Sea Raider" and "Head Hunters of Amazon" will be in 12 chapters each.

The 93 reels of shorts, aside from the usual 104 issues of Universal Newsreel, break down into four series:

One special two-reeler "of sufficient timeliness to warrant special exploitation."

Fifteen "Stranger Than Fiction" in one reel each.

Thirteen "Personality" musicals, each in two reels, featuring top-name bands and Hollywood film youngsters.

Thirteen Andy Panda cartoons by Walter Lantz, each a one-reeler in color.

Fifteen "Going Places," each in one reel.

The convention terminated with a banquet. Prior to it, however, Scully told his men Universal again had increased its total of exhibitor accounts, adding another ten per cent to the number which the company had divulged ten months ago in Atlantic City.

J. Cheever Cowdin, board chairman, in an address told the conventioneers Universal's financial position is the strongest in its history, and solidly endorsed the progress made since the Blumberg administration took over three years ago.

Pasternak, although listed, did not make the meetings, but Milton H. Feld, another associate producer, did. Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel who attended the "Back Street" premiere at Miami, returned directly to New York and thus was another absentee. Addresses were made by Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager; William J. Heineman, western sales manager, and Cliff Work, studio head.

Meet the Chump

F

If squirrels bought theatre tickets, this would undoubtedly smash all existing boxoffice records because it is nuttier than a 30-cent drugstore sundae. The amount of human patronage it will attract, however, is problematical, insofar as its customers must be limited to those who can take their humor raw, crude and unrefined, and who are not too exacting as to cast. Had not the designation been overworked, the feature would be classified as a screwball comedy. It takes up where all others in that category left off, resorting to most of the tried-and-true gags found in such offerings since the days of Mack Sennett—and incorporating a few of its own creation. The picture is reasonably funny in spots, dull in others, but on the whole should serve satisfactorily where mirthful support material is desired. What little story structure it has concerns the efforts of Hugh Herbert to appear insane as a cover-up for a $5,000,000 shortage in his nephew's estate, of which he is administrator. Edward Cline's direction reflects his early training as a master of broad comedy.

Hugh Herbert, Lewis Howard, Jeanne Kelly, Anne Nagel, Kathryn Adams, Shemp Howard, Richard Lane.

EXPLOITIPS: Hugh Herbert is the name for the marquee. Conduct an amateur contest on the stage for imitators of the "woo-woo" comedian. Send out two men in straightjackets for street ballyhoo, carrying signs reading: "Think we're crazy? Wait till you see Hugh Herbert in 'Meet the Chump'." Give out small sacks of peanuts, imprinted: "Hugh Herbert says 'Nuts to You, too'." Dress ushers as attendants in a sanitarium and rig up a booth where patrons can be given a burlesque psycho-analysis.

The Trial of Mary Dugan

M-G-M (125) 90 Minutes Rel. Feb. 14, '41

That a good thing is worth repeating almost goes without saying. This is the case in the remake of "Dugan." Emerging again after 12 years, the courtroom drama, when it achieves that status after the preliminaries, makes the grade easily as effective dramatic entertainment. Although memory of the first film version is somewhat dim for comparative purposes, the latest treatment is additionally, a field day for neatly-turned performances, particularly the supporting members of the cast. Laraine Day emotes the title role, giving what it requires. Her counsel is Robert Young. They keep the romantic substance on tap expertly. "Dugan's" big scenes are laid in a courtroom where, in this case, Miss Day is on trial for her life, for the murder of her employer. All the evidence, until Young comes back from South America at the psychological moment, is just so much more grease to speedily skid her to the gallows. But Young aspires to be a Clarence Darrow of his generation. He takes over and, in a manner that has become historic stage and screen "business," clears her. Norman Z. McLeod directed.

Laraine Day, Robert Young, Tom Conway, Frieda Inescort, John Litel, Marsha Hunt, Marjorie Main, Sara Haden.

EXPLOITIPS: Hitch your exploitation to the rapidly rising stock of Miss Day. The name values of the cast are readily apparent. Feature Miss Main. Her's is one of the best performances in the show. Work on creating interest in the Bayard Veiller play with which a new generation is not too familiar. In keeping with the courtroom aspect of the story, circulate "summonses" imprinted with the legal flim-flam, calling attention to the film. A display of identical knives in a clue cabinet will attract spectators.

Road Show

F

United Artists (——) 85 Minutes Rel. Jan. 24, '41

The action starts in a nut house and gets nuttier every foot of the way. There have been countless screwball comedies about allegedly sane people but this is probably the first one in which the leading characters are admittedly screwballs. There are no limits to the number of laughs it will furnish the customers who relish their humor in the broadest possible vein with gags and slapstick predominating. Although unstintingly and modernly mounted, the production is reminiscent of the early-day screen funfests which prevailed before art came to the industry. Adolphe Menjou justifies his place in the topline by proving the greatest laugh-garnerer, although he is pressed by Patsy Kelly and Charles Butterworth. Properly merchandised, the feature should pay its way handsomely. Escaping from an asylum, Menjou and a young companion finds refuge in a broken-down traveling carnival, owned and operated by Carole Landis. They are put to work and the motivation from that point forward serves only as a frail framework upon which are plastered the fast flow of gag situations. Hal Roach produced and directed.

Adolphe Menjou, Carole Landis, John Hubbard, Charles Butterworth, Patsy Kelly, George E. Stone, Margaret Roach.

EXPLOITIPS: Give the topline mention to Adolphe Menjou, Carole Landis and John Hubbard. Imbue the lobby and theatre front with a carnival atmosphere, including a loud-voiced "barker," a steam calliope if it is obtainable, and sawdust scattered around the foyer. The novel by Eric Hatch has been widely read and can be made the basis of library and bookstore tieups. Three original songs by Hoagy Carmichael should be plugged with music stores, dance bands, and via other outlets. Stress comedy angles in advertising and exploitation.

CATCHLINES: There's Something Radically Wrong With Your Funny-Bone If You Don't Agree This Is the Most Hilarious Comedy of the Year.

It Was Funny as a Novel . . . And "Road Show" Is a Downright Riot on the Screen.

Ride, Kelly, Ride

F

20th Century-Fox (129) 64 Minutes Rel. Feb. 7, '41

As racetrack features go, this measures up to expectations. Obviously designed for the action houses and the Saturday matinee trade, it has the necessary qualifications to please in those situations, but isn't pretentious enough to secure, or even expect, bookings in more important situations. The cast is uniformly competent but lacks anything in the way of selling names—with the one possible exception of Eugene Pallette, who supplies the comedy. Young Marvin Stephens has the leading role, that of a cowhand whose riding prowess attracts the attention of Pallette and Richard Lane, owners of a racing stable. They train him as a jockey. Stephens is borrowed by Charles D. Brown, another stable-owner, to ride, and is pushed into the fence by another jockey. Then his pals get together and agree to "fix" a race so a long-shot will win planning to use the proceeds to pay Stephens' hospital expenses. When Stephens hears this he escapes from the hospital and upsets their plans by winning the big race. Norman Foster directed.

Eugene Pallette, Marvin Stephens, Rita Quigley, Richard Lane, Frankie Burke, Charles D. Brown, Chick Chandler.

EXPLOITIPS: Direct your exploitation toward the sporting fraternity by placing track cards and advertising matter in night clubs, pool halls and in the vicinity of race tracks, baseball and football grounds. Dress a youth as a jockey and have him parade a racehorse with a blanket on which is picture and theatre billing. Stencil streets and sidewalks with hoof prints of a horse leading to the theatre. Gild two or three dozen horseshoes, obtainable from a blacksmith, and string them around the marquee. Suspend a floral horseshoe over the cashier's cage. Decorate the lobby and interior with oldtime Currier & Ives prints of famous racehorses of the past.

CATCHLINES: It's the Grandest Racing Story Ever Brought to the Screen . . . This Tale of a Jockey Who Couldn't Be Bought.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

The Mad Doctor F — Melodrama

Paramount (4018) — 90 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 14, '41

In most situations this will prove a celluloid problem child. The film is too long to function as supporting fare and is not sufficiently meritorious to grace the upper half of the bill except in the most unimportant program arrangements. The picture starts out as a chiller, goes off at a tangent to invade the fields of psychiatry, and then settles down to a routine of unmysterious, endless and useless murders. The entire blame for the feature's frailties, and they are legion, is attributable to the story, the multitudinous vagaries of which an apparently hard-working cast and director were unable to transcend. Basil Rathbone portrays the mad doctor, whose favorite pastime is marrying heiresses and promptly dispatching them to a better world. Ultimately he falls in love but, by this time, his past has caught up with him and he is forced to continue his orgy of killings. Directed by Tim Whelan.

Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, John Howard, Barbara Allen, Ralph Morgan, Martin Kosleck, Kitty Kelly.

EXPLOITIPS: Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew and John Howard rate the marquee and advertising credits. Among radio fans the name of Barbara Allen (Vera Vague) might also be worthy of exploitation. Have house artist construct a leering compo-board portrait of Rathbone with green, blinking eyes, to be mounted above the marquee or used as the lobby center-piece. Emphasize the picture's chill angles by staging a special "midnight show" and install a "heart tester" in the lobby to ascertain whether or not prospective patrons are "healthy" enough to "take it." Stills depicting Rathbone in particularly sinister poses could be tied into displays of health foods and tonics, along the lines: "Do you feel like this? Try Pep-O."

CATCHLINES: He Committed a Series of Horrible Crimes . . . Then Discovered That Real Love Couldn't Erase His Past.

A Human Monster . . . Whose Heart Was Touched by a Beautiful Girl . . . Too Late.

Basil Rathbone in a Sinister Role of a Mad Doctor Whose Past Wouldn't Let Him Alone.

The Face Behind the Mask F — Drama

Columbia (2029) — 69 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 16, '41

The horror-gangster crowd will get their money's worth in "The Face Behind the Mask," which offers Peter Lorre in the main role. He is a Hungarian immigrant who gets horribly burned in a hotel fire—his face is disfigured. He turns criminal in order to get funds to pay for plastic surgery. The best a doctor can do is create a mask to hide the disfiguration. He meets a beautiful blind girl and they become close companions. Lorre tries to quit his gang. They think he has framed them. The girl is killed by a planted bomb. Lorre, in revenge, informs the police and flies the gang out to the middle of a desert in Arizona where they all perish. The various contributing elements of the story are well-handled and Robert Florey's direction effectively keeps them alike. It is good enough as support for any program.

Peter Lorre, Evelyn Keyes, Don Beddoe, George E. Stone, John Tyrrell, Stanley Brown.

EXPLOITIPS: Play this one up with the horror angle in the fore. Run a one-shot newspaper contest with a collection of portraits of various players who are wearing masks. For correct identification offer passes. Invite children to come to the theatre wearing grotesque masks. For poster displays have a rear view of Lorre with the following print: "We Dare You to Look At This Man's Face and Forget It." Get up a mask display with borrowed items from museums, department and art stores.

CATCHLINES: When You See This Man's Face on the Screen . . . You'll Never Forget It.

What Nameless Terror Lurks Behind This Mask? . . . What Strange Vengeance Is Brewing?

A Thrilling Story of Gang Terrorism . . . And a Terrible Retribution.

Scattergood Baines F — Comedy Drama

RKO Radio (123) — 69 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 21, '41

A fair portion of the nation's filmgoers should receive "Scattergood Baines" as another entertaining treatise on small town life. Again the accent is on a philosophical old gent who gives advice freely, who bests the slickest brains from the big city and maneuvers the minds and morals of his community with his little finger. And, to top it all off, he plays a courtly cupid. The role is tailored for Guy Kibbee. One day he wanders into Coldriver with $40. He invests $37.50 in a "problematical" venture, makes $750. He runs this stake into a bankroll, control of a spur line, two-car railroad, real estate and a full-rigged hardware store. Then he sits around in front of his store dispensing advice to all comers and weathers the storm of adversity in shipshape style. Spice this dish with dry humor, rustic accents and a romantic problem and you have "Scattergood Baines."

Guy Kibbee, Carol Hughes, John Archer, Francis Trout, Emma Dunn, Lee White.

EXPLOITIPS: Since this film is based on the Clarence Budington Kelland stories a good deal of effort should be expended on the bookshop and the dispensers of magazines. Tie these outlets in with posters and stills. A spot announcement over a radio station should contact the audience that is not to be reached through other channels. Get an old buggy, decorate with signs and have it driven up and down the main drag by an appropriately costumed ballyhoo man.

CATCHLINES: Meet Scattergood Baines . . . He's Slick and Sharp . . . But You'll Love Him.

He Put Coldriver on the Map . . . He Plays Cupid . . . He Has Plenty of Friends . . . He'll Make More, When You Meet Him . . . That's Scattergood Baines.

He Out-Slicked the City Slickers . . . And Ran $40 Into a Hardware Store.

Clarence Budington Kelland's Inimitable Sage Comes to the Screen.

The Monster and the Girl F — Horror Melodrama

Paramount (——) — 62 Minutes — Rel. ——

While this cannot hope for universal patronage or acclaim, it should find takers in profitable numbers among the horror fans for whom it will be a treat. The film has plenty of suspense and a bumper crop of murders, sufficient to sate the appetites of the most avid chill-seekers. The production is adequately mounted, enacted by an able cast and competently directed. It was produced under the title of "D. O. A." (Dead on Arrival), which former name is an index to its story material. In fact, the screenplay adroitly merges two yarns. The opening sequences reveal the story of an innocent girl from the hinterlands who, seeking employment in the city, is tricked into a life of shame by mobsters. Her brother attempts to avenge her betrayal and is accused of, and executed for, a murder of which he is innocent. Before dying he gives a scientist permission to use his brain, which is transferred to the body of a live ape. Escaping, the anthropoid sets out on a mission of revenge and kills all members of the mob as well as the district attorney who sent the innocent man to the chair. Directed by Stuart Heisler.

Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Paul Lukas, Joseph Calleia, Onslow Stevens, George Zucco, Rod Cameron, Phillip Terry.

EXPLOITIPS: Ellen Drew is probably the only name here worthy of exploitation effort. Sell the picture on its chill-horror angles. Have house artist construct a life-sized figure of a gorilla with eyes which emit green flashes and mount it above the marquee or as the lobby center-piece. A figure of Ellen Drew shrinking from it would add to the layout. Spot one-minute broadcasts on radio stations asserting the "gorilla" has "escaped" and warning everyone to "keep out of its way." Stage a midnight "horror" show.

CATCHLINES: Half-Man . . . Half-Gorilla . . . And All Bad . . . Was the Beast Produced Through a Scientist's Cunning.

He Had a Terrible Mission in Life . . . Died Before He Completed It . . . But Lived Again . . . in a Gorilla's Body.

Term Price for "Lady" Tops for a Play

NEW YORK—In the face of spirited competition, Paramount nabs "Lady in the Dark," hit musical play starring Gertrude Lawrence. Barney Balaban, in commenting on the purchase, states the price is "substantially above $275,000" while Paramount asserts this is the highest ever paid by a film producer for a stage property.

Produced by Sam H. Harris, Paramount is understood to have financed the play to the tune of 30 per cent, but other interested parties include Howard S. Cullman, Jules E. Brulatour and Harris.

Meanwhile, special handling goes to "The Lady Eve." Neil F. Agnew has mapped out a three-way publicity and exploitation campaign the first part of which is under way for the New York opening at the Paramount February 26. The second phase will be a three-week drive to precede the opening in one key city in each of Paramount's ten sales districts in what may be a tipoff as to the manner in which this company will proceed under the decree and blocks of five sales.

The third phase will be a three-week campaign ahead of the openings in 20 additional key cities about March 21.

The purchase price, according to the New York Times, was $283,000. That paper declared theatrical circles viewed the figure as "astronomical" and added this comment:

"Broadway's surprise was the more apparent because it had not expected the movies would go beyond $200,000 for a hit play in view of the economies adopted since the collapse of the foreign market and the subsequent decline in film profits due to the war. Loss of the foreign market is estimated to represent a drop of 30 to 40 per cent in film company earnings."

Times Square reports added Miss Lawrence, star of the play, may appear in the film.

Paramount Interest in Play Shaves Price for "Lady"

NEW YORK—Paramount's reputed 30 per cent interest in "Lady in the Dark" will cut the approximate $283,000 it paid for the film rights to about $197,100 thereby, and by this approach, bringing the purchase figure well under the record buy for stage properties. Nevertheless, the acquisition remains well among the leaders over the years.

According to the New York Times, Paramount's bid rose to its high level because Warner had offered $275,000, but this is not confirmed. At any rate, the "Lady in the Dark" deal launched that newspaper into a discussion of play purchases by film producers. It cites the previous high as having gone to "Arsenic and Old Lace," purchased recently by Warner for $175,000, plus a percentage of the gross. Earlier, the same company paid $83,000 for "George Washington Slept Here" and $75,000 for "Old Acquaintance." M-G-M parted with $130,000 for "Panama Hattie," the account continued, and Columbia $70,000 to $75,000 as a down payment on "Pal Joey," plus a percentage of the gross.

"For a long time," reported the Times, "the $250,000 Paramount paid for 'Abie's Irish Rose' in 1928 set the pace for play purchases by the movies. Record prices for plays in recent years were 'You Can't Take It with You,' $200,000; 'Hellzapoppin',' $200,000; 'The American Way,' $225,000; 'Room Service,' $255,000; 'The Man Who Came to Dinner,' $275,000 and 'Tobacco Road,' $200,000 plus a royalty payment to Jack Kirkland, the producer. The film version will open at the Roxy February 20 in competition with the play, now in its eighth year on Broadway."

Paramount is reported to have sold rights to "The Play's the Thing" to RKO for $45,000.

Second Complaint Due Under Decree

Washington—Aside from the Walbrook, Baltimore, case on clearance, the local board of the AAA has been informed another complaint will be filed in the near future. Unlike the first, this will not involve protection between houses in the same city, but will revolve around clearance granted a theatre in one small Maryland town over another house in the same community.

New England Arbiter Has His First Case

BOSTON—The first New England arbitration case was filed Thursday afternoon by Ben Gold, independent operator of the Park Theatre at Nashua, N. H., with the local clerk, Henry de la Morandiere, at the newly established offices here in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of which Gold is a member, assisted Gold in preparing the case and laid the groundwork for the hearing, in which action under Section 6 of the code is sought.

Gold alleges inability to buy any major product. The complaint states that the Shea circuit, Edward Grainger its general manager, has tied up all major product for its two Nashua theatres with the single exception that recently, following the Morse and Rothenberg anti-trust suit, decision on which has not yet been handed down, Morse and Rothenberg have been sold Columbia pictures for their house, the only other theatre in the city.

Illinois Independent Files Against Loew's, Inc.

CHICAGO—With the words, "E. F. Van Derveer claims that Loew's, Inc., has arbitrarily refused to license second run pictures for exhibition at the State Theatre, Morris, Ill.," the film arbitration office in Chicago has its initial case.

Van Derveer, who operates one of three houses in the downstate town, the other two being operated by the Anderson circuit, filed his complaint Thursday against Loew's, Inc., Chicago, claiming inability to obtain Metro product.

Indirect Swing by Hearst at RKO

NEW YORK—Repercussions of the difficulties between William Randolph Hearst and RKO over "Citizen Kane," indicating the situation has not been settled, were seen late in the week when the New York Journal-American gave almost a column to a lawsuit filed by Joseph Ermolieff, European producer, against the distributor. A companion story appeared in the Daily Mirror, in both instances the dispatches coming from special Los Angeles correspondents of these Hearst papers.

While it is not without precedent for stories of this nature to appear in New York newspapers, Times Square opinion, in part at least, read into them and their length more of a play than normally might be accorded yarns containing their general news values. Some held it to be significant, too, that the dispatches were sent to their specific Hearst newspaper here and not over the wires of the International News Service, Hearst-operated, which serves hundreds of papers outside of the Hearst string.

The story itself was an account of a $1,042,000 action brought by Ermolieff. It said Schaefer deliberately broke a contract under terms of which Ermolieff was to produce both an English and French version of a story entitled "I Solemnly Swear." The producer claims he signed a contract July 8, 1939, that he and RKO were to divide net profits and negative costs and that the picture was to cost $600,000. He further alleges RKO repudiated the deal October 31 of that year. The picture, he adds, was to be released as "Outpost in Morocco."

Already Taking Bows for "Pot O' Gold" Premiere

NEW YORK—UA expects to garner for itself, and take the bows for gathering for the country at large, considerable Latin-American goodwill through a super-elaborate world premiere of James Roosevelt's "Pot O' Gold" in Mexico City just before Easter. The event will be timed, if plans materialize, to take advantage of a gigantic nationwide day-and-date effort for Easter bookings in this country.

Opening of the film below the border, is seen as a natural through the presence of President Roosevelt's son as producer. Additionally, there is good reason alone in the fact that the film boasts some pretentious Mexican production numbers.

UA is heading for special attention in still another direction, it appears. According to Monroe Greenthal, director of advertising and publicity, five of the company's next seven releases are scheduled for first run here at the Music Hall. They are "That Uncertain Feeling," "Major Barbara," "That Hamilton Woman," "So Ends Our Night" and "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

See Big "Virginia" Play

NEW YORK—Paramount has 225 pre-release bookings on "Virginia" to date. Neil F. Agnew expects to have 285 dates before general release, February 22.

Among Those at Universal's Convention—

Points to Universal's "Unalterable Policy"

CHICAGO—It is Universal's unalterable policy that salesmen must deal fairly with exhibitors and avoid any promises that cannot be reduced to writing in contracts, William A. Scully declared at the company's final convention session. The slogan for next season will be "Universal Pictures, the Exhibitor's Insurance Policy for 1941-42."

Jim Frew succeeds W. M. (Snake) Richardson as manager in Atlanta where John Ezell has resigned, as reported in BOXOFFICE's Southern edition last week. Gordon C. Craddock now is assistant to William J. Heineman, western sales manager, while H. H. Hull succeeds Craddock in charge in Indianapolis. Jack Bannon, long secretary to Sam Dembow and latterly in the state right field on his own, becomes assistant to Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager. Scully introduced them, as he did Harold Dudoff, India representative, and L. L. Foeldes, Universal's representative in Central Europe.

Convention enthusiasm was further aroused by wired reports indicating "Back Street" had been held over in 14 first runs. Paul J. Nathanson, Canadian distributor, informed Nate J. Blumberg and the assemblage it was his opinion Universal is now the second ranking company in the Dominion. John Joseph, director of advertising and publicity, detailed the "Back Street" premiere in Miami and reported a generally favorable press. Addresses Monday included one from J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, and from Blumberg. While the banquet that evening officially terminated the meetings, divisional and district managers went into a huddle Tuesday.

Name Change

ALBANY—RKO Proctor Mt. Vernon Corp. has made a name change to Parkway Theatre Corp. Prentice-Hall, Inc., 90 Broad St., recorded papers.

Wind Up Remittance Hearings Next Week

NEW YORK—Arbitration hearings on proposed changes in the allocation plan for British remittances as suggested by M-G-M, are expected to wind up before Milton J. Handler, impartial arbitrator, next week. Sam Cohen of M-G-M's legal department is presenting arguments for the company and Joseph H. Hazen of Warner is acting for the other seven majors.

With England permitting a total of $12,900,000 to be transferred to this country for the year started November 1, M-G-M claims its share of the money should be based on net business rather than gross.

More From "London Can Take It" Forwarded

NEW YORK—The $25,000, earmarked and already forwarded to Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of aircraft production, represents the bulk, but not necessarily all, of the returns on "London Can Take It," Quentin Reynolds' short distributed by Warner.

All proceeds, less print cost, go to the British Spitfire fund.

Opposing Radio? Now Take a Look

New York—A nation-wide survey discloses that 87 per cent of sponsored radio film commentators are engaged by exhibitors, according to the National Radio Film Commentators Circle, headed by David Lowe of station WNEW of New York. The group states it polled 178 film commentators appearing over stations in 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, and declares its findings are a significant disclosure in light of the "purported anti-radio feelings of the Hollywood producers."

28 Independents Test Theatre Guide Ads

NEW YORK—With RKO, Loew's and Skouras having their theatre guides appearing regularly in local newspapers, 28 independent theatres last week inserted a group ad under the name of United Neighborhood Theatres as an experiment. One circuit operator who participated in the combination stated the rate was cheaper under this plan. It also was felt that if he advertised alone his theatres would be lost on the page with small copy.

If, however, the idea clicks, similar arrangements will be worked out with other papers. The experiment was tried in the N. Y. Post. Theatres listed included the Ace, Freeman, Heights, Jerome, Kingsbridge, Metro, Mt. Eden, Astor (Bklyn), Ascot, Fleetwood, Lido, Fenway, Tower, Granada, Avalon, DeLuxe, Oxford, Vogue, Prospect, Grand, Savoy, Kent, Star, Zenith, Earl, Luxor, Ogden, and Surrey.

Yorke Rejoins 20th-Fox In West on Promotion

NEW YORK—Gabe Yorke has rejoined 20th-Fox, this time as western divisional promotion manager with headquarters in Los Angeles. For the past few weeks he had been handling special exploitation for "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which was produced by Richard A. Rowland for UA, and "Land of Liberty." Under his new duties he will supervise promotion work in cooperation with theatres playing the company's product. He was formerly advertising manager for 20th-Fox and also head of advertising for Fox West Coast circuit. The February 8 eastern edition of BOXOFFICE exclusively reported Yorke rejoining 20th-Fox.

Hearing on Publicists' Demands February 17

NEW YORK — The second adjourned hearing between the Screen Publicists Guild and representatives of the majors before NLRB Trial Examiner Dan Baker has been set for February 17 due to Baker's illness. Baker is listening to testimony over the SPG's demand for designation as collective bargaining agent for what is claimed to be a majority of members among publicists at home offices.

Screeno Eastern Rights To Dave Dietz Firm

NEW YORK—The Dave Dietz company has been named by J. S. Markstein, Chicago, general manager of the Screeno Amusement Co., as the distributor of Screeno in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The new firm, Eastern Screeno Co., succeeds George B. West, who withdrew to take care of his interests in the Monogram exchanges at St. Louis, Cincinnati and Kansas City.

Markstein came here from Chicago to close the deal.

BROADWAY

NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK is due back from a belated visit to the M-G-M studios on Monday. He was on the coast about a week . . . Sam Rinzler left Thursday to join his partner, Louis Frisch, in Miami. One Leaves, but Two More Arrive—

NEW YORK—It took years, but RKO and its reorganization detail, in the form of final claims, this week cleared federal courts. Nothing else hangs fire.

The cleanup took form in $7,250 additional allowances granted by Federal Judge William O. Bondy to firms of attorneys and accountants for their stint in the proceedings.

David Stock and Donald Macks, attorneys for H. Cassel and Co., were allowed $1,500 out of $9,000 requested, providing Kommel and Rosenberg, also attorneys for Cassel, have their appeal denied. The latter firm asked for $15,000 and was granted nothing.

George L. Schein, attorney for the independent protective committee for common stockholders, received an additional allowance of $4,500 to the $8,000 already received. He had asked $100,000. His accountants, Gottheimer and Bercu, who had received $2,000 out of $30,000 sought, were granted an additional $1,250. This wipes out the last remaining vestige of RKO in the U. S. courts, as nothing else is hanging fire.

May Set Precedent

A decision which may have some bearing on future copyrights was handed down in the supreme court when Justice Peter Schmuck dismissed Stephen Tamas' suit against 20th Century-Fox in which Tamas, an Hungarian playwright, sought an injunction, accounting of profits and damages against "Stowaway." He claimed the Shirley Temple picture was based on his story. The court found no plagiarism other than the title which could not be copyrighted and remarked Tamas had already lost in the Hungarian courts. Under the ruling it may develop that U. S. courts will follow European ones in deciding issues.

Katherine Moog's $75,000 libel action against Warner was tossed out by a federal jury. The action claimed libel in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," with the plaintiff charging the part played by Lya Lys in the film was meant to represent her. The jury, before Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo, ruled otherwise.

Suit of Harry Essex and Sid Schwartz, playwrights, against Republic Pictures was dismissed on its merits by mutual consent in federal court. The action sought an injunction, accounting of profits, and damages against "Money to Burn" with the plaintiffs charging the film was a deliberate piracy of their play, "Something for Nothing."

Travelcade Sues Consolidated

Travelcade Film Corp. filed suit in the supreme court against Consolidated Film Industries seeking $25,000 damages for alleged failure to deliver prints on time. The plaintiff says it gave Consolidated six negatives in August with the understanding that 15 prints of each would be ready in six days. After two months of waiting it is alleged Consolidated stated it could not do the job. By that time the prints were outdated and could not be sold, the plaintiff charges. The films were all travelogues.

Philip Chapman, projectionist, has filed a supreme court suit against the Empire State Operators and Square Enterprises, Inc., operators of the Square Theatre, Brooklyn, claiming the union suspended him when he refused to leave his job at the Square where he has been employed for two years to take a job at another theatre. He seeks reinstatement and his job back.

F. D. R. Will Address Academy Award Dinner

Hollywood—President Roosevelt will address the Academy Awards dinner, February 27, via radio from Washington. Walter Wanger, Academy president, arranged it while on a recent visit to the White House.

Weingarten and Wyngate Secure Rights to "Ecstasy"

NEW YORK — Max Weingarten and Michael Wyngate were returned victors in a one-day trial over Eureka Productions and Samuel Cummins when Justice Aaron Steuer in supreme court handed down a decision from the bench that the picture, "Ecstasy," belongs to the plaintiffs. An injunction against further distribution, accounting of profits, damages, and return of prints were ordered. The defendants' rights in the film ran out October, 1939, according to the complaint, which claimed the plaintiffs had purchased the rights for the next five years from the producers, Elekta Films of Czechoslovakia. Fitelson and Mayers represented the plaintiffs.

Would Question Zanuck

Application to examine Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president of 20th-Fox, has been made by Eleanor Harris. The plaintiff, author of the original on which "Brigham Young" was based, seeks $50,000 damages for alleged failure to give her proper screen credit.

RKO has notified the federal court of its intentions to examine Helen Twelvetrees before trial on February 24. The company is being sued for an injunction, accounting of profits and $100,000 damages for alleged libel in "I'm Still Alive" which, the actress claims, is based on her life with her former husband, Jack Woody, Hollywood stunt man.

Botsford to LeBaron; Moss Joining Wanger

HOLLYWOOD—Producers A. M. Botsford and Jack Moss have resigned their Paramount posts. Botsford will continue in association with William LeBaron who recently resigned as Paramount production head. Moss joins Walter Wanger as production associate.

December Is Record Film Stock Month

WASHINGTON — Approximately 155,000 shares of film company stocks were involved in transactions entered into in December by officers and directors of film companies and large holders of film securities, it is shown by the semi-monthly summary of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The largest total of film stocks ever reported for one month by the commission, the greater part of the volume was accounted for by the more than 140,000 shares of Radio-Keith-Orpheum common and preferred stock acquired by the Atlas Corporation in an almost daily series of purchases.

Transactions of the month, as reported by the commission, were as follows:

General Theatres Equipment Corp.: Acquisition of 200 shares of capital stock by Edward C. Delafield, director, New York, giving him a total of 400 shares.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum: Disposition of 9,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock (2,000 shares of gift in trust for children), by Michael J. Meehan, New York, reducing his interest to 17,004 shares; exchange of 10 shares of preferred stock for 10 preferred voting trust certificates by Malcolm Kingsberg, officer, New York, who held 490 shares of preferred and the 10 certificates at the close of the month.

Loew's Boston Theatres: Acquisition of four shares of common stock by Loew's Incorporated, making a total holding of 117,787 shares.

Loew's, Inc.: Acquisition of 100 shares of common stock by Al Lichtman, officer, New York, representing his total interest at the close of the month.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum: Acquisition by the Atlas Corp., Jersey City, N. J., of 138,578 shares of common and 2,900 shares of six per cent preferred stock; at the close of the month Atlas held 732,896 shares of common, 327,812 warrants for common and 35,481 shares of preferred stock direct and 268,230 shares of common through the American Company. Disposition of 600 shares of common stock and 75 shares of preferred by Frederick L. Ehrman, director, New York, leaving him with 200 shares of common and no preferred; and disposition of 2,000 shares of common stock by L. Lawrence Green, director, New York, leaving him with 2,250 shares.

Trans Lux Corp.: Disposition of 500 shares of common stock by Robert L. Gordon, director, New York, his total holdings, and acquisition of 200 shares of common by Walter Siemers, director, Jamaica, N. Y., giving him 1,200 shares.

Twentieth Century-Fox: Acquisition of 1,000 shares of common stock by Sidney R. Kent, officer, New York, giving him a total of 3,180 shares.

Handles Select List

NEW YORK—Equity Exchange will handle Select Attractions' output in Greater New York, Albany and Buffalo, according to a deal closed early in the week.

On Thursday he got together with Oscar Doob, Art Schmidt and Dave Lipton for a reunion of B&K days in Chicago . . . S. Barret McCormick has been down with a touch of the flu . . . Alec Moss goes to Miami late in the week. Vacation, of course.

A brewers' convention without beer would be an awfully dull affair, but not so a press photographers' dance without cameramen. Yet that's the big story about the 12th annual shindig the lensers tossed off at the Hotel Astor Friday evening, not unless, of course, there's a story in the fact that some 3,700 persons crowded into the ballroom and some 100 creme de la creme of the professional theatrical world contributed upwards of four hours of entertainment. Then there was dancing until dawn between the orchestras of Eli Dantzig and Augusto Sanabia and his Rum Conga band. Then, too, there were a couple of up-and-coming boys working like beavers at master ceremoning—Ed Sullivan, Harry Hershfield, Henny Youngman, Olsen & Johnson and Nick Kenny, to mention just a few. And just to round out the reportorial job, here are a few of the names who appeared and contributed a couple of thousand of dollars' worth of fun: Danny Kaye, Boris Karloff, Ethel Merman, Lee Tracy, Lyle Talbot, Willie Howard, Glenda Farrell, Gloria Stuart, Carol Bruce, Luise Rainer, Jack Durant, Victor Moore, Helen Morgan, Herman Timberg, Belle Baker, Diosa Costello, Lionel Stander, Bill Robinson, John Beal, Jane Pickens, Ben Bernie, Bert Lytell, Arthur Treacher, James Dunn and Gilda Gray.

Dr. Emanuel Stern, in charge of welfare of the Paramount home office employes, has been under observation at the French Hospital for the past few days . . . Hal Horne of the Walt Disney Hornes has been laid up at home with a bad back . . . Morris Jacks, New Jersey operator, is back from Florida via New Orleans, where he stopped off for some oysters. He says his Community at Morristown broke every record with "The Philadelphia Story" . . . More than 1,200 members and guests attended the Paramount Pep Club's St. Valentine Day Party at the Capitol Hotel. A buffet supper, presentation of "The Gofers Go to Town," a play written, staged and featuring home office employes, and dancing to the music of Dick Raymond and his orchestra, headed the program . . . Dock Condon was in Philadelphia for the opening there of "Fantasia." While he was absent, his secretary, Marjorie Chapman, lost her wallet. "It's not the money," she bemoans, "it's my social security card that I miss."

Leslie E. Thompson, president of Trans Lux, is in Palm Beach vacationing . . . Harry Brandt heads for southern vacation spots March 2. Meanwhile, brothers Louis and "Bingo" returned from their Miami siestas over the weekend . . . Robert Young's first eastern vacation in five years has terminated and he is now back on the M-G-M lot . . . Rise Stevens, Metropolitan Opera star recently signed by M-G-M, sang at Carnegie Hall Wednesday night at a benefit concert for British and Greek war relief . . . Herbert J. Yates is on the coast planning Republic's lineup for next season with James R. Grainger and M. J. Siegel . . . Howard Dietz has returned from a combined vacation and business trip on the coast . . . R. Yentes of the local 20th-Fox exchange has been called to the colors and is at Fort Ethan Allen in New England. Richard Skillman of the home office also is in training . . . John Hay Whitney is in Hollywood for conferences on betterment of relations with Latin America.

Byron Kantack of the M-G-M legal staff has been called by the National Guard, 207 Division, for active service . . . Jean Gabin, French actor, is due by Clipper sometime in March to report for 20th-Fox work on the coast . . . Francis L. Harley, 20th-Fox managing director in England, is vacationing in Miami and plans to return to London early in March . . . Ben Miggins, European managing director for the same company, is back from Miami and claims he hasn't put on any weight . . . Harry Reinhardt has been elected president of the 20th-Fox home office credit union, succeeding Edwin S. Fraser jr. Eugene McEvoy has been named vice-president and Nat Brower secretary. Joseph Tyrrell is the new treasurer . . . Greta Garbo is due to return to the coast in a week.

REVIEW FLASHES

GOLDEN HOOFS (20th-Fox)—Considerable of an improvement over the last two or three Jane Withers vehicles is reflected in this treatise on the sport of harness racing which should slide nicely into the program groove, particularly in those sectors where the Withers name is a marquee magnet. Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich produced; Lynn Shores directed.

PHANTOM COWBOY (Rep)—A tale of Spanish settlers and landowners who are falling into the grasp of an unscrupulous ranch hand, and are saved by a prairie Robin Hood and a returning cowboy. Liberally strewn with outdoor action, discharging firearms and fast riding horses. Don Barry, Virginia Carroll.

STRAWBERRY BLONDE (WB)—A full measure of laughs, a few tears, a large helping of romance and a dash of bittersweet nostalgia are expertly blended against authentic backgrounds, atmosphere and music of the gay nineties to compound a story which, entrusted to a sterling cast, emerges as a film treat for which great popularity and profit may be confidently prophesied. James Cagney, Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth are starred. William Cagney produced; Raoul Walsh directed.

Complete reviews on the above features will appear in an early issue.

Bills Regulating Outdoor Advertising in Albany

ALBANY—Regulation of outdoor advertising, for years a bone of contention in the legislature, is to be chewed over at the current session. Bills restricting this type of advertising already have been introduced by Sen. Thomas C. Desmond, Newburgh, and by Sen. G. Frank Wallace, Syracuse, and Assemblyman Robert F. Wagner, New York. Others are expected.

Long Runs Causing Philly Product "Jam"

PHILADELPHIA—Long runs in Warner's downtown key houses have caused a "jam-up" of product which "means slow strangulation for every subsequent run independent exhibitor in this area," William Goldman, independent circuit head, charges.

In a letter mailed to all exchanges—with mimeographed copies going to all independent exhibitors in the area—Goldman asserts:

"The bottleneck means that many important pictures will be delayed until Lent, when patronage always falls off, and this backlog of films will not become available until into the summer. Further, delay in promptly playing the pictures while they are new and novel has a marked effect on the receipts, inasmuch as these pictures have been published in the movie magazines months back.

"And while the first run downtown houses are tied up with extended run pictures, coupled with the fact that distributors will not agree to their 'A' pictures going into 'B' houses, there is an accumulation of unplayed, undated pictures, drying up in the vaults. And this backlog thus created stops the flow of product, the life's blood of the theatre, to the independent subsequent run exhibitor, whose only alternative is to close his doors, or turn to repeats and reissues, which is tantamount to shuttering his theatre.

Offers an "A" Outlet

"I realize naturally that these pictures, now being bottlenecked because of Warner's physical impossibility to play them, are under contract to Warner. But, I am sure that it should likewise recognize an emergency exists, and therefore should make pictures available for play-off elsewhere, for which we can offer the Erlanger (recently acquired by Goldman) for an immediate and meritorious run in an 'A' theatre—also preventing 'A' pictures from going into a 'B' house.

"To further aid a steady infiltration of product to the subsequent run houses now being threatened with the impending shutdown, we would also be willing to waive the usual 28 days protection.

"If Warner should refuse to release these pictures, then it should likewise make the same gesture, and waive its protection, and permit these pictures to go into the subsequent run theatres."

The theatres he mentions as tied up are the Boyd, with "Philadelphia Story" in its fourth week, the Fox, with "High Sierra" in its second, the Stanley, with "Gone With the Wind" in its third, and the Aldine, with "Fantasia" coming in for an indefinite run.

Hollywood Who's Who Covers 500 Players

NEW YORK—A listing of 500 thumbnail biographies and pictures of screen players in 19 different categories with a foreword to each group by a representative spokesman is one of the features of Hollywood Who's Who, new semi-annual magazine published by Dell Publishing Co., the first edition of which hits the newsstands February 14. Albert P. Delacorte is editor.

Testimonial dinner for Earle Sweigert and Ulrik Smith, recently promoted Paramounters, will be held at the Warwick February 21 . . . Allen Lewis will be honored by Fellow Showmen-clubbers Monday with a dinner. Moe Verbin is dispensing tickets.

A smart exploitation job was handled by William Blum and George Handy for the opening of "Fantasia" at the Aldine. They held a special preview, at which they invited every important newspaper executive, all the critics, all exchange heads, a number of judges and many other key citizens. Result was that the whole town was buzzing with "Fantasia." All the papers gave plenty of space, with the Record contributing columns by its film and music critics; its feature columnist, Charles Fisher, and a front-page story on the Junior League's benefit showing Wednesday night.

The Arcadia is getting a renovation and repair once-over . . . Steve Barutio's district is leading the Warner league in competition for $1,750 in cash prizes, in a business drive dedicated to Joe Bernhard's 10th anniversary with Warners.

"Fantasia" 125% Top In a Slow Stanza

NEW YORK—Catch-as-catch-can sounded like the Broadway first run theme song for the week, so "Western Union," "Virginia" and "Gone With the Wind" caught the best there was around, which was nothing special.

The telegraphic epic at the Roxy holds until February 20, when "Tobacco Road" goes in. The former tallied a creditable $43,000 the first stanza. "Virginia" at the Paramount wound up a second week with a very nice claimed $49,000 and holds a third. "Wind" was a nice $40,000 at the end of the third week, and ends a four-week engagement Wednesday, following up with "Go West." The Strand is hobbling along with "Honeymoon for Three," although the booking calls for two weeks and the Music Hall's "Arizona" was somewhat disappointing, dropping out Wednesday to make room for "This Thing Called Love."

Warner Men to Coast to Confer on New Season

NEW YORK—Gradwell Sears, Carl Leserman, Sam Schneider, Ben Kalmenson and Roy H. Haines will leave for the Warner studio the first week in March for conferences on next season's program. The home office group was scheduled to depart last week but deferred the trip until next month.

Columbia's 11th Annual Dinner-Dance Feb. 22

NEW YORK—Columbia will hold its 11th annual dinner and dance February 22 at the Waldorf. The affair will be formal with Phil Weissman, president of the Columbian Club, handling arrangements.

Clearance Up First Here

New York—Looming as the first local complaint with the arbitration tribunal is the grievance on clearance of Jack Fields of the Cameo, Jersey City, against Skouras' Fulton and major distributors.

Fields contends his theatre seats more than 1,400 while he has to follow a number of 500 and 600 seat houses, including the Fulton. He has complained to local exchanges for some time and recently engaged Emil K. Ellis, attorney, to secure relief from the majors. Ellis had been working on the case for a while and then dropped it.

Before taking over the theatre, Fields had been a booker for the New Jersey Paramount exchange for a number of years.

Bill Taxing Chains Counts Theatres

ALBANY—A bill licensing chain stores in New York state, with theatres included in the definition of "store," and requiring the payment of yearly fees of from $50 to $1,000, depending upon the number of outlets, is pending in the legislature. Assemblyman Louis Bennett of New York City is sponsor of the measure for a third consecutive year. It was killed in committee in 1939 and 1940.

The license fee is fixed at: $50 for each store in excess of two and not more than five; $100 for each store in excess of five and not more than ten; $250 for each store in excess of ten and not more than 25; $1,000 for each store in excess of 25.

Violation of the act is made a misdemeanor, punishable upon conviction by a fine of $25 to $100. For each day the violation continues, the offense is declared a separate and distinct one.

After the British relief benefit at the Great Lakes, George A. Mason will ready his staff for another benefit, a three-hour vaudeville show to be presented at the Lakes March 8 for Greek war relief. Show will be sponsored by Variety. Working to assure its success are Elmer Lux, RKO branch manager; Murray Whiteman, Irving Fried, Phil Fox of Columbia; Syd Samson, 20th Century-Fox; Melvyn Schwartz, Ralph Maw, M-G-M; George F. Hanny jr., Stanley Kozanowski and Nicholas J. Basil of the Basil Bros. Circuit . . . Shea service employes' Benevolent Association, through Mart Murret, president, are still trying to organize a party for members to be held at the Variety Club shortly. May we suggest they contact Syd Lehman, newly elected chief barker . . . After looking out the window at the snow drifts, we wonder how Marion Gueth and Marion Walsh are enjoying their cruise through southern waters.

Shea's Hippodrome, sister theatre to the Buffalo, will inaugurate a new policy on the 28th by bringing back stage shows. This will mark the first time in almost a decade that the boards of the Hipp have felt the step of living people. Local observers are of the belief the new venture will meet with success. The Hippodrome, in its prime, presented such stars as Clara Kimball Young, Milton Berle, Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and "The Chocolate Soldier." This will make the third part-time vaudeville house in Buffalo. The other two are Shea's Buffalo and Dipson's Twentieth Century . . . F. Schlageter, musician who played under Victor Herbert, died last week in Florida. He was the uncle of Paul Schlageter, Shea switchboard operator.

20th-Fox N. Y. Branch Gets Decree Analysis

NEW YORK—Having discussed the decree with the Philadelphia sales force the week before, William Sussman, eastern division head for 20th-Fox, and Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, attorneys for the distributor, detailed various phases of the document to the New York exchange Monday, on Thursday appeared before the Cincinnati staff and on Friday the Cleveland office.

Next week both men expect to visit a number of other branches and will continue these junkets until the entire division is covered.

Felix Jenkins, general counsel for 20th-Fox, has been making the rounds of the entire coast division, working his way to the midwest, following which he will head south. Division Manager William C. Gehring has been accompanying Jenkins on the midwest tour and will be with him on the southern trek.

When National Theatres divisional and district heads meet with home office executives at its annual convention on the coast, Richard E. Dwight of the same legal firm as Pride will talk to the circuit men on the decree. The dates for the convention have again been put back with present indications the sessions will not take place before March 3.

Detroit and Chicago to See "Fantasia" Next

NEW YORK—The next two engagements of "Fantasia" are set for the Wilson, Detroit, February 18, and the Apollo, Chicago, February 19. Although theatres have not yet been definitely set, the following two cities to show the film are San Francisco and Pittsburgh, with Washington to follow.

NEW YORK—Newly elected officers of the Big U Club were inducted at a ceremony and party at the exchange on Friday. Harry Fellerman is president; Fred Mayer, vice-president; James Davidson, treasurer; Rose Youngfield, secretary, and Tom Goff, sergeant-at-arms.

"Double Bill Shock Show" Lined Up by Paramount

NEW YORK—Paramount is offering a "double bill shock show" in the form of "The Mad Doctor" coupled with "The Monster and the Girl." Bookings on the first-named will be held up in dual territories until prints of "Monster" arrive at the exchanges around February 28.

Topline for C. Aubrey

HOLLYWOOD—Metro has signed C. Aubrey Smith for a topline in their remake of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Curb Youngsters in Amusement Field

ALBANY—A law uniformly regulating the employment of youngsters under 16 in motion pictures, stage shows, theatres and all other branches of the entertainment business, is proposed in identical bills sponsored by Sen. William H. Hampton, Utica, and by Assemblyman Harold B. Ehrlich, Buffalo.

The measure inserts a new section in the education law and repeals a section of the penal law. It would allow children to work in pictures, shows, etc., provided written consent is given by the board of education of a city, village or district, or by a delegated school official. This permission would be granted when school authorities deem the employment not to be harmful or undesirable from the viewpoint of welfare and proper education of the child.

Application in writing would have to be made 72 hours before a proposed performance, such application to contain detailed information as to the child, the part it is to play, etc. Action by officials on the application could not be delayed more than 48 hours. The commissioner of education would have power to prescribe rules.

Violation of the act would be a misdemeanor. The state department of labor would be entrusted with its enforcement.

Action Against Delaware Blue Laws Is Blocked

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Attempts to repeal the ancient Delaware Sunday blue laws by a record-breaking action in the general assembly at Dover ran afoul of varied but stern opposition in the house of representatives Friday, after the senate had passed the liberalizing local option measure the day before by a 14 to 3 vote.

The bill, introduced by Senator Paul Rinard of Wilmington, Thursday morning, was reported favorably by the judiciary committee early in the afternoon and half an hour later was called up for a vote.

Similar procedure was attempted in the house in an effort to pass it and place the bill before Governor Walter Bacon, but opposition forced postponement.

The bill would abolish the two-century old sabbath statutes and substitute local option. While Sunday shows are not mentioned in the measure, they would be possible in those municipalities where legislative bodies approve and provide proper regulations.

Demolish Albany Dwelling For New Warner House

ALBANY—A wrecking company is demolishing a dwelling at 290 Delaware Avenue to make way for a 699-seat theatre to be built for and leased by Warner Bros. House will cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

Whither Goldwyn? Is Moot Studio Topic

Settlement of the Samuel Goldwyn-United Artists lawsuit whereby Goldwyn, as announced last week, is given a release from his UA distribution contract, has given rise to queries as to the possible channels through which the veteran producer's future films will be released. The only definite information available through the Goldwyn organization is that his next film, "The Little Foxes," will go into work shortly and that Bette Davis has been borrowed from Warner for the lead in the screen version of the Lillian Hellman play, which William Wyler will direct.

Both 20th Century-Fox and Warner have been mentioned as strong possibilities by those conjecturing as to where Goldwyn's product will be distributed, and there have even been rumors circulating to the effect he may release through UA despite his long, and now successful efforts, to break away from that organization. Most likely of the three, the consensus is in the absence of any confirmation, is Warner. Reasoning advanced for this candidate is the fact that at the time he was making "The Westerner," Goldwyn had gone so far as to tentatively arrange a release deal for that picture with the Warner company, which was later withdrawn when UA threatened legal action. Too, indications that Goldwyn may favor a Warner deal are seen by some in the interchange of talent which has been manifested between the two organizations. For example, Goldwyn, in borrowing Bette Davis for "The Little Foxes," lent Gary Cooper to Warner to star in "Sergeant York."

A joint official statement was issued by Goldwyn and UA when settlement of their suit was reached. It follows:

"Negotiations have been completed between Samuel Goldwyn and United Artists, whereby United Artists has granted to Mr. Goldwyn his immediate release from his United Artists distributing contract. United Artists has also arranged for the purchase of Mr. Goldwyn's stock in the United Artists distributing corporation. Mr. Goldwyn's suit against United Artists will be immediately withdrawn."

Botsford, Moss Quit

Producers A. M. Botsford and Jack Moss have resigned their Paramount posts. Botsford will continue in association with William LeBaron who recently resigned as Paramount production head. Moss joins Walter Wanger as production associate.

Rosten Film Volume Due in the Fall

Two solid years of exhaustive research and analysis, during which the film colony in its every phase was placed under a figurative microscope by Dr. Leo C. Rosten and his Motion Picture Research Project, will culminate this fall in the form of the first of a three-volume series which Rosten is now writing under grants from the Carnegie Institute and the Rockefeller Foundation.

Rosten told BOXOFFICE he expects to have the initial volume in his trilogy completed this spring, to be published probably in September by Harcourt-Brace. He has closed his Hollywood headquarters and retired to a San Fernando Valley retreat with a carload of data, charts, facts and figures from which the books are being shaped.

The work has been delayed, Rosten explained, for since last July he was appointed to the national defense commission as Hollywood representative and has devoted considerable of his time since to that work, in addition to his research project. As a matter of fact, he is due in Washington, in about six weeks for further defense program conferences, which means his other work will again be tabled for some time.

First to Personalities

First volume in the series will be devoted to the people of the motion picture colony —the salaries they earn, the jobs they hold, their outlook on life. In essence, Rosten points out, it will be a sociological analysis—"but a readable one," he adds.

Volume Two will concern the industry itself—the economics of picture-making, size of the various film corporations, financial records, the growth of organized labor, and exhibitor problems. Third in the series will treat of the actual completed motion picture—what goes into it, what must be left out of it, censorship regulations both domestic and international, the Production Code, the influence of the film throughout the world and other aspects.

Rosten plans to headquarter here until the work of correlating and writing his material has been completed. A sociologist, he is also noted as the author, under the pseudonym of Leonard Q. Ross, of "The Education of Hyman Kaplan," a series of humorous sketches first contributed to the New Yorker and then compiled in book form.

Averting All Doctoring—

When O. Henry Briggs made his first visit to Hollywood since his election to the presidency of Producers Releasing Corp., local employes of the company tendered him a "red apple" reception. Here is the lineup of PRC producers who tendered their chieftain some brightly polished Washington apples—left to right: T. H. Richmond, Sigmund Neufeld, Jed Buell, Briggs, E. B. Derr and John T. Coyle.

Drama to the Fore; Westerns, Comedies, Then Musicals

Unadulterated dramatic offerings, ranging from mysteries and stories of adventure to aviation melodramas, hold the dominant position in the lineup of product to come out of Hollywood's motion picture studios during the next three-month period. Sharing the second ranking position are the ever-reliable westerns and comedies, with musicals bringing up the rear of the procession.

Dramas to be produced include:

Monogram—"The Million Dollar Mystery" and "Trail of the Yukon." Warner—"Dive Bomber." Metro—"Washington Melodrama." Paramount—"Aloma of the South Seas," "College Mystery" and "Forced Landing." Republic—"The Lady From New Orleans." Twentieth Century-Fox—"Man Hunt." RKO Radio—"Before the Fact" and "Water Gypsies." Universal—an untitled Richard Arlen-Andy Devine co-starrer. Sol Lesser—"Strange Victory." Argosy (for release by Walter Wanger through United Artists)—"The Eagle Squadron." David O. Selznick—"Jane Eyre."

Among the westerns are Columbia's "Texas" and "North of the Lone Star;" Warner's "The Bad Men of Missouri;" Paramount's "Pioneer Woman," and Monogram's "Tumbledown Ranch in Arizona" and "The Pioneers."

"Little Miss Muffett" and "Buy Me That Town" are Paramount's contributions to the comedy slate. RKO Radio has "Tom, Dick and Harry" and "True to Form." Universal will launch "Oh, Charlie," and Hal Roach is preparing "Niagara Falls."

In the musical category are Metro's "Lady Be Good" and "Smilin' Through." Paramount lists "Birth of the Blues;" Republic will roll "Rookies on Parade," and 20th Century-Fox is preparing "Miami."

Cartoonists Prepare For New Bargaining

Having launched its collective bargaining fight against Walt Disney Productions, Inc., by filing an "unfair" complaint against the cartoon studio with the national labor relations board, the Screen Cartoonists Guild is now preparing to open bargaining negotiations with two other production units—Walter Lantz and Screen Gems. SCG members at the Disney plant met to elect unit officers, then participated in a general meeting with other SCG personnel, at which it was revealed a contract covering working conditions and wage demands is already being drafted for submission to Disney executives. The NLRB is not expected to set a hearing date on the SCB petition against Disney, however, for about three weeks. Disney's plant is charged with maintaining a "company" union, the Federation of Screen Cartoonists, and of refusing to open bargaining negotiations with the SCG, although the latter claims a majority of the approximately 600 Disney employes.

Check Extras' Earnings

Before taking any steps toward eliminating so-called "casual" extras from the industry in accordance with recommendations of the producer-Screen Actors Guild standing committee, the SAG and Central Casting Corp. are making a check on extras' earnings. These figures, expected to be complete by March 1, will be used as the basis of any pruning of extra lists, deemed necessary to aid the currently serious unemployment situation.

Screen Publicists Guild has appointed a new negotiating committee, headed by Jerry Breitigam, to meet with producers concerning revisions which the organization is seeking in its five-year contract with producers. It particularly desires changes in clauses pertaining to vacations and severance pay.

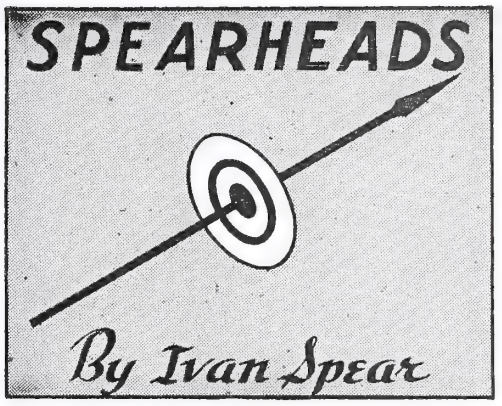
Affiliated Property Craftsmen, Local 44, IATSE, is seeking the aid of the IA international in its current negotiations with producers, in which it is demanding a six-hour minimum call, improved wages and working conditions.

Laboratory Technicians, Local 683, IATSE, has forwarded a draft of its proposed new producer contract to the IA international for approval before submitting it to producers. New pact calls for a guaranteed 36-hour minimum week, improved working conditions and a 10 per cent wage increase in all classifications.

90-Minute Airshow For Greek Cause

Paced by all the trappings usually associated with a gala world premiere, Hollywood's film industry united with the radio world to participate in one of the most extensive benefit efforts staged to date when a 90-minute broadcast was unfurled February 8 at Grauman's Chinese Theatre on behalf of the Greek War Relief Fund. NBC and the Mutual network aired the show, which tied into similar broadcasts emanating from London and Greece. More than 2,000 spectators filled the theatre, paying an average of $10 per seat, the entire proceeds going into Greek War Relief coffers.

Spencer Tracy presided and Jack Benny and Bob Hope shared the master of ceremonies chore. Performers included Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden and Ann Rutherford of the "Hardy Family;" Tony Martin, Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck, Melvyn Douglas, Charles Laughton, Clark Gable, Merle Oberon, George Raft, Ronald Colman, Groucho Marx, Madeleine Carroll, Frank Morgan, Dick Powell, Alice Faye, Reginald Owen, Charles Holland, Shirley Temple, Carole Lombard, Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and many others. Louis K. Sidney of M-G-M produced the broadcast and Meredith Willson conducted the music.



Meantime the British American Ambulance Corps held a benefit premiere of "London Can Take It" and a French film, "Of Human Passions," at the Esquire Theatre in Hollywood, with proceeds going into its coffers for the purchase of field ambulances for the British forces.

French War Relief Association held a Valentine benefit ball at the Biltmore Hotel, with Carmen Miranda among the film headliners appearing on the program.

Production is scheduled to start early in March on "Let the Rafters Ring," to which British members of the film colony are contributing their services and revenue from which will go to Britain and American charities. Frank Lloyd will wield the megaphone on opening scenes, to be shot at RKO Radio, with Madeleine Carroll, George Sanders, Charles Laughton and Jessie Ralph to face the cameras. RKO Radio will distribute the film at cost.

Buy Van Druten Play

Warner has acquired screen rights to "Old Acquaintance," Broadway play by John Van Druten. Olivia de Havilland is tentatively set for a top line.

RARELY, if ever, have so many production, distribution, exhibition and exploitation mistakes been wrapped up in a package. The reference is to the "Spook - Week - With - a - Double-Terror-Show" program which just closed at the Paramount Theatre, Los Angeles. "The Mad Doctor" and "The Monster and the Girl," both Paramount productions, were dualed. Presumably exhibitors in other cities are being urged to book the same double-chiller bill.

The ultimate Patsy in the error-laden situation will be Ellen Drew. For months that personable young lady has been hailed by Paramount publicists as one of the star discoveries of the century. Reams of copy have been released touting her talents and the great plans the company has for her film future. Miss Drew does photograph well, has considerable acting ability and, with the proper careful handling, could probably go places. She was given the top feminine acting spot in both of the horror features, either one of which bits of miscasting was sufficiently dangerous to jeopardize her career.

Then, to make doubly sure of ruining her popularity, the powers-that-be book the two films as a single unit—a handicap which few players could overcome, even if they were exceptional features, each with entirely different subject matter. A fan would have to be rabid, indeed, to want to see his or her favorite starred in both pictures on a double bill; and, to date, Miss Drew is a favorite with comparatively few ticket buyers.

Incidentally, "The Monster and the Girl" was produced under the title, "D. O. A.," and as such was intensively publicized for nearly a year—finished and shelved. Suddenly it emerged with a new name. Only those with a close touch on the Hollywood pulse knew it to be the same picture.

If Bill Boyd ever decides he is tired of playing Hopalong Cassidy in the films, he should be a cinch for radio offers following his appearance on a recent Charlie McCarthy-Edgar Bergen airshow. Another Hollywoodian to display suprising poise and magnetism before a coast-to-coast microphone was Producer David O. Selznick when he received a kudo on DeMille's Lux Theatre program.

Students in advanced dramatics at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., named Bette Davis' portrayal in Warner's "The Letter" the year's outstanding screen performance.

Doesn't that make the annual Academy balloting and dinner a trifle anti-climactic and superfluous?

Studio executives who are constantly on the lookout for new screen material would do well to spend a little of their time further considering Orrin Tucker, the orchestra leader who made his film debut in Paramount's "You're the One." Tucker has looks, personality and a singing voice, and displayed remarkable competence as an actor in his first camera appearance. In addition, he and his orchestra rate near the top among popular music fans—a factor which would certainly add lustre to his boxoffice draw.

BALLYHOODLUMS: Whenever a trade item appears stating that someone is "dickering" for a story with somebody else, which properly "might" be considered as a "possible" production for such-and-such a producer, it's a cinch that all of the principals are clients of Dave Epstein, guess-agent de luxe. Witness the following vague venture into the improbable: "Jack Oakie is negotiating with Howard Estabrook for rights to a comedy skit taken from Estabrook's three-act play, 'The Grady Family,' produced in 1914 by Klaw and Erlanger. Oakie wants the sketch for a contemplated South American tour."

Hysteria, Horror, Horses

Another starvation week confronted Hollywood's hungry reviewing brigade. There were no groceries and only four meager offerings to feed the souls of the esthetes and the maws of the boys and girls who write on string. Of the quavering quartette, Hal Roach's "Road Show" for United Artists release was an easy best.

There have been innumerable screwball comedies about people who were allegedly sane—but this is probably the first one in which the leading characters are admittedly zanies. The action in the Arnold Belgard-Harry Langdon-Mickell Novak script, from Eric Hatch's novel, gets under way in a nut house and gets nuttier as it progresses. For the customers who relish their humor in the broadest possible vein, with gags and slapstick predominating, there are no limits to the number of laughs it will furnish. Roach, who both produced and directed, evidently had the early-day screen funfests—which prevailed before Art came to the industry—firmly in mind when he made it; and, properly merchandized, the film should come through with a handsome revenue record. Adolphe Menjou, in the topline, justifies that casting by garnering most of the laughs, with Patsy Kelly and Charles Butterworth pressing him for the honors. Carole Landis and John Hubbard carry the romantic leads acceptably.

Further in the non compos mentis classification was Universal's "Meet the Chump," which would undoubtedly smash all existing boxoffice records, if squirrels bought theatre tickets—for it is nuttier than a dime's worth of peanut brittle. Just how much human patronage it will attract is, however, problematical—for its customers must be limited to those who can take their humor raw, crude and unrefined, and are not too exacting as to cast. The original story by Hal Hudson and Otis Garrett, and the script by Alex Gottlieb, take up where all previous screwball comedies left off, resorting to most of the tried-and-true gags found in such offerings since the days of Mack Sennett and incorporating a few of their own creation. Edward Cline's direction reflects his early training as a master of broad comedy. The vehicle is reasonably funny in spots, dull in others, but on the whole should serve satisfactorily wherever mirthful support material is desired. Hugh Herbert so completely dominates the cast that the work of the supporting players passes almost unnoticed.

The chills were supplied by "The Monster and the Girl," second of its ilk to be unfurled by Paramount within two weeks. It cannot hope for universal patronage or acclaim, but should find takers in profitable quantities among the horror fans, who almost undoubtedly will consider it a treat. The original script by Stuart Anthony has plenty of suspense and a bumper crop of murders which should be sufficient to sate the appetites of the most avid of chill-seekers. Adequately mounted as to production trappings, the feature is enacted by an able cast, topped by Ellen Drew and Robert Paige, and was given competent direction by Stuart Heisler. In supporting spots are such established menaces as Paul Lukas, Joseph Calleia and George Zucco.

As racetrack features go, 20th Century-Fox's "Ride, Kelly, Ride" measures up to expectations. Obviously it was designed for the action houses and Saturday matinee trade and has the necessary qualifications to please in those situations. It isn't pretentious enough, however, to secure or even expect bookings in more important spots. The cast is uniformly satisfactory, but lacks anything in the way of selling names—with the one possible exception of Eugene Pallette, who supplies the comedy. William Conselman jr. and Irving Cummings jr. contributed the script, adapted from a Peter B. Kyne story, and Norman Foster directed for the Sol M. Wurtzel production unit.

Robert Northmore replaces Blythe here.

Unsettled Weather Aids Grosses in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY—Unsettled weather conditions may have added to the good patronage enjoyed by local theatres this week. The Intermountain area is experiencing a wide variety of weather with Montana, usually bitter cold during January and February, reporting weather like spring.

A holdover bill was reported at the Victory, which is double feature, one picture being "Prairie Schooners" and the other "City for Conquest." "Philadelphia Story" was in its second week at the Studio after its initial week at the Centre.

Holdovers Rival New Ones In San Francisco Runs

SAN FRANCISCO—The best the first runs could do this week was hold their own—or worse. "Long Voyage Home" opened at the United Artists but could do no better than a bit above average. "Kitty Foyle" did the same in its second week. A couple of fourth-weekers, "This Thing Called Love" and "Comrade X" managed to garner considerable patrons despite the fact that they have been on Market Street for a month. The followers of "Maisie" helped the Warfield do average business.

"This Thing Called Love" Heads Good L. A. Week

LOS ANGELES—Top hit of a generally prosperous week in the first-run houses was "This Thing Called Love," booked with "Remedy for Riches" in a day-date run at the RKO Hillstreet and Pantages theatres. Extended runs included "Cheers for Miss Bishop," continuing a normal draw in its third week at the Four Star, and "High Sierra," coupled with "She Couldn't Say No," dipping slightly under average in its second stanza, day-date, at Warner's Downtown and Hollywood.

Their Own "Premiere"—

Heading the parade of screen cowboys, Indians and stage coaches which preceded the recent opening of the Hitching Post Theatre on Hollywood Blvd. in Hollywood were "Arkansas Slim" Andrews, Betty Miles and Tex Ritter, Monogram cowboy star. All three are appearing in "Ridin' the Cherokee Trail." New theatre is the first in the film city devoted exclusively to screening western fare.

Anti-Ascap Plaint Not Yet Complete

LOS ANGELES—As yet uncompleted is the bill of complaint which Albert J. Law, as general counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, announced last week he will file in federal court here against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers seeking to kill the "dual scoring" charge which exhibitors now pay for the privilege of screening films containing Ascap music.

Spokesmen for Law declare the attorney, a former department of justice deputy, has uncovered several "interesting" new angles in the projected anti-Ascap suit, which are being incorporated in the complaint. No specific explanation of them is, as yet, available, however.

The fight will be based on the contention that it is unfair for showmen to be forced to pay scoring charges to distributors on films in which there is Ascap music, and then are compelled to pay another charge direct to Ascap to screen the production.

SEATTLE

RUBINOFF arrived this week with his $100,000 fiddle to do a concert under the auspices of a local club. Lots of free space in the papers and good tie-ups but biz was lukewarm. Along comes Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne to the Met appearing in "There Shall Be No Night"—just a couple of small newspaper ads and a complete sellout for the entire showings . . . Radio station KIRO will open its new spot on Vashion Island early in May. The Federal Communications Commission recently granted increase in power to this station jumping from 10,000 to 50,000, making it the most powerful in the northwest.

Chang Hung Sang and Mon Lei Fong, Chinese acrobats appearing at the Palomar, have only been in this country three weeks. Both are unable to speak English. This couple decided to be married so Jack Sampson, publicity ace for Sterling Theatres, with the aid of an interpreter, sold them the idea of a stage wedding. For the first time on any Seattle stage a real Chinese wedding was performed. The Palomar did extra biz, the audience witnessed something different, and the happy couple were handsomely repaid.

Mike Newman, Columbia publicity demon, spent a few days here campaigning "This Thing Called Love." Picture opened at the Jensen-von Herberg Liberty . . . Basil Gray, business agent of the Stage Employes Union, Local 15, states that the Lunt-Fontanne engagement at the Met furnished work for 21 stage employes and also 40 other theatre workers in the front of the house.

Word from California tells that Bob Gumm, formerly of Cinema Screen Service of this town, died and was buried in Fullerton . . . Joseph Monahan, local head of the American Arbitration Ass'n, is now settled in his new offices in the Marion Bldg. and waiting for business.

Jim Hone, executive secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Washington, Idaho and Alaska, was host at a luncheon honoring H. M. Richey, assistant to W. F. Rodgers of Metro. At the table were Mike Barovic of Tacoma; Gene Groesbeck of Enumclaw; Fred Mercy jr. of Yakima; Morry Saffle local head of Metro, and Paul Westlund, B. F. Shearer, L. O. Lukan, Leroy V. Johnson, and J. von Herberg all of Seattle.

George Mitchell of National Screen Service is handing out the cigars. It was a boy who has been named Stephen Gerald . . . Lois Jones, until recently with the Paramount gang in Des Moines, Iowa, has joined the local office of Metro on Seattle's Row . . . L. J. McGinley, branch manager for Universal here, and Slats Wilson of the Portland exchange, off to a Chicago convention . . . B. F. Shearer announces that the Tower Theatre Corp.'s new house in Bremerton is coming along ahead of schedule.

Heaton Randall, manager of National Theatre Supply, out by plane for New York to attend a meeting of national managers . . . Joe and Dot Cooper celebrating their 13th wedding anniversary . . . Bill Duggan jr., local Monogram manager, back from the trip through Washington . . . Barclay Ardell, manager for Altec, after a business trip to Salt Lake and Denver has enjoyed a two weeks vacation in Los Angeles accompanied by Mrs. Ardell . . . The Northwest Film Club party for Valentine's day featured "various mistakes in double billing" . . . Eddie Lamb, branch manager of RKO, over to Bremerton to help with the grand opening of "Convoy." The theatre was "armed to the teeth" and business was a new record.

Herb Royster, in charge of theatre operation for Mrs. Pulver in Lewiston, Ida., here for a couple of days representing the Lions Club, of which he is president, in Lewiston . . . Peter Higgins back from Los Angeles where he was called by the death of his father . . . Harry Davidson of Port Angeles in the hospital here for an operation on his nose caused by an injury in a baseball game years ago . . . Lynn Peterson over from Bremerton and telling his newest story . . . Dorothy Mercy and Marian Walton off to Los Angeles.

Hal McLeod in from Portland and greeting old friends on the Row . . . Concrete work has been completed on Jay Twe's new theatre in North Bend and he is planning on opening March 16 . . . Bill Evans of Centralia in town for a day . . . Senior and Beryl Mercy back to Yakima after a vacation trip to Hollywood and other California spots . . . Mr. and Mrs. Will Hoffman, brother-in-law and sister of Kathryn Brobeck, here from Lewiston, Ida. . . . M. A. Ellsworth, who has been attached to the Universal office here, has returned to California . . . Ted Wilson of Leavenworth on the Row for the first time in three months . . . Bob Scott of the West Coast Candy Co. in Portland cracking up a truck but escaping injury.

Last Rites in Fullerton For Robert E. Gumm

FULLERTON, CAL.—Services, followed by burial at the Loma Vista Cemetery, were held here for Robert E. Gumm, 57, former operator of the Brea and La Habra theatres. Gumm was Chicago branch manager for National Theatre Supply for several years, and later manager of the NTS office in Indianapolis. He opened the Cinema Screen Service in Seattle in 1934, then came to California and purchased the Lomita, Brea and La Habra theatres, which he sold in 1940. His widow and a son, Richard, survive.

DENVER

FRANK H. (RICK) RICKETSON, division manager for Fox Intermountain Theatres, was re-elected president of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club at that organization's annual meeting in clubrooms at the Cosmopolitan Hotel. Other officers include Joe H. Ashby, first vice-president; Robert Hill, second vice-president; Henry Friedel, treasurer; Ross Bluck, secretary, and Albert J. Gould, counsel. Directors include the officers and William Agren, A. P. Archer, Buzz Briggs, Duke Dunbar, Jack Langan, J. J. Morgan, Dr. John Zarit and Robert J. Garland. The executive council includes Ricketson, Ashby, Hill, Friedel, Bluck, R. J. Morrison and Mickey Gross. The club hopes to bring at least one world premiere to Denver this fall. Ted Halmi and John Denman were named to care for the public relations angle, with their first activity being the starting of a monthly bulletin for members.

John Henry Bock, 22, booker for Gibraltar Enterprises' theatres, died in a Denver hospital as a result of influenza and complications. Services were in Denver.

Dave Cockrill, manager of the Denham, in an ad in the papers, offered not only to refund money to any person who failed to get their money's worth out of seeing "Hard-Boiled Canary," but agreed to give them passes for some future attraction.

Connie Rose, salesman for Monogram, is making the Colorado territory in a new Oldsmobile . . . Claude Graves, now operating the Coronado in Albuquerque, plans to build another there, to seat 900, and hopes to have it open by July.

Charles Klein of the Black Hills Amusement Co., Deadwood, S. D., is receiving congratulations on the birth of a baby daughter to Mrs. Klein at St. Lukes Hospital Monday . . . Robert Hill, Columbia exchange manager, is recovering from a flu attack.

Ed Mapel, manager of the Gem, in town a few days, then back to the coast to get Mrs. Mapel, who is recovering in a hospital from the effects of an auto accident . . . For the first time in years the opening policy at the Kiva has been changed. Instead of opening at 10:30 the time now is 3 p. m.

J. J. Goodstein will reopen the Lincoln Park Theatre March 1. The house was so named when it was done over recently because of its proximity to the Lincoln Park housing project, which will shelter more than 350 families.

The Coppel Amusement Co. will reopen the Mora Theatre at Mora, N. M. The house was closed a few weeks ago because of a booth fire. Using portable equipment the resident manager will operate in Mora, Wagon Mound and Pecos, N. M., a total of five days a week.

John Bertalero, one of the partners in the Black Hills Amusement Co., Deadwood, S. D., has been called to duty in his capacity of captain in the National Guard, and he will leave soon for maneuvers in Louisiana.

J. T. Sheffield, owner of the Sheffield-Republic exchanges, was in town a couple of days conferring with Gene Gerbase, manager, and others at the local exchange. He left for Hollywood by way of Salt Lake City, where he also has an exchange.

"U" Conventionettes

CHICAGO—Delegate who traveled farther than anyone to attend the three-day Universal convention at the Blackstone was Harold Dudoff, manager of Universal Pictures, India, Ltd., Bombay. Dudoff, sporting a healthy Indian tan, arrived in this country February 4 after traveling 30 days. Before leaving for New York on Tuesday, he said he would probably remain in this country two or three months.

First of the contingent to leave the convention were the newsreel boys, Tom Mead and Joseph O'Brien, and Comptroller E. Walsh. They left on Sunday, the second day of the convention.

A. J. "Andy" Sharick, studio sales contact, and F. T. Murray, manager of branch operations, got up beautiful foyer display of the new Universal product which caused much favorable comment. Display was in large reception room of the Grand Ballroom where all meetings were held. Sharick and Murray worked on display almost the whole night preceding the initial meeting on Saturday morning.

One placard which had the boys talking, simply had the following words: "Boys, You're in Business—N. J. Blumberg."

Much favorable comment heard anent the company's slogan: "Universal Pictures, the Exhibitor's Insurance Policy for 1941-42."

Milton Feld, studio executive, was unable to get to Chicago until the second day of the convention. Joe Pasternak was unable to make it because of the press of duties on the west coast. He had his address put on transcription. Delegates heard talk at final session.

John Joseph, director of advertising and publicity, who started here in Chicago, spent spare time visiting old cronies. One person he saw was the popular Daily News sports editor and dramatic critic, Lloyd Lewis.

A Quartet Relight After Remodeling

CHICAGO—At least four Chicago theatres have opened within the last couple of weeks after extensive remodeling jobs. They include the Oakley, Ken, Rockne, and the Lyric.

The Oakley, a 1,000-seater, had a gala reopening on Tuesday, about $40,000 having been spent on improvements. Lester Retchin, who sold the Howard to B&K about eight months ago, is now operating it. His son, Sheldon, is managing. Young Retchin was formerly with Warner Bros. in San Francisco where he was employed as a booker and junior salesman.

The Ken, operated by Bennie Banowitz and John Landis, opened on Saturday. The Rockne until recently was known as the Ambassador.

Regional Follows "U" Convention

CHICAGO—Following the three-day national convention of Universal here, February 8-10, at the Blackstone, the first of the regional meetings was held at the same hotel under the chairmanship of William J. Heineman, western sales manager, on Wednesday. Exchange managers and salesmen in the districts headed by E. T. "Peck" Gomersall, who headquarters in Chicago, and J. E. Garrison, who headquarters in Kansas City, attended the initial regional confab.

Following the meeting Heineman was scheduled to leave Thursday morning for New York and then planned to fly to Los Angeles on Sunday night. On Monday night he plans on going to San Francisco where another regional embracing branch managers and salesmen from the six key western cities is scheduled to be held Tuesday, February 18, at the St. Francis Hotel.

Heineman told BOXOFFICE that insofar as he knew there would be no additions made to the Universal sales force. He did say that one or two replacements might be made to the present staff.

Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager, was scheduled to hold similar regional meetings in Cleveland, Philadelphia and New Orleans. He left Chicago last Tuesday afternoon and will probably wind up the regional meetings in New Orleans on Tuesday.

In addition to Heineman and Gomersall, others scheduled to attend the initial regional meeting at the Blackstone last Wednesday, included the following branch managers: M. M. "Manny" Gottlieb, Chicago; Frank Mantzke, Milwaukee; L. J. Miller, Minneapolis; Ed Heiber, Detroit and H. H. Hull, Indianapolis. The aforementioned are all in Gomersall's district.

Salesmen who were to attend included: Chicago—William E. Weinschenker, T. G. Meyers, R. W. Funk, M. C. Brodsky and Al Kent. Detroit—Jack Stewart, Bert G. Tighe and Jack R. Susami. Indianapolis—William H. Sherman and Carl F. Mock. Milwaukee—E. W. Gavin, R. J. Bassett and D. McFadzen. Minneapolis—Harold B. Johnson, A. L. Zacherl, M. P. Halloran, F. E. Abelson and R. H. Stahl.

Will Build Theatre Near Leonard A. Wood Camp

JEFFERSON CITY—The secretary of state's office has granted a charter of incorporation to the Commonwealth Waynesville Corp. of Kansas City, Mo. The company plans to erect and operate a new theatre in Waynesville, Mo., adjacent to the General Leonard A. Wood army camp in central Missouri.

Incorporators are James W. Taylor, Byron Spencer and M. White, all of Kansas City.

Harry Graham Leads Equipment Dealers

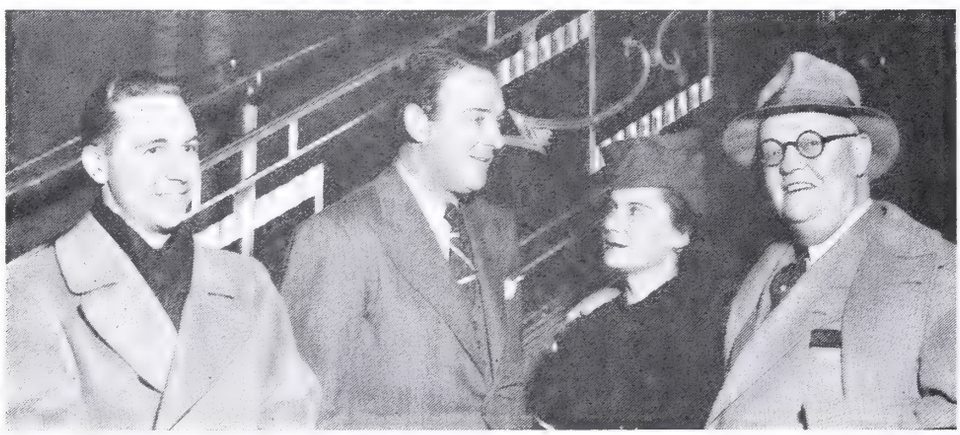
CHICAGO—Harry W. Graham, Graham Bros., Denver, was elected executive secretary of the Theatre Equipment Dealers Protective Ass'n at the three-day meeting held at the Congress here February 8-10 which was attended by some 25 dealers from all over the country. No other officers will be elected by the group.

Purpose of the confab was "to further improvement in services to the theatre trade, to protect dealer-members against unethical practices that are liable to come up during the expected business boom, and to generally encourage exhibitors to look for quality in the selection of equipment and service."

In addition to the dealers, some 25 theatre equipment manufacturers were in attendance.

At the Sunday session a short talk was made to the manufacturers by Graham in which he outlined the intents and purposes of the dealer's association. The manufacturers approved the dealers' plans and agreed to cooperate fully with all suggestions made by dealers. The dealers, in turn, said they would cooperate both with manufacturers represented at the meeting and any other manufacturers with whom they might do business.

Graham said membership in the association is open to all "reliable and dependable" theatre supply houses. A nonprofit organization, the dealer's group will have very nominal dues, according to Graham. He said that to date there are 37 members. National headquarters of TEDPA will be located at 546 Lincoln Street, Denver.



The organization is the first active one to be formed since the old independent theatre supply group disbanded about three years ago.

Dealers attending the three-day convention were, in addition to Graham: Ken Douglass, Capitol Theatre Supply, Boston; Des Moines Theatre Supply, Des Moines; Roy Colvin, Exhibitors' Supply Co., St. Louis; Falls City Theatre Equipment, Louisville; John P. Filbert, John P. Filbert Co., Los Angeles; Ger-Bar, Inc., Indianapolis; Joe Goldberg, Joe Goldberg, Inc., Chicago; M. O. O'Neill, Guercio & Barthel, Chicago; Joe Hornstein, Joe Hornstein Theatre Supply, New York City; Louisiana M. P. Equipment, New Orleans; George McArthur, McArthur Theatre Equipment, Detroit.

Hopeful Fast Time Bill Will Fail in Wisconsin

MADISON—Exhibitor leaders left the hearing on the Murray bill to legalize daylight savings time in Wisconsin before the senate state and local government committee hopeful that the measure will fail to be enacted.

Leaders of the medical profession, sponsor of the measure, met united opposition from the theatre industry, farmers' spokesman and labor in general.

The trade was represented in opposition to the bill by Steven J. Thomas, Racine, of the Wisconsin Association of Stage Employes and Projectionists, who said daylight saving probably would close 200 theatres in Wisconsin; Jack Warner, Milwaukee, of the Theatrical Stage Employes Local Union No. 18, and W. L. Ainsworth, Fond du Lac, president of the ITPA of Wisconsin.

Ainsworth outlined the history of daylight saving legislation and how its adoption has caused confusion.

Caused Mixup Before

On April 5, 1921, daylight saving was voted in Milwaukee despite the protest of farmers and labor, Ainsworth related. It went into effect June 29, 1930 in some industries in Milwaukee, he said, and not in others, thereby causing a considerable mixup. On May 17, 1931, Kenosha cancelled daylight saving time after it had been in effect for a month, he stated.

Chief proponent of the bill was Dr. Ralph P. Sproule, Milwaukee, president of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin.

Besides theatre owners, those indicating their opposition included the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, the Wisconsin Chiropractic Ass'n, the Wisconsin Farmers' Equity Union, the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture and the Milwaukee Gardeners' Ass'n.

Speaking for the State Federation of Labor, which he said has a membership of upward of 200,000, J. F. Friedrick, Milwaukee, recited how Milwaukee had voted 29,890 to 23,133 in favor of daylight saving in a referendum in April, 1921, and two years later had voted 34,515 to 24,769 for its discontinuance.

The Murray bill would repeal the present state law which requires the use of central standard time and would permit municipalities to adopt daylight saving at their pleasure.

Serlin Spurns 5 Offers To Film Smash Play

CHICAGO—Oscar Serlin, producer of "Life With Father," who is in town for the first anniversary celebration of his play at the Blackstone Theatre, told BOXOFFICE he has refused offers from five film companies to picturize his play.

Serlin said he has refused to sell for two reasons. Firstly, he does not want to make any screen commitments until the stage possibilities of the play have been exhausted not only in metropolitan centers but in outlying cities as well. Secondly, Serlin would want complete charge and responsibility for the screen version.

Measles, Scarlet Fever On Rampage in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Roland R. Cross, state health director, reports that the outbreak of measles in various parts of Illinois is rapidly reaching epidemic proportions. In the first five weeks of 1941, a total of 5,512 cases were reported.

The four grade schools in Vandalia, Ill., have been closed by health authorities in an effort to stem the number of scarlet fever cases in that vicinity. Public meetings and social gatherings of all kinds have been curtailed and theatre attendance in the city and adjoining communities has been seriously affected.

Hornick and Zeisler are interested in the Garrick, other local burley.

Jack Eckhardt to Lead Chicago Bookers' Club

CHICAGO—Jack Eckhardt of 20th Century-Fox was elected president of the local Film Bookers Club at the business meeting preceding the third annual banquet held at Henrici's in the Merchandise Mart, February 7. Eckhardt, the son of the 20th Century-Fox branch manager, succeeds Harry James, United Artists.

Other officers elected are: Sam Traynor, Bailey Enterprises, Princeton, Ill., vice-president; Frank Williams, Warner Bros. Theatres, secretary; Jack Wahl, Publix-Great States Theatres, recording secretary; Jack Friedman, Capitol-Monogram, treasurer, and Al Raymer, Indiana-Illinois Theatres, sergeant-at-arms. Russell Hurt of the Alger circuit was chosen down-state representative. All newly elected officers were installed immediately following the banquet.

"Philadelphia Story" Chicago Pace-Setter

CHICAGO—Continuing as pace-setter in the loop is Metro's "The Philadelphia Story," which started its fourth big week at the United Artists Theatre on Lincoln's birthday. Establishing what is believed to be a house record is RKO's "Kitty Foyle" which will have concluded seven big weeks at the Palace on the 18th.

Detail for week ending February 6:

Apollo—Son of Monte Cristo (UA) 85
This will be last feature in Apollo for perhaps a year. "Fantasia" opens the 19th.

Chicago—This Thing Called Love (Col), plus stage show 125

Garrick—Second Chorus (Para't) 80
Picture was shifted here for second loop week after fair week at Chicago.

Oriental—Lady With Red Hair (WB), plus stage show 110
Stage show headed by Larry Adler accounted for great deal of business.

Palace—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 140
Record-breaker for Palace. Looks like seven weeks.

Roosevelt—Flight Command (M-G-M) 130
Started off very good.

State-Lake—Escape to Glory (Col), plus stage show 115
Sally Rand and Jackie Heller bringing in most customers.

United Artists—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M) ... 155

Stage Attraction Helps "That Girl" Into Lead

MILWAUKEE—The Riverside show with "Where Did You Get That Girl?" on the screen and Lou Holtz, Lola Lane and Arline Judge on the stage, proved the week's best money getter. Runnerup was "Flight Command" and "Keeping Company" at Fox's Wisconsin.

Detail for week ending February 6:

Palace—Go West (M-G-M); Angels Over Broadway (Col) 125

Riverside—Where Did You Get That Girl? (Univ), plus Lou Holtz, Lola Lane, Arline Judge on stage 150

Strand—This Thing Called Love (Col); Hudson's Bay (20th-Fox) 110

Warner—The Son of Monte Cristo (UA); No, No, Nanette (RKO) 130

Wisconsin—Flight Command (M-G-M); Keeping Company (M-G-M) 135

Competition Does Not Mar Indianapolis Grosses

INDIANAPOLIS—Despite stiff competition from Sonja Henie's Ice Revue, business was generally excellent, with the first week of "Gone With the Wind" getting a terrific gross.

Detail for week ending February 8:

Alamo—Under Texas Skies (Rep); One Frightened Night (Univ) 80

Circle—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Remedy for Riches (RKO), 2nd wk. 100

Indiana—Mr. and Mrs. Smith (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 110

Loew's—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M) 250

Lyric—Meet the Missus (Rep), plus Gray Gordon's Orchestra on stage 95

Individual Demands For Lower Rentals

MINNEAPOLIS—Acting individually, Twin City independent exhibitors will visit local film exchanges to demand an immediate reduction in film rentals, according to announcement by S. G. Lebedoff, Northwest Allied leader.

The decision to make individual calls upon the exchanges was reached at a Northwest Allied meeting when speakers declared that the exhibitors are faced with "emergency conditions" which threaten their very survival.

"In selling current contracts, film companies promised Twin City exhibitors tremendous prosperity this winter and rentals were based on such promised prosperity," declares Lebedoff. "Instead of such prosperity there has been a steady and continued decline in grosses and now most exhibitors are unable to operate their theatres profitably. Bankruptcy looms in a number of cases.

"Northwest Allied doesn't feel that the exhibitors alone should carry present burdens. It contends that the distributors also must bear a share of the load. For the industry's sake, it behooves distributors to grant relief to sorely beset exhibitors caught in the web of declining income and rising costs."

Exchange Heads in Stand Against Reduction Demand

MINNEAPOLIS—Film exchange heads here are refusing to recognize Northwest Allied's contention that exhibitors in the territory are entitled to immediate downward readjustment of their film contracts because of a shift of population away from Minnesota and the Dakotas to other sections, due to greater industrial activity elsewhere arising from the government's defense program and the sending to the south and west of conscripts, volunteers and National Guardsmen.

The film companies are evading the issue, it is charged by Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary.

However, Ben Blotcky and W. H. Workman, Paramount and M-G-M exchange managers, respectively, assert there is no "problem." They take the position that the situation does not call for a general revision of film prices. If, however, any exhibitors are able to show they are suffering hardships from current developments, the branch managers explain they are willing to consider the cases individually.

See Deluxer Losing

MINNEAPOLIS—Heavy operating losses are believed to have been sustained by the independently operated 4,000-seat Minnesota the past two weeks with its policy of big and expensive stage shows and independent films.

Larsen Into Sabetha

WEBB CITY, MO.—Larry Larsen of this town has taken over the Royal Theatre at Sabetha, Kas.

Inactivity Marks Response To Arbitration Service

MINNEAPOLIS—Exhibitors in this territory certainly are taking their time in seeking arbitration. Although nearly two weeks have elapsed since the inauguration of arbitration to correct alleged trade inequities and since the arbitration office has been opened, not one complaint has been filed yet with Sheldon M. Ostrott, in charge, he says.

There have been many claims on independent exhibitors' part during recent years anent zoning and clearance and inability to obtain product and it was expected that there would be a rush to seek relief through the arbitration setup under the consent decree. The fact that exhibitors are taking their time, however, may indicate that the troubles are not so serious as they have been made to appear.

Heads of the Minnesota and the Esquire theatres had announced their intention to go before the arbitration board in a fight to compel servicing of the houses by the major exchanges.

Decree Counter Bill Near Introduction

Minneapolis—Completion of the anti-consent decree bill, which Northwest Allied will sponsor in the Minnesota state legislature, still awaits the return to Minneapolis of E. L. Peaslee, Northwest Allied president, and Harold Field, chairman of the legislative committee, according to Fred Strom, executive secretary. They are expected back this month. The measure would knock out the groups-of-five selling plan and compel companies to sell their entire season's output as at present. It also would make forced selling of shorts illegal.

Nebraska Film Bills Come Up Feb. 20

LINCOLN—First airing of Nebraska film bills in the legislature since their introduction last month will come February 20, according to the docket of lawmaking activities posted this week.

On that date, Sen. E. M. Neubauer's double-barrelled attack on the industry, L. B. 115 and L. B. 116—putting 10 per cent tax on theatre tickets, cigarets and cosmetics, and assessing an annual $1,000 tax on distributors, with an extra $1 per reel for each one distributed in Nebraska—will come up for hearing.

Time for discussion of Neubauer's other film bill, the divorcement measure which demands complete separation of producer-distributor and exhibitor relations, has not been set yet.

Sol J. Francis, Monogram franchise holder in Omaha, has thus far been the spearhead of the Filmrow opposition to the distributor tax. He has been organizing the effort against the bill which would toll Omaha exchangemen about $17,000 annually.

Sound Surveyors Find Theatres Cooperative

KANSAS CITY—Some runs already have been made on local theatres, in the survey of representative houses planned by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Theatre operators are reported lending their theatres readily for the resarch work, and personnel are contributing their time and help for the necessary operations outside of show hours. The survey work is being done by the district personnel of Altec Service Corp., which is cooperating in other districts as well as the Kansas City area in the program of the Research Council.

The objective of the survey is to discover the "intangible" influences of various factors on the quality of performance-sound to the patron's ear.

Claims Lack of Product Is Closing Esquire

MINNEAPOLIS—Because of asserted inability to obtain satisfactory film product, the Esquire, Bennie Berger's loop sure-seater, will go dark next week indefinitely. The house was dark a short while ago when Irving Gillman, also handicapped by product difficulties, turned it back to Berger.

Berger has announced his intention to go before the arbitration board in an effort to compel the servicing of the house by major exchanges.

Kansas-Missouri AAA Office Functioning

KANSAS CITY—The motion picture arbitration tribunal of the American Arbitration Association, for the Kansas City district, was set up and ready to go, February 1. Offices at 807 Waltower were furnished, John H. Brink, clerk, was at his desk, his secretary was at hers; the telephone, Victor 0812, was installed. Up to February 11, however, the arbitrators for this district had not been announced here; no complaints had been filed. But inquiries had come in by telephone, on the decree; with promises that the callers would visit the office personally, for answers to questions. The tribunal here serves a territory including the western half of Missouri and all the state of Kansas.

Daylight Savings Bill Will Meet Opposition

MINNEAPOLIS—A bill providing for daylight saving throughout the summer in the state's three largest cities, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, has been introduced in the legislature. It will be opposed by exhibitors as a menace to the theatre business.

Good Showing Against Counter Attractions

KANSAS CITY—Pulling against counter-attractions on several nights that had large attendance, first-run theatres made on the whole above-average showings in receipts. A spectacular fashion show, plus Ted Lewis with band and floor show, plus dancing, drew 6,000 at 75 cents to the Municipal Auditorium one night. Yet "Gone With the Wind" at the Midland had a big second week for its return engagement, people being turned away at matinees, two days being bigger than corresponding days of the first engagement a year ago. The second week of "The Santa Fe Trail" at the Orpheum also did well; and W. C. Fields in "The Bank Dick" put the Tower ahead of average.

Detail for week ending February 8:

Esquire—Buck Privates (Univ) 110
Midland—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M), 2nd wk. 190
Newman—Victory (Para't) 90
Orpheum—Santa Fe Trail (FN); She Couldn't Say No (FN), 2nd wk. 105
Tower—The Bank Dick (Univ), plus stage show 120
Uptown—Buck Privates (Univ) 100

Good Product, Weather Push Up Omaha Takes

OMAHA—First-run exhibitors reported an upward curve in boxoffice takes, due to good product and good weather. Mild, clear winter has been a factor in helping grosses generally.

"Philadelphia Story" was the town's best in a single-feature policy at the Omaha. "This Thing Called Love," dualled with "Escape to Glory," was so successful at the Brandeis the bill was held a second week. The fact that the Brandeis bill was given a "banned" rating in the local Catholic paper apparently failed to hurt business.

"Hudson's Bay" and "Night at Earl Carroll's," at the Orpheum, suffered from the competition.

Detail for week ending February 8:

Brandeis—This Thing Called Love (Col); Escape to Glory (Col) 150
Omaha—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M) 150
Orpheum—Hudson's Bay (20th-Fox); A Night at Earl Carroll's (Para't) 110

"Mr. & Mrs. Smith" on Dual Des Moines' Strongest

DES MOINES—"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" gave the Orpheum one of the best Sundays it ever had without a stage show, and outgrossed "Kitty Foyle," one of the top boxoffice attractions of the season. Tri-States Theatres Corp. jerked Wanger's "The Long Voyage Home" after four languishing days at the Paramount and out-Foxed adversity with a double 20th-Century return bill of "Jesse James" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Detail for week ending February 11:

(Average is 100)

Des Moines—Come Live With Me (M-G-M); Captain Caution (UA) 80
Orpheum—Mr. and Mrs. Smith (RKO); Case of the Black Parrot (FN) 140
Paramount—The Long Voyage Home (UA); Dancing on a Dime (Para't) 50

"Flight Command" Plus a Stage Show Minny's Top

MINNEAPOLIS—The Orpheum, with Kitty Carlisle, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis and others on the stage and "Flight Command" the screen attraction, did the business of the town this week. However, "Santa Fe Trail" also gave a fine boxoffice account of itself and "Philadelphia Story," in its third week, continued to click, too. Anita Louise and Jackie Heller headed the Minnesota stage show.

Aster—Romance of Rio Grande (20th-Fox); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO) 90
Century—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M), 3d wk..100

Minnesota—Bowery Boy (Rep), stage show.... 80
Orpheum—Flight Command (M-G-M), stage show. 125
State—Santa Fe Trail (FN) 100
World—Long Voyage Home (UA) 90

Film Selling Campaign Details Developing

MINNEAPOLIS—Details of the Northwest Allied spring selling campaign to revive the boxoffice in this territory will be ready within the next fortnight, according to Cliff Gill, head of the Welworth circuit advertising and exploitation department, who is working out the drive of which he is the author. Collaborating with him on the proposition is his employer, E. R. Ruben, Welworth circuit owner, and Fred Strom, Northwest Allied executive secretary.

The idea back of the campaign will be to sell the public on the idea that motion pictures today are better than ever in quality and it is proposed to exhibit a succession of the best films available in every theatre. All theatres and circuits in the territory, along with the film exchanges, will be asked to cooperate.

Lincoln Accords Crown To "Philadelphia Story"

LINCOLN—"Philadelphia Story" mopped up on the available money here in the week just past. Weather was okay, just nippy enough to favor going out of the house for entertainment, but demanding that the entertainment be indoors. "Honeymoon for Three" was a weakie, and "Foreign Correspondent" was in second place on coin.

Detail for the week ending February 7:

Colonial—Secret Valley (20th-Fox); Gaucho Serenade (Rep) split with Fargo Kid (RKO) and Flying Deuces (RKO) 105
Lincoln—Philadelphia Story (M-G-M).....160
Nebraska—Slightly Tempted (Univ); Here Comes the Navy (WB).....105
Stuart—Honeymoon for Three (WB)..... 90
Variety—Face Behind the Mask (Col); Bowery Boy (Rep) split with Case of the Black Parrot (FN) and Meet the Missus (Rep)....100
Varsity—Foreign Correspondent (UA).....130

Business Reports Grow Brighter in Territory

KANSAS CITY—Reports of business from areas of the Kansas City territory hit hard by weather, were enough better to talk about. Side roads in many districts still are rough, some still look impassable, keeping farmers in. But a few days of sunshine have done much to promote both traffic and spirits. The prospects for crops, because of greatly increased moisture, are called good, and the year is looked to bring good business, irrespective of any effect of defense activities. Communities that have no immediate connection with army or supply programs, are promised a little more active flow of money from the regular causes.

LINCOLN

MRS. AVIS RUTHERFORD, who has been Capitol boss Bob Livingston's secretary, office manager, and chief cashier for many years, came within an ace of going out of circulation last week. She was accidentally overcome by gas in her apartment, and was found on the floor unconscious.

Eugene Shanahan, manager of the Nebraska, has gone and done it. The girl who was Evelyn Hanson is now Mrs. Shanahan . . . Bill Messmer, announcer on the J. H. Cooper-Lincoln Theatres Corp. radio show, is taking Mary Jayne Inglis, of Cambridge, Ia., to wife on February 23.

Sherman-was-right Dept.: Second Lt. Roger Emrich, former doorman at the Varsity, was ordered to Camp Murray, Wash., February 12, so married Doris Picking, February 9, so he could take her along . . . The Widows & Orphans Protective Ass'n met this week—Sol Francis, Sol Yeager and Alvin Hendricks taking Mrs. Barney Oldfield to dinner.

Bill Scholl, campaigning for "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," painted some signs on Lincoln's sidewalks, unaware he was breaking the city ordinances in doing it. Cops called Howard Federer on it. He promptly threw full blame for the affair on "some out-of-town guy who came in and did it without sanction of the theatre." Then, right in earshot of Bill, he started describing the culprit. Bill left town so fast a pajama leg was waving unpacked from his suitcase. Now, he'll be glad to know, it was all a gag, and the police NEVER were looking for him.

Bob Huffman and Eugene Shanahan were in court defending themselves against lottery charges for operation of the weekly quiz giveaway, "Abner Askit's Basket."

Gabe S. Yorke, the Will Hays gent, is convinced this is a lucky country. He had been around Hollywood for years and at times recently was hard pressed for connections in his line. He came to Lincoln when Sam Goldwyn shut down to stage the premiere for "Cheers for Miss Bishop," changed jobs at the end of it without missing a day, and has had seven jobs offered him on the coast during his two months in the midwest.

Active Social Season For Twin City Tent

MINNEAPOLIS—An all-out Twin City Variety Club social season got under way this week with a Valentine party in the clubrooms. One of its features was instruction in the rhumba.

The next big event on the calendar is an "Old Rush Daze of '49," scheduled for the Grand Ball and Francis I rooms at the Hotel Nicollet Saturday night, March 15. A "hot old time" is promised. Net proceeds will go to the club's charity project, the Milk Fund.

Saturday night, May 10, has been set for the second annual ball and supper dance. The place, of course, will be the Nicollet Hotel. Chief Barker Ben Blotcky promises that every effort will be made for an even more elaborate and entertaining affair than last year.

Luncheons Monthly

In the meantime there'll be "Kings for a Day" luncheons in the clubrooms once a month and Saturday night open houses, with stage celebrities in town the club's guests at these latter affairs. "Hy" Chapman and LeRoy J. Miller, Columbia and Universal branch managers, respectively, will be the kings for the first of these, at 12:15 p. m., Monday, February 17. Anita Louise and Jackie Heller, among others, were guests at last Saturday night's open house and it's hoped to have the Merry-Macs and Bert Wheeler this Saturday.

Although the club's membership drive has just started, eight new members already have been enrolled. They include Harold Kaplan, St. Louis Park theatre co-owner; Gordon Wilcox and Verne Sessler of Paramount; Jules Steele, St. Paul Pioneer Press film editor; Ben Edelman and Shayel Hochman, U. S. Air Conditioning Co.; Dick Stahl and Pat Halloran of Universal, and Roy Wyland of the American Rug Co.

Friday Night Parties Launched by Variety

KANSAS CITY—The first of the Friday night "Get Together" parties will be held at the Variety Club quarters here Friday, February 21. Kings and Queens for the evening are C. A. and Lila Schultz, O. K. and Inez Mason and Robert F. and Helen Withers.

A buffet dinner will be served at 7:00 p. m. Cost for the evening's entertainment is 65 cents per person. Tickets may be obtained from the hosts. It is open to members and their wives, or sweethearts.

The social schedule will be maintained through the year, a different group of Kings and Queens officiating each Friday night.

Start by Allender

NORTHOME, MINN.—Leo Allender has started work on a new theatre here. It will replace his showhouse which was destroyed by fire.

KAYCEE

MR. AND MRS. FRANK W. NELSON (he is maintenance engineer, H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc.) are to take a honeymoon trip southwestward; to include a week at Hotel El Rancho, Gallup, N. M. This stay at the world-famous hotel is the wedding gift of H. J. Griffith. The bride, as Hazel Kirkbride, had been secretary to Griffith for some time to December 1, when she became secretary to Jack Gregory, credit manager at the Kansas City district office of Altec. She will resume her work at Altec after the honeymoon trip. They were married January 31.

On the Row—E. P. Michaels, Braymer, Mo.; D. A. Gifford, Louis, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Griefe, Windsor, Windsor, Mo.; Floyd Hill, Drexel, Drexel, Kas.; Ross McKay, Mrs. McKay and son, all of whom help operate their several theatres in Kansas and Missouri; Bob Gorham, Liberty, Horton, Kas.; M. B. Presley, Globe, Savannah, Mo.; A. N. Brown, Roxy, New Franklin, Mo.; George Nescher, Rio, Valley Falls, Kas.; C. S. Laird, Madison, Madison, Kas.; Ralph Larned, Paramount, La Crosse, Kas.; Bill Forrest, Rex, Joplin, Mo.; A. J. Simmons, Plaza, Burlington, Kas., on vacation, going to California; Frank Anderson, Family, Kirksville, Mo.; Ken Winkelmeyer, Casino, Boonville, Mo.; F. B. Baker, Ritz, Ashland, Kas.

Tom Edwards, Ozark, Eldon, Mo., drove up in a new Packard . . . Chet Borg, Warner booker, is reported recovering very satisfactorily from a serious operation . . . Doc Hatcher and Paul Rienke, Fox-Midwest managers respectively for the Madrid and the Vista, have exchanged theatres.

G. C. Parsons, branch manager, and J. E. Garrison, district manager, went to the Universal convention in Chicago . . . It is the Avenue Theatre now, formerly the Garrett, West Plains, Mo., Dean W. Davis, owner, reopening with popular prices. William Castner manager.

Improvements in the Ellinwood, Ellinwood, Kas., include leather-cushioned seats and aisle lights . . . It was guessed that M. B. Baker, Ritz, Ashland, Kas., whom people on the Row were glad to see again, hadn't been in for two years.

Standings in the Bill Scully drive at the Universal office here were on last report Kleins-Kellys-Kanes, giving the three leaders . . . Jerry Zigmond, manager of the Newman, with Mrs. Zigmond and their small daughter, Jerry Sue, are vacationing at Miami Beach.

John Eifert, house manager at the Newman, in charge while Manager Zigmond is taking a vacation, became a father February 11; a girl, Mr. and Mrs. Eifert's first child—who was named Patricia Louise.

Names have been selected for two boys born into film industry families recently: The son of Irwin W. Tucker, manager of the H. J. Griffith Fayette at Fayette, Mo., was named Irwin William Tucker jr. Melvin Neal is the name of Gene Snitz, Columbia booker's son.

Jean Fiske, secretary to W. O. Williamson jr., Warner branch manager here, will be absent for a few weeks, having suffered a broken ankle . . . Irving Zussman, president of Metro Premium Co., spent a weekend in Kansas City, with Herschel Kaufman, local manager.

MINNEAPOLIS

WALTER WINCHELL Department: Cliff Gill, Welworth circuit publicity and exploitation head, will have another kid to read the funnies to in the not too distant future. Late next summer is our guess . . . That was considerable of an impromptu floor show staged at the Twin City Variety Club last Saturday night by Lowell Kaplan and Gilbert Nathanson. Very clever, these young men. Any time these boys decide to quit their present occupations in show biz a future undoubtedly awaits them on the burlesque stage. Speaking of Lowell Kaplan, he and Charlie Rubenstein, as co-chairmen of the Variety Club's entertainment committee, were the envy of all the other male members—having the beautiful Anita Louise in tow. Miss Louise, Jackie Heller, Rufe Davis and some of the other performers appearing at Minneapolis theatres were the club's guests at an open house that Saturday night.

The RKO bunch is in Chicago this week attending a sales meeting . . . Morrie Abrams, popular and efficient exploiteer, long with M-G-M, on a special Welworth circuit assignment currently . . . Hale Kavanaugh back on the publicity job at the Minnesota Theatre where he occupied the same post during the previous 26 weeks operations under Gordon Greene . . . At a special Valentine party at the Twin City Variety Club this Friday, members learned the rhumba.

Merry-Macs, from the films, into the Minnesota the ensuing week and Bert Wheeler, the screen star, at the Orpheum with Earl Carroll's "Vanities." Merry-Macs hail from Minneapolis . . . Plenty of the Filmrow gang in evidence at the Golden Gloves boxing tournament at the Auditorium, including that red-hot fistic fan, Harry Dryer, independent exhibitor, who is bacheloring it during his wife's absence in Florida; Billy Elson, etc. . . . Abe Kaplan, popular independent circuit owner, back at his apartment in the Oak Grove following recovery from a minor operation . . . A demand for $5,000 for the week is said to have had both Orpheum and Minnesota theatres balking on a Pat O'Brien personal appearance engagement.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Walt Lower, Moose Lake, Minn.; Carl Sather, Annandale, Minn.; Leo Allender, Northome, Minn.; "Doc" Reynolds, Princeton, Minn.; Jack Heywood, New Richmond, Wis.; Don Buckley, Redwood Falls, Minn., and Harry Knoulton, Elsworth, Wis. . . . Bill Grant, Warner city salesman, leads the local office and is in fifth place in the district in the Sears sales drive . . . Florence Oppheim, National Screen secretary, vacationing in and about the Twin Cities . . . W. H. Workman, M-G-M branch manager, visited Duluth accounts.

Bill Grant over the flu and back on his Warner city salesman job . . . R. C. LiBeau, formerly Paramount district manager in this territory, brought his successor, Allen Usher, here to turn the office over to him . . . Charlie Jackson, Warner salesman, in an auto collision with a milk truck. His new and beautiful car was almost completely demolished, but he escaped injury . . . Air travel is great for branch managers. Art Anderson, Warner branch manager, flew the entire 900 miles to Bismarck, N. D., and back to contact an exhibitor in one day. The entire trip consumed only seven and a half hours.

Allan Cummings, home-office head of M-G-M exchange operations, a visitor . . . Fire next door to Warner exchange scared employes . . . Universal here screen "Buck Privates" for the Andrews Sisters, appearing at the Orpheum, and they gave their approval to the picture in which they play prominent parts . . . L. E. Goldhammer, RKO district manager, visited the Omaha branch . . . Arch Zacherl, Universal salesman, sufficiently recovered from a heart attack to leave the hospital and go home.

Bill Soper of Universal finally has learned to obey traffic rules after receiving tags on three successive days . . . W. C. Gehring, 20th-Fox division manager, a visitor . . . Ed Ballew, United Artists exploiteer, here in connection with the invitation screening of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which also brought its producer, Richard A. Rowland, to Minneapolis. A beautiful story magnificently done, was the verdict of those who saw it. There are tears, laughs and romance in this life-story of a school teacher and every woman and most of the men will enjoy it. Martha Scott turns in a masterly performance in the title role.

Lowell Kaplan, Welworth circuit booker, downed by old man flu for a few days . . . 20th-Fox held an invitation screening of "Western Union" and everybody present gave the film their approval . . . Alex Quam, Twin City Variety Club assistant steward, has gone to Louisiana with the Minnesota National Guards . . . J. D. Gowthorpe of Paramount's theatres in town . . . Earl Tetting, publicity man, handling the Minnesota Theatre managerial post since Livingston Lanning's departure.

Welworth circuit's "Big Six" campaign got away to a flying start with almost all houses flashing full page ads, especially designed window cards and a whole pack of exploitation. Business is reported as responding nicely . . . Efforts are being made to confirm a report that Manny Goodman, valance and banner man, has been transferred from this territory to the Cleveland district . . . While most of the boys were buying heart-shaped candy boxes for their sweeties, Mickey Coen, the M-G-M salesman, was observed shopping for dolls . . . Bess Crane, the Welworth secretary, sunning in Florida.

Scene at the 620 Club: Harry Katz, the burlesque impresario, and Jackie Heller, the stage personality from the Minnesota Theatre, looking at the "soundies" a dime a subject and sipping soft drinks . . . Our choice for the title of White Collar Girl in the local show business is Dorothy Crane, Welworth lass . . . Willard Greenleaf, assistant to Art Ableson in the Devil's Lake, N. D., theatres, in Rochester, Minn., for a Mayo checkup. Harold Bartlett, Art's man in Langdon, N. D., in Fargo for clinical treatments, too, with Ralph Watson pinch-hitting for him at the Roxy.

Look-alikes: Helen Hillman, the "Kitty Foyle" of the Harry Dickerman circuit offices, and that young lady who sells pumpernickle and pastrami in a bakery at Hennepin off Seventh Street. Also the Altec wizard, Maxwell, and the rotund bartender at the Stockholm cafe.

DD Roared; After All She Had to Tell 'Em

Des Moines—Three weeks ago Des Moines PTA club women gathered in solemn conclave at the Fox screening room to fire questions at and hear answers from H. M. Richey, assistant to Bill Rodgers, general sales manager for Metro.

Wind blew, snow fell, ice froze . . . and Mr. Richey stood the club women up.

Last Monday Richey finally arrived. He would be glad to face the women Tuesday night.

Tuesday morning dawned fair. The sun was shining, the breeze was gentle and telephone wires were humming as the women arranged another solemn conclave for that evening.

Then another wire hummed—with orders for Mr. Richey.

Tuesday afternoon Mr. Richey whizzed —out of town by plane.

DD roared . . . She had to tell 'em they'd been stood up again.

HOLLYWOOD—Marion Parsonnet will adapt "Washington Melodrama" for Metro from a story by L. Du Rocher Macpherson. S. Sylvan Simon will direct for Producer Edgar Selwyn.

DES MOINES

PONDERING over a good lead for this column, we decided that Paramount's cockroaches were about the most fun at the moment . . . you've probably all met up with one of them in the hallway, the screening room or at the drinking fountain . . . they're friendly little guys, always interested enough to stop and give a gal the once over on her way through the first door to the right.

Iowa Film boys are sporting a bevy of new Chevie trucks . . . watching the "Thief of Bagdad" the other eve, we had to keep apologizing to ourselves for thinking "with the light brown hair" everytime someone in the pic said "Genie." DD telephoned Sunday and swapped us five words with Harry Gottlieb for a few with & Co. . . . DD wanted to tell & Co. that Suzanna Foster would be late getting in DM and we'd not be able to have dinner with her, which we hadn't known anything about anyhow.

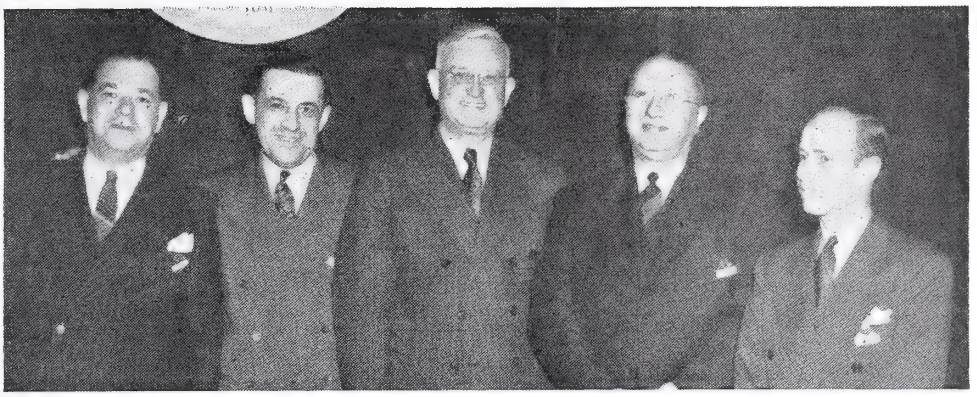
Before the show Monday, we dined with Suzanna, Dolly Loehr, Cliff Lewis, Bill Lansburg, a Spanish teacher whose name we cannot spell, and a Miss Peacock (fine company for "The Hardboiled Canary") . . . We listened to the sassy Suzanna for a while and then abandoned her to that adequate duo, Lansburg & Clayton while we opened our mouth and stuck our foot into it with the Senorita . . . We never dreamed that she who was living off the fat of the Land of Liberty (you're welcome, Gabe) wouldn't relish our glowing account of Mexico's inferiority. We even got to the awful point of pitying the poor Indians (who are too numerous in Mexico to vanish like the accommodating American species) before we noticed she didn't like it.

Cliff Lewis and Bill Lansburg have a trip to South America up their sleeves . . . BOXOFFICE & Co. tried to horn in as a couple of interpreters (they've had two Spanish lessons) but Lewis and Lansburg say you can't horn in on a couple of horner-inners . . . Anyhow, Bill's pledged to fetch us back one of those little wooden barrels of brandy which we didn't have enough money left to buy when we got back to Monterrey (BOXOFFICE didn't know & Co. was practically broke and embarrassed him no end by ordering one of those little barrels which he would have had to pay for with the dough needed for our last three tankfuls of gasolina).

A man named Tyler showed a color film, "Iowa, the Hawkeye State," to an enthusiastic audience at the Fort Des Moines, Monday, February 10 . . . It's a conservation pic and available to organizations interested, we understand. Lou Patz objects to the base canard that the roll is called at National Screen every morning . . . Does he want us to think they haven't even got a permanent roll yet? Slater O'Hare, Manfre's zone three peddler, came back from Rochester with a new diet which is guaranteed to subdue untamed ulcers.

Mildred Begley, Julia Brooks, Ann Rose and George Campbell (mascot) did the Paramount Polka at Wakonda for the amazed Beta Sigma Phis . . . Ruth Slater of Chariton, Iowa, is the new Paramount booking steno replacing Lois Slater, her sister . . . Lois sent to Seattle, Wash., and is working for Metro there. New product was discussed at the Para't sales meet last Saturday with Smith, the new western division sales manager replacing C. M. Reagan . . . Ralph LiBeau attended from Kaycee . . . Ray Copeland was back for a short visit last week.

"Car of scenery . . . 60 people . . . seven changes . . . revolving stage . . . Frisco fair" . . . That's just Emil Franke mumbling about the stage show he has coming up at the Orpheum . . . He says it'll feature a top-notch count, on the stage and at the boxoffice. Harry Holdsberg's trying astrology at the Des Moines. Frank Atherton Clark, who's been doing film page copy for & Co. at the R&T, has shuffled off to the R&T syndicate department, so Sterling Bemis will share the chore now.



Mebbe Bernie Evens won't like all the things this Sunday's Register magazine section tells about Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton, but if he looks back in his files, he'll find he was asked for a yarn . . . When it didn't show, the R&T staff checked up on the romance being portrayed by Olivier and Leigh and found a lot of goings-on the Hays office wouldn't have liked.

The man with feet out on the aisle, elbow on knee, chin on hand and pencilled frown on a high forehead at the Susanna Foster personal appearance was A. Grandioso Stolte . . . Art apparently was gobbling in the vocalizing just like the Canadian muskies gobble his red-eye wigglers. Louis Hellborn blew into town Monday, dropped off a few stills on the cut-rate "GWTW," and blew out for Fort Dodge . . . Lou admits he's stacking up big mileage totals these days, but says it'll be a lot more fun when the grass gets green and the ice gets gone.

Ralph Hayden wore his mittens to the Golden Gloves tournament . . . Neil Adair and the missus spent the weekend kicking up their heels in Minneapolis . . . Bob Newman was home with an attack of appendicitis . . . Jean and Dot Post went to Omaha to see Sonja Heinie . . . Everybody (and us) is waiting with bated breath to see Captain Marvel out-super Superman . . . Rud Moran has dressed Republic up with new Venetian blinds and a new janitor.

Clifford Nolte gave his g. f. a diamond . . . Now he'll probably be able to stall off the fatal moment for a year or so more. Can anybody figure out how Grace Simons keeps that little black hat with the long red feather cocked atop her head? Emil Franke says he'll give "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" board'n room from now on . . . And he can afford to. The Claytons were supposed to meet the Frankes at the Kirkwood smorgasbord last Sunday . . . The Frankes forgot all about it . . . P. S. So did the Claytons!

Joe Fieldman's wife, Mildred, will spend about five more weeks in the hospital with that broken shoulder.

Wage Campaign for "Decent Movies"

OMAHA—Exhibitors in Nebraska and western Iowa are wondering what effect, if any, will come from a "decent movies" campaign now being waged by The True Voice, Omaha weekly Catholic newspaper.

Omaha's Catholic population is about 50,000 persons, over one-fifth of the city's total population. In addition, many communities in Nebraska and western Iowa are heavily Catholic and the newspaper has some circulation among those communities.

For some years the publication has carried a weekly rating of the first-run product being exhibited in Omaha. They are divided in four classifications: Class A, unobjectionable for general patronage; Class A-2, unobjectionable for adults; Class B, objectionable in part; Class C, condemned.

During the last year the newspaper has been running, in addition to the ratings, the total list of films classified by the Legion of Decency. The latest is an editorial printed this last week by the newspaper under the heading, "Decent Movies." The editorial says:

The producers of pictures in this country seem to be impervious to the demands made by decent people that decent pictures be produced and presented for their patronage.

Scanning the bills in Omaha's leading downtown theatres last weekend, it is more shocking than amazing that not one picture is listed by the Legion of Decency as unobjectionable for general patronage! A holdover is in Class C (condemned).

These columns have before and again affirm the belief that Catholics want decent movies and that if producers won't give Catholics decent pictures to which a father and mother can take their children, then these Catholic mothers and fathers will have to seek other forms of recreation and entertainment.

Hollywood learned a lesson some few years ago regarding promiscuous pictures. As a result of the Legion of Decency it became quite evident that pictures should be cleaned up. They were. Distasteful plots and scenes were abhorred by the producers because they saw in their continued production of filth and dirt a certain diminution in revenue. Apparently these producers are beginning to forget the warning given by the inauguration of the Legion of Decency. That must be why Omaha downtown theatre managers had on their bill during the last weekend shows which were classified only as A-2 or B or C class.

If the producers of pictures had heeded the warning of the Legion of Decency, no Class A-2 or Class B or Class C pictures would now be available for the local purveyors of pictures.

If these local purveyors have to run Class A-2 and Class B, to say nothing of Class C pictures, then the Catholics of this community will have to boycott theatres. That seems the only logical way to bring the matter to the attention of the local dealers.

The pastor who went from room to room in his school last week denouncing the film shown at one of the downtown theatres is to be highly commended. What one pastor has done others will do to insure the decency of the entertainment the children of their schools seek.

May we urge parents and teachers to scan carefully the "movie lists" as presented in "The True Voice" each week and patronize only those theatres which give to their patrons decent pictures. The judges of the Legion of Decency are no prudes—neither are we—but those things which our Divine Saviour and His holy church regard as sacred and holy cannot be made light of just for a laugh and for the insurance of substantial return on the investments of those who have mocked Christ and the teachings of His Church.

.....AW, SHUCKS!.....

From the Tall Corn—By KEN and RENE CLAYTON

THERE'S a ready market for a budding author along Filmrow. The gals there want Ralph Green's biography. They're contending that a volume on the Dodge Adonis from Fort Dodge would classify as tops in the literary field.

Kate McKee from Osceola hustled in, picked up her film, and hustled right out again.

The bookers got a look at the McGregor scenery we hear so much about last week. Ed Nordhus was miles from home and miles from his Strand Theatre at McGregor, but he'd steered a true course to the High Street houses of chance. (Round and round the movie reel goes; whether it's a hit, nobody knows).

Happy Henry, the always good-natured Rehfield from Bloomfield, spread cheer among the exchanges, too. And he ordered a little screen cheer for his Iowa Theatre patrons, also. Bob Malek of the Grand and Iowa at Independence and the Uptown at Gladbrook, was around.

Due back Thursday with a face of many colors (if we can believe chamber of commerce reports of southern sunburn) was Joe Kinsky, Tri-States district manager in Davenport, Rock Island and Moline. Joe does business with California, but when he got two weeks to himself, he up and hiked off to Florida.

Lillian Rittenmeyer spent Friday afternoon at the Casino Theatre in DM in a booking conference with Paramount's James Foley.

Sure, and if to Mike it really was that Pat told all those stories you've heard, then last week it must have been, for the Roth was in from Anita.

Ray Walters, formerly of the Washington in Davenport, is reported opening a house in Grand River, Ia.

You wouldn't believe (and rightfully) that Grand River reminded us of Ed Mason's power boat story, so we won't tell you it did. We've been dying to tell you that the sage from Osage claims to be the only living boatician who ever tied up auto traffic with a motor boat. He did it by staging such a hair-raising exhibition on the Des Moines river here that cars lined up for blocks on both sides of the Locust, Walnut and Grand avenue bridges while drivers ogled.

Ralph Olson paddled the yarn our direction, but he didn't tell us that Ed's reported to have bought the boat from Joe Lilly. In fact, it has been said that Ed almost took the boat back—or vice versa . . . Yeah, Joe's one of the Lilly brothers—undertakers.

GLADYS ANDRESS, who runs the theatre at Ponca, Neb., had a birthday during January and celebrated by taking a trip to California. Her husband, Roy Andress, also had a birthday during January and accompanied her on the trip to California. At least that's the story Harold Neumann gave us! . . . Bill Wink, Warner booker, has a birthday this week which he plans to celebrate by jumping into the lead in the current Warner drive.

A. P. Sorenson is getting along swell with the new Vogue at Beresford, S. D., according to our scouts . . . Leo Doty, United Artists office manager, is celebrating a wedding anniversary . . . Charles Lee, exhibitor at Parker, S. D., is quite a hunter, especially during the pheasant season . . . It's a birthday soon for Regina Molseed, RKO booker, and for Bill Miskell, Orpheum manager.

A bouquet to J. Erle Kirk, owner of the North Star here in Omaha. A youngster in North Omaha liked the pictures but because of a cast on his leg had trouble getting into a theatre seat. Exhibitor Kirk had a special last-row seat fixed up for the lad, who is brought to the theatre before regular opening time. He sees the show in comparative comfort . . . Thanks to Jake Rachman of the World-Herald for this story.

Ed Delaney, exhibitor at Marcus, Ia., has the flu but it didn't keep him from being mighty proud of the fact his daughter is growing like a weed. Delaney will be voted a member of the self-admiration society formed by B. A. Tomte of Paramount, Charlie Lieb of Metro and BOXOFFICE . . . More birthdays: Harold Martin of Warners and Joe Rosenberg . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Noffsinger, Madison, Neb., were on Davenport street this week.

Ralph Green, exhibitor from Minneapolis, Minn., has purchased the Park Theatre at Sioux City, Ia., from Odes A. B. Hilton, according to reports here. Green also has houses in Iowa and Wisconsin . . . E. C. Lund, Glud Theatre at Viborg, S. D., has had the flu but is feeling better now, thank you . . . It's a second wedding anniversary for Bill Ruthhart, Metro booker, and a third w. a. for Jack Kolbo, now manager of a Tri-States house in Davenport, Ia., and former manager of the Omaha here.

"Shack" Shackleford, Columbia peddler, has been getting the rib this week, mostly from Private Joe Smith of RKO about a fancy haircut. Look who's talking about fancy haircuts, a man who soon will be wearing his strictly military . . . Olin Fosse, Community, Ridgeway, Ia., has a birthday this week, near the 60 mark . . . Byron Pulis, arbitration board secretary, reports "no complaints" filed yet. The board has been in operation two weeks now.

Sid McArdle, United Artists booker, plans to build a home this summer and he thinks he'll have another announcement ready about June . . . Mons Thompson, exhibitor at St. Paul, Neb., chopped one of his fingers while chopping wood.

Outlook Encourages Kansas, Missouri

KANSAS CITY—A somewhat better year is expected by exhibitors in western Missouri and Kansas although the picture at this date looks a little spotted.

Crop conditions in Kansas are the best they have been in ten years, with plenty of moisture. They are not so good in western Missouri. Some localities were hauling water up until a few weeks ago, which means the subsoil is pretty well dried out.

The defense program is expected to help business generally to some extent, and to that extent will be reflected at the boxoffices of most theatres. However, direct effect will be felt principally by theatres in towns like Wichita where aviation is booming and employing large numbers; Junction City, Kas., near Ft. Riley, where thousands of workmen now are employed; Kansas City, which expects a bomber plant and a small arms factory, which will put some 15,000 to 20,000 back to work; near Rolla, Mo., where there will be an army camp.

More Seats Offset Hopes

One factor is that already in those spots, or near them, new theatres are being planned or already are built. One of the boxoffice deterrents of the past few years has been too many theatres and the ease with which new capital for more seats can be secured is demonstrated by the rapidity with which new theatres are gotten under way the moment business picks up in a locality. There is little doubt, therefore, but that part of the beneficial effect from spurting payrolls in localities directly benefiting from the defense program will be offset by too many seats.

In other towns and cities, exhibitors do not expect much benefit this year from defense spending. As a matter of fact, they say it may hurt business some. For instance, Frank Weary, who operates the Farris and Vogue at Richmond, Mo., near Kansas City, points out some of the young men will go in the draft; some of the town's workmen already have been attracted to Kansas City and elsewhere by work on defense projects. Tom Edwards, Ozark, Eldon, Mo., notes the same drift.

Circuit executives, not inclined to go on record by name, still are for the most part, optimistic about 1941. General business, they feel, can hardly help reacting favorably to defense spending, even in so agricultural an area as this. They definitely are counting on more business.

Sentiment with respect to the decree is mixed. Circuit operators are inclined to believe it will help—in that it should mean better pictures, fewer pictures. Independents don't like the decree and doubt it will be of any benefit. Fewer pictures, in the minds of some, will reduce the number of triple and double bills, which should help. Benefit, if such there is, in better pictures, under the decree, will be somewhat offset by increased prices, exhibitors believe.

Nebraska Is Dependent Upon Crop Situation

LINCOLN—Showmen in Nebraska expect 1941, as usual, to be dependent, not on the money being spent nationally for defense, but on the bounty of rainfall. This is an agricultural state, and that's the source of income. A BOXOFFICE check finds showmen of the opinion that the 1940 take and net, approximates that of 1939. At this time, there is no reason to expect it to be greater in 1941.

R. W. Huffman, city manager for the Lincoln Theatres Corp. (J. H. Cooper-Paramount), said it was his finding that 1940 produced higher individual grosses on some big pictures, but the "B's" failed to measure up to the 1939 takes. Result brought the books to a level.

Howard Federer, general manager of Nebraska Theatres, Inc., an ally of the L. L. Dent-Westland Theatres of Colorado and Oklahoma, found his product position bettered a great deal in 1940 and the tone of his "A" house operations was improved. Like Huffman, he found the load of toting "B" house operation heavier.

It was an echo when R. R. "Bob" Livingston, whose Capitol is independent and the major subsequent, was quizzed. He had an excellent year in 1940 and did alright in 1939.

The only real worry apparent on the scene right now is not so much the output of Hollywood to insure grosses, but the prospect of a one cent tax on all tickets sold, regardless of price. Sen. E. M. Neubauer of Orleans, Neb., who tried a previous industry tax sock two years ago, has announced he'll submit such a bill in the present session.

Recreational Committee Formed in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY—A committee representing the various types of commercial recreation and entertainment has been organized in Kansas City, with Glenn H. Park, city recreational director, chairman, for "service to service men;" specifically, to assist the Kansas City Women Volunteers, Inc., for National Defense in providing information to visiting soldiers and sailors as to "approved" places of entertainment.

The women's organization, of which Mrs. Morton T. Jones is head, operates the information booths at the Union Station and elsewhere, to help service men. The film industry is represented on the committee by E. C. Rhoden, division manager, Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., for exhibitors, and Arthur Cole, Paramount office manager, for distributors.

Lists of commercial dance halls, skating rinks, bowling alleys, and the like presented to the visitors, are to contain no names of establishments that do not have approval of local welfare officials. It is understood, however, that no film theatre in Kansas City is excluded from such approval.

Ken Clayton a Judge in Still Photography Show

DES MOINES—Ken Clayton, roto, magazine and motion picture editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, is one of five newspapermen outside the Los Angeles-Hollywood area to be chosen among judges of the first Hollywood Still Photography Show.

Plus-Minus Attitude In the Twin Cities

MINNEAPOLIS—The show must and will go on—decree or no decree. That's the feeling of the film trade generally here regarding 1941.

Theatres will continue to operate and show pictures much the same as ever and the public will come or stay away, just at present, in the opinion of even those independent exhibitors who are bitterly opposed to the decree. At the same time, there's a considerable difference of opinion as to the new year's boxoffice prospects.

Distributors expect a banner year. With improvement in weather, which has been an extremely adverse boxoffice factor the past two months, with heavy gains in farm income, with benefits gradually trickling to these parts from the government's defense spending and with the improving quality of product, as evidenced by present and impending releases, theatres can't miss, they insist.

Smile on Defense Spending

These exchange heads aver more and more direct defense spending benefits will accrue to the numerous industries in this territory, although they concede these industries are not so numerous and large as those in many other sections. Moreover, they point out, the defense spending will increase purchasing power substantially throughout the nation and that this will mean a greater demand and higher prices for farm products, improving agricultural conditions still further and thus aiding this territory particularly. As far as farm income is concerned, it showed substantial gains last year over the preceding year, as a result of good crops in many districts and heavy government payments, it is pointed out.

Many larger circuit operators feel the same way about the outlook as the exchange heads, but, on the other hand, most of the independent exhibitor leaders, particularly those high up in Northwest Allied councils, are pessimistic over the outlook.

Independents Gloomy

These leaders declare many potential customers of their theatres are moving away from this territory to other industrial sections where, because of increased employment due to greater government defense spending, there are greater opportunities. Moreover, they point out, military training also is taking away many of their customers to camps and encampments in the south and far west.

This territory has received comparatively little benefit and no considerable benefit is in prospect from the defense and military programs, it is asserted.

Moreover, the feeling among these independent exhibitor leaders is that ever-increasing opposition, including bowling, the radio, night sport and other attractions, night clubs, taverns, etc., has taken away many of their customers and will continue to take even more and that they will not be able to win back these lost patrons. Thus, they are gloomy and blue in the face of "growing tax burdens and increasing film and other costs and declining grosses."

Bill in Iowa Would Tax Distributors

DES MOINES—Asked three weeks ago whether the film industry was involved in any legislation pending at the Iowa statehouse, Art Stolte, sage Tri-State district manager, commented:

"No, not yet. They tackle everything else and when they run out of other things they'll start on films."

This week Art's prophesy proved correct. A bill introduced in the Iowa house Tuesday proposed an annual $1,000 license fee on every Iowa distributor of motion picture film and a $1 special tax on every reel of motion picture film shown in Iowa.

Proceeds of the new taxes, except for a small amount for administration costs of the law, would go to the old-age pension fund.

Offered by two Republicans, Harvey Long of Clinton and Elmer E. Cooper of Corning, the bill would give the state tax commission jurisdiction over motion picture distributors and movie houses.

Distributors would be required to pay both the $1,000 annual distributors license or permit fee and the $1 a reel tax on all motion picture film brought into the state for showing. The $1 a reel tax would be levied on all types of film, including newsreels.

Exhibitors would not be taxed, but they would be prohibited from buying or leasing, showing or exhibiting any film acquired in any manner from an unlicensed distributor, or any film on which the special $1 tax had not been paid. The $1 a reel tax would be levied on the film only once.

: A Case of J'ining 'Em :

LINCOLN—Most surprising ad to hit the papers locally in many a moon is that concocted for the Varsity this week on "Mr. and Mrs. Smith"—the idea coming from RKO's publicist Bill Scholl, and seconded by Howard Federer, general manager.

Recognizing the whopper drawing ability of "Gone With the Wind" at the opposition Stuart across the street, this is the way the ad copy ran:

"Believe it or not, we are taking this space advising you to see 'Gone With the Wind,' now playing a competitive theatre. We feel that this picture is a tribute to the entire motion picture industry and was undoubtedly one of the greatest pictures ever made. HOWEVER, we're shouting about our show, too—a pieture we're proud to present, which Redbook magazine calls the most explosive and hilarious comedy of 1941, 'Mr. and Mrs. Smith'."

That makes of "Gone With the Wind" a great leveler. The opposition here, the L. L. Dent allied Nebraska Theatres, Inc., which sponsored the ad, has been fighting tooth and nail with the J. H. Cooper-Paramount theatres for five years. This is the first time they've written into the records on either side anything which amounts to a bow at the waist.

Anti-Music Tax Bill Backed by Allied

Minneapolis — Northwest Allied will back a bill now in the state legislature designed to knock Ascap and its music tax out of the state.

The measure prohibits copyright owners from combining in any manner to issue licenses for the public performance for profit of their compositions. It also would tax gross receipts of all sales and require registration of performance rights and schedule of license prices with the secretary of state.

Homecoming Reception For Susanna Foster

MINNEAPOLIS—Susanna Foster, a young local girl who has made good in the films, staged a two-day triumphant return to her home town where friends and admirers gave her a warm welcome. Together with Dolly Loehr, 14-year-old pianist, who also is featured in Paramount's "Hard-Boiled Canary," she appeared in person at the Orpheum Tuesday and Wednesday. The personal appearance engagement was designed to plug that film.

Bill Lansburg, Paramount exploiteer, came up from Kansas City to handle the Foster and Loehr engagement. He grabbed off considerable newspaper space and arranged a number of effective tieups for the pair.

Foster and Loehr P. A. At Kaycee Newman

KANSAS CITY—Many adults, as well as youngsters took advantage of the opportunity to see, and hear, Susanna Foster and Dolly Loehr in their personal appearance at the Newman Friday and Saturday, February 7 and 8. Miss Foster sang, accompanied by Miss Loehr, and the latter played, in a 30-minute interpolated program Friday evening at 9. Saturday morning, they autographed pictures which had been distributed, with announcements of the occasion, to high schools and junior colleges previously. A committee of Junior College girls met the artists at the Union Station. They went from Kansas City to Omaha, thence to Des Moines; their itinerary including Minneapolis and Chicago. The personal appearance series started in Salt Lake City, including Denver on the way to Kansas City.

Banquet Jennie Smeby

MINNEAPOLIS—Members of the Universal staff gave a banquet for Jennie Smeby, veteran contract clerk, and presented her with a suit case. She has resigned to move to California. Esther Singer replaces her.

Lyons to Des Moines

MINNEAPOLIS—Harold Lyons, 20th-Fox salesman here, has been transferred to the Des Moines exchange. His successor here hasn't been named yet.

Rowland Sees Selling Efforts Rewarded

MINNEAPOLIS—Happy days are ahead for the film industry, in the opinion of Richard A. Rowland, producer who visited Minneapolis in connection with the invitational screening of "Cheers for Miss Bishop," his newest production. Producers' super-efforts to improve their product and exhibitors' harder and more effective work in selling the "better" pictures will bring larger returns all along the line, he believes.

There already are fruits borne from the producers' concentration upon the domestic market and might-and-main striving to raise their products' quality, according to Rowland. Current and impending releases set a new aggregate high for Hollywood, he feels. Moreover, he is confident there'll be no let-down and that the consent decree also will be an influence making for a higher quality average.

"In this connection," he said, "I want to commend Eddie Ruben's constructive proposal to Northwest Allied to unite all branches of the industry in a campaign to sell the public the idea that Hollywood now is turning out the best pictures in the industry's history and then proving the fact. Good films, effectively sold to the public, will never fail at the boxoffice. Motion pictures still provide the utmost in entertainment for the least money and will continue to do so."

Good stories are the mainstay of worthwhile film productions and the most essential ingredients for a first-rate picture, in Rowland's opinion. And Hollywood producers now appreciate this and are devoting the utmost attention to the story side, he asserts.

Shifts by Pioneer Trail Parkinson's Resignation

DES MOINES—Resignation of Marion Parkinson, manager of the Spencer Theatre at Spencer, Ia., to go into business for himself, last week touched off a series of managerial changes in the Pioneer circuit.

Shuffled into the Spencer job by the deal was the Perry Scotchman, Gordon McKinnon, while Cliff Lindblad left the Iowa at Atlantic to take over McKinnon's post at the Perry.

Art Farrell was transferred from the Rapids at Rock Rapids to the Iowa in Atlantic and Lee Beckley, who has been calling the turns in the Frazier Theatre at Spencer now is guiding the Rapids.

Max Facter, head man at the Pioneer circuit offices in Des Moines, is expected to announce the Frazier setup soon.

"Bishop" Is Screened

KANSAS CITY—A screening of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" was held Monday at the Vogue to an invited audience of teachers and club women. A luncheon, attended by Richard A. Rowland, producer, and local theatre executives, followed the screening.

Several Bills Hold Trade Significance

HARRISBURG—Former Governor Earle's "emergency tax program" has been reintroduced in the House by Edwin Winner as the first step toward carrying into effect the financial program of Gov. Arthur H. James. Submitted were eight measures which would raise $184,575,500.

The Pennsylvania general assembly is considering James' budget recommendations of $542,208,797.

Emergency program provides a tax of 2 cents a pack on cigarets, an extra tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline, a 4-mill personal property tax, a 6 per cent corporate net income tax, a tax on bank and trust company stocks, a 10 per cent tax on liquor and a tax on the gross receipts of transportation companies and utilities. The Earle program has stood since its enactment in 1937. Originally there was a state admission tax on amusements, but this tax was discontinued several years ago.

Sunday Sports Bill Introduced

Bills to license Sunday bowling and basketball, provided the voters of a community approve by referendum, were introduced by Representatives John J. Baker, Thomas J. Heatherington and Louis Leonard, of Allegheny County.

Senate "Hot" on Games

State Senator John J. Haluska of Cambria County has introduced no less than six measures of interest to the motion picture industry. These bills include:

S-11: Which would license and tax pinball, hi-score and other games; Referred to the committee on finance.

S-14: Which would legalize Bingo and establish license fees; Referred to the committee on finance.

S-16: This measure provides for a license tax on all coin operated music boxes; Referred to the committee on finance.

S-18: Under terms of this bill theatre Bank Nights would be legalized and 15 per cent of the value of the prize would be payed as a tax within seven days thereafter to the county treasurer; annual fees which each theatre would pay for Bank Night permit would be based on population: Less than 3,000, $600; 3,000 to 10,000, $1,200; 10,000 and more, $1,600; Referred to the committee on finance.

S-20: This bill would license and tax all slot machines; Referred to the committee on finance.

S-96: This Haluska bill would legalize horse racing together with wagering on such races and would establish a commission and license fees; Referred to the committee on judiciary general.

"Dogs" in the House

H-118: Representative Powers has introduced a house bill which would legalize dog racing; Referred to the committee on law and order.

H-22: This is the "plumbers' bill" introduced by Representative Bretherick which would require all public toilets and urinals to be either self-flushing or flushed by foot instead of by hand; Referred to the public health and sanitation committee.

H-79: Representative Reuben E. Cohen's bill would prohibit the recording of any broadcast without the consent of the broadcaster and would prohibit the sale of such recordings; Referred to the committee on judiciary special.

Vote Down Bill to Legalize Bingo

Detroit—The Buckley-Walsh Bill to legalize Bingo for churches and veteran and fraternal organizations has been voted down by the house judiciary committee at Lansing.

Rep. Nelson A. Miles, committee chairman, said that members considered the matter one to be handled by local control.

ITO Defense Tax Questionnaire

Columbus—To present facts and figures in connection with the federal defense tax, the ITO of Ohio is asking exhibitors to submit information on each theatre as to admission price charges prior to July 1, 1940, and those charged today.

Four Bills Vital to The Trade in Ohio

COLUMBUS—There are four bills before the state legislature affecting the industry generally and exhibitors of Ohio specifically. They are:

H. B. 125: This measure was introduced at the request of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio with an eye to future protection. It provides for extension of the scope of the Department of Workshops and Factories, so as to give it jurisdiction over theatres showing "television pictures."

H. B. 240: This measure would eliminate newsreel censorship.

H. B. 246: This measure, similar to the federal wage and hour act, imposes a minimum of 30 cents an hour, with time and a half for all hours in excess of eight per day or 40 per week, for the next five years, after which the hourly rate jumps to 40 cents.

Commenting upon this bill, P. J. Wood, ITO secretary, says: "If it passes, every employer, including operators of theatres, would become subject to the new act regardless of the intrastate character of his business or his present status under the federal setup. Its enactment will certainly add to the operating cost of each and every theatre in the state."

H. B. 271: This measure would make it a felony to possess obscene magazines, literature and motion picture films.

DETROIT—Detroit exhibitors have been visiting the new arbitration office here in increasing numbers for the past week, but up to the time of writing, no formal complaint for arbitration had been filed.

Active interest was shown by careful questions asked by a number of exhibitors, and putting of hypothetical problems that indicated a careful consideration before resorting to this new procedure.

One important conclusion drawn from questions presented by filmites contacting the office, is that a detailed study of the consent decree would answer a number of questions for them. A number of filmites, for instance, have evidently not understood the scope and limitations of subjects for arbitration as established by the decree and have brought up subjects not properly in its field.

One circuit was known to be studying a local situation with a view toward presenting action for arbitration.

Paramount Has Special Two-Branch Meeting

PITTSBURGH — David Kimelman, Paramount branch manager, and members of the local exchange staff, enjoyed a busy day Tuesday when they served as hosts to visiting Paramount representatives from the Cincinnati office. Louis Phillips, home office legal representative, was present to unravel the consent decree for the benefit of the members of the two company branches. Attorney Lee, another Paramount special representative, also was present, and the session was an all-day affair.

From Cincinnati were Joe Oulahan, manager, Mark Cummings, Bob Clark, Bill Meier, Tom Day, Jim Doyle, Jack Rodman, Ross Spencer, Lucielle Leisendecker, Lillian Montague, Mary Hess and Aeolian Green.

"Liberty" Campaign Wins Award for E. L. Merkley

LANSING, MICH.—E. L. Merkley, Gladmer Theatre, has been awarded an Honor Roll Button by M-G-M for his campaign on "Land of Liberty," industry-sponsored feature which the company is releasing.

Highlights of Merkley's campaign included a special screening for the governor of Michigan and his administrative board. A letter from the governor endorsing the film was obtained and published in the dailies. A proclamation was made by the mayor of Lansing. An invitation to both bodies of the legislature was read from each floor.

Fifty newly naturalized citizens were escorted to the theatre by Legion members on opening night and were addressed by one of the city's leading judges. A radio contest on the subject: "What the Land of Liberty Means to Me," was conducted. The Chamber of Commerce cooperated fully and notices were sent to all boy scouts and similar organizations. Local libraries used window cards and arranged historical book displays.

Brandt and Levines To Operate Lake

CLEVELAND—Harry Brandt and Louis and Marty Levine of New York have formed a theatre company to operate the Lake here which they have leased from Warner. The house was to have opened Saturday on a dual bill policy featuring foreign product. Prices are scaled from 33 to 55 cents.

In the east, Brandt operates a circuit bearing his name and also is president of the ITOA of New York.

Son to Pearlsteins

CLEVELAND—A son, named Gerald, was born last week to the Manny Pearlsteins. He is publicity director for Warner Theatres in the Cleveland zone.

On and On Goes "GWTW"

Cleveland—There seems to be no limit to the number of people in this territory who want to see "GWTW." The picture has just completed its third week downtown at popular prices and now is in its fourth week, with no abatement in attendance.

"GWTW" played two big weeks at Loew's State. It moved down to the Stillman where it doubled average grosses in its first move-over week. At $1.10 top, "GWTW" last year played a record engagement of 10 weeks at the Stillman.

Warner Men in Canton Area Hold Meeting

CANTON, OHIO—Warner executives and house managers of the Canton area attended a regional meeting at Hotel Belden here at which the outlook for the spring and summer was discussed along with exploitation of future bookings and other trade problems.

Attending were Nat Wolf, in charge of the Cleveland zone office; Dick Wright, Saul Bragin and E. C. Pearlstein, all of Cleveland; Frank Savage, manager of the Warner, Youngstown; John La Due, manager of the Strand, Akron; Irving Solomon, manager of the Lincoln, Massillon, and Bill Harwell, manager of the Ohio here.

CINCINNATI

PRACTICALLY every exchange on Filmrow was represented at the opening of Carl Roh's new theatre in Cynthiana, Ky., which was a gala occasion. Following a parade by the town band, speeches were delivered by the Hon. Judge McSwinford and every member of the theatre family, including the ushers and "French" Patterson, projectionist and engineer. Completely equipped by Midwest Theatre Supply, the new theatre is modern in all respects. A buffet luncheon and refreshments were served.

The opening of Archie Clemons' newest house at Nitro, W. Va., also promises to be a "super" social event, outdoing even his grand opening at Smithers. Word that Ethel Clemons will supervise the buffet spread, guarantees it will be tops in epicurean feasts . . . M. W. Murphy, pioneer operator, is reported negotiating for a 1,200 *seat theatre in War, W. Va. . . . Max Matz, Colonial and Ryland theatres, Bluefield, W. Va., is vacationing in Florida . . . The office also officially "adopted" Ed, and each week of his absence he will receive a remembrance from the force.

Kay Harris, who appears on WSAI in the "Pogue's Home of the Air" program, will receive a screen test for the new "Tillie the Toiler" series to be filmed by Columbia. The test is on the recommendation of Allan Moritz, Cincinnati Columbia manager.

HOW IS YOUR DEFENSE?

Hundreds of exhibitors who are concerned about increasing their attendance are spending all kinds of money which cuts deeply into their profits. Here is a deal that a wide-awake manager can't afford to pass up:

Maurice Zell, who recently came from California, has a formula that will increase your box office receipts. Results will be definitely better. You will be wondering where all the people are coming from, who are crowding into your theatre, its amazing. Besides, you are not to invest a single penny. If you will send for me there won't be any obligations on your part. I feel sure that it will be the beginning of a long and mutually pleasant business relationship. I shall be glad to see you in your office at your convenience.

"GWTW" Exceptional Draw in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—"Gone With the Wind" is gone in name only. After two very big weeks at Loew's State, it moved over to the Stillman for a third big week and is staying on for a fourth consecutive week playing at the same theatre where last year, at $1.10 top, it held forth for ten weeks. It doubled the average Stillman business last week. RKO Palace patrons are giving their support to the name bands and outstanding stage shows that are following each other weekly. Last week it was Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club Revue augmented by the Mills Brothers, that filled the house, while patrons stayed on to see "Escape to Glory" as the secondary attraction.

Exceeding expectations was the very excellent business of "The Thief of Bagdad" at Loew's State. The run opened with an exceptionally big weekend, and held to a comfortable business during the week. Another hit with the Cleveland public is "This Thing Called Love." A big opening week at the Hippodrome is followed by an even bigger move-over week at the Allen where it stays on for a third week. "High Sierra" came through with comfortable but not outstanding business.

Weather was average winter weather, with snow and ice part of the time. There was no unusual competition.

"This Thing Called Love" Strong Into Third Week

CINCINNATI—"This Thing Called Love," Columbia feature, walked off with the top grosses in Cincinnati in its third week, running ten per cent above any other feature, including first runs. Cold weather and Bingo receipt, which for January exceeded preceding months, retarded motion picture business. "Back Street," Universal feature, opened at the Albee with outstanding business.

Credit Stage Show With Leadership in Detroit

DETROIT—Best business of the week, on a comparative basis, went to the Michigan where "Folies Bergere" stage show drew heavily on masculine attendance. Amazing story of the month is the surprising holdover of "Philadelphia Story" at the UA, which is heading into a fifth week currently, but "positively" won't go further.

Weather has been generally favorable, with marked absence of snow and rain, but fairly cool. Detroiters are still recovering from the flu epidemic, and are not "doing right" by theatre boxoffices, in the opinion of exhibitors, yet.

Detail for week ending February 6:

"Wind" Tops Pittsburgh In Winter's Blackout

PITTSBURGH—Total Winter arrived and the first month of 1941 went into the records as "Black January" as "Gone With the Wind" remained the standout attraction. The sun was visible only 17 per cent of the time during the month. Smoke, fog, clouds and smog showed with snow, snow, rain and snow. Not too many people ventured forth to theatres, although "Second Chorus" and a snappy stage show at the Stanley and "This Thing Called Love," in its second week at the Senator, in addition to "GWTW," were over average when boxoffice receipts were counted. The Columbia comedy was held over at the Senator and "GWTW" was moved into the Warner. "The Thief of Bagdad," in its third downtown week, made a good showing. Details to February 1:

Detroit Party for Lucille and Desi

DETROIT—RKO entertained exhibitors, the press and radio celebrities at a reception at the Statler Hotel for Lucille Ball, who is starred in "A Girl, a Guy, and a Gob," and her husband, Desi Arnaz, who is here for two weeks of personal appearances at the Statler Terrace Room.

Miss Ball said she knew BOXOFFICE by its "bright red cover," and that she read it religiously. Arnaz said he always read it in RKO Vice-President Joe Nolan's office . . . Jim Sharkey, another RKO vice-president, calmly officiated as host, ably abetted by local Office Manager Harry Levinson and Salesman Milton Cohen . . . Charlie Perry, ex-chief barker of Variety, and Mrs. Perry (who was really hungry), plus Irving Goldberg, represented exhibitors.

Dick Osgood of WXYZ and Jimmie Stevenson were among the radio-ites. Press gallery included a cross-section of Detroit's amusement journalism: Ed Lapping, managing editor; Sunday Editor Charles Wagner and Film Critic Walter Stevenson of the Detroit Times. From the Free Press—Frank P. Gill, film editor, and his wife, and the "Town Crier" himself, Jack Pickering; and from the News, Herschel Hart, radio editor; John Finlayson, film editor, and Verne Minge, cartoonist.

Alice Gorham, Bill Hendricks and Ralph Stitt capably represented UDT.

Reorganization of UDT Publicity Department

DETROIT—Publicity department of United Detroit Theatres has been reorganized with Bill Hendricks placed in charge of west side houses under the supervisor, Joseph Busic, while Cliff Brown has been placed in charge of east side houses under supervisor, Asher Shaw. Downtown houses will be handled directly by Ralph Stitt, head of the department. Alice Gorham will continue to handle special publicity.

LOUISVILLE

W. E. CARRELL of the Falls City Theatre Equipment Co. has returned from Chicago where he attended the first convention of the Theatre Equipment Dealers Protective Ass'n held at the Congress Hotel, February 8, 9 and 10 . . . The State, Milltown, owned and operated by R. L. Harned, suffered severe damage by fire which started on the stage and worked through the whole interior of the building. Harned states repairs will begin immediately.

Alleman . . . Dr. W. H. Race has sold his Pastime, Butler, Ky., to local interests . . . Alterations amounting to* $1,000 will be effected on the Rialto Theatre building . . . New chairs, lamps, generator, screen and sound have been installed in the Town Hall, Winchester, Ky. Also sound in the Grand at Frankfort, Ky. Both are owned by S. D. Lee.

G. W. Honsberger has been appointed manager of Westinghouse's Louisville office in succession to T. W. Volls, deceased . . . J. H. Meadows has reconditioned and re-equipped his Strand at Dawson Springs, Ky. . . . The new Royal, Paintsville, Ky., has been opened by Kenneth Williams . . . Film salesmen noted in town recently included Milton Krueger, United Artists; Bob "Sherlock Holmes" Schrader, Warner, and Tom McCleaster, Fox.

PITTSBURGH

RECEIPTS of $1,000 were "Gone With the Wind" one evening last week when two armed bandits held up two employes at the Warner Columbia, Sharon, and made their getaway in a waiting auto. The final evening showing of "GWTW" had just been started when the bandits approached the boxoffice as Andrew Gorzo, assistant manager, and Paul Volkie, doorman, gathered the money to take from the ticket office to the manager's office. Pat Notaro, manager, and T. Fordham, Warner circuit's northern area district manager, witnessed the holdup . . . Speer Marousis was around the other day and reported that his Regent, New Castle, was entered one night recently and around $70 was stolen, together with considerable property damage. Two men have been placed under arrest and have confessed the crime. Marousis stated that around $150 was recently taken from the cashier of the Penn, New Castle, by an armed bandit.

Thomas A. Gilbert, who has sold his New Oakland to the Warner circuit, was around Filmrow the other day "clearing the books" . . . Harry Kalmine was in New York last week whipping up some stage shows for the Stanley . . . Fred J. Herrington, AMPTO secretary, reports satisfaction on legislative matters. He spent several days in Harrisburg last week looking over the situation . . . Helen Hoerle has been here exploiting "Fantasia," which opens in the Fulton early in March.

"The movies," writes Florence Fisher Parry in the Press, "more now than at any time in their existence, are the friends and aides of democracy, and are assisting the United States in its defense program, with all their mighty resources."

The John Perrys of Belle Vernon are vacationing in Miami . . . Vern Scott, circuit exhibitor, is a 16mm camera fan and has exposed a lot of film in pursuit of his hobby. He is especially proud of his natural color reels . . . Al Weiss of McKeesport finally tore himself away from his Weiss Big 5 basketball team and is vacationing in Florida . . . Warner's South Hills Harris is introducing a new game called Quest: How Smart Are You?, invented and patented by Peter Carmine Abate of Wilmerding.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fineberg were host and hostess at last Friday's family night party at the Variety Club . . . Joe Hiller was King at the February 10 dinner . . . Mrs. Peter Dana and Mrs. John J. Maloney were hostesses at the ladies luncheon February 11 . . . Mr. and Mrs. M. S. England were scheduled as leaders for the February 14 family night party, and the February 21 date will find Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Rosenberg in charge . . . Pete Dana will be King at the February 17 dinner and Herb Greenblatt has the February 24 date.

Earle W. Sweigert, newly-appointed Paramount district manager, covering Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Washington, was welcomed here on his first official visit by Dave Kimelman, branch manager. Also here to greet Sweigert was Harry Goldstein, former local manager, who drops this city's branch from his supervision as he assumes additional authority in his new district which has added Detroit.

Walt Thomas, former assistant manager at the State, Wilkinsburg, has returned across the street to the Rowland as assistant to Dick Brown. At one time he was doorman there. He succeeds Harold Banks, who has entered military service.

Oldtime friends cheered Richard A. Rowland when he arrived to screen his latest production, "Cheers for Miss Bishop," at the uptown Rialto. Rowland's return was a grand occasion and his picture, which is being distributed by United Artists, was applauded for its fine merit. He has signed with UA to produce three more. First in preparation is "Those Amazing People," Dick's new title for "Battle of Britain."

The new Shadyside will be ready for opening any day now. It's a beauty, too . . . New engineer here for RCA service is Dan Ferguson . . . Ray Allison, circuit operator, was confined to his home in Cresson for over a week by the flu . . . The "UA-Kelly" drive extends to April 19, announce colorful banners in the local UA office . . . Frank Carver, local American Seating Co. representative for many years, is dead.

Martin Terner of American Theatrical Valance Co. has joined Mrs. Terner in Miami . . . Fred A. Beedle, AMPTO's president, is interested in Senate bill No. 18, which would license theatre games at very high fees and which, additionally, would give the state a 15 per cent cut on all "awards" . . . A. L. Pindat, Republic's special representative, has completed his work here and goes next to the Washington branch.

Adapting Programs To the Audience

DETROIT—Adapting the features to the audience by having a different program matinees and evenings, looks like the major new trend in Detroit show business.

With one of the largest downtown houses seriously flirting with the idea, a different adaptation is being started out at the Varsity by Grant Hawkins, UDT manager.

The Varsity has Saturday matinees with a heavy attendance of youngsters. Instead of picking a feature intended primarily for youngsters and using it on the entire weekend change, thereby discouraging a certain amount of adult patronage, Hawkins is dropping the heavier of the two features on his dual bill and substituting with a western for the youngsters, plus some extra cartoons, for the matinee show only, thereby catering to both types of taste.

The Fox is trying out the idea this week, running "Back Street" alone in the evenings, plus some added shorts, while "Youth Will Be Served" is added for the matinee trade.

The idea of the Fox showing is apparently based upon the theory that the matinee patronage is more interested in quantity for a given admission, while the night patrons will be choosier in going to a theatre and insist a bit more on picture quality.

Contends "Service" Passes Justified

DETROIT—Passes admitting any number of persons at five cents apiece have been distributed over the near-downtown area by the Town Theatre, operated by the Broder circuit. Described as an "Adult's Get Acquainted Courtesy Pass," they are found in merchants' stores nearby, with the merchants giving them out as goodwill gestures to customers.

The passes are "good for one or more persons," and for "any time" until expiration date, at a service charge of five cents per person. One edition of the passes expires February 15, and the house is slated to go into regular vaudeville on a split week policy February 21 at 20 cents admission. Present admission is 15 cents.

Jack Broder, who recently acquired the house, has been the objective of several attacks by other exhibitors on charges of lowering prices by this and other means. Broder said that he found the public reluctant to enter the Town, which has an old-standing reputation as a society house, and adopted the low-priced pass idea strictly to introduce the new policy to the public. Broder contends that he has not used the special forms of passes under attack except where competitive or other conditions demanded, citing the Time Theatre as one place where he had not adopted such a pass policy.

Explaining his reduction of prices at the Seville, which he also took over three weeks ago, from 20 to 10 cents for four days a week, Broder cited the difficulty of getting product within a reasonable running time for this house as an important reason for lowering prices.

Further, he said: "In my opinion, 10 cents, except for weekends, is sufficient for that neighborhood. The residents may be classed among the poorest in Detroit and cannot afford more.

"I'd like to operate at 30 cents, but I can't under the conditions. For years this theatre has lost money, in my opinion, and I'd be a poor business man to carry on the same policy.

"The house has to wait eight to ten weeks after the key theatre, my nearest competitor, to get a print of a popular picture for a weekend booking."

Roxy in Martinsburg Under Blatt Banner

MARTINSBURG, PA.—The Roxy has reopened under the banner of the Blatt Bros. David Madden, formerly connected with the circuit at East Brady, is house manager, and William Blatt, supervisor. The 300-seat house was acquired under a long-term lease from John Helleberg.

COLUMBUS—After the successful engagement of Ted Weems' Orchestra, Loew's Broad has booked in Sammy Kaye for the week of the 28th.

Metro Executives Come to Detroit

DETROIT—Top M-G-M executives were in town over the weekend for the formal transfer of the Detroit exchange territory under the new divisional setup.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, headed the delegation, accompanied by "Ted" O'Shea, new central division manager, whose responsibility includes Detroit; J. J. Maloney, new district manager for Detroit, and Jack Flynn, who relinquishes the city as his district headquarters in favor of Chicago.

Together with Frank J. Downey, local M-G-M branch manager, and practically the entire local sales force, the executives visited with many members of the industry at Variety Club on Saturday night and at individual meetings over the weekend. They had lunch on Saturday with Earl Hudson and Ed F. Hyman of United Detroit Theatres, and on Monday with E. C. Beatty and J. Oliver Brooks of the Butterfield circuit.

Harry Alberth Wins $250 In Manos Circuit Drive

PITTSBURGH—Harry Alberth, manager of the Manos, Hollidaysburg, for winning the recent Manos circuit managers' drive, received a prize of $250. Runners-up were Dick McCool of Latrobe and George Kerr, Homer City. Twelve managers and assistants received bonuses, Bernard Buchheit, Manos circuit's district manager, stated.

Wrist Watches for Two

PITTSBURGH—Bert M. Stearn, UA district manager, has awarded wrist watches to Dick McCool, Latrobe, and Joe Bugala, Ellwood City, winners in a special Manos circuit exploitation campaign covering "Foreign Correspondent" and "The Thief of Bagdad."

Laverne Crisswell Heads Pittsburgh Local 754

PITTSBURGH—Annual election of Local 754 (Theatrical Crafts Federal Credit Union) resulted in naming of the following officers: Laverne Crisswell, president; William Humphrey, vice-president; Charles Bengel, treasurer; and these members of the board of directors, Lou Indo, William Thompson, Charles Kennedy, Earl Lohr, Art Williams and William Watterson.

Police Stumped

SHARON, PA.—Police as yet have failed to uncover any clues as to the identity or whereabouts of two armed men who held up the Columbia Theatre and escaped with $1,000.

Probe Safe-Cracking

UHRICHSVILLE, OHIO—Police are probing a safe-cracking job at the State where weekend receipts, estimated at between $400 and $500, were taken when a safe was drilled open by someone who forced entrance to the building.

Heart Attack Fatal To Hettisheimer

CINCINNATI—Andrew Hettisheimer, pioneer independent and for 61 years connected with theatrical enterprises, died suddenly at Christ Hospital following a heart attack at the age of 73.

He began his career as an usher at Heuck's Theatre, later becoming treasurer. At one time he also was treasurer and manager of Pike's Opera House, a Cincinnati landmark. Before the advent of motion pictures, Hettisheimer was treasurer of Keith's and later managed the Orpheum where he inaugurated the "sky roof." He also served variously as assistant supervisor of the Strand, Walnut, Keith's, Family and Gift's theatres under Ike Libson until 1918. He managed Dr. Kolb's Norwood Theatre for five years, the position he occupied at the time of his death.

He pioneered the industry in Cincinnati as operator of the old American, now the Strand, and at one time served as treasurer for the Cincinnati baseball club.

As vice-president of the OMPTA, he was a member of the arbitration and examining boards of projectionists, and he was also a leader of the Cincinnati Independent Exhibitors.

Services were conducted at the Church of the Nativity, with the following serving as honorary pallbearers: J. J. Grady, 20th-Fox; Stanley Jacques, RKO; Wess Huss, Associated Theatres; J. J. Oulahan, Paramount; E. M. Booth, M-G-M; Jake Gelman, Midwest Theatre Supply; and Ralph Kinsler, Charley Weigel, Harry Wessel, Harold Bernstein, Dr. Kolb and Mayor Roudebush of Norwood.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth, and two sons and two daughters.

Fred Witter Dies After A Lingering Illness

CANTON, OHIO—Fred W. Witter, 71, for a time manager of the old Lyceum, now the State, died at his home here after a lingering illness. He had long been prominent in theatrical circles here and for years was a member of the famous Grand Army band which toured the United States. His wife and two daughters survive. Services and burial were locally.

Lester E. Matt

DETROIT—Lester E. Matt, a pioneer upstate exhibitor, is dead. He withdrew from the industry a few months ago, selling his Strand, State, Della and Roxy at Flint to the Butterfield circuit in order to return to the real estate business. His wife, after whom the Della was named, survives. Interment was at Sandusky, Ohio, which was his home town.

George W. Dawson Dead

PITTSBURGH—George W. Dawson, 66, local newsreel cameraman for many years, died last Saturday in Oakland, Cal., where he was visiting his son, George W. Dawson jr. The body was returned here for burial.

New Equipment Sales Lively in Cleveland

CLEVELAND—L. H. Walters, manager of the local office of National Theatre Supply Co., reports a lively interest in new equipment installations in this territory. NTS has just completed installation of booth equipment at the Liberty Theatre, Cleveland. The work included a new sound system, stands and magazines, new lenses and screen.

The Majestic, Lima, a George Titzler house, has new sound, projectors, stands and magazines. The Lyric, Lima, also a Titzler house, has a new pair of lenses and a screen.

For the new house now under construction in Ellet, a suburb of Akron, recently leased for 20 years by Louis Isreal of Cleveland, NTS will provide booth equipment. This new house will have 750 seats, and will be completed in the spring.

Hyman Assumes Para't Post Around March 1

DETROIT—E. F. Hyman, film buyer and assistant to the president at United Detroit offices, will leave about March 1 to become assistant to Sam Dembow and Leonard Goldenson, top Paramount Theatres executives, in the home office. For 15 years with the Mark Strand Theatres and for eight as general manager of the Century circuit, Hyman is well known in the New York territory.

He is succeeded by Jack Keegan, who comes here after being with Warner Theatres in Milwaukee for 15 years.

135,000 Pay to See "GWTW" in Akron

AKRON—When "Gone With the Wind" closed its recent two-week engagement at Loew's here, it had played to at least 135,000 paid admissions in a total of five weeks on the screen of the local house.

That probably is 15,000 more persons that were expected to see the "anniversary" release of the three hour and 45-minute spectacle in Akron. For having played to 85,000 persons on its three-week visit a year ago, it was not expected to last more than a week. On several days of the first week of its return, it drew more patrons than a year ago.

Ease Money Restrictions On Canadian Visitors

DETROIT—Detroit theatres which have been seriously affected by money restrictions placed on Canadians visiting this town, will secure a little relief in new regulations by the Canadian foreign exchange control board.

Under the new regulations, any Canadians visiting this country may take up to $5 in Canadian currency along under a 48-hour social visit permit.

Break Into Foster

YOUNGSTOWN—Cracksmen broke into the Foster Theatre during the night and smashed the combination on the safe, escaping with an undetermined amount of money.

Packard Executives At Sneak Preview

DETROIT—Sneak previewed last Thursday at the Vogue was Paramount's "Reaching for the Sun," which has for a background Detroit and its vast automobile industry. Some 200 top executives of the Packard Motor Co. attended.

The Packard plant (called Crane in the film) is the scene of most of the action of the film which was originally titled "F. O. B., Detroit." Audience reaction at the preview—which drew an SRO crowd to this 1,800-seater—indicated that, even apart from local interest, the treatment will make it a strong film for both feminine and child patrons.

Alec Moss, Paramount director of exploitation, came on for the occasion to assist Manager John Howard. Among film notables attending were Earl Hudson, Ed Hyman, Ralph Stitt, Asher Shaw, Alice Gorham and William Hendricks, all of United Detroit Theatres.—H. F.

Seek Scientific Approach To Assessment Problem

DETROIT—More scientific assessment of Detroit theatres for local real estate tax purposes will be the objective of a reorganization of the Detroit assessment system proposed by the board of assessors in a report to the city council.

Basis of the report is a proposal to develop special assessors and assistants who would be skilled in handling one of the four main types of property in which theatre buildings bulk more prominently than those of any other single industry. Classes as proposed are: (1) Land; (2) Industrial, public utility, hotels and large apartments, theatres, and large mercantile buildings; (3) Residences, stores and miscellaneous; (4) Personal property.

Ashland May Be Without Theatre After March 1

ASHLAND, OHIO—It looks like Ashland will be without a theatre after March 1.

Its only showplace, occupying a portion of the Old Opera House, has been ordered to close by that time unless it makes extensive repairs deemed necessary by the state industrial commission. Schine operates the city-owned theatre.

Voters recently approved a bond issue for the construction of a new theatre building, but a common pleas court ruling prevented the city from constructing a building to house a privately operated theatre.

R. G. Carey Will Open One in Beach Bottom

PITTSBURGH—R. G. Carey, formerly with the Alpine circuit, will open a new theatre at Beach Bottom, W. Va. Seating capacity will be 350. The exhibitor resides in Steubenville, Ohio, where he operates the Carey Decorating Co.

"The Hard Boiled Canary" Bows at Traverse City

DETROIT—Michigan was the scene Sunday of a world premiere for the third time in recent history of premieres. Occasion was the opening of Paramount's "The Hard Boiled Canary," which played at the Butterfield circuit's Lyric at Traverse City, about 300 miles northwest of Detroit.

The picture is largely based on a story of Interlochen Music Camp, near Traverse City, and was tentatively called "Interlochen," then "Magic in Music," on earlier production schedules.

Susanna Foster, who sings in the picture, is making a personal appearance tour that will bring her to Detroit, February 14-17, for several days.

Another Paramount sneak preview was held at the Michigan here Saturday night when "Virginia" was booked in for a midnight show.

Religious Films Getting Big Play in Auto City

DETROIT—Early survey of religious films being distributed here shows unusually heavy demand this year, according to Charles A. Garner, veteran distributor.

Garner is now handling "Passion Play," "King of Kings," "March to the Alter," "Ave Maria," "Glory of Faith," and "Miracle of Faith."

16MM Film Distributors' Ranks Grow in Pitt

PITTSBURGH—Several new narrow gauge film distributors have opened for business here. This brings the number to over ten such 16mm libraries in Pittsburgh, in addition to such distributors as department stores and "your local drug store."

Transfers New Oakland To the Warner Circuit

PITTSBURGH—Thomas A. Gilbert has transferred the New Oakland in the Schenley district to the Warner circuit. The transfer gives Warners three theatres in this area.

Williams Opens New Royal

PAINTSVILLE, KY.—The new Royal, a 570-seater, was opened here recently by Kenneth Williams. Cost of the project, including equipment, was $36,000. Programs are changed four times weekly.

"Enclosed find my first contribution to your 'Exhibitor Has His Say.' I read your magazine from cover to cover every Monday morn and am only glad to contribute to your new department and will eagerly await the first publication."

Elmer a Victim Of "Gestapo"

Detroit—The American Legion's famed cry of "Where's Elmer!" went up for an apparent victim of the "Gestapo" at UDT's Annex Theatre during the showing of "Pastor Hall."

Manager Cassius Smith had a favorite dummy, nicknamed Elmer, which for years he used for front and lobby displays on sensational pictures, usually mysteries. Pressed into service for "Pastor Hall," he just disappeared from in front of the house.

"Too Many Class 'B' Films," Paper Holds

PITTSBURGH—There are too many Class B films, The Pittsburgh Catholic reported in a front page editorial January 25. The article pointed out that "Gone With the Wind," now in release here, is in this Legion of Decency classification and therefore "should be avoided by Catholics who have pledged themselves against witnessing or supporting films harmful to morality."

"Incredible as it may seem," the official organ of the Diocese of Pittsburgh reports, "Loew's Penn offers a special low admission price for children—actually striving to lure those of immature minds into the influence of a film which the Legion of Decency considers unfit for adults.

"The Bishops of the United States a few months ago warned their people to be on guard against the increasing number of films 'which disregard the moral law and subvert the foundations of Christian society.'" Several other of the Class B pictures are now being shown in the Pittsburgh district, including "The Letter," "Leopard Men of Africa," "Too Many Girls," "Seven Sinners," "Before I Hang," "The Baker's Wife" and others.

An editorial page article of the same issue, captioned "Movie Watchfulness," regrets the practice of combining an A-1 (unobjectionable) picture with one of a lower classification, as a double bill.

"Where this is done, it simply means that those theatres do not want children's patronage."

BOWLING

DETROIT—Al Grasgrin, holding the season high score of 616 in the Film Bowling League, rolled 610 for second high last week. Other top scorers: Jack Sturm, 202; Barney Adair, 216; Clark Baker, 202; Max Englander, 200, and William Szypulski, 200. Cooperative Theatres rolled up a new second high for teams, hitting 916. Team standings:

Team—	Won	Lost
United Artists	48	28
Cooperative	45	31
Republic	42	34
Film Drug	41	35
Film Truck	36	40
Amusement Supply	32	44
Monogram	30	46
20th Century-Fox	30	46

Joe Goetz Heads Bookers' Club for Sixth Term

CINCINNATI—Joe Goetz, assistant divisional director of RKO Midwest Theatres, was unanimously elected Chief Booker (president) of the Cincinnati Filmrow Bookers' Club, at the recent annual election. Goetz succeeds himself for the sixth consecutive term, having headed the club since he organized it in 1935.

Jimmy Brunnetti, Warner head booker, was elected assistant chief booker (secretary-treasurer).

The election followed the recent celebration staged by Tony Sauer, superintendent of the Cincinnati Workhouse, who is an honorary member of the organization. Following the dinner at which Sauer was host, members and guests toured the recently constructed theatre erected at the Cincinnati Workhouse and designed and built by Sauer.

O. A. Kihchels Modernize Princess at Jeannette

JEANNETTE, PA.—Princess here has been modernized with new equipments, fixtures and complete new decorations. The O. A. Kihchels had recently remodeled the building and front and had installed new rest rooms. Decorating was the work of William Naidenoff.

Joseph Gray Renovating House in Spangler, Pa.

SPANGLER, PA.—Gray here is being renovated and improved for the veteran Joseph Gray. New front and marquee have been installed, and the lobby is being modernized with new chrome frames and mirror glass. Auditorium and stage are being newly draped and painted under the direction of Billy ZeVan.

Local B-12 Installs

PITTSBURGH—Filmrow Employes Union, Local B-12, staged its annual installation party recently at the Yacht Club. Ted Tolley, president, presented a traveling bag to L. J. Katz, retiring business agent. Katz remains as the local's supervisor. Approximately 125 attended the party. Alfie Kuhn of Vitagraph and Sarah Kells of RKO were in charge of arrangements.

Change at Jerome, Pa.

JEROME, PA.—The Jerome here has been acquired by Charles Szewczyk, owner and operator of two theatres at Boswell. Jerome, now being remodeled, was formerly operated by James DiMauro, who continues in exhibition at Vintondale.

Build in Norwalk

NORWALK, OHIO—The Norwalk Theatre Corp., a link in the Schine circuit, is building an 1,100-seat theatre here, to be known as the New. RCA sound is being installed.

"Bugles" for Lipman

HOLLYWOOD—William R. Lipman is scripting "The Bugles Blow at Night" for Producer Frederick Stephani at Metro.

Bank Night Collection Suit Facing Yamins

BOSTON—Nathan Yamins, former National and local Allied States Association president, has been sued for a total of $10,650 here in a Bank Night collection action. Roy E. Heffner, assignee of Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., brought the action against Yamins in superior court, Taunton, seeking to collect $5,500 alleged delinquent royalties from the Strand, and $5,150 from the Park both in Fall River.

George S. Ryan, representing Heffner in the litigations, also brought an action against Jack Saranga, operator of the Royal in Fall River, suing the exhibitor in Suffolk superior court in Boston for $2,560.

The Holyoke Theatre, Inc., Frederick E. Lieberman operating concern controlling the Holyoke in Holyoke, was sued for $1,755 in Bank Night action filed here last week.

Ryan also brought a collection suit for Heffner against the Leominster Allied Theatre Corp., Peter Latchis concern operating the Plymouth in Leominster. The writ was for $1,440.

Greenway Moves to Helm Of Hartford Palace

BOSTON—Frederick Randolph Greenway III, manager of Loew's State in Boston, for the past three and a half years, has been transferred to Hartford where he has taken over the management of the Palace in the Connecticut city. Greenway came to Boston from Baltimore June 23, 1937, succeeding Stanley Gosnell, resigned.

Ed McBride, manager of Loew's State in Providence, takes over the managerial assignment at the Hub show place. Jack Simons has been transferred from the Palace in Hartford to the State in Providence.

Jack A. Simons Succeeds McBride in Providence

HARTFORD—Jack A. Simons, manager of the local Loew's Poli, has been named managing director of the Loew's State in Providence, succeeding Eddie McBride.

Louis A. Cohen, manager of the Loew's Poli Palace, Hartford, has been named manager of the Loew's Poli, replacing Simons. It is expected here that Fred Greenway of the Loew's State in Boston will handle the Palace.

Exhibitors Secure Complaint Forms

Boston—A number of exhibitors secured forms last week from local arbitration headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building preparatory to filing complaints with the tribunal. Indications are that the first hearings may begin Monday.

But He Gets Out Fast

Boston—Local film interests thought that something was up last week when Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold paid a surprise visit to Boston, but the fact was that no one was more surprised than Arnold. Leaving New York at midnight, he climbed into a berth on what he thought was a train for Washington. It turned out to be one for Boston, as Arnold discovered when he awoke in the South Station. He later took an American airliner for the capital after repeatedly making sure of its destination.

Booth Bill Again Makes Appearance

NEW HAVEN—The perennially defeated two-men-in-a-booth bill has again made its appearance in the current session of the legislature among a crop of late bills filed. The bill, S. B. 775, filed for the judiciary committee, by Senator Malkan, reads:

"While operating a moving picture machine, every operator shall devote his entire time and attention to that work. He shall not leave the operating side of a motor-driven machine at any time nor engage in unnecessary conversation with anyone, nor in any other work in the motion picture booth while operating a moving picture machine." The provisions of this bill are not to apply to projectors "using cellulose acetate films only of not more than 100 feet in length nor one inch in width and not requiring more than 500 watts, except when such films are used in regular places of exhibition charging admission, not including churches, lodge rooms, clubs." Cellulose acetate films of 1,000 feet, one and one-quarter inches wide, using only inclosed incandescent lamp are also excepted.

Senator Coles, author of last session's Bingo bills, has filed S. B. 703, which will also come up before the judiciary committee. It reads: "Provided that when the municipality (Sec. 155e of the 1939 Revision of the General Statues) shall have voted favorably two successive years upon the question of permitting the playing of Bingo, playing of such game shall be permitted indefinitely thereafter, without further petition or action of the governing body" until such time as it may be forbidden upon similar written petition of 5 per cent or more of the electors, whereupon the game shall be prohibited after the September 15 next following such a negative vote. Under the present law, churches and organizations may only play Bingo if petition is annually circulated and aldermen or other governors of the municipality vote favorably.

S. B. 201 provides for the licensing of copyright societies in the state and payment of a franchise tax equivalent to 25 per cent of their entire gross receipts annually. Any person, except the composer, acting as an investigator in the state, will be required to be licensed, and 50 per cent of the license fees so collected are to be distributed to the towns in the state. A $500 fine for violation is recommended.

Female entertainers and musicians are excepted from the provisions of Sec. 1605c of the 1935 supplement in S. B. 502. The statute provides that minors and women shall not be employed in public restaurants, cafes and dining rooms between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m., or for more than nine hours daily or 52 hours weekly. This has been a sore spot with roadhouses, taverns, cafes, etc., who wish to employ women singers and musicians.

A new tax commission of five members appointed by the governor would be created under S. B. 843, to investigate taxes in the state, draw up legislation for enactment of new taxes with a view to reducing the load of taxation on real estate if possible. The commission "may or may not hold public hearings" and may compel examination of books and records if necessary.

Court Tussle Over Letter From Arnold

BOSTON—Thurman Arnold, U. S. assistant attorney general who did a Corrigan here last week when he found out the next morning that he had mistaken a Boston for a Washington sleeper, has come up in the prevailing Waldo Theatre Corp. vs. Joseph Dondis et al., anti-trust suit being heard before a master here.

Arnold's name arose when George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney sought to introduce as an exhibit a letter from the government attorney, dated July 28, 1938, to Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney for the MPPDA.

John Caskey, 20th-Fox attorney, objected to the letter as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant, averring that "certainly Mr. Arnold's statements are not evidence. Mr. Arnold is simply a lawyer representing a client."

"Well, thus far," said Edward F. McClennen, presenting Paramount interest, "I think if it is admitted, it should be limited to being admitted as against Mr. Arnold." Francis Freeman, U. S. district court appointee as master, excluded the letter. Ryan asked to have his objection noted.

"If Mr. Arnold were here and under oath he could not testify as to the statements contained in the document," Caskey said later. Caskey, stating that he had no doubt that 20th-Fox received a copy of the letter in question, added that, "at the time, Mr. Arnold was counsel for the U. S. government and he made a number of charges both in petitions filed and in court and in his speeches, none of which he has substantiated by the testimony of many witnesses."

The master later reversed his ruling and admitted the Arnold letter as to Fox, with the plaintiff's attorney asking to have his objection noted as to the limitations.

Rob Lyric in Hartford

HARTFORD—Safe robbers took $500 from the Warner Lyric recently.

"Kitty Foyle" Spurts in Fifth Providence Week

PROVIDENCE — "Kitty Foyle" showed a jump in business in its fifth week at the Albee and, going into a sixth week equals the long-run record of "Snow White." Business good at other houses though King Winter still reigning with plenty of snow to hamper auto trade.

Holdovers Potent Draw For Boston First Runs

BOSTON—Holdovers took good money in Boston last week with "GWTW" holding up well during the third week of its repeat-run at Loew's Orpheum, while "Kitty Foyle" hit a couple of SRO performances at Keith's Memorial and went into a record sixth week. Snow fall was slight, but there was slushy going under foot. The Sportsman's Show at the Mechanic's Building was a strong counter draw.

'Philadelphia Story' Earns Holdover in New Haven

NEW HAVEN—On the seventh day of the Loew-Poli run, "The Philadelphia Story," dualled with "Saint in Palm Springs," was still holding out 200 lobby standees for the break in the show. Total take was excellent, and the dual moves to the College for a second week. The sellout "Ice Follies of 1941" at the Arena cut into mid-week business plenty. "GWTW" held up for a nice little third week at the College.

Detail for the week ended February 6:

Defense Chairman

HARTFORD—Walter B. Lloyd, manager of the Allyn, has been named chairman of the Hartford chapter of the "National Defense Week." Walter, by the way, is a first lieutenant in the army reserves, and may be called up any minute now.

Industrial Picture Growing Brighter

HARTFORD—Continued increase in industrial and general business activity throughout Connecticut in December, is reported by managers of field offices of the unemployment compensation division. The effects of the national defense program have been felt in all areas to some extent, but particularly in the heavy industrial and textile centers.

Areas reporting increasing activity are: Bridgeport, Danbury, Stamford, New Haven, Waterbury, Middletown, Meriden, Hartford, New Britain, Bristol, Torrington, New London, Norwich, Danielson and Willimantic. A slight drop in industrial activity was noted in Norwalk due to the seasonal slack in the needle trades and in Ansonia.

Severe shortages of skilled workers in the machinist and metal trades continued while the shortage beginning to develop a month ago in textile operatives accelerated considerably. Employes in the textile trades are said to be considering the inauguration of a plan to train workers.

Loew Publicists, Managers, Map "Our Night" Bally

BOSTON—Joint Boston and Providence publicity meeting held here under the supervision of Charles E. Kurtzman, Loew's divisional manager, brought together Manager Frederick R. Greenway of the State in Boston, Manager Howard Burkhardt of the Orpheum in Boston, Manager Edward McBride of the State in Providence, Joseph A. DiPesa and Al Longo of the local Loew's publicity office, and George Scher, UA exploiteer.

Numerous publicity hookups were proposed for "So Ends Our Night."

Herman Forging Ahead in Monogram Sales Drive

BOSTON—Setting a stiff pace in Boston's attempt to win the annual Monogram sales drive for the third year in a row, Al Herman, new local district manager, has set "Dead Man's Shoes" for a first-run local engagement at the RKO Boston this week. "Daredevils of the Air" and "Sign of the Wolf" follow for band-box openings in March.

Herman and his staff have also placed "Hoosier Schoolboy" at the Metropolitan in Providence on March 7 and the State in Hartford on March 22.

New Sound for Marlboro

MARLBORO, MASS.—The 1,071-seat Marlboro, an M&P house, will get new RCA sound.

"Kitty Foyle" Topples Holdover Record

Boston—"Kitty Foyle," after playing to an SRO house on Sunday, was last week held for a sixth consecutive week at Keith's Memorial. Companion feature continued to be "The Saint in Palm Springs." The holdover toppled the previous house record which was set up when "Top Hat" continued for five weeks. Business last week was better than some of the earlier stanzas of "Kitty Foyle."

Independents Will Elect on March 4

BOSTON—The annual meeting and election of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., was tentatively set for March 4 at the regular monthly business confab of the organization here Tuesday.

Indications are that Frank Lydon, president, and practically the entire slate of officers will be installed.

Independent Exhibitors' Roster Shows Growth

BOSTON—A marked increase in Independent Exhibitors, Inc. membership during the past year under a drive supervised by Arthur K. Howard, business manager, has resulted in the New England territory.

Roster of the local Allied States Association unit was increased during 1940 to the extent of 34 new members. This is exclusive of Connecticut which also experienced a sizeable membership increase. Massachusetts furnished the majority of additional New England independents, while Rhode Island was second.

Hub First-Run Picture Knots Availabilities

BOSTON—Local bookers and exhibitors working their availabilities from Boston first-runs were further confused this week when Columbia sold away from Loew's, Inc., to the M&P Theatres Corp., spotting "Lone Wolf Keeps a Date" at the Paramount and Fenway, two local first-runs. Several M-G-M pictures played the twin houses previously. Holdovers, "GWTW," three weeks at the Orpheum and "Kitty Foyle" six weeks at Keith's Memorial, have not clarified the picture.

Narrow Gauge Reels Into Fifth Week at Fine Arts

BOSTON—Showing the potentialities of 16mm specialties, George Kraska has held "Here Is Ireland" for a fifth consecutive week at the Fine Arts in Boston. The picture, an all-color travelogue both dubbed and duped, is being screened at the house by especially installed equipment.

Millett Puts on Winter Carnival in Bridgton

BOSTON—How a theatreman may put on a winter carnival has been illustrated, and practically, by C. F. Millett, operator of the State in Bridgton. The former Paramount executive, now an independent in Maine, was general chairman in charge last week of the second annual winter sports carnival at Bridgton, a probable perennial that Millett originated in the resort town last year.

A Maine inter-scholastic winter sports meet was one of the major events. Millett also promoted a speed skating championship under the sponsorship of the New England Skating Association, Inc. A New England sled-dog club race, with over 30 entries, was another winter touch. Nothing less than a "Cavalcade of America" exhibition put on by 40 costumed skaters on ice in which was depicted the growth and advance of American civilization, rounded out the affair.

Millett tied in over 100 different business concerns, from E. I. DuPont and Company to the corner grocer. The Bridgton Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations supported the affair. Millett, however, reserved one function for himself. It was the presentation speech made at the coronation ball to the carnival "Queen of 1941."

Visitors—

On the left, Acting Manager Tony Massella of the Globe Theatre at Bridgeport welcomes Louise Campbell, who appears in his current screen attraction, "Bowery Boy," and her husband, Horace MacMahon, screen player who hails from Norwalk.

Bob Russell's corner display on "Western Union" is a replica in miniature of one of the sets . . . Russell-Rubin tieup with Western Union locally resulted in the company delivering telegrams with picture copy to leading business heads in town, and distribution of 500 heralds . . . On "This Thing Called Love," the Loew-Poli team distributed 5,000 imprinted envelopes containing candy hearts. Also bought out 100 copies of January 8 Daily News which carried three scenes from the picture with copy, and imprinted them "At Loew's-Poli Now," for distribution in barber shops and other spots. And arranged a heart centerpiece with copy in a central Valentine window . . . John Hesse tied in with Kresge's for an attractive window book display on "Back Street." Premiere here was handled as "world premiere," with which it coincided.

Jack Simons planted a drawing of Katharine Hepburn by a local artist in the Hartford Times on "Philadelphia Story" . . . Loew's coveted Dollar Club award has been given Bob Russell and Nat Rubin for the Boys' Club tieup on "Flight Command" which brought in $300 extra money, and the duo is expecting another award on "Go West." On "So Ends Our Night," exploitation led off with the Taft press luncheon and radio interview of Albert Lewin . . . Russell sent a circular letter to a select "class" list of 400 . . . Ten young couples about to be married will be invited to see the picture's "magnificent romance" . . . Following the policy of lightening the picture, Jake, who has done every kind of theatre street ballyhoo, will be on the Green and around town with a limp female dummy whose head will rest on his shoulder while a placard announces "So Ends Our Night."

Signs of the times: January Connecticut tax receipts exceeded January, 1940, by $607,337. Of this increase $1,132 was in amusement tax; $10,727 in cigarette tax; $5,140 in unincorporated business, and $3,300 in corporation tax. McMann's State, New Britain, has a new policy of four changes a week, with Sunday a single day engagement . . . Rivoli, Hartford, continues occasional double feature Swedish programs . . . "This Thing Called Love" is in its fourth week at E. M. Loew's, Hartford, and may stay a fifth. Local Warner office is in first place in its division in the "20th Years With Sears" drive . . . Those Ned Depinet drive badges are weighing down the RKO staff . . . Barney Pitkin wears ties to match . . . Lou Schaefer is starring on the Lyons bowling team.

"Blacklisted" Films Facing No Threat

BOSTON—John Spencer, Boston city censor, told this publication last week that he doesn't plan any "specific action" against the films he put on a special Hub blacklist several days ago. Theatre managers at the time, were ordered to report to Spencer's office proposed local playings of any of the pictures on the list. No reports had been received up to the time of the conversation, Spencer declared.

Spencer's letter didn't indicate what action, if any, he would take, beyond specifying that the licensing commission might request a special screening before any openings of the films involved.

Asked if he planned any outright bans, Mayor Maurice Tobin's brother-in-law replied, "I haven't the vaguest idea."

Maine Legislators Turn Eye on Pari-Mutuels

AUGUSTA, ME.—A bill to repeal pari-mutuel betting in Maine was introduced in the legislature January 30 by Rep. Lee C. Good, (R) of Monticello. Good, in presenting the bill, asserted that "pari-mutuels are degrading" to sports.

On the same day a bill, prepared by Sen. Joseph E. Harvey (R) of Saco, asked that the state's share in commissions from pari-mutuel betting on harness racing in Maine be jumped from 3½ to 15 per cent.

Maximum commissions allowed under the present law are 10 per cent of pari-mutuel pools. Harvey's bill would increase that to 25 per cent, the 15 per cent for the state included. The remainder would be available to fairs and associations sponsoring racing as compared with 6½ per cent they now retain.

The bill, according to Senator Harvey, was necessary because the revenue of $40,000 provided by legalizing pari-mutuels in 1939 was inadequate.

Legalization of Beano Is Sought in New Hampshire

BOSTON—A bill to legalize Beano in New Hampshire, with one-half the profit going to the state, has been introduced in legislative action there. Theatremen might be more interested inasmuch as the measure would also allow Bingo, if Bank Night had not been cleared of anti-lottery charges there some years ago in the first such case in the country.

State of Massachusetts Gets Gaming Equipment

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.—Forfeiture to the commonwealth of Massachusetts of alleged gaming equipment, seized by state police last June at the local E. M. Loew's Mohawk, has been ordered by Judge William A. Burns in the superior court at Pittsfield, Mass.

PROVIDENCE

PLENTY of snow around and grippe still continuing in Little Rhody but business holding up well at all houses and holdovers becoming a regular thing in Providence.

Hank Howard, Universal publicist, was in town doing promotion on "Buck Privates" for RKO-Albee . . . Al Clarke, manager of Majestic, is getting some good cooperation from Western Union locally in a campaign to put across film of that title at his house shortly . . . Manager Cronin of Associated Theatres' Empire also going in for some extra advertising these days, using multi-color oversize window cards.

Something of a case of love's labor lost was exploitation given "Buck Privates" when "Kitty Foyle" was held over for a sixth week at RKO-Albee, February 5. Last Saturday morning preview of "BP" was staged at theatre with entire 6th Army Corps staff as invited guests, coming to theatre in convoy of army trucks, joining there officers of the selective service board, office force and registrants called to the colors in the state. From the lobby came a 15-minute broadcast over WEAN. The big campaign was worked out by Manager George French, Hank Howard and Bill Morton, only to have the film's opening set back a week.

State Manager Fred Newcomb of Strand has been dismissed from R. I. Hospital and is now recuperating at his home . . . Three of RKO-Albee's staff, members of the National Guard, are due to go into military service in mid-February and fellow workers and Manager George French are planning a farewell party in their honor.

Manager Edward H. McBride of Loew's State left February 11 to take over the managerial post at Loew's State in Boston. McBride will be succeeded here by Jack Simons, formerly at Loew's, Hartford, Conn.

One of last stunts maneuvered by McBride before his promotion to the larger Hub house was bringing Albert Lewin, producer of "So Ends Our Night," opening at the State, Thursday—to Providence to lecture at Brown University before student members of the university dramatic organization, and teachers of Providence public schools. McBride also engineered a radio interview with Lewin over station WEAN.

Ralph E. Snider, circuit owner identified with Associated Theatres here, back last week from a month's stay in Florida . . . Stirling Hayden, who turns in a nice job in "Virginia," will make a p. a. at several Rhode Island houses plugging that film. Manager Eddie Reed of Strand will play host. Other stops are scheduled at Woonsocket, Pawtucket and Newport.

When the rest of the first-run managers were bemoaning the drenching downpour that soaked Providence and hit grosses last Friday, Al Clarke, manager of the Majestic, watched the lineup at his boxoffice and decided that there's something to "Advertising Pays." Clarke sold "Western Union" as few films have ever been sold at the Majestic, explaining the good business done, despite rain, on opening day and throughout the week. His campaign included 1,000 W. U. telegrams sent to a selected list of citizens, windows in W. U. office, bus terminals, drug stores and other downtown spots; book tieups and windows standees throughout city; bumper strips on 100 taxis; six giant telegrams spotted in vacant stores. Newspapers ran interview and cut of local "singing messenger boy" as additional plug for film.

Testimonial dinner to J. Alden Dooley, recently named a member of Rhode Island Bar Association, held at Biltmore Hotel Tuesday night saw District Manager George Cronin, and Managers Charlie Nelson of Park, Albert Colagiovanni of Bijou, and Matt Reilley of Palace in attendance. Young Dooley is the son of Judge Dooley, president of Associated Theatres, Inc.

When school officials of Warren recently sent youngsters home from classes because of grippe threats, Manager Lon Vail of the Lyric showed cooperation by barring children of school age from theatre during continuance of epidemic. Action was voluntary and won him commendation from town's health officials.

A "Valentine's Day" followup idea suggested by Loew's State, through circulars affixed to back-issue film magazines passed out to customers, suggests: "Ladies take him to a Sweetheart's Show, Saturday night, February 15. You buy the tickets! You pay . . . you do anyway! C'mon girls, treat the old man. Take the boy friend to see the picture for all sweethearts 'So Ends Our Night'."

Probably Called Him a Dog

Bridgeport, Conn.—Possibly the scanty attire of "The Thief of Bagdad" discouraged police from trying to pin anything on him, but while that worthy was cavorting before Manager Michael Carroll and assorted customers on the screen of the American, his modern counterpart, armed with functional crowbar instead of flying carpet, entered the office and helped himself to two of Carroll's summer suits, a sport coat, two pairs of trousers, a pair of overshoes, half a dozen neckties and $28 in cash. A few days later it rained, and Carroll discovered his umbrella was also among the loot.

Site to Goldsteins

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Samuel and Nathan E. Goldstein of Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., have purchased the property at the corner of State and Dwight Streets here, formerly occupied by the Washburn Funeral Home, and will erect a business block containing stores and offices on the site which is directly across from the Arcade, one of the circuit's houses. Purchase price was not revealed.

Stirling Hayden on P. A. Tour in New England

BOSTON—Stirling Hayden, young Yankee sailor-of-fortune turned film actor, returned for the first time since becoming famous, Wednesday, February 12, and started a personal appearance tour that is taking him through New England.

Hayden, who made his screen debut with Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray in "Virginia," was scheduled to stop at Hartford, Worcester, Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, R. I., and Newport. He will reach Boston, Saturday, February 15, to be feted at a press cocktail party on Tea Wharf. Saturday evening he will be given a gala party by old sailing comrades at Gloucester, his home port.

Hayden's trip will continue Monday when he proceeds to Portland, Me., with stops at Lowell and Haverhill, Mass. His schedule in the Maine city includes a personal appearance at the local opening of "Virginia," an evening party given him by the Motion Picture Council and an Advertising Club luncheon at which he will be guest of honor.

Anthem-Playing Mandate Defeated in Massachusetts

BOSTON—Local film interests, for practical reasons, successfully opposed a bill that would make it mandatory that Massachusetts theatres play "The Star-Spangled Banner" after each performance. Speaking against the bill, Joseph Brennan of the MPTOA told of the confusion and disturbances resulting in houses of a New York circuit which took the step voluntarily. The previous practice here of playing the national anthem between performances resulted in similar disorders.

Also up for legislative consideration last week was a measure that would make it a misdemeanor to sell standing room in Boston motion picture houses. The industry took the stand that no revision of the present status was necessary and that the proposed measure cast aspersions on the present able supervision directed by the officers of the fire, building and police commissioners.

Transfer Ben Cohen to Durban, South Africa

NEW HAVEN—Ben Cohen, former manager of the College here and for the past few years supervisor of Loew's theatres in Calcutta, India, has been transferred to Loew's 1,000-seat theatre in Durban, South Africa. Before sailing, Ben and Mrs. Cohen are visiting in New York and New Haven.

Randy Maller, WB's Strand manager, has recovered from an attack of the flu . . . The play "Tobacco Road," is due at the local WB's Capitol in March, reports Joe Bornstein.

Lina Pruchniciki has joined the Strand cashiers' staff . . . Front of the WB's Embassy has been remodeled . . . New carpets have been laid at the WB's Strand.

"Flight Command" Opens With Navy Cooperation

BOSTON—Frederick R. Greenway, manager of Loew's State in Boston, wouldn't take anything less than a Rear Admiral and a mass flying of Navy planes to give "Flight Command" its Hub unveiling. Rear Admiral John T. Nelson, together with Lt. Commander C. A. Collins and a score of other navy officers, were present in the Loew's State lobby opening night for a special broadcast.

For lights, Greenway promoted the Navy into setting up two huge floods opposite the theatre, and for pre-publicity, the Loew's State manager had navy squadrons canvassing the skies in the vicinity of the de luxe house.

"Fantasia" Boston Run Sold Out in Advance

BOSTON—"Fantasia," which opened an extended roadshow engagement here two weeks ago, is sold out well in advance. An added boost was given the Majestic run last week when Jack Goldstein, special publicist attached to the roadshow, got quotes from local educators to the effect that the film is acceptable to children.

Servicing Connecticut From New Haven Office

NEW HAVEN—National Screen Accessories, previously shipped from New York, will now be distributed through New Haven for the Connecticut territory, it is announced by company officials.

Yale Drama Students Hear Albert Lewin

NEW HAVEN—In a radio interview from the Hotel Taft and a subsequent talk to students of the Yale University department of drama, Albert Lewin, producer with David L. Loew of "So Ends Our Night," new United Artists release, outlined the functions of a producer and the growth of a picture from purchase of script to distribution of finished product.

Lewin and Professor Allardyce Nicoll, chairman of the Yale drama department, were invited to meet representatives of the press from New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport, and Loew-Poli and United Artists officials and theatre managers at a special luncheon at the Taft prior to the opening of the picture here on February 13.

From the Fourth Estate

Attending were Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager; Lou Brown, publicity chief; Lou Wechsler, United Artists manager; Myer Beck, eastern representative for Russell Birdwell; George Scher, UA exploitation representative; Herbert Sedgewick of Associated Press; Julia Farnham Nicoll, in charge of dramatics for all Bridgeport public schools; Delancy Jones, Bridgeport Post Telegram; Mabel Sherwood, Bridgeport Life; Nancy Hendrick, Bridgeport Times-Star; Julian Tuthill, Hartford Times; M. Oakley Christoph, Hartford Courant; Jane O'Rourke, Echo; James Milne, WELI manager; Robert E. Russell, manager of the Loew-Poli, New Haven, and Nat Rubin, assistant; Matt Saunders of the Loew-Poli, Bridgeport, and Otto Esposito, assistant; Elliot Kronish of the division office; Jack Simons, who wound up his managership of the Loew-Poli, Hartford, and was Providence-bound; Lou Cohen, who replaces Simons at the Loew-Poli; Joseph Samartano, Loew-Poli, Meriden manager; William Borden, vice-chairman, Yale Daily News; and William White, business manager.

Introduced by Professor Nicoll as a "former professor of English who saw the error of his ways and is now a success in Hollywood," Lewin spoke to a keenly interested group on the steps in the production of "So Ends Our Night." At the close of his talk, scores of questions revealed the students' great curiosity about Hollywood methods.

Asked if abolition of block booking would lead to increase in independent producers, Lewin said he "unquestionably" thought so. The block-of-five method of selling under the consent decree, he termed "an improvement." About Technicolor he expressed the opinion that it would not "save a bad picture," but that "it would add to a good picture." He defined entertainment as "anything which touches an audience emotionally."

Storrs May Get Theatre

STORRS, CONN.—This town, home of the University of Connecticut, will have a theatre in the near future, if plans reportedly now under way go through.

: NEW HAMPSHIRE :

"GONE WITH THE WIND" was held over for three extra days at the Strand in Manchester . . . Viola Gordon Munro, a former Broadway stage actress and wife of the general representative of the Schubert theatre chain in Boston, gave a talk before the Somersworth Women's Club, February 4.

The State Racing Commission has announced that the New Hampshire Jockey Club's request for 60 days of pari-mutuel horse racing at Rockingham Park in Salem this year has been approved. This is the same period authorized last season.

Theatre traffic will probably be affected in Rochester by a recommendation placed before the city council by the chamber of commerce, which requests the installation of traffic lights at the street crossing directly opposite the Scenic Theatre. At present, the traffic is handled by a policeman.

Lloyd Bridgham, manager of the Broadway in Dover, was a member of the committee which staged a testimonial banquet in that city for textile executives.

The Scenic in Pittsfield was the scene of the crowning of Pittsfield's winter carnival queen . . . More than 500 persons braved below-zero weather to attend a show in the Barton, Vt., municipal auditorium, staged by Orleans County merchants in appreciation of patronage during the past year.

Honor Roll Button Won by Rosenthal's Campaign

NEW YORK—M-G-M has awarded an Honor Roll Button to Morris Rosenthal of Loew's Majestic, Bridgeport, Conn., for his outstanding campaign on "Land of Liberty," industry-sponsored feature which the company is releasing.

Highlights of Rosenthal's campaign: Special screening for heads of civic, social and educational organizations. Through Chamber of Commerce cooperation posters were placed in every local factory. Approval of the film by the superintendent of the board of education was posted on every school bulletin board. All teachers made class announcements. Stills and cards were planted in all libraries. Cards were used in all buses. Restaurants were supplied with menus. Newspapers cooperated with front page news stories and laudatory editorials.

Gordon & Lockwood Move On Skowhegan Strand

BOSTON—The Strand in Skowhegan, Me., is definitely in line to be taken over by the Louis Gordon and Arthur Lockwood circuit. Only legal technicalities remained at press time as a bar to Gordon & Lockwood acquisition of the theatre of the late Joseph Dondis. Operation of the house will parallel that of the State in Calais, taken over a few days ago from Charles Staples.

This Week We Meet

JACK SIMONS

INTRODUCING a man who really needs no introduction in this territory, Jack Simons, with the glad news that Jack has been promoted to the managership of Loew's State, Providence, after distinguished service for more than six years at the helm of the Loew-Poli, Hartford. How he got to be so good? Well—

Some 44 years ago Jack was born in Detroit, into the very midst of a talented family. Several aunts were musicians and performers; his sister, Ray Linker, was to appear in the "Zeigfeld Follies;" and his brother, Charles, was a violinist of promise who was later to become known on the concert stage. Before his school days started, the family moved to Pittsburgh. Here Jack attended both public and high school, and evidenced an amazing amount of ability and ambition—though what would become of him the Simons didn't know. For one day it was medicine he chose for a career, then journalism, and all the time the theatre was subtly and increasingly attracting him, too.

While in high school, Jack was one of the handsome young ushers at the old Nixon in Pittsburgh, and was showing promise of advancement. Always casting about for better opportunities, however, Simons landed a job with the old Pittsburgh Leader, then owned by Alexander P. Moore, whose fame was two-fold—as husband of Lillian Russell and later as ambassador to Spain. Simons soon proved he had a facile pen and knew his public. He not only did ghost-writing for Lillian and other feature writing, but developed one of the first syndicated features. His daily four-line poem followed by terse remarks on current news caught on easily and became a front-page box. When Moore went to Spain as ambassador, Simons was offered an opportunity to go along, but refused, believing his best interests lay ahead in the field in which he was already making strides.

But he was destined to be interrupted, and it was the World War which dictated the next move. Simons joined the army, went abroad, and fought in several major engagements, with the result that he was forced to spend almost a year recuperating in a hospital. He was still in his early twenties when he emerged and landed a berth as publicity man for the Harris Amusement Co. in Pittsburgh. Later he tackled both the publicity angle and the managership of the East End. From that time on, the lure of the theatre held. About 18 years ago he joined Loew's as manager of the Aldine in Pittsburgh before the de luxe Penn had been built.

About that time he began to be aware of Ethel, who had lived across the street from him all the time. No movie romance could have been more rapid nor had a happier ending. Just 17 years ago they were married, in spite of the fact Jack had just finished saying for the thousandth time that he was a confirmed bachelor.

His duties included a great deal of theatre relief work, and on one of his travels he renewed acquaintance with Harry Shaw, whom he had already met many years before. Shaw was then manager of the State in Syracuse, and Simons recalls being amazed at the popularity he had attained in the city. "He could have been mayor," Jack assures us. The two struck up a friendship then, but never dreamed that not very long after they would be working in the same division with Harry as boss. "It's six and a half years that I've been working under Harry Shaw now," Simons said on the eve of his transfer to Providence, "and leaving him is the only sad note in the good news. He is a man for whom I have the highest esteem—a brilliant and capable executive, who knows how to make friends and how to keep them. It has been a genuine pleasure to be associated with him."

Simons has enjoyed Hartford as "my most pleasant stay in any city." He feels the level of appreciation of Hartford audiences is high, and their support of good product is gratifying.

Ten-year-old Eleanor, the Simons' only child, will also be conquering new audiences in Providence. A talented musician, she has already given several recitals. Simons' own hobby of 25 years standing is magic. He knew Thurston and Houdini personally and never tires of probing and trying to emulate their skill. In Providence his tricks will be practically new.

PORTLAND

A NEW QUIZ type radio program is being aired over WCSH by the State Theatre, authors of the popular "Recess Time" juvenile program. The new program "Quest-On-Air" was broadcast for the first time Monday evening, February 3, from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, and features Dean Quest as master of ceremonies. A merchant is sponsoring.

"Welcome Home" week was celebrated by district M&P exhibitors recently honoring the return of A. J. Moreau, district M&P manager, to his desk after a prolonged absence due to illness . . . Another victim of "grippe"—Billy Romanoff, chief-of-service at the State . . . The Portland Theatre launched two new giveaway attractions this week: Cooking utensils and a cut glass set.

Mrs. Harry Botwick and daughter, Lennye returned from a visit to New Haven . . . The MPMO Local 458 held its annual banquet at the Columbia Hotel . . . The Portland Motion Picture Council launched a series of radio programs. The programs are carrying a "Better Pictures" theme and will be aired every two weeks for an indefinite time.

Marshall Megs "Texas"

HOLLYWOOD—George Marshall will direct "Texas," a Samuel Bischoff production for Columbia starring William Holden.

Shed Removal Order May Spur Building Plan

WETHERSFIELD, CONN.—A spur to plans of the Webster Co., Hartford theatre firm, to start construction on a proposed theatre here, may be the result of a court order to remove two tool sheds from the theatre site within two weeks unless building is started within that time. Permit for the building was issued in October, 1939.

Construction has not yet started, explained Joseph Schulman, an official of the Webster Company, because new plans were being drawn and a new permit was to be sought with the intent of building this spring.

A New 1,000-Seater for Cape Elizabeth, Me.

PORTLAND—A new 1,000-seater will be constructed in Cape Elizabeth, Me., to replace the Cape, Leon P. Gorman, operator of both the Cape and Cameo theatres there, announces. It will be located across the street from the present theatre. Plans have been drawn and the site purchased, and construction is expected to start soon.

Salesmen's Club Ball To Be Held April 20

BOSTON—The annual spring ball of the Boston Motion Picture Salesmen's Club will be held April 20 this year at the Cocoanut Grove with Harold Goldman of Producers' Releasing Corp., fraternity president, in general charge.

Mrs. Ralph L. Ripley

BOSTON—Mrs. Ralph L. Ripley, 64, wife of the manager of the Codman Square in Dorchester, died here last week. A native of Quebec, she had lived in Boston for the past 50 years. Burial was at North Chelmsford. Besides her husband, she left two sons and three daughters.

To New York Boat Show

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Charlie Lane, engineer for Western Electric and prize boatman in western Massachusetts, attended the motor boat show in New York recently. He was accompanied by F. R. Burr, manager of the Burr Theatre, Ludlow, and Peter Rush, projectionist.

Radio Music Feud Cripples Tieups

Boston—The Ascap-radio feud has resulted in the closing, temporarily at least, of one of the local theatre publicists most lucrative exploitation avenues. Music tieups with films, including the usual windows littered with title pages, etc., used to be as close to the Boston advertising man as his telephone. That was when the music contact man was on the job. The radio-music dispute, however, has resulted in the dismissal of most of the former local music contact men.

Trade Organizes Aid For Greek Relief

DALLAS—Organizing to solicit funds within the industry for Greek War Relief, a meeting was scheduled to be held here Monday among distributor and exhibitor leaders.

R. J. O'Donnell of Interstate is chairman of the Oklahoma City and Dallas districts. As co-chairman, Louis Charninsky, Elm Street showman, will head the theatre group and H. Biersdorf, 20th-Fox branch manager here, will be in charge of the exchange division.

All exhibitors in Texas will be solicited by salesmen from the various distributing companies, it was said. Adolph Zukor is national chairman for the amusement industry. Gradwell Sears of Warner Bros. is chairman of the exchange group nationally and John H. Harris, national chief barker of Variety, is chairman of the nation-wide exhibitor drive for Greek relief funds.

Lightman Heads Greek War Relief Division

MEMPHIS—M. A. Lightman, head of the Malco Theatres here, heads the sectional theatre division in a current campaign on behalf of the Greek War Relief Fund.

Lightman appointed Ed Sapinsley of Malco as city chairman. Adolph Zukor is national general theatre chairman.

Through mediums other than theatres the Memphis committee already has raised $12,000.

Joe Cooper Gives $500 For Greek War Relief

OKLAHOMA CITY—Announcing that the Greek war relief fund here had been boosted to $8,600 by a $500 donation from Joe Cooper, head of Standard Theatres, John Sinopoulo, former theatre man here and fund leader, began further plans for boosting the local relief chest with the help of the theatre industry here.

Ample publicity for the Samuel Goldwyn network broadcast was secured in Oklahoma City through Sinopoulo's and Cooper's activities.

Theatres Plan to Collect Scrap Iron for Britain

OKLAHOMA CITY—Plans are being made for half a dozen or more theatres to accept scrap iron as admission tickets in the iron-for-Britain movement being energized by Louis J. Horwitz here. Trucks are to be placed in front of theatres to receive the iron.

Scully to Miami

NEW YORK—William A. Scully, Universal general sales manager, left here over the weekend for Miami on a combined business and vacation trip. While in the south, he expects to close new deals with the Sparks and with the Wometco circuits.

Role for Ann Miller

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia has signed Ann Miller, dancing star, for a role in "Show Business."

B&B Amusement Co. Buys Savannah Theatre Block

CHARLOTTE—Ellis Blumenthal, president of the B & B Amusement Co., advises through his general manager, C. A. Matthews, that he has purchased the entire business block in which the Star Theatre is located in Savannah, Ga.

Blumenthal has had the Star under lease for some time. Matthews advises that the purchase price was in excess of $60,000.

Rowland to Dallas for 'Miss Bishop' Showing

DALLAS—Richard A. Rowland, one of the industry's production pioneers, arrives Monday for a trade screening of his first for United Artists, "Cheers for Miss Bishop." The screening starts at 9 o'clock in the Tower Theatre on Elm Street. A good attendance of exhibitors and press representatives is expected. The producer will be a guest of Variety the same day.

Worth Leuthstrom Wins R&R Publicity Job

DALLAS—Worth Leuthstrom, R&R booker, has been assigned to the theatre division as advertising and publicity head for the circuit's five Oak Cliff houses under Manager Lloyd Pullen. Worth displayed considerable talent for his new job while editing Tips, the circuit's publicity organ. His booking post will be filled by Adrian Upchurch, who comes here from Little Rock.

Holloway Commissioned

NEWTON, N. C.—I. C. Holloway of the State Theatre has been made a captain of Catawba County Home Guard, according to announcement made in Raleigh. Holloway, before leasing Gus Mitchell's State, was city manager for Wilby-Kincey at Lexington.

Guinn Goodrich Joins Forces

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—Guinn B. Goodrich, manager of the Gem Theatre and a first lieutenant in the R. O. T. C., was ordered to report February 11 at Fort Benning.

Jim Frew Universal New Orleans Head

NEW ORLEANS — Jim Frew has been named manager of the local Universal branch to succeed W. M. Richardson, who was announced last week as manager of the Atlanta branch on the resignation of John T. Ezell.

Works Out Booking Plans For Special Occasions

DALLAS—O. K. Bourgeois of Astor Pictures here, whose new work sheet includes 33 films, has worked out booking plans for showings to fit any special purpose a theatre might have. For instance, he booked William S. Hart in "Tumbleweeds" into the Parkway, Fort Worth, on February 7, for showing to the T. C. U. faculty and student body which is making a study of motion pictures. Bourgeois will soon screen one of his pictures for Gov. Lee O'Daniel in one of the downtown theatres of Austin.

Clemmons Will Build Two Negro Houses in Houston

DALLAS—Two new Negro theatres will be built in Houston soon by Tom R. Clemmons of Beaumont he said while in Dallas this week in connection with product for those situations and with bookings for his white trade Royal in Orange.

One of the Houston houses is under construction now to be ready by April 15, and the second will be under way in a short time. The properties, exclusive of equipment, will amount to investments of about $30,000 each, Clemmons said.

Trade Attends Opening

WILSON, N. C.—Several exchange managers, salesmen, and exhibitors attended the opening of Worth Stewart's new Drake Theatre here this week. The house is named for Stewart's father-in-law who operated a theatre in Wilson 25 years ago.

Standing are, same order: Bob Hawk, radio personality; Allan Jones, screen and concert singing star; Miss Inez Henry, representative of Miss Martha Berry, and R. J. O'Donnell, former chief barker of the Dallas Variety club, and first assistant chief barker of the Variety Clubs of America.

Dallas Music Clubs Tie On "Sonata" Booking

DALLAS—In cooperation with Dallas music clubs, in observance of Paderewski's anniversary celebration, Interstate has booked "Moonlight Sonata," starring the pianist, for showing in its Melrose Theatre February 20.

Add 300 Seats

NEW ORLEANS—The Bijou Amusement Company of Nashville has started the installation of an additional 300 seats in its Ritz Theatre here.

Deanna Durbin Guest At Variety Luncheon

DALLAS—More than 500 persons attended the first Ladies Day Luncheon given by the Variety Club of Texas Monday noon in the Grand Ballroom of the Adolphus Hotel at which Deanna Durbin was guest of honor.

The Grand Ballroom was decorated as an ocean-going ship deck representing the S. S. Variety on its charitable voyages.

Chief Barker Paul Short turned the meeting over to R. J. O'Donnell, who introduced a number of visitors including Mrs. James Durbin, Deanna's mother; Judge Sarah T. Hughes, principal speaker; M. J. Hamilburg, the star's manager; George Thomas, of the Universal publicity department; Mrs. Dora Foster of Freeman Memorial Clinic, Variety's chief charity objective; Julius Gordon, of Beaumont, chairman of the board of Jefferson Amusement Co.; C. B. Akers, of Griffith Amusement Co., Oklahoma City, and others.

Welcoming committee for Miss Durbin at the station were Chief Barker Short, R. J. O'Donnell; Jake Lutzer on behalf of Universal for Branch Manager E. S. Olsmith who was in Chicago; Frank Starz, and Ray Beall, P. K. Johnston and J. O. Cherry of Interstate Rader.

A dinner party was also held in the Universal starlet's honor.

A Star's Course—

A visit to Hope Cottage for foundling babies, which is under the protectorate wing of the Variety Club of Texas, was included on the list of activities in which Deanna Durbin participated on her visit to Dallas. Miss Durbin was the guest of honor at the first annual Ladies Day Luncheon of the Variety Club. In the upper photo are the star and R. J. O'Donnell, first assistant national Chief Barker of Variety, at the luncheon. Below, at the home, left to right are Paul Short, Chief Barker; Mrs. Glen Carson, executive secretary of the cottage; Deanna Durbin and Dr. Ramsey Moore of the medical staff.

"Wind" Unrivalled in Dallas First Runs

DALLAS—"Gone With the Wind" took the lion's share on Elm Street for the week during fair weather, showing three a day. Lines formed for a block morning and night. The in-between show at 4:15, however, was run with a few vacant seats, with the other two steady at capacity. A second holdover week followed in the same theatre. The Capitol continues its double bill on the weekend to stay above average.

BIG EXCITEMENT out at the Max Fleischer Studios these days all centers around the starting of actual production on the big cartoon studios' next full length feature opus to be entitled "Mr. Bug Goes to Town." It is a yarn about one particular bug and his fellow insects. We're going to be let in for a very surprising bug's-eye view of ourselves and our fellowmen, we understand, as the result of this feature on which some 700 artists and technicians will spend the better part of 1941.

At Coral Gables casting is in progress at the Colonnade Studios for the adaption of "Lost Atlantis" which Korda and Reviere will be shooting by the middle of the month.

As the autograph fans catch their breaths following the personal appearance of Stirling Hayden last week at initial showing of "Virginia" concurrently at the Beach and the Paramount, comes the announcement that Carolyn Lee has recuperated from that attack of bronchitis which kept her in a Washington hospital for two weeks and will bow from the Olympia stage February 20 when "Virginia" opens there.

Subtle but effective psychology, used by cashiers at Herman Polies' Harlem, lies in the fact that patrons are always given one or more nickles with their change. Those nickels in hand have a bigger bolstering up effect on candy sales than you'd believe until you try it, Polies declares.

Employes of the Sparks theatres in Hollywood are making big plans for a gala evening to be celebrated soon at the new Spotlite club . . . Paul Robinson played "Philadelphia Story" four days at his Florida.

Jorgenson-Interstate Hearing to Feb. 20

DALLAS—Defense motions in the H. N. Jorgenson of the East Grand Theatre vs. Interstate circuit damage suit, scheduled to be heard Monday in federal court by Judge W. H. Atwell, were passed and especially set for February 20.

Interstate's motion is to have the jury verdict, which awarded Jorgenson $4,500, set aside on grounds that the award was not in line with evidence presented and asks Judge Atwell to instruct the jury to render in favor of the circuit. In event this motion is denied, Interstate will then ask for a new trial. The case is based on the 25 cent price restrictions in vogue here several years ago. All other cases involving this issue have been disposed of by settlement or trial.

Wilby-Kincey Lease House From Herman Schubert

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—The State Theatre, 1505 Washington Avenue, has been leased from Herman Schubert and is now being operated by Wilby-Kincey, which also controls the Tennessee, Riviera, Strand, Bijou, and Park. Joe Alexander of Elizabethton, has been made manager of the State, which has reopened after redecoration of the interior and installation of new projection equipment. Re-runs of leading films are shown with four changes of program a week.

OKLA. CITY

BOB BUSCH pulled the strings on opening of the new Uptown last week with films of the opening being taken as first-nighters arrived. They will be shown on the screen this week. The new suburban house, located just outside the business section, and under lease to "Chuck" Faris, has one of the most attractive auditoriums in the city. It seats 650. Two changes a week on second runs has been set as the policy.

Don't let anybody tell you Pete Crown, who has theatres in Pampa and Borger, Tex., doesn't know how to play dominos. Your correspondent was given an effective lesson last week . . . Congratulations to Sam Caporal on his new Bison Theatre and particularly on filling up all those store spaces in the same building almost as quickly as the house was completed. Incidentally Caporal has installed a lot of new furnishings on his Yale front including new tile, decorations and fluorescent lighting.

No new theatres now under construction, but several in the "planning" stage . . . Watch for possible reopening of Standard's Victoria and building of another new suburban house by Standard; for a possible second house by T. B. Noble jr., of the State Theatre; for an effort by George Laham of Blackwell and two or three more which are merely being planned as "maybes."

AFL pickets are still pacing the sidewalk in front of the State because of the theatre's use of a non-union firm for art work . . . The former Mrs. Dick Talbot is now learning the ropes as a Standard cashier, your correspondent having eyed her understudying at the Liberty the other day.

Compliments from every direction are pouring in on L. C. Griffith and the Variety Club for their new health center which is a sizeable contribution to the welfare activity of the city . . . Talk of the town is WKY's "Smarty Party" show wherein listeners phone in questions for a board of experts to answer; if the boys, with their library, can't answer in two minutes, the listener gets two tickets to the State as a prize. Costs the State nothing but the tickets and is very good publicity, says Bob Pfotenhauer.

"After Mein Kampf" to Franconi, Blumenthal

DALLAS—"After Mein Kampf" will soon be distributed to Texas exhibitors by Ed Blumenthal and John Franconi out of their Monogram exchange here. Prints will arrive early next week and screenings for the trade will follow immediately. The Hitler film will be sold on a special contract and exhibition will be on a roadshow basis only, it was said.

Labor Issue Is Swiftly Settled by Exchange

DALLAS—A difference arising between the Film Exchange Employes Union and Universal was amicably settled last week when a shipper working at the exchange under permit from the union was replaced by a union member on the union's request.

New Tulsa to Bow

TULSA—The new Tulsa on Third and Main will be formally opened Wednesday evening by Griffith-Southwestern Theatres, Inc. A banquet, an invitational affair, will be held at the Hotel Tulsa preceding the opening.

The current Azteca Film release playing the National recently was tagged "Mala Yerba" . . . Seen at the Golden Gloves tourney: Billy Johnston, Eddie Collins, Henry Bergman, and V. D. Welker, all of Interstate here.

Christopher Morley's "Kathleen" is being filmed by the picture production class at Jefferson Senior High School under the direction of Miss Simena Wolf, motion picture production instructor.

"Hudson's Bay" (20th-Fox) owled at the Majestic Saturday while "Six Lessons from Madame Lazonga" (Univ.) dittoed at the Texas along with added specialty acts and vaudeville hi spots on the stage . . . Tommy Whales, who ramrods the Cascade up in Boerne, was a showshopper at Barron's Independent Film Exchange as was a Mr. Lennie who is opening a theatre in Lavernia soon. Lennie has taken over a store and has added the necessary changes to make it a showhouse.

Raymond "Wimpy" McKay, the Majestic sound man, has received his draft papers, so it may not be long now . . . "GWTW" is slated for a return engagement at the Majestic, March 1, for a week's run . . . Phil Spitalny and his All-Girl Orchestra has been booked for a personal appearance at the Majestic Easter Week . . . Kate Smith, the radio songstress, is scheduled for a p. a. in Santone the first Friday in March.

Robert "Bob" Hawk, the radio emcee, plans to do a personal with his quiz show, "Take It or Leave It," at one of the downtown theatres in the near future . . . "Hell's Angels" (Astor) is continuing to break house records in the territory . . . Among the show people who took part in the Texas Open Golf Tourney last week were Benno Kusenburger, local projectionist; Ed F. Brady, sr., San Benito theatreman, and Jack Jackson, Dallas.

A request of the Elmer Horne Film Co., Dallas, to sign a contract with the city of San Antonio for exhibiting films at the playgrounds during the summer has been rejected by the recreation board.

A. B. Johnston is building a theatre in South San Antonio to seat around 600. It will mark South San's first flicker house. Name will be selected by a contest in which the winner will receive a cash prize of $10 . . . Maria Conesa's latest starring Mexican talkie, "Madre A La Fuerza" was unreeled at El Nacional last week.

MISS BONNIE LONG has resigned as executive secretary of the Variety Club of Texas and the guess is her next assignment will be operating her own theatre before long in some of the smaller situations. Miss Long, for many previous years, was secretary of the Dallas film board of trade until the curtain fell on that organization. She rendered additional service to the industry in Texas by getting out the Texas Theatre Almanac each year.

H. S. Usry of the Majestic at Decatur, has been taking some advanced Masonic work and, we understand, has been progressing with honors . . . D. A. Dickson, owner of the Haskell Theatre here, dropped in to renew his subscription to BOXOFFICE.

A. W. (Jack) Lilly was here the other day from Greenville on a visit long overdue. He said his theatre office is temporarily in the Washington Hotel in Greenville. New furnishings and fixtures are replacing those damaged by fire in his office at the Rialto.

Herschel Crawford, owner of the Palace at Slaton, put in a couple of days over booking counters here advancing playdates for about a 30 day period . . . Chester Morris reportedly will arrive in Texas soon to look after oil interests. He is said to have investments in the East Texas pools.

Robert Foster, of Interstate's general office, has departed for New London, Conn., where he joins the U. S. Navy as Ensign, junior grade. He is an Annapolis graduate. Replacing Foster is Lynn Harris, who has been in the circuit's short subjects department. In turn Miss Lola Cheaney, former Warner contract player, succeeds Harris.

D. C. Carraway of the Cliftex at Clifton has been a recent commuter to Dallas because Mrs. Carraway has been here several weeks under medical treatment. Her condition is much improved and she will return to her home shortly.

Mrs. Wallace Rucker, who has a part with her husband in operating the Rock Theatre in Round Rock, was here this week with her son, Wallace, jr., on a visit to friends. The Ruckers are former Dallasites of long standing. Wallace having been connected with exchanges here for many years, his last post being as manager of GB.

R. C. (Bob) McIlheran of the Gem at Wichita Falls arrived Tuesday for a two day session with exchange bookers. He has an Interstate affiliation but does a large part in setting in Gem dates.

Invitations were received along the Row here for the opening Wednesday, February 19, in Tulsa of the new Tulsa Theatre, latest operation of Griffith Southwestern Theatres, Inc. Highlight will be a banquet in the Hotel Tulsa, preceding the dedication of the theatre. L. A. Chatham active in arrangements for the big opening.

Howard Baskin, who is drifting into the roadshow game after booking experiences on the Row for several years, has been in west Texas following through on a group of playdates . . . E. S. Olsmith, Universal's branch manager, was in Chicago over the weekend attending the company's advanced annual sales convention.

G. A. Cole, New Braunfels exhibitor, was married in Dallas, Saturday night, to a teacher in the New Braunfels high school. They will live in New Braunfels where Cole is in the midst of plans of rebuilding his theatre which was destroyed by fire the first of the year . . . Henry Rogers jr. of Sweetwater, assistant manager of Robb & Rowley theatres there, was a visitor in the circuit's home office on Filmrow . . . Raymond and Mrs. Thompson of the Mecca at Jacksboro were on the Row Wednesday for a quick booking trip. They are among Harwood Street's regular visitors.

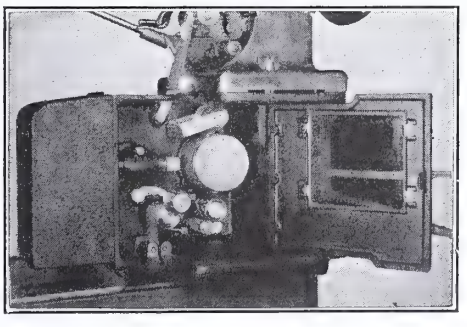
P. J. Poag, R&R's city manager in Del Rio, and incidentally a partner, has recovered after an operation and is now back on the job . . . R. O. Gross, owner and operator of the Joy at Roscoe, and Mrs. Gross were on the Row Wednesday for a short visit . . . Miss Lillian Walker, owner of theatres in Durant, Okla. and Sherman, Tex., was here on a booking trip . . . Al Mortensen, co-owner of Southwestern Theatre Equipment Co., Houston, was up Tuesday on business.

L. B. Brown of Gatesville was in booking for his Regal and Ritz theatres . . . Among out-of-town exhibitors and their wives at the first annual ladies' day Variety luncheon Monday at the Adolphus, were Rubin and Mrs. Frels of Victoria, and B. R. and Mrs. McLendon of Atlanta . . . C. V. and Mrs. Carter of Comanche who operate the Majestic there, were on the Row, Monday.

The Stewart brothers, John N. of Kaufman, and M. D. of DeLeon, were here Monday. Ditto Carl Milentz of Daisetta, busily booking for several houses; C. W. Niece of the Crystal at Hubbard, and W. S. "Bill" Hurst of the Plaza, Denton . . . Pete Blackshear was in town Wednesday before reopening his rebuilt Queen in Aspermont . . . Uncle Sam reached into the Republic exchange, taking two into camp. Doyle Baker, shipper, is the first to go. He is replaced by Edgar Lederman, moved up from ad sales. Billy Ledbetter comes in as ad salesman. The second draftee is Clarence Walker, colored porter.

Mitchell Lewis, booking his three colored theatres in Houston, and Emile George, with two colored shows in Port Arthur, were on the Row at the same time and business took a spurt for distributors handling that type of entertainment.

Fort Worth Houses Are Reviving Old Features



FORT WORTH, TEX.—A number of old films are being revived locally and with good results, exhibitors say. "Things to Come" played the Palace recently, while the Parkway brought back "The Gay Desperado" and "Bringing Up Baby" last week.

Austin Businessmen Plan Drive-In Near Houston

AUSTIN, TEX.—A group of local businessmen are planning to build a $27,500 drive-in in a suburb of Houston, according to a reliable source. The outdoor theatre is expected to accommodate nearly 1,000 automobiles with individual loudspeakers.

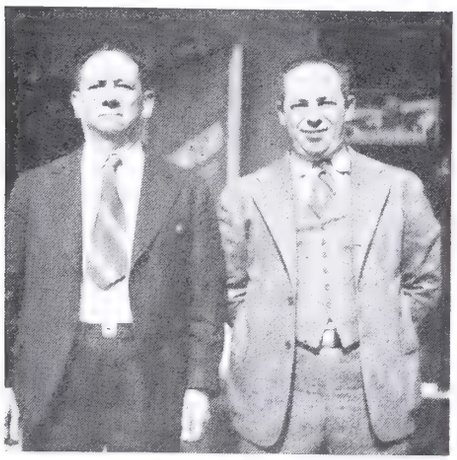
Concerning the Joels

By A. JULES BENEDIC

JACKSONVILLE—With nearly two score years of exhibition to his credit, L. D. Joel of this lively Florida metropolis views life calmly, taking things as they come and go at the Casino Theatre on Bay street. Mr. Joel says he read with interest of that Kirbyville, Tex., exhibitor, and of those other old-timers up in the Carolinas. Acknowledged as the oldest exhibitor in point of service in Florida, Mr. Joel wonders if he may not exceed or at least tie his exhibitor-brethren over the South.

Mr. Joel told this interviewer he has two great ambitions in life.

The first: that he can live to 75, so that he can celebrate his golden anniversary in what he terms "this great game."



Credit Good for a Short Reel?

The second: that he can live long enough to be able to get a $2 comedy shipped to the Casino without a COD, if his check should fail to arrive before shipment.

"Maybe I can realize the first," said this veteran of the celluloids, "but I fear greatly I'll never taste victory on the second."

Photographed in front of the Casino Theatre along with his son, Morton, Mr. Joel reminisced over the years.

"I suppose I'm the oldest in the State," he began, "if not the entire Southland. I started 36 years ago—in 1905—at the Nickelodeon, on Bridge St., now Broad.

The Joels—

Then I built the Airdome at Ashley and Broad streets.

"Then I opened the Globe Theatre here. By this time, the virus was in my blood, so I went to Atlanta, where I bought and operated a string of colored houses, in partnership with Mr. Bailey. I also had the Grand in Chattanooga. In Atlanta I had the Central, the 81, Dixie, Famous and the Joel and Bailey, known familiarly as the J. and B.

"Shortly thereafter I returned to Jacksonville, where I ran the Prince Theatre and also took over the old Phoenix on Bay street. Subsequently, the Phoenix was renamed the Liberty. Then came the Pastime Theatre in Jacksonville, which I later called the Casino, my present show, which I have operated continuously for twenty-five years. In my time I have also had the Auditorium in Lakeland and the Garing in Greenville, S. C."

Easier the First 50 Years

Besides the son associated with him at the Casino Theatre, Mr. Joel has another son, a lawyer. His son-in-law, L. A. Stein of Jacksonville, is head of Stein Interests, a circuit of 20 theatres in small towns over South Georgia and middle Florida. L. A. Stein's brother, Ben Stein, formerly operated a theatre at Valdosta, Ga., and is at present an attorney here.

"I expect to celebrate my 61st birthday March 14," resumed the veteran, and will retire on my 75th, if attained, even though folks say this game is easier after the first 50 years.

"I have discovered, after my 36 years in this business, that I know less about the industry than when I started. Yes, I've had my share of interesting and unusual experiences.

"I remember a noble experiment many years ago at a house which I was operating. On Monday night I gave away a set of dishes. On Tuesday night, a box of groceries. On Wednesday night some lucky lady got a dress. On Thursday night a gentleman received a fine suit of clothes. On Friday night I gave away $15 in gold (which was negotiable in those days), and on Saturday night I gave away something or other as a special valuable prize.

Heads Consolidated—

Collyar Phillips, who has been named manager of the Atlanta office of Consolidated National Film Exchange, Inc., a combination of Million Dollar Productions and Dixie National Pictures. Phillips formerly was with 20th-Fox in Dallas.

Proud of Jail-less Record

"As a result of all this crazy ballyhoo. I made from $300 to $500 every week and, thus encouraged, I spent $10 for a coat of paint for the lobby. This act, I found, completely ruined the fine business I had built up, as folks didn't feel at home in swanky surroundings.

"I have tried every plan and have done everything known in this game, and by a streak of fortune, I have somehow kept out of jail.

"For the last 15 years, I have been associated in business with Ray Yockey, and am glad to say publicly he's the finest man I've ever met. His counsel and assistance have been invaluable to me, and together I believe we have made a success of our business.

"I can still say, 'this is a great game if you don't weaken,' and hope to stay with it for many years to come."

Sneak Previews Gaining Hold in Neighborhoods

DALLAS—Popularity of sneak previews in Elm Street first run houses is now spreading to the neighborhoods. For Valentine's Day a sneaker was booked for the Majestic and also in four neighborhood houses. The Village and Lakewood were to play the same film and others unknown were set in the Melrose and Varsity.

Newcomer Welcomed—

Stirling Hayden, who appears in Paramount's "Virginia," is greeted by H. H. Everett, circuit head of Everett Enterprises, Inc., at the exhibitor luncheon held recently at the Hotel Charlotte in Charlotte, N. C.

Learn About Decree

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Manager Joe Brecheen and the RKO sales force met with William Zimmerman, of the home office legal department, to discuss the consent decree.

CHARLOTTE

CLYDE WOOTEN, who has been going great guns recently at the local Broadway Theatre with one of the best of T. D. Kemp jr.'s flesh flashes, conducted a novel contest during the appearance of Fifi D'Orsay and Lee Dixon, supported by Fifi's ensemble. The letter contest, "Why I would like a date with a movie star"—the prize for the "gal" was a real honest to goodness date with Lee and the boy winner a date with Fifi.

Harry Epting, of the engineering department of National Theatre Supply Company with headquarters in Atlanta, is spending some time in the Carolinas on business . . . Eddie Carroll announces that Independent Theatre Supply has contracts to place new chairs in the Oasis at Wilson, N. C. for Mrs. Jane Paradis; Grand in Greer, S. C., for Bill Drace and Opera House in Weldon, N. C., for E. W. Batchelor.

Ben Ralston of Sound Engineering Service Corp. is on an extended trip throughout the two states . . . Mrs. S. S. Stevenson, wife of S. S. Stevenson of Henderson, N. C., who has been quite ill for some time, is improving.

A. C. Bromberg announces a Republic sales meeting to be held in Atlanta on March 3 and 4 . . . The Tryon Theatre has the world's premiere of Monogram's Tex Ritter's "Riding the Cherokee Trail," with the local Tennessee Ramblers underlined for February 24.

John Robinson of the New Theatre in Old Fort, N. C., who announced that he would go into war defense service and turn over the operation of his theatre to W. A. Ashley, has reconsidered and will continue to operate the theatre . . . Wilby-Kincey's new Palmetto Theatre, seating 850, located at East Main and North Liberty Streets in Spartanburg, S. C., will open early in April. This is the fourth Wilby-Kincey house for Spartanburg.

Al Miller, who operates the Rivoli and Grand in Lincolnton, N. C., advises that his new Century Theatre, now in the course of construction, will seat 750. No opening date is yet set.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stellings are the parents of a baby girl, named Sandra Ann. Both mother and baby are doing fine. Ernest is booking manager for Everett Enterprises.

Mrs. Lester Sipe has entered a hospital in Miami, Fla. She has been ill for some time and was accompanied by Mr. Sipe, who will join a local fishing party at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., if Mrs. Sipe's condition is improved. Sipe has been in the exhibition business in the Carolinas for many years.

Tom Bailey, eastern Carolina salesman for Metro, is confined to his home with flu . . . Ira Smith, who operates the Breeze Theatre in Beaufort, S. C., announces the construction of a new theatre which will seat 250. Work already has started.

Tom Little, well known exhibitor in the Carolinas, paid a visit to Raleigh. His business associates, J. Francis White jr. of Asheboro, N. C., Sam Craver and Frank Beddingfield of Charlotte, N. C., and H. V. Wynn of Greenville, S. C., are puzzled at this unusual urge on Tom's part inasmuch as he hasn't been beyond the boundary of Mecklenburg County for the past year. Was it politics or his Wake Theatre interests there?

Mrs. Margaret Brown, secretary to Manager Benn Rosenwald at Metro, is ill with pneumonia . . . "Back Street," Universal's revival of an oldie, must have what it takes to get them up to the boxoffice, judging from the "raves" being carried daily in both Charlotte papers. Tom Fesperman of the News and Dick Pitts of the Observer were both guests at the premiere in Miami.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Miriam Matheson to William Wilson Sharpe. Mrs. Sharpe has been connected with the Southeastern Construction Company. Sharpe is a salesman for Paramount.

C. A. Harper jr. announces that his Ann Theatre in Estill, S. C., has been reopened after having been closed for a time . . . National Theatre Supply has completed the installation of booth equipment and screen in the St. Pauls Theatre, St. Pauls, N. C. The theatre is owned by E. G. Pophal.

Max Bryant of Bryant Theatre Supply Co. is ill with flu at his home in Rock Hill, S. C. . . . Bryant Supply Co. announces the sale of lamp houses to Tom Fleming of the Sylva Theatre in York, S. C. . . . Hugh Anderson, representative of the National Carbon Co., with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., visited with his local dealers during the week.

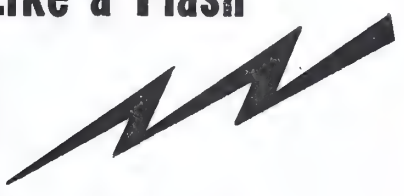
Harold Flavin, who supplies several major distributors with advertising accessories, was in conference this week with John Mangham, president of Monogram Southern, who came in from Atlanta . . . William B. Brenner, executive from the New York office of National Screen Service and Advertising Accessories, Inc., visited the local branch, conferring with Manager Bob Simril and the sales staff.

M. L. Stevens, eastern salesman for Monogram-Southern, is seriously ill in the King Cotton Hotel in Greensboro, N. C. . . . John Bachman, manager of the local Warner office, attended the North Carolina legislative session during the past week—awaiting his chance to get the attention of our busy exhibitor senator, Roy Rowe, of Burgaw, N. C. Result was a contract for Johnny.

John Mangham, president of Monogram-Southern, held a sales meeting with his Charlotte force, which is managed by Jack Lamont. Mangham stated that sales plans and product for the new season were discussed—with considerable attention given to the consent decree. He will fly from Charlotte to New Orleans and then to Memphis.

Alice Montague, Universal biller, was married to John "Red" Polk recently. John is connected with the Union Storage and Warehouse Co. Mrs. Polk will continue with Universal after a short honeymoon. . . . Ray Erwin, Metro salesman for South Carolina, and western North Carolina, is back in the fold after an attack of flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Nuger, who operate the Grand in Charlotte, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reevin, who have the Lyric in Sumter, S. C. Reevin has just completed the reseating of the Lyric. Mr. and Mrs. Reevin will attend the Zionist Convention at the Hotel Charlotte this week.



"Rosy" Rosenblatt of Theatrical Engineering has secured a sound service contract with P. C. Osteen jr. for his Carolina Theatre in Anderson, S. C. . . . C. G. Lawing has closed his Badin in Badin, N. C. He will continue to operate the Norwood Theatre in Norwood, N. C., and the Roxie in Albemarle, N. C. . . . Ralph McCoy, southeastern district manager for Warner, spent the weekend with Manager Johnny Backman.

It looked like a convention on the Row this week—visitors were: Mrs. H. T. Green, Hollywood Theatre, Manning, S. C.; S. (Staff) G. Rogers, Chatham, Pittsboro,

Concerning Florida

By A. JULES BENEDIC

TAMPA—As we trip into Tampa for a tussle with local cinematic caliphs, folks are wearing overcoats on this, the coldest day of the year so far. It's just one of those things, so to speak, a temporary touch of the cold weather, but not so cold as Kansas City, for example, which the paper says registers 14 above, while we down here shiver in the early forties. Trotting to the Tampa, the city's largest theatre, ace house on the Sparks circuit, we induce Vincent Wade, manager, and Bert Stephens, assistant, to pose for a photograph. This was on Sunday, and a few hours later both were held up, tied and robbed, the bandits departing with some $3,200 receipts. A clever stunt, with the bandit pair planning the thing in advance. One of them posed as a patron who had earlier lost a cardcase, and so gained entrance to the office.

Telling the story to officers, Stephens said one of the men entered the office, held him up, while the other bound and gagged Manager Wade. Telephone wires were then cut; the assistant forced to open the safe, then the second executive was bound and gagged. The money was placed in paper bags.

Pre-View of Pirates' Visitation

The robbery was pulled a day in advance of the local Pirate Festival, a Gasparilla event that draws thousands to this lively resort city. "Pirates" invaded the city Monday, while the Sunday theatre event was in the nature of a preview, so to speak. A close check showed that neither the thin man, nor the fat man, as identified by their victims, were members of the local Gasparilla Krewe, a carnival organization patterned along the lines of those which make merry in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras season.

We ease to Ybor (pronounced E-bor), that delightful Cuban adjunct to Tampa, celebrated for cigars, cuisine and dark-eyed senoritas, our mission partly to interview E. N. Creek and George Stonaris, exhibitors de la cinema. Partly, too, to have one of those tables de hote at Cafe Columbia. This column may have prated, in the past, of delectable dishes at The Original in San Antonio; at Antonie's in New Orleans, at Yashimini's in Piedras Negras, or at the Ruby Foo joints in New York and Boston, respectively, but for genuine Latin-American seven-course repasts, the Columbia is four deuces in a wild deck. Not to take away credit, at that, from Los Novedades and other Cuban restaurants in this bit of Havana; it's the general atmosphere and old-world cooking that woos so many tourists.

It's a cold, bleak Domingo, but that does not deter these dark-orbed Cuban-Americans from attendance at their favorite cinema, and all the shows—the Broadway, Ritz, Casino, Royal, are well attended. We consult with Mr. Creek at his Ritz Theatre office; Mr. Stonaris is caught on the fly, so to speak, on his way to the Broadway.

Gore at the Helm of Five

Back in Tampa, we renew acquaintance with B. E. Gore, irrepressible Tampan who never said quit in his life, and find B. E. at the helm of the State, offering first-run Warner, as well as at the Rialto, a subsequent run house. In addition, Mr. Gore will open his new Howard, a suburban, approximately February 23, while his Northtown, also in the suburbs, is expected to open 60 days after. These houses, with an interest in the Broadway at Ybor City, give this exhibitor a quintet of operations in the Tampa metropolitan area.

We ramble to the Rex, for a confab with Mr. Livingston, then find that Manager Laird of Republic, the solo exchange in Florida, is away on business, so we photograph the office force instead, including Office Manager J. E. Thrift.

Tripping to Tarpon Springs, we ramble 'round a bit with Charles H. Richelieu, who erected in this competitive spot a theatre patterned after an arcade, enjoying fair business. Mr. Richelieu has an idea, which he bounced at us, to the effect that all talking pictures should have silent interludes. He promised to enlarge on his theory and pound out a story of his own, so here's hoping . . . St. Pete is another port of call, where we renew acquaintance with the Boardman brothers at The Playhouse and find Bob Boardman recovering nicely after an illness of some four months' duration.

Readers Aghast at Auburn Trade

Of late our readers may have wondered why there was no references to the hybrid Auburn, a more or less animated gasoline wagon which since last April rolled or was pushed over most of a score of states. The Auburn is now no more, at least under instant auspices, having been traded in on a reissue model of Plymouth, a car some years younger, not a '41, to be sure, but propelled under its own power, at least to date.

News of the daring trade, accomplished in Jacksonville, was received with mingled feeling when transmitted to two exchange centers. Pauline Griffith, at Charlotte, reported these interviews:

From Sam Perry, proprietor of the Hollywood Grill, a Filmrow hangout:

"The trade comes as a distinct blow to my organization. Every time the Auburn was parked in front of my joint, folks came from miles around, to see why it ran at all. We will feel keenly the loss in business."

Repair men's organizations of both North and South Carolina passed resolutions of regret after being apprised on the new deal. Particularly was consternation rife in South Carolina, where the motorized monstrosity passed its declining weeks. In the welding personnel, particularly, there were numerous cancellations of Florida trips.

Everett Refuses to Comment

Heck Everett, head of the theatre circuit bearing his name, said he was too busy barking on the Variety club to mess with the incident, while Roy Springer, MPA salesman with headquarters at Thomasville, could not be located for comment.

"We have enough to cope within the local flu situation," said Larry Waters, caliph at Cinema Charlotte, "without any new worries. At any rate, I will take whatever stand is opposite to that of Sam Perry, who was never right in his life."

Concerning People—

The roving BOXOFFICE camera in the hands of Roving Reporter A. Jules Benedic catches these trade figures in Jacksonville. At the top, Mrs. M. C. Moore on a shopping tour. She is the wife of the rajah of the Riverside in Jacksonville, who also is the perennial president of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Ass'n. Center: Guy Kenimer, left, city and division manager for the Sparks circuit, and Robert Heekin, the Florida's co-pilot. At the bottom, combination businessing and pleasuring are, left to right, RCA's W. L. Jones, service manager; Ed Auger, goodwill ambassador, and Homer B. Snook, general sales manager of RCA Photophone.

MEMPHIS

H I. "BUDDY" MANSFIELD, Universal's branch manager, is back at his desk after several days in Chicago, where the national sales convention was held . . . M. B. Hasty of the Joy at Dardanelle, Ark., made his regular monthly booking trip . . . Dwight Blissard of the Okolona at Okolona, Miss., was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce there.

John Mohrstadt of the Missouri at Hayti, Mo., a recent visitor . . . Nathan Flexer of the Waverly at Waverly, Tenn., made a flying trip to Memphis last week. Some of his projection equipment needed repairing so he brought the defective parts with him. He was home the same day to start the show.

Tallulah Bankhead played at the Ellis Auditorium Saturday with a matinee and evening performance of "Little Foxes," to capacity crowds . . . Sid Metcalf of the Petit Jean at Morrillton, Ark., was a most unusual filmrow visitor this past week . . . M. Stephens of the Stephens at Sherman, Miss., is off to Rockford, Ill., for a two week vacation. Mrs. Stephens is managing the theatre during his absence.

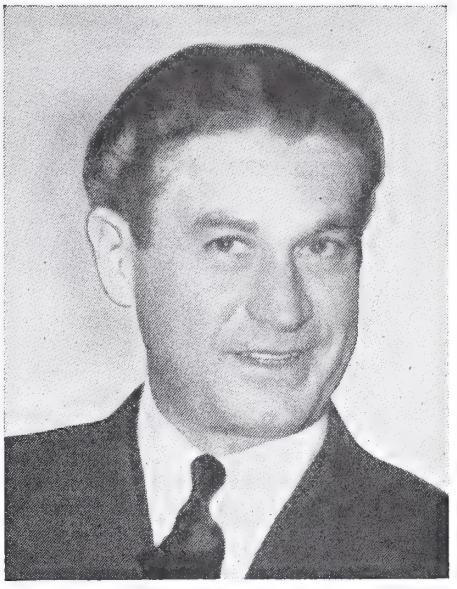
"Pop" Stockard, who formerly was checking supervisor for Warner, was on the Row this past week, with the aid of crutches. Pop slipped several weeks ago and sprained his leg, and he was en route to Hot Springs for treatment.

Carl Christian, who owns and operates a chain of theatres in Ark., spent a couple of days on the Row, advancing his bookings . . . John Mangham, president of Monogram Southern exchanges, spent several days in Memphis with his local manager, Bill Osborne . . . John Staples of the Franklin, Piggott, Ark., another visitor.

Harry Martin, film critic on the Commercial Appeal, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Johnson, he the critic on the Press Scimitar, are back in Memphis after a week in Miami for the world premiere of "Back Street" . . . Heck Everett, who is well known in the Memphis theatre circles, spent a short time on the Row last week seeing old friends. He was en route to Charlotte after a visit in Dallas.

An infrequent visitor this week was Ray Morrow, R & R's partner in Malvern, Ark. . . . L. R. Allen, Commonwealth circuit booker, in Kansas City together with K. K. King, of Searcy, Ark., spent a couple of days on the Row . . . Al Wilson of the Bay at Red Bay, Ala., is up and about again after several days siege with the flu . . . Burris Smith of the Imperial, Pocahontas, Ark., was in for the first time in several weeks.

Book "Devil Bat"



DALLAS—Interstate circuit has signed PRC's "The Devil Bat" for four of its deluxe houses: the Majestic, Dallas; Worth, Ft. Worth; Majestic, San Antonio; Orpheum, Waco. "Devil Bat" is booked for a midnight spook show in conjunction with a stage presentation, at the aforementioned theatres.

Discuss Blue Ribbon Films in Dallas

Dallas — Discussions on BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award pictures were held Monday at the Melrose Hotel during a meeting of the Dallas Motion Picture Council. Mrs. Clarence Echols presided.

A report on the Blue Ribbon Award of the National Screen Council, sponsored by this trade paper, and given to the best family picture of the month, was read by Miss Mary Ryburn. It included the January selection, "Philadelphia Story."

Mrs. J. Howard Payne, wife of the Dallas Postmaster, talked on "Documentary Films." Another talk was made on "Gain in Popularity of Westerns."

The top picture is of Owen, a belated shot that trails by a couple of weeks the reproduction of Braly's likeness. In the bottom photo, left to right, at the head table are Mrs. C. L. Dees; C. L. Dees, Oklahoma City manager; Mrs. L. W. McClintock; L. W. McClintock, Dallas manager; Mrs. Hugh and Hugh Braly; Toastmaster C. H. (Buck) Weaver, Dallas sales manager; Hugh Owen; Miss Rosemary Sullivan; Bill Bugie, Memphis manager, and Mrs. Weaver. In the left foreground is Lloyd Henrich, chief accountant for the Dallas area; in the right foreground, Jim Ryan, east Texas salesman. All the titles belong to Paramount, of course.

Columbia Drive

DALLAS—Columbia Pictures is next in line for a nationwide drive, according to Branch Manager J. B. Underwood. It is called "Exhibitors Good Will Drive" and is booked for March 1 through April 30.

Third Week for "GWTW"

NASHVILLE, TENN.—"GWTW" has played to capacity audiences at Loew's for two weeks and is now in its third. The original run was for seven weeks. "Virginia" is having a full-house run at the Paramount.

Managers Victimized In $3,200 Robbery

TAMPA—Pictured above in order are Bert Stephens, assistant, and Vincent Wade, manager of the Tampa Theatre here, ace house of the Sparks circuit. They were held up in a daring Sunday night robbery, bound and gagged, while two bandits escaped with more than $3,200 in cash, receipts from several Tampa houses.

BOXOFFICE's roving reporter snapped the picture about six hours before the robbery, not realizing that the two men so soon would be in the public eye. Later Stephens and Wade were the subjects of front page publicity; local newscameras snapping them from several angles in showing how the robbery was accomplished.

NEW ORLEANS

THE DRIVE-IN on the lake front has reopened with two shows nightly . . . A farewell party was staged at a downtown hotel in honor of S. W. M. Richardson, local manager of Universal, who has been transferred to Atlanta . . . WAR TIME CANADA IS CAUTIOUS BUT CONSERVATIVELY CHEERFUL

Defense Programs Are Scattering Money; Tax Belts Tight

TORONTO—The stage of war developments has been reached in the Dominion where theatre operators, generally, are in a position to know definitely how the conflict is affecting the amusement business, both in public attitude and internal management. The trend has been gradually upward in boxoffice figures, without any move toward an advance of prices and despite the withdrawal from civilian circulation of many thousands of men through voluntary enlistment and conscription, the number of which cannot be stated for military reasons.

It can be said, however, that there are 127 camps, barracks and training centers where the army has its own entertainment facilities and, in addition, a Canadian corps has already proceeded overseas. In spite of these losses, theatre patronage has increased until, in the case of Toronto at least, a maximum attendance was attained at New Year's Eve shows and on New Year's Day. The comment of managers is that no substantial post-holiday reaction is evident, compared with past years.

Wives, mothers and sweethearts who have their men in the army are seeking escape from emotions in the stories of the screen and, frankly, some of them have money for this safety-valve through government allowances for dependents of soldiers which they did not have several years ago when civil employment was not in full swing.

Theatres are not making proportionately as much profit with the increase of business in this war situation because of the tightening of the tax belt. There is a growing list of varied imposts for war finance purposes—increased levies on income, more charges and restrictions on imports and assessments on foreign exchange. The provincial governments are standing pat on amusement taxes, however, in recognition of the fact that the Federal authorities need the money for prosecution of the war. At the same time, theatres are doing extensive voluntary work in aid of the war effort on a cooperative basis, internal differences being put aside. Theatres are not suffering in a boxoffice sense, but they are justifying their existence and are demonstrating the practical value of amusements in war time.

See Saskatchewan Grosses Holding Current Good Pace

REGINA, SASK.—Theatremen in Saskatchewan, and in Regina in particular, are of the opinion theatre business during 1941 will remain as is, which is pretty good, due mainly to the war.

Managers are quick to point out that,

Winnipeg Reflects Wartime Activity

Winnipeg—The consensus here is that increased payrolls, due to military activity, are bound to reflect in increased attendance at theatres with a corresponding rise in grosses. In fact, this condition has prevailed since the outbreak of war and is expected to continue.

Agricultural Alberta Population Drop Hits

CALGARY—Steady drain upon the male population of the Canadian prairies for air, naval and army services began to be strongly felt in 1940. Although the farming industry was exempt from such service, still many young men from the farms volunteered. Small towns centered upon farming communities were not so exempt so that the loss of male patrons has been severely felt by the small exhibitors in the west. These suffer a loss of regular patrons, a loss that cannot be recovered until the conclusion of the war, it is felt here.

The same situation applies to all larger cities where little military activity is taking place. Thus in Edmonton, capital city of Alberta, mercantile and theatrical business has been lowered in a year of general business recovery.

A different picture is reported where military establishments are centered. In Calgary, which boasts a population equal to Edmonton, mercantile business for the last six months of 1940 surpassed 10 year records. Even during the usual Christmas shopping weeks when boxoffice receipts weaken, Calgary theatres reported good business. This was due to the many airports and military barracks erected in this prairie city. Airmen from New Zealand, Australia, Eastern Canada and local points, numbering thousands, are now in training and, as one batch completes its course, a new group of students arrive.

The same situation is reported from smaller centers where military training camps are established. From Lethbridge, Red Deer, Penhold, Camrose, High River, Grand Prairie and Macleod, exhibitors are revelling in fat boxoffice receipts.

No Sharp Increase Noted in Edmonton

EDMONTON, ALTA.—Wartime theatre business here has not increased greatly since its first sharp drop after the outbreak of war, managers of its 11 houses find.

Differing from many other Canadian cities, which have had a large increase of population through the establishment of military, naval and air training bases, Edmonton has lost considerable of her population because of the war.

Employment Increase, Product Quality Prove Boosts

MONTREAL — War conditions are not necessarily detrimental to the picture business, if, as is the case with Canada, the country is at war but is not suffering from bombing or invasion. In 1940 business grew appreciably better in the second half of the year as more money circulated, due to the unemployed being absorbed into war industries.

First runs benefited more than the second run or neighborhood houses, owing to the high quality of many of the pictures shown and the consequent rush to see them. Neighborhood theatres felt the loss of the patronage of the thousands of young men who are now in the army. On the whole the conditions existing in the closing months of 1940 are expected to prevail in 1941, according to views expressed. Some views follow:

Stresses Product

George Rotsky, managing director, Consolidated Theatres, Ltd.: "We did tremendous business at New Year's and the outlook seems very good. There is more money around, and the product is impressive. Although a great deal depends on the product, the future for the first run theatres looks bright."

William Lester, assistant managing director, United Amusement Corp., controlling the largest chain of Montreal theatres: "I expect 1941 to be very similar to 1940. That depends on world conditions. Nobody can look ahead more than a few weeks. In any case, we only hold the money a short time before it is taken away in taxes. For the past 12 years we have been paying in taxes 28 to 30 per cent. I think the saturation point in that respect has been reached, however."

A. Lawand, assistant manager, Confederation Amusements, Ltd.: "I feel sure 1941 will be as good as 1940. There is more money around, and if something like additional taxation upsets business, the extra money circulating will balance matters."

Melvin Cohen, manager of the Empire, northend independent: "Although there is considerably more money circulating, I do not expect business in neighborhood theatres to be much ahead of 1940.

"I feel that the first run theatres stand to benefit more than the neighborhood houses."

L. C. Pearson, sales manager, Dominion Sound Equipments, Ltd.: "From conversations I have had with theatre people I think that business will be good in 1941. As indicated by boxoffice returns, business was very much better in the last few months of 1940 and I see no reason why it should not carry on. There is certainly more money being spent and managers seem more optimistic."

During the current year Canadian exhibitors should enjoy at least as good volume as in 1940, with the prospect of increases.

TORONTO

EARLY in the war, Albert E. Glazer flew from Toronto to Camp Borden with a print of "The Lion Has Wings" for the screening of the picture before the youthful war pilots, many of whom he met. He is now Flying Officer Glazer of the Signals Division of the RCAF at Camp Borden, largely because of that first insight into Canada's air training. Son of Sam Glazer, general manager of United Artists Corp., Ltd., he is 22 years of age, a graduate of the University of Toronto, has had experience as a newscameraman and, before his enlistment, was manager of the Strand at Tillsonburg, Ont.

Sam Sternberg, executive of the B&F Theatres, operating 16 houses in Toronto, has announced that all employes of the circuit have pledged themselves to make regular purchases of war savings stamps starting with the current financial drive of the Dominion government. The stamps are also on sale in the boxoffice of all theatres . . . Patricia Bailey, protege dancer and singer of Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players, in stage presentations, had an all-expense flying jaunt to Hollywood this week for the purpose of appearing as a Canadian guest star with Al Pearce and His Gang on February 14 over the airwaves and is scheduled to do the rounds of the studios.

W. A. Summerville jr., manager of the Prince of Wales in East Toronto, has been elected president of the Danforth Business Men's Ass'n, a lively community organization. He is the son of W. A. Summerville, member of the Ontario legislature for years and owner of local theatres . . . Harlon Buettner, designer of sets for "Three Smart Girls," "The Great Ziegfeld" and other pictures, is now one of three American pilots of the Royal Canadian Air Force at the Malton, Ont., air base. He was already a commercial pilot before he joined the Canadian air arm, having flown several U. S. aircraft to the Dominion.

W. R. Ostrom, district manager at Toronto of the Northern Electric Co., Ltd., the Canadian counterpart of Western Electric, has been elected a director of Dominion Sound Equipments, Lt., in succession to J. D. Hathaway, resigned . . . Charlie Mavety, head of the film delivery service in Ontario and prominent member of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, is promoting his Circle M dude ranch at Kleinberg, Ont., as a winter resort for skiing and sleighing parties . . . The Hon. J. Earl Lawson of the Canadian Picture Pioneers, Toronto, delivered a rousing speech at the annual meeting of the Brantford, Ont., board of trade in which he emphasized the maintenance of the British Empire and its greater future.

Film men of the Ontario district recently elected to membership in the Canadian Picture Pioneers include three employes of Loew's, London, Ont.—Alex McLeish, Russell Courtney and H. J. Allister. A prominent film executive who has qualified for the veterans' circle by reason of 25 years service with the industry is Alf Perry, general manager of Empire-Universal Films, while other new Pioneers include Pete Bardessano, exhibitor of Timmins, and Fred W. Reid of 20th Century-Fox film exchange, Toronto . . . W. J. Risewick of Film Laboratories of Canada, Ltd., is the president for the current year of the Canadian Kennel Club . . . Wolfe Cohen, district manager of Warner Bros., is celebrating because "The Letter" broke all Toronto records for a Warner feature with its grosses for the two-week run at the Uptown.

Connie Boswell, who has been signed by Paramount for "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," is a sister of Mrs. Paul Jones of Toronto . . . An interesting downtown race developed in Toronto between Manager Jules Bernstein of Loew's and Manager Tom Daley of the Imperial. At the former, the attraction has been "Gone With the Wind" in its popular-price holdover engagement while the Imperial has already had three weeks of "This Thing Called Love."

Harry Garalick, manager of the Paradise in the Toronto West End, pulled a classic when he was robbed as he returned home after a night's performances, by exclaiming, "When it gets that hot, I don't want money, so I gave it to them." No arrests have been made of any of the three gunmen who secured $111, of which $76 was the night's take, although the stolen automobile which was used for the crime has been recovered . . . Ed Lamoureux, manager of the Empire, Windsor, fooled two bandits who held him up at the theatre by hiding $95 in his pocket, although they did get $67. One thug was arrested a few hours later but his companion escaped after a thrilling chase.

Propose Amendments On Theatres Act

TORONTO—Official announcement has been made by Chairman O. J. Silverthorne of the Ontario censor board that amendments to the Theatres and Cinematographs Act will come before the Ontario legislature to require any child under seven years of age to be accompanied by an adult guardian or a person of high school age when attending any matinee at a theatre in Ontario and also to provide for the constant attendance of a matron at every matinee performance, this attendant to be in uniform.

The amendments are the outcome of the public inquiry into the near-tragedy at the Doric, Toronto, when 30 juveniles were seriously affected by coal gas fumes during a Saturday matinee and action has been taken against Sam Lester, proprietor of the theatre for many years, by the theatres branch of the government by ordering the house to remain closed for Saturday and holiday matinees until further notice, the Doric to continue to be open for night shows only.

"The department is not yet satisfied that the owner has a proper staff with which to take care of children at matinees," Chairman Silverthorne announced. "To give him ample opportunity to study the system employed in other theatres and to train his own staff, he will be required to remain closed for matinees until the department is satisfied that the safety of children in this theatre is thoroughly vouched for."

MONTREAL

FROM far up in the Northern Quebec mining country a couple of exhibitors found their way to the Regal (M-G-M) distributing office on "Little Film Row," Craig Street. They were J. St. Pierre of Lasarre, Que., and John Dyzak, of the Palace, Val d'Or and the Palace, Cadillac. More frequent visitors who dropped in were George Gray, Wonderland, Magog; Albert Bey, Cinema, Thetford Mines; Georges Champagne, Roxy and Auditorium, Shawinigan Falls, and T. Trow, Imperial, Three Rivers.

Canadian newsreels will again assist the country in calling attention to the new War Savings campaign. Associated Screen News produced a special story picture under the direction of J. W. Campbell, newsreel editor, for distribution to the cinemas of the nation. Roy Tash and Arnold Hague, newsreel crew, also covered the special program staged in Toronto to mark launching of the drive.

Montreal branch of the National Film Society has formed a junior section designed especially for the interest and education of children from eight to 15 years of age, who are not admitted to motion picture theatres in Quebec province, except on special and rare occasions, owing to the existence of a ban imposed by the provincial government 12 years ago following the Laurier Palace fire in which 78 youngsters lost their lives. A special committee has been formed to select and arrange the film programs for the children. Performances will be given on four Wednesday afternoons, beginning in March, with two others during the Easter holidays, and another on an undecided date later.

Pat Pare, one of Canada's best women skiers, was selected to give lessons in the winter sport to Fredric March during his recent holiday in the Laurentians, when he was accompanied by his wife, Florence Eldridge.

Larry Stephens, manager of the Snowdon, called his staff together to discuss the War Savings campaign. Every employe agreed to participate and to devote part of his salary to the purchase of war savings certificates, deductions being made on the payroll.

Many parts of Canada offer excellent facilities for the training of ski troops and also for excellent snow pictures at this season. Bob Martin, Associated Screen News cameraman, took advantage of the ski maneuvers near Huntsville, Ont., to obtain several excellent shots.

War Savings Campaign Film Unit Is Active

TORONTO—The Toronto motion picture committee of the war savings campaign, which has taken an active part in the drive for the raising of funds for the government's war effort, comprises Paul Nathanson, vice-president of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd.; Morris Stein of Famous Players; Herb Allen, representing Columbia Pictures and the Allen chain; Harry Alexander and N. A. Taylor, president and vice-president of the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario, and H. C. D. Main, general supervisor of Hanson Theatres Corp.

Representing the film industry in the general publicity work for the Toronto district are Paul Nathanson and Mr. Main, who have reported details of theatre cooperation to the War Services Committee of the Canadian Picture Pioneers. One result has been the sending out of a circular letter to every exhibitor in Canada to urge full cooperation in the sale of war savings certificates at every theatre, before the close of the drive at the end of February.

Speakers have been appearing on the stage of every theatre in the Toronto district every Tuesday and Friday; selling booths in charge of Boy Scouts have been placed in lobbies; display material has been put up and newspaper advertising has included boosts for the war savings drive, while theatre fronts have been decorated with flags and bunting. The Toronto campaign committee seeks 200,000 subscribers for pledges to invest in one or more war savings certificates each month for the remainder of the war.

Stars' Gifts Will Be Auctioned for Charity

TORONTO—The final decision has been reached that the souvenir gifts from numerous Hollywood stars, which had been sent to Toronto for the Win the War Campaign last summer for the raising of funds in support of the war effort, will be offered to the public in connection with the drive of the Federated War Charities which will be staged in March through the holding of auctions in the 11 theatres of North Toronto.

There are approximately 60 gifts, including articles of considerable interest to film fans such as a pair of skates and boots used by Sonja Henie in a recent feature, hats and purses worn by stars in current attractions and many personal articles from private wardrobes. Arrangements have been made for window displays of the mementoes. The gifts are stored in the Eglinton Theatre under the watchful eye of Manager Bob Eves in the meantime.

Delmar Fox to Manage Pincher Creek House

PINCHER CREEK, B. C.—The Opera House here, recently acquired by Mrs. Tillie Fox, who also operates the Granada at Grand Forks, will be managed by Delmar Fox, son of the owner.

Mrs. Fox will continue to operate the Granada.

Curb on Carnivals Is Spreading

Toronto—The movement started by the municipal council of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to prohibit local engagements of carnivals and other traveling shows for the duration of the war has been taken up by the council of Smiths Falls in eastern Ontario. The decision was reached to issue no more licenses or permits for carnivals "thus keeping in the municipality the money which would otherwise be removed from the community."

The council of Smiths Falls requested the cooperation of surrounding municipalities in the ban so that carnival companies could not pitch their tents just outside the town limits. Applications from charity organizations for a carnival engagement from which they are supposed to receive a percentage of the take will not be entertained by the town. Places in other parts of Ontario are considering a similar move.

Projectionist Training Scheme Riles Labor

OTTAWA—Tom Moore of Ottawa, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, has issued a call to all organized labor organizations to unite against the Ontario government in the carrying out of the plan for the Projectionists' Training School under direct Provincial auspices. This school, which has a limit of 30 candidates, was opened in January for a 12 months' course in projection theory and practice, the tuition being $100.

VANCOUVER

FRANK SHEPHERD of Biggar, Sask., has taken over the managership of the Star, Armstrong, B. C. . . . Work is rapidly progressing on William Clayton's new theatre at Port Haney . . . The Dunbar, previously owned by J. H. Boothe, has been taken over by Odeon Theatres, Ltd. . . . Ted Bobier has signed a lease for the South Wells Theatre at South Wells, B. C. This means that Ted is relinquishing his connections with Westminster Theatres, Ltd.

A theatrical ball and banquet for the Red Cross will be held under auspices of the B. C. Projectionist's Society on Sunday, February 23, in the Commodore Cabaret. A feature of the evening will be the use of special lighting and sound effects loaned for the occasion by different theatres. The Projectionist's Society has donated a silver tea service, valued at $250, as a prize the night of the entertainment. Plans are also under way to bring a Hollywood celebrity to the function.

The film exchange table tennis team was triumphant in its match with the C. P. R., winning 18 to 6. The boys had a real good time, complimenting the C. P. R. on their sportsmanship. Refreshments were served after the games . . . N. D. H. Evans, Empire Universal auditor, in Vancouver on his regular western visit . . . The Vogue Theatre, Vancouver's newest first run, plans to open on or about April 1.

A Healthy Building Pace in Ontario

TORONTO—Theatre construction activity in Ontario is moving forward at a healthy pace in line with accelerated activity in other fields due to the war, a cursory survey by BOXOFFICE indicates.

After a delay of almost a month, the Madison at Bloor and Bathurst streets here has received its new front in its reconstruction by Midtown Theatres, Ltd., which acquired the theatre on a 10-year lease from the estate of John C. Brady, operations having been held up because of inability to secure materials. The new company is headed by N. A. Taylor of the Independent Theatres Ass'n of Ontario.

A second new theatre is announced for Kingston, Ont., which is booming because of military training and munitions orders. Announcement has been made that the Fallon property on Princess Street has been purchased by Odeon Theatres and that plans have been made for the construction of a house to seat 1,000. H. G. Duerr of Toronto acted for Odeon in the transaction. Previously, Biltmore Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, had announced the purchase of a site in Kingston for the erection of a theatre to accommodate 750 which is to be similar to the Biltmore and which was opened in Oshawa, Ont., some months ago.

Famous Players has scheduled the opening of its new Park in Welland, Ont., for May, the seating accommodation for this house being 800. The circuit already operates the Capitol in Welland and there is also the Community, an independent house owned by Abe Polakoff and managed by Joe Paul.

Dominion Motors, Ltd., occupying the site in Port Arthur, Ont., owned by Famous Players, has been notified to vacate the present premises on March 31 so that the building of a new theatre can be started. The circuit also plans to erect a new house in Fort William, the sister city to Port Arthur. Five circuit houses in Vancouver, B. C., are also to be modernized under a reconstruction program for the coast city.

Robert Hambleton, owner of theatres in Simcoe, Tillsonburg and Delhi in western Ontario, has secured a site at Norwich on which he is arranging to erect a new theatre. There has never been a theatre at Norwich.

Nathanson's Option on F-P Common Extended

TORONTO—For the second time, the option held by President N. L. Nathanson for the purchase of 11,000 common shares of Famous Players Canadian Corp. at $16 per share before July, 1940, has been extended and the time limit has now been fixed at April 30, 1941. Under the terms of the contract between Nathanson and the company, a block of 11,000 shares was available for purchase by him for each of five years at prices which ranged from $12 to $16 and it is understood that the present allotment is the last to be taken up by the president.

WINNIPEG

MAIN STREET houses, usually pursuing their pedestrian pace of second and third runs, this week kicked up their heels with record breaking holdovers. At the Starland, Grand National's "Mein Kampf," was held over for a second week, setting a holdover mark for the first time in the history of the house. At Garnet Wright's Bijou, the British comedy hit, "It's in the Air," playing its first Main Street run, has gone into its third week, which is something of a record-breaking precedent at this house. "Gone With the Wind" is packing Harold Bishop's Capitol on its return run here.

A nice boost for showmen was the public appearance in the daily press of favorable comments made towards them at the annual meeting of the Manitoba branch of the Lord's Day Alliance. This organization expressed appreciation of the attitude of theatre executives throughout Canada in keeping their show closed on Sundays . . . Syl Gunn arranged a private showing for commanding officers of this military district of his coming attraction, "Flight Command." Syl sent out clever invitations along the line of regular army order sheets, which were sure to catch the eye of the army officials. He intends to follow this up with letters which will bring the show to the attention of the men in the ranks.

Kurt McComb, head usher at the Metropolitan, did some good work arranging for music store tieups for the current showing of "No, No, Nanette" . . . The drive for War Savings stamps in the Winnipeg film exchange is being conducted by Abe Levy of Regal and Richard Miles of Western Theatres, Ltd. . . . Mescho Triller of United Theatres, Ltd., is redecorating his houses . . . "One Night in Paris" opens its initial western engagement soon at the Tivoli . . . E. A. Zorn, district manager for Famous Players, has returned from a trip through the eastern division . . . John A. Fiddes is recovering from an illness . . . Irwin Triller of the Transcona Theatre, who has been confined to the hospital, has recovered . . . Sim Rost, Garrick manager, has left the hospital and is recovering at home . . . Hugh Brown, Classic, St. James, is heading the skating group at Sherburne . . . Visitors to the city included P. W. Mahon of Prince Albert and George Bailey of the Lux at Humbolt.

When trainees at Portage were confined to barracks due to illness, Charlie Taylor's Playhouse suffered at the boxoffice . . . New houses are to go up for Famous Players at Fort William and Port Arthur. It is understood that construction on a house now going up at Port Arthur has been seriously handicapped owing to the shortage of labor available due to the demands of war industry. Electricians are as rare as hens' teeth and putting up a new house has become a major undertaking.

Reception for Huston

MONTREAL—Mayor Conboy of Toronto announced that Walter Huston, Canadian film and stage star, will be welcomed at Toronto City Hall and given a civic reception on February 15.

Sask. Grosses Hold Current Good Pace

since the war got under way, their business has picked up. This is most noticeable in the larger centers of the province, most of which have been chosen as training centers for army and air force men. All the cities of Saskatchewan and even some of the small towns are playing host to hundreds of members of Canada's armed forces, and, even though most of the recreation rooms for the troops have their own picture shows, most of the boys prefer feminine company when they go to films; hence the town's picture houses are getting plenty of business from the men who, in nearly every case, buy two tickets.

Another factor in the improved situation during the past few months has been the increased number of men being employed on construction work, preparing the training centers for the army and air force. Thousands have been taken off the relief rolls throughout Saskatchewan and theatres have been sharing in the distribution of their good-sized pay checks. With even more construction work to be done and with plans going ahead for increased armament manufacture in western Canada during 1941, theatremen should continue to benefit from civilian business during 1941.

OTTAWA

RAY TUBMAN, manager of the Ottawa Capitol, who is one of the committee chairmen for the War Stamp Saving Campaign of the Dominion government, organized a stage show at the theatre Sunday evening, February 9. Between entertainment features, the guest speaker was Hon. Colin Gibson, minister of national revenue in the Canadian cabinet . . . For the first time in many weeks during which he has featured several Canadian premieres, Manager Lloyd Mills turned to a double-bill program for the past two weeks but has announced that the single-feature policy will be resumed without further delay.

Donat Paquin, owner of the Francais and Victoria in Ottawa and the Laurier in Hull, figured in the real estate market the other day when he sold an important property on Besserer Street . . . John Grierson of London, England, has decided to stay on the job as Dominion film commissioner although he had announced his resignation effective this month and will continue indefinitely in his Ottawa office, according to Hon. J. A. McKinnon, chairman of the National Film Board. Grierson had declared the production of Canadian shorts should be handled by Canadians.

"Gone With the Wind" was held for a second week at the Regent at 50 cents top with performances continuous from 11:30 a. m. Included in the program was the special Warner short, "Xmas Under Fire," dealing with life in England under the Nazi air raids . . . Manager Henry Marshall of the Rideau, Ottawa, reports continued success with his all-French film programs which are being presented on Wednesdays only practically every week.

Famous Players has sold its site in the central business section of Ottawa to the F. W. Woolworth Co. for the erection of an enlarged 5 and 10 cent store, the chain having decided to drop its plan for the erection of a new theatre in the Canadian capital. The reported price for the site and two adjacent store buildings was $100,000.

SASK'WAN

ITS MEMBERSHIP campaign postponed over the Christmas season so that it could start another drive to get enough members to operate without a loss, the National Film Society, Regina branch, seems doomed to failure for this season. Though a definite announcement to that effect is not expected for a few days, members of the executive are inclined to think plans should be dropped owing to the lateness of the season and the number of executive members who have left town, some to the armed forces, others to other positions.

Les Pugsley, manager of the Orpheum, Moose Jaw, reports terrific business on "Mein Kampf," British picture based on Hitler and Germany, which had its first showing in the Saskatchewan-Alberta territory at his house . . . Dave Weyling, southern Saskatchewan operator, was a recent Regina business visitor. He reported good business in the south despite bad road conditions.

Crash of a mail and passenger-carrying Trans-Canada Airliner in Ontario on February 6, in which the nine passengers and crew of three were killed, is thought to have been responsible for the non-arrival of the weekend newsreel for the Capitol, Regina, believed to have been on the westbound plane . . . Saskatchewan theatres are doing their bit toward drawing the attention of the people to the current War Savings campaign by carrying a special story in short feature form turned out by Associated Screen News.

Business men of Star City, Sask., combine to sponsor two shows each Saturday in the Roxy and admit all district people free . . . Larry Graburn, manager of the Capitol, Regina, off work for a few days with the flu . . . Peter Kosh, doorman at the Rex, Regina, back on the job after an appendectomy.

Surprise entertainments on Tuesday nights are being used to pack people into the Roxy at Watrous. On recent nights the theatre has staged a pie-eating contest and a photo night. Generous cash prizes are given away . . . Amusement tax in Moose Jaw, Sask., for 1940 totaled $9,873, as compared to $8,847 in 1939.

About 4,000 school children from grades five to nine were guests of the Hudson's Bay Co. store during the showing of "Hudson's Bay" at the Capitol in Saskatoon. The store received hundreds of letters from the children telling how much they enjoyed the picture and teachers agreed that it was the best educational film ever brought to Saskatoon.

Contest on "Blackout" Ties In Newspaper

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—Both a timely contest and an unusual display featured Manager Lou S. Hart's campaign for "Blackout" at Schine's Hippodrome Theatre here.

The contest, in which the newspaper cooperated with a generous story, offered a cash prize of $5 and several prizes of passes for the most accurate definition of words that the war has made commonplace on the front pages of our dailies.

The announcing paragraph (a bow to the newspaper) read: "Through the wires of the Associated Press, which every morning provides readers with 'on-the-spot' news of foreign happenings, some stories built around a new lexicon of words. 'Blitzkrieg,' 'Blackout,' 'Bottleneck.' Can you define them?"

Then followed a list of the prizes and the words, herewith:

"Gestapo, Blenheim, Incendiary, A.R.P. Patrol, Communique, Luftwaffe, Priorities, Jamming, Lebensraum, Neutrality Patrol, Caproni, R.C.A.F., Evzone, Torpedo Fleet."

The list was to be filled in, the entries sent to the theatre before opening night. A local educator served as judge.

The display consisted of painting on a temporarily vacant store window a scene similar to that depicted on the 24-sheet. Stills flanked top and bottom of the window. Also the windows of a four-story building were whitewashed leaving only the outline of a single letter on each window. The letters, each the size of the window itself spelled out on the top floor, "Smash Hit"; on the floor below, "Blackout" and on the second floor "Hipp Soon."

Wide-Spread Magazine Ads for "Citizen Kane"

NEW YORK—"Citizen Kane" will be nationally advertised through newspapers and magazines by RKO, it is announced by S. Barret McCormick, director of advertising and publicity.

The release of the show set for the end of February will be ushered in with full-page, two-color advertisements in the big-circulation weekly magazines with distribution that will reach an estimated 50,000,000 readers. Large space, two-color newspaper copy also has been scheduled for a number of key cities.

Contest for "Philadelphia Story"

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—The Orpheum here, in cooperation with a local newspaper, conducted a contest to determine the outstanding "Springfield story," told in 25 words or less, in connection with the showing of "The Philadelphia Story."

'Wind' Campaign Wins For Ed Fitzpatrick

WATERBURY, CONN.—His outstanding campaign for the popular-price engagement of "Gone With the Wind" makes Ed Fitzpatrick, manager of the Poli, in this city, the first Loew exhibitor to win a second citation on M-G-M's Exploitation Honor Roll. Fitzpatrick recently won a Gold Button for his campaign for "Strike Up the Band."

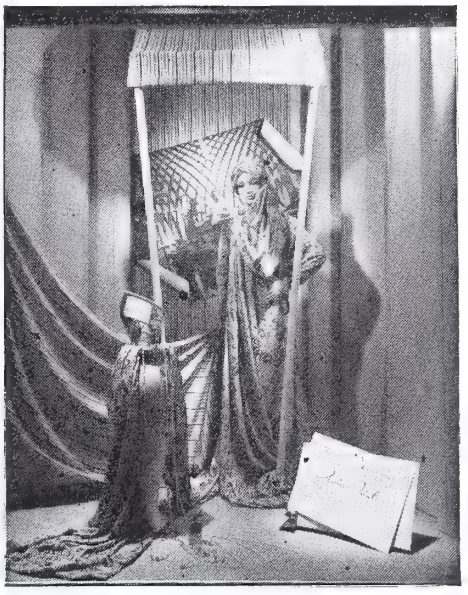
Highlights of the "Gone With the Wind" campaign follow:

Mayor Scully issued a proclamation declaring a "Gone With the Wind" week in Waterbury. With the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce, bargain days for shoppers were set during the run, with bus companies putting special schedules in effect to accommodate late crowds.

The Junior League distributed special invitations, reading: "Miss Scarlett O'Hara requests the pleasure of your presence at Loew's, etc." Those holding numbers corresponding to those posted in front of the boxoffice received guest tickets.

A young man from a nearby town was planted in front of the theatre with cot and blankets, etc., and newspapers played it up, stating that the young man wanted to be certain he'd be the first in line to see the film.

A large cake was secured from a leading bakery and placed on display in the lobby. It carried the copy: "First Anniversary Premiere of 'GWTW.'" Sidewalks were stencilled: "'GWTW' is coming—Nothing cut but the price." A local radio station used a contest asking listeners to send in letters of fifty words or less on the subject: "Why I Want to see 'GWTW.'"



A special six-foot pass was made, carried through the streets and presented to the Mayor. A large book was built for lobby display with a pretty young lady, wearing a "GWTW" gown loaned by a leading store, stepping from its pages.

Red Heads Occasion Special Sale

Springfield, Ill.—It cost some 400 complimentary passes (admittedly more than foreseen) but it was a great publicity stunt. Red-headed women from 16 to 60 were invited to register at a booth placed near the city square to receive tickets to see "Lady With Red Hair" at the Roxy. Several stores cooperated with special discounts on purchases made by the flame-tressed girls.

Inside and Out—

To the side, a store window display obtained by Walter Henshell, manager, and Forrest Thompson, publicity director of the Palace, Dallas, Texas, in a tieup for "Thief of Bagdad." Below is the sound truck used for one week in advance at all grade schools at recess times. The truck at present is doing similar duty for the Hollywood Theatre in Fort Worth.

NUGGETS

REMINDER cards mailed to 3,000 potential patrons, in the form of a personal message from the star, were used by Jack Randall of the College in Winnipeg to create interest in a showing of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." The cashier further phoned all the Smiths advising them of the showing.

Five days in advance, Jack Campbell of the Booth in Independence, Kas., handed to outgoing patrons 500 small cards with small birthday type candles attached. Cards read: "Save this candle to light your way home after you see Boris Karloff in 'The Ape' (theatre and playdate)."

On the inside of a portable phonograph lid was painted the message: "Just one of the many hit tunes in 'Tin Pan Alley' with (cast names and theatre) now showing." Manager Barnes Perdue of the Ritz in Chillicothe, Mo., then had a boy carry the phonograph to every corner of the business district, sit down on the curb, wind it and play two or three tunes from the picture.

In a tieup with a local shade company, E. R. Erickson, manager of the Rhodes Theatre in Chicago, obtained a sample Venetian blind in a frame for a lobby display. The slats were lettered on one side; "Shhhh—Whatever you do, don't peek!" Alongside an arrow pointed to string as a cue to pull the string. Other side of slate read: "See Bette Davis in her top performance 'The Letter' (playdate and catchlines)."

On opening day of "Escape" at the Arcade in Springfield, Mass., George W. Coleman, manager, had a fellow dressed in a prison convict getup chained to the theatre's boxoffice, with a card next to the fellow reading: "I tried to escape to see 'Escape'."

Patrons Lead Band

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Patrons who had the urge to lead an orchestra were invited to lead Sammy Kaye's orchestra when the latter came to town for a three-day engagement at the Paramount. In a feature called "So You Want to Lead a Band," Kaye called patrons out of the audience, handed them a baton and invited them to conduct his musicians. Each contestant received an autographed baton from the orchestra leader.

An Oriental Lobby

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—An attractive lobby display was arranged by Lester Pollock for "The Thief of Bagdad," when it played Loew's. With one of the usherettes as a slave girl, the display included Oriental rugs, Oriental lamps, hand-carved screen, tables, Persian smoking pipe, miniature elephants and statues. It was tie-up with local Oriental rug store.

Ginger Rogers Doubles Contest for "Kitty"

DENVER—A Ginger Rogers double contest featured the campaign arranged by Manager Mickey Gross of the Orpheum for "Kitty Foyle."

The contest, open to all "white collar" girls, was sponsored by the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Post. A board, consisting of prominent individuals, judged the contest with appropriate prizes awarded the winners.

The News and Post ran a picture of the winners as a news item. Other features included the distribution of 5,000 specially printed "Kitty Foyle" blotters to all offices in the downtown district and window display tie-ins with the local book stores featuring stills from the film and the popular dollar edition of the Christopher Morley best-seller.

Theatre Candy Case Into a Confectionery

COTULLA, TEX.—Installing a candy case in his lobby in December, Milton DuBose of the Majestic, found his customers so responsive that he rented a building next door and installed a soda fountain, line of tobacco and ice cream cabinet, putting a girl in charge.

At a school matinee on opening day DuBose had the youngsters suggest names for the new business, offering a cash prize for the one selected by popular vote of the juvenile audience. "Sugar Bowl" was the name that emerged, with a ready-made trade from the children who feel a real interest in the business.

No. 711 THE A—1 "FRIGHT-INSURANCE" COMPANY'S

FAINT CHECK

THE PERSON named below is entitled to return again to the Fox Granada Theatre in Inglewood if sufficient evidence is presented to management proving he or she fainted during the showing of "The Torso Murder Mystery" and "Face At the Window," Wed. or Thurs., January 8 or 9.

Name.....

Address.....

A—1 "FRIGHT-INSURANCE" COMPANY
115 North Market St. Inglewood, Calif.

Were in Demand—

Into the Papers

A full page of action stills from "Comrade X," depicting Hedy Lamarr in the hair-pulling sequence landed in the Sunday roto section of the Washington Post as part of Publicist Dan Terrell's advance exploitation.

A special series of stills, showing the progressive stages from girlhood to age as depicted by Martha Scott in "Cheers for Miss Bishop" was planted in a six-column, 10-inch space in the Detroit Evening Times. The stills, along with a guiding article, have been sent to all UA exploiteers.

A full page of scenes from "That Hamilton Woman," forthcoming Korda production, were planted in the roto-gravure section of the Atlanta Constitution.

Birthday List

GARNETT, KAS.—As a goodwill builder, Hank Doering, who operates the Peoples Theatre here, some time ago passed out slips on which patrons wrote their name and birth date. He now has a list of about 4,000, and each day the girl spends an hour writing 18 to 20 of them a letter and enclosing a pass for use on their birthday anniversary two or three days later.

Milking Contest

NEW YORK—Three prize-winning cows played the leading roles in an old-fashioned milking contest on the stage of the suburban Alden Theatre here. Members of the audience who had experience in the art of milking were invited to participate for cash prizes. The contest was in conjunction with the showing of "Little Men."

Indians in Front of Theatre

WAUSAU, WIS.—John Matis, manager of the Wausau, promoted a premiere showing in connection with "Arizona." Mayor August C. Polster of Wausau welcomed Chief Big Thunder and other Indians attending the show in front of the theatre for a gala affair.

Two serializations suitable for the newspapers on the forthcoming "Come Live With Me" are available in mat form at the M-G-M exchange. One is a six chapter, two column 19½ inch serialization; the other three chapters, 4 column 14 inches.

Opinions on the Current Short Subjects

SHORTS REVIEWS

One-Tenth of Our Nation

(Documentary)

This documentary pictorially and vocally takes up the plight of the American Negro, how he is overworked, underfed, medically neglected and generally left to his resources which have resulted in the pitiful conditions found throughout the south. It has a straightforward argument and the scenes bear it out. The film is propaganda which pleads for an equal opportunity for Negroes—they comprise one-tenth of the nation's inhabitants—in the democratic tradition. Negotiations are in progress for distribution in various territories. Recommended for houses with serious, thinking audiences.

A Village in India

Paramount 11 Mins.
(Fascinating Journeys)

Tasteful Travelogue. In the brief time span allotted to this short an intimate glimpse of native village life in India is achieved. Done in Technicolor the footage deals with fundamentals, religion, the caste system, crafts and customs. These are quite the best in travel series these days.

Wild Oysters

Paramount (Animated Antics) 11 Mins.

Entertaining Novelty. What this subject needs is color. It offers animated figures, a cat, dog and mice activated in the puppet technique a la George Pal. The oysters make things generally hot for the mice but eventually are foiled. Kitchen background is real. It is a smart novelty.

Unusual Occupations, LO-3

Paramount (In Cinecolor) 10 Mins.

Good. The material in this effort ranges from a mechanical elephant in Miami to an Indian who achieves some startling things with soap bubbles. Also, there is the mayor of Salt Lake City who drives racing cars, a Hollywood girl who makes interesting dolls, and a mattress "breaker inner."

Spotlight on Indo-China

20th-Fox (Magic Carpet) 9 Mins.

Timely. This is just a motley collection of scenes showing Indo-Chinese natives dancing, fishing, planting rice and pursuing sundry work-a-day activities, plus a few shots of the Burma Road, Angkor Vat and much palaver by Lowell Thomas, whose narrative is better than the photographic material.

The Temperamental Lion

20th-Fox 7 Mins.
(Technicolor Terry-Toon)

Entertaining. A loud-mouthed lion, captured and brought to a zoo, in place of Hollywood, complains at length and finally settles accounts with his captor. Gags are a bit silly but should provoke laughter.

Sky Raiders

Universal (Serial) 1*st Episode,* 19 Mins.

There are numerous exploitation possibilities which should be utilized by the exhibitor when he plays this serial. It is the usual melange of exciting situations suitably topped off when each chapter concludes with an increasingly narrower escape by the hero from the hands of a gang of international spies who are out to get the plans for a new airplane. It should click. Featured are Donald Woods, Billy Halop, Eduardo Ciannelli.

Fair Today

Universal (Color Cartoon) 6⅔ Mins.

Entertaining. The gag man had a field day translating the bucolic diversions at a country fair to cartoon burlesque. Generally, it should prove relaxing.

A Helping Paw

Columbia (Color Rhapsody) 7 Mins.

Fairly clever stuff. Cartoon action concerns a fellow who gets himself involved with a masseur, a trick dog and a pair of eyeglasses that make him see everything double. Eventually, the dog gets the glasses and is quite pleased by the effect.

Waiting for Baby

Paramount (Robert Benchley) 11 Mins.

Very Good. Robert Benchley parodies the plight of the expectant father. His approach to a subject that has been the butt of humorous endeavor since the first time it happened is none the less funny—the laughs come easy and often.

Training Police Horses

20th-Fox (Newsreel Adventure) 10 Mins.

Good. The gradual steps in breaking mounts for the New York City police force, in the Brooklyn pampas, should prove enlightening and entertaining to all audiences. The reel's footage manages interesting moments with touching bits for animal lovers.

Mississippi Swing

20th-Fox 7 Mins.
(Technicolor Terry-Toon)

Diverting. This cartoon takeoff on showboats and darkies having a high old musical time has a few smart comic moments. A good deal of animated detail with varying degrees of humor, makes up for what is lacking. Generally it is tuneful and full of action.

"AS FOR ME, I LIKE TO RELAX"

Some folks may enjoy carrying around in their own heads all the worries of the world. Not so, smart showmen. Worries that can be delegated, they delegate—to people willing and able to take responsibility. To keep projection room equipment in the pink of condition, they know they need engineers, so they take Altec service—sound service and booth parts service. Take this time-tested way to relax: save all your energies for the prime job of showmanship. Change to Altec.

The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Script for a Happy Ending

THIS MAY interest you, or it may bore you. Either way, blame it on Pete Harrison.

He was writing recently about Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of commercial and cultural relations among the American republics, who told the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York the Axis powers are employing Hollywood films to discredit democracy of all brands and the American brand more particularly. To illustrate "the decay of democracy," Rockefeller pointed out "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is being used in South America above all others.

His foundation laid, Pete thereafter harkened to his original deploring of that film, wondering how other people in other lands will view this country "when they are made to believe that the United States senate, the entire congress for that matter, is controlled by crooked politicians?" Then Harrison referred to our defense of the picture and our criticism of him for criticizing, a right which was not then, nor is now, challenged.

In the normal course of events, this foray into another year returned us to the first comment. Frequently unhappy is this business of re-reading what once rolled, or dripped, from an earlier typewriter. But this time, and if we may be permitted the illusion, it was not at all bad. Pertinent, anyway. Most pertinent.

We remarked we had been trying to figure out why Pete was excited to a point where he had called upon Allied to pick out the nice and honest Mr. Smith as a catapult from which to launch renewed attempts at enactment of the Neely bill. Little being immune from Hollywood story ingenuity, why should senatorial immunity go untouched? we had asked. Why gloss over crookedness if it should be lodged in high places like the senate, and we point out we said "should be lodged" and not "is lodged." It seemed, then and today, that such very rarified atmosphere was all the more urgent reason not to indulge in the glossing.

Short View and Long

MOREOVER, the effect abroad, it was argued, was not as catastrophic as Harrison feared it for every nation has its political foibles and all nations are suspect in the functioning of some phase of their political parties.

"Viewpoints such as this are shortsighted," wrote your watchdog, "and potentially even more serious since they evidence a from-within-the-industry desire to further muffle a method of expression which requires more, not less, freedom. Presumably the country may laugh at stock jokes about senators and congressmen, but Hollywood may not touch them. 'Mr. Smith' actually is one of the finest expressions of faith in country that the studios have launched . . . Capra's method of obtaining results merely varies from the rest. By pounding away at the evils of which any individual allegedly alert must be aware, he forcefully drives home the good.

"Country and code come out victorious and the populace is amused."

It was a couple of days later when Capra himself defined his theme: "It is that American democracy is indestructible, no matter to what buffeting it may be exposed. Plenty of people are going to call it an unpatriotic picture. They will pretend to believe that the buffetings are the theme. Those are the people who are attacked in the picture. They will scream in futile self-defense."

Having once accepted this neat capsule, we do so again and now. The Axis powers now apparently are reaping a harvest with "Mr. Smith" in South America. Regrettable, of course. So terribly damaging? We do not think so.

Home Comes First

WE DO NOT think so because there is more here than pours out of the bottle. There is the imperative need to protect what we have while we have it and that's a job on which this industry, as far as it can go, must not turn its back, or should. Our weaknesses and our indecisions always make capital for the Axis powers, but the first responsibility certainly is a reforging of the links at home, not such surface concerns as the reactions of the dictators. They will lead to the chin anyway. On fanciful counts when they can no longer find real counts.

What has all this to do with making, selling and exhibiting motion pictures? It does seem remote at first flush, but is it? This is merely another of a long series of arguments and reiterations for a freer screen, for a more fluid and thus a less hamstrung medium, for an industry that will develop the courage to stand by its rights without retreating.

Along this way runs the road to a full-blown maturity and to that broader horizon where this industry and all in it might hope to find their permanent moorings.

FOUR MAJORS HOP THE HURDLE, LAUNCH '41-'42 SHORTS SALES

Delaying on Features, Offering Is Mainly Standard Series

NEW YORK—Four of the majors now have their sales forces selling shorts designed for 1941-42 release, according to a checkup made by BOXOFFICE. These are Paramount, Warner, 20th-Fox and RKO.

M-G-M, Universal and Columbia are holding off for the time being, it is stated, but the indication is some companies may begin selling before the summer rolls around. One in particular is M-G-M, but this is not definite as yet.

United Artists has no shorts on its current or contemplated program.

Those companies now selling new season's shorts are offering series which are standard on the program. In some cases allowances are made for subjects which may be announced later on when conventions are held.

Two Reasons for Move

Two reasons are given for the move now under way. One is that with the bulk, if not all, of accounts sold for the present season, salesmen with nothing on their hands are making use of their time by selling in advance of the season.

Another reason is that there are no restrictions on selling shorts under the decree and four of "The Big Five" are taking advantage of this fact. However, features must be trade shown in advance of sales.

Under the decree shorts cannot be coupled with features or forced upon exhibitors. In this respect, the four companies involved are now feeling out customers on the brevities, in some cases making sales, but all in the endeavor of learning how exhibitors will react to shorts as independently sold attractions for the forthcoming season.

"Never Stop Selling"

"The truth of the matter is that we never stop selling shorts," is the way Abe Montague, Columbia's general sales manager, sizes up the situation.

In answer to a direct question, he declared the company is presently mulling over its lineup for 1941-42, but emphasized, "You can't pin us down to anything when it comes to selling. If a buyer wants any of our shorts we'll sell them to him at any time."

Montague took occasion to minimize the importance that would appear to attach to getting sales on the one and two reelers started well in advance of the season for which they are intended. He gave as his opinion the purported practice of film buyers in "allowing for" proportionate short subject playing time with each feature contract as vitiating the necessity for advance or extra sales effort in this direction.

Peace for Circuits Looming Sans Trial

WASHINGTON — Negotiations are under way for out-of-court settlement of two of the three pending government anti-trust actions against independent circuits, reliable sources inform BOXOFFICE. Hopes are held in government quarters that, as soon as the two suits are disposed of without benefit of trial, the third will follow in due time.

The two circuits which are trying to avoid trials are Schine and Griffith, the former operating in a number of eastern states with headquarters at Gloversville, N. Y., and the latter operating in the southwest.

Several conferences have been held between Willard S. McKay, counsel for Schine, and department of justice representatives here. Progress is reported, but holding up any finalization is a disagreement on expansion. The government wants J. Myer and Louis W. Schine to completely discontinue adding theatres while these men refuse to budge from their present program, which is to acquire where a spot looks suitable to its operations.

Compromise Expected

However, as in the case of the big suit, a compromise is expected to be effected which will not altogether curtail expansion, but somewhat limit activities on additional units. Any settlement will take the form of a decree as in the case of "The Big Five," FWC and B&K.

The talks between department representatives and counsel for Griffith have not reached stages where a formula for settlement can be worked out. It is understood the government does not view the acquisition of the Long circuit by Griffith Brothers some time ago favorable.

In some government quarters, the continued acquisitions by these two circuits —Schine and Griffith—are regarded as a

See Clearance Under Franchises Shifting

NEW YORK—Clearance under existing franchises is subject to revision if an arbitration award finds it unreasonable, 20th Century-Fox's sales force is being advised via a handbook on the decree prepared by Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel. Such franchise amendments are possible now under the clearance provisions of the consent which went into effect November 20, the day on which it was signed by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard and lawyers representing the "Big Five."

Thus, potentially and perhaps theoretically, franchises no matter to whom sold by Paramount, Loew's, Warner, 20th-Fox and RKO are viewed as susceptible to changes if local arbitration tribunals so hold and if, in the event of appeal, the appeals board in New York upholds the local rulings. The possible implications where independent may be pitted against circuit theatre thereby seem to be clear.

Caution Against Guesswork

The handbook reputedly was scanned and checked over by a battery of 10 lawyers before released to the 20th-Fox sales force. It is a lengthy document which, in simple and trade terms easily understandable, is designed to aid salesmen in current and future operations under the decree. But with it goes a final word of caution not to indulge in guesswork but to call New York headquarters, if required, for final interpretations.

It is pointed out the decree does not stipulate in what cities trade showings are to be held, although Jenkins says "probably" it will be exchange centers and that two or more showings may be required in the event all exhibitors wishing to attend cannot be accommodated at one time.

On Features and Shorts

While shorts, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues and westerns and foreigns must be sold apart from the regular feature program, the handbook avers such negotiations may be conducted during the same sales solicitation and adds this warning, "A salesman cannot directly or indirectly refuse to license features because the exhibitor refuses to license the short subjects, newsreels or other types of product described in this section." But where an exhibitor claims he was forced to take shorts and others in this class, he goes to arbitration if he so elects. This, too, applies to those instances where the exhibitor claims an offer to buy regular features is conditioned upon purchase of shorts.

Emphasizing not more than five pictures can be offered in a single group "nor can you negotiate with an exhibitor on the basis of including more than five features in a single license agreement," the handbook makes it clear there is no provision

RADIO-TELEVISION ON A SCREEN 15 BY 20 FEET CALLED EPOCHAL

Perfection May Be Far Off, but Will Come, Reporter Asserts

By LEONARD WEISBERG

NEW YORK—Take equal parts of a television picture projected on a 15 by 20 foot screen, sight plus sound of your favorite radio program and good, old showman's imagination and you've got something of history-making proportions.

That's exactly the way this reporter felt and still feels after sitting in on a series of demonstrations by leading organizations engaged in the new art. The newest developments in their respective lines were shown to members of the FCC, the National Television System Committee and the press as sort of a prelude to the hearings that got under way Monday in Washington at which the FCC considered the granting of authorization to commercialize the medium.

Four Put on Shows

Du Mont, RCA, Bell Telephone and CBS put on the shows. Previously, but not for the benefit of the FCC, Scophony showed large screen reception. Perhaps the best overall impression gained from these performances is that no matter how many obstacles, technical or economic, must be overcome no one is going to entirely cut off television's surge to go places; it just can't be stopped. True, it may be a matter of some years before television is enjoyed on a level comparable to radio or films, but when it does it stands an excellent chance of offering the masses something no existing entertainment medium can match.

Clarity Achieved

That statement will stand up under fire of the most rabid belittler once the impact of a sensational screen-size demonstration is considered. In spite of a dreary, sun-less day the audience saw scenes picked up at Camp Upton, 68 miles away on Long Island. Although the quality of brightness was not all that could be hoped for, everything the mobile camera scanned was picked up with clarity. The pickup was achieved over a relay system that "bounced" the pictures through the ether. And just for a "clincher," RCA shot another image of the announcer in New York out to one of the relay stations and brought it back to the theatre screen, thus completing a 102-mile circuit.

The theatre demonstration included a studio-produced play which showed immense flexibility in that it fused live talent with film clips, a ballet, a performance by Jean Dickenson of the Metropolitan, a comedy act by Al Trahan and news. Each of the sequences was received with applause.

Prior to the theatre show, RCA exhibited its newest home model receiver. The screen, largest the company has developed to date, measures 13½ by 18 inches, with projection of 441 lines, 30 frame pictures. Almost an hour's entertainment gave no noticeable eye strain to this reporter, who inquired of others and received the same reply. Brightness of the images, including scenes from Camp Upton, was comparable to the best home "movie" sets. The new receiver is equipped with a retractable translucent screen, which slides down into the cabinet when the set is not in use. Here, as never before, the romance of television became apparent.

To this observer, the Aldrich Family radio program has always been a favorite. And here was the Aldrich Family again, complete to Ezra Stone and other members of the cast, performing one of their amusing stories. But this time we were looking at Henry Aldrich and the others, too, and the effect was galvanizing. That's because television permits you to muse over the pain you see in Henry's face as he goes into one of his extremely funny tantrums.

The demonstration put on by Du Mont was more of a technical nature, designed to show the practicability of employing 625-line definition at 15 frames per second so as to vitiate obsolescence of home receiving sets, especially as it bears on that population residing in rural areas.

The Bell exhibition was over coaxial cable, which, in layman's language, is nothing more than a "pipe line" between the point of transmission and reception. This consisted of a few shorts and test patterns transmitted from an adjoining studio over a line in Philadelphia and back again, a complete distance of about 200 miles. Its sponsors believe the system will naturally follow in the footsteps of sound broadcasting, and thus would require networks for interconnecting television stations employing wire line technique.

The first wide use of natural color in television was the object of the CBS demonstration, which was a repeat performance for the benefit of the FCC officials but was seen by this department recently and was reviewed in detail in the January 18 issue of BOXOFFICE.

The system demonstrated by Scophony is intended to interest theatre owners. It was shown on a nine by 12 foot screen and employs new principles that make for ease of operation. However, the system was not shown to best advantage due to the fact that new equipment was not available. The equipment used did not present the light intensity necessary for theatre use, neither did it permit more than two persons to get into the camera range comfortably. The system utilizes rear projection.

$66,000,000 in 5 Cent Pieces

New York—Gross intake for juke boxes for the 1939-40 season is estimated in unofficial quarters at $66,000,000. It is stated there are approximately 250,000 of the nickel music machines throughout the country.

The source which mentions the figures also says each user must pay Ascap $250 a year for the privilege of reproducing the music.

Some of AT&T subsidiaries are understood sponsoring this type of entertainment under a plan which calls for a nickel for a particular number and an extra five cent piece to dedicate it to someone over the loud speaker connection with the telephone central office.

Ascap-Broadcasting Struggle Opens Market Wide on Rumor

NEW YORK—Among many potential outcomes in the Ascap-radio controversy conceived by observers are (1) the networks are given from three to six months to hold out, (2) they are not "getting excited" because they may promise the public television within a limited period and thereby distract attention from the music situation, (3) the foremost publishers might offer theatres a series of "bouncing-ball" slides with popular songs built around a "Hear Your Favorite Songs at Your Neighborhood Theatre" campaign, and (4) belief affiliated and independent radio stations may band together to form another national network sympathetic to Ascap.

These would appear to be the more substantial of straws in the wind, which are plentiful for the asking along Tin Pan Alley. It's largely a matter of must about everyone making the Ascap-network tiff his own personal affair. But when it comes to getting an informant to qualify his observation the informant usually becomes just another "guess artist."

The four interpretations outlined above, however, have answers. The answers belong to the observers, not BOXOFFICE, and are passed along that way. Here it is for number one: The national advertisers will go just so far, no more than six months, in taking less than they are entitled to from the networks for the expensive shows they sponsor. Surveys reputedly even now show there is only a small percentage of the public listening to the programs as compared to before January 1 because the

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

NO DOUBT and pretty quickly, too, "Cheers for Miss Bishop" will get itself known as "the female Mr. Chips." This, because in pattern both films are largely alike. If, by some mathematical deduction, it would follow then that "Bishop" will do the kind of business "Chips" did, the satisfaction ought to be general and complete.

In fact, we hold to the firm idea something of the sort will happen. For "Miss Bishop" is a tender and charming story of a prairie school teacher who finds love twice and twice loses it, thereafter to devote the rest of a long and fruitful life to the molding of young men's and young women's characters in their formulative years. The film develops an enormous tugging at the heartstrings which that reminds that any attraction with this very definite quality manages to do extremely well by itself.

Once again, Martha Scott, by ability demonstrated a favorite of this department's, attempts and succeeds beautifully in a difficult and exacting role. It is a decided compliment to her performance that she dwarfs such excellent support in large and small roles as is provided by William Gargan, Edmund Gwenn, Sidney Blackmer, Mary Anderson, an attractive newcomer, and Rosemary De Camp in a notable reading of the Constitution. Tay Garnett, too, might well be proud of this directional job.

These are the cheers for "Miss Bishop." The parallel tale, however, calls for cheers for Richard A. Rowland whose comeback this attraction represents. He is the Dick Rowland who ran the production end of the original First National which oldsters will remember for its "Black Oxen," its "Flaming Youth" and a long and formidable array of smash hits which had Adolph Zukor, in those days, indulging in much worry over Famous Players-Lasky.

Rowland was a good producing generalissimo then, and now he proves he still knows how. But between then and now and interspersed is a long series of ups and downs, mostly downs, in a highly dramatic and real life effort to get inside the active circle once more. There is an eight-year tale behind Rowland's return engagement. It involves kicks in the face and also in the pants, a race against death as focalized in one of his financial backers and the completion of the picture three days before the money man found his worldly troubles at an end.

This proves all of the drama is not captured on the celluloid, that this topsy-turvy business sometimes makes sense and that, definitely in the sense column, is the re-entry of Rowland into the columns of picture makers. Those who know something of this story behind the story today are making up the cheer squad. Firstly for Rowland. Secondly, for Miss Bishop.

Mailbag

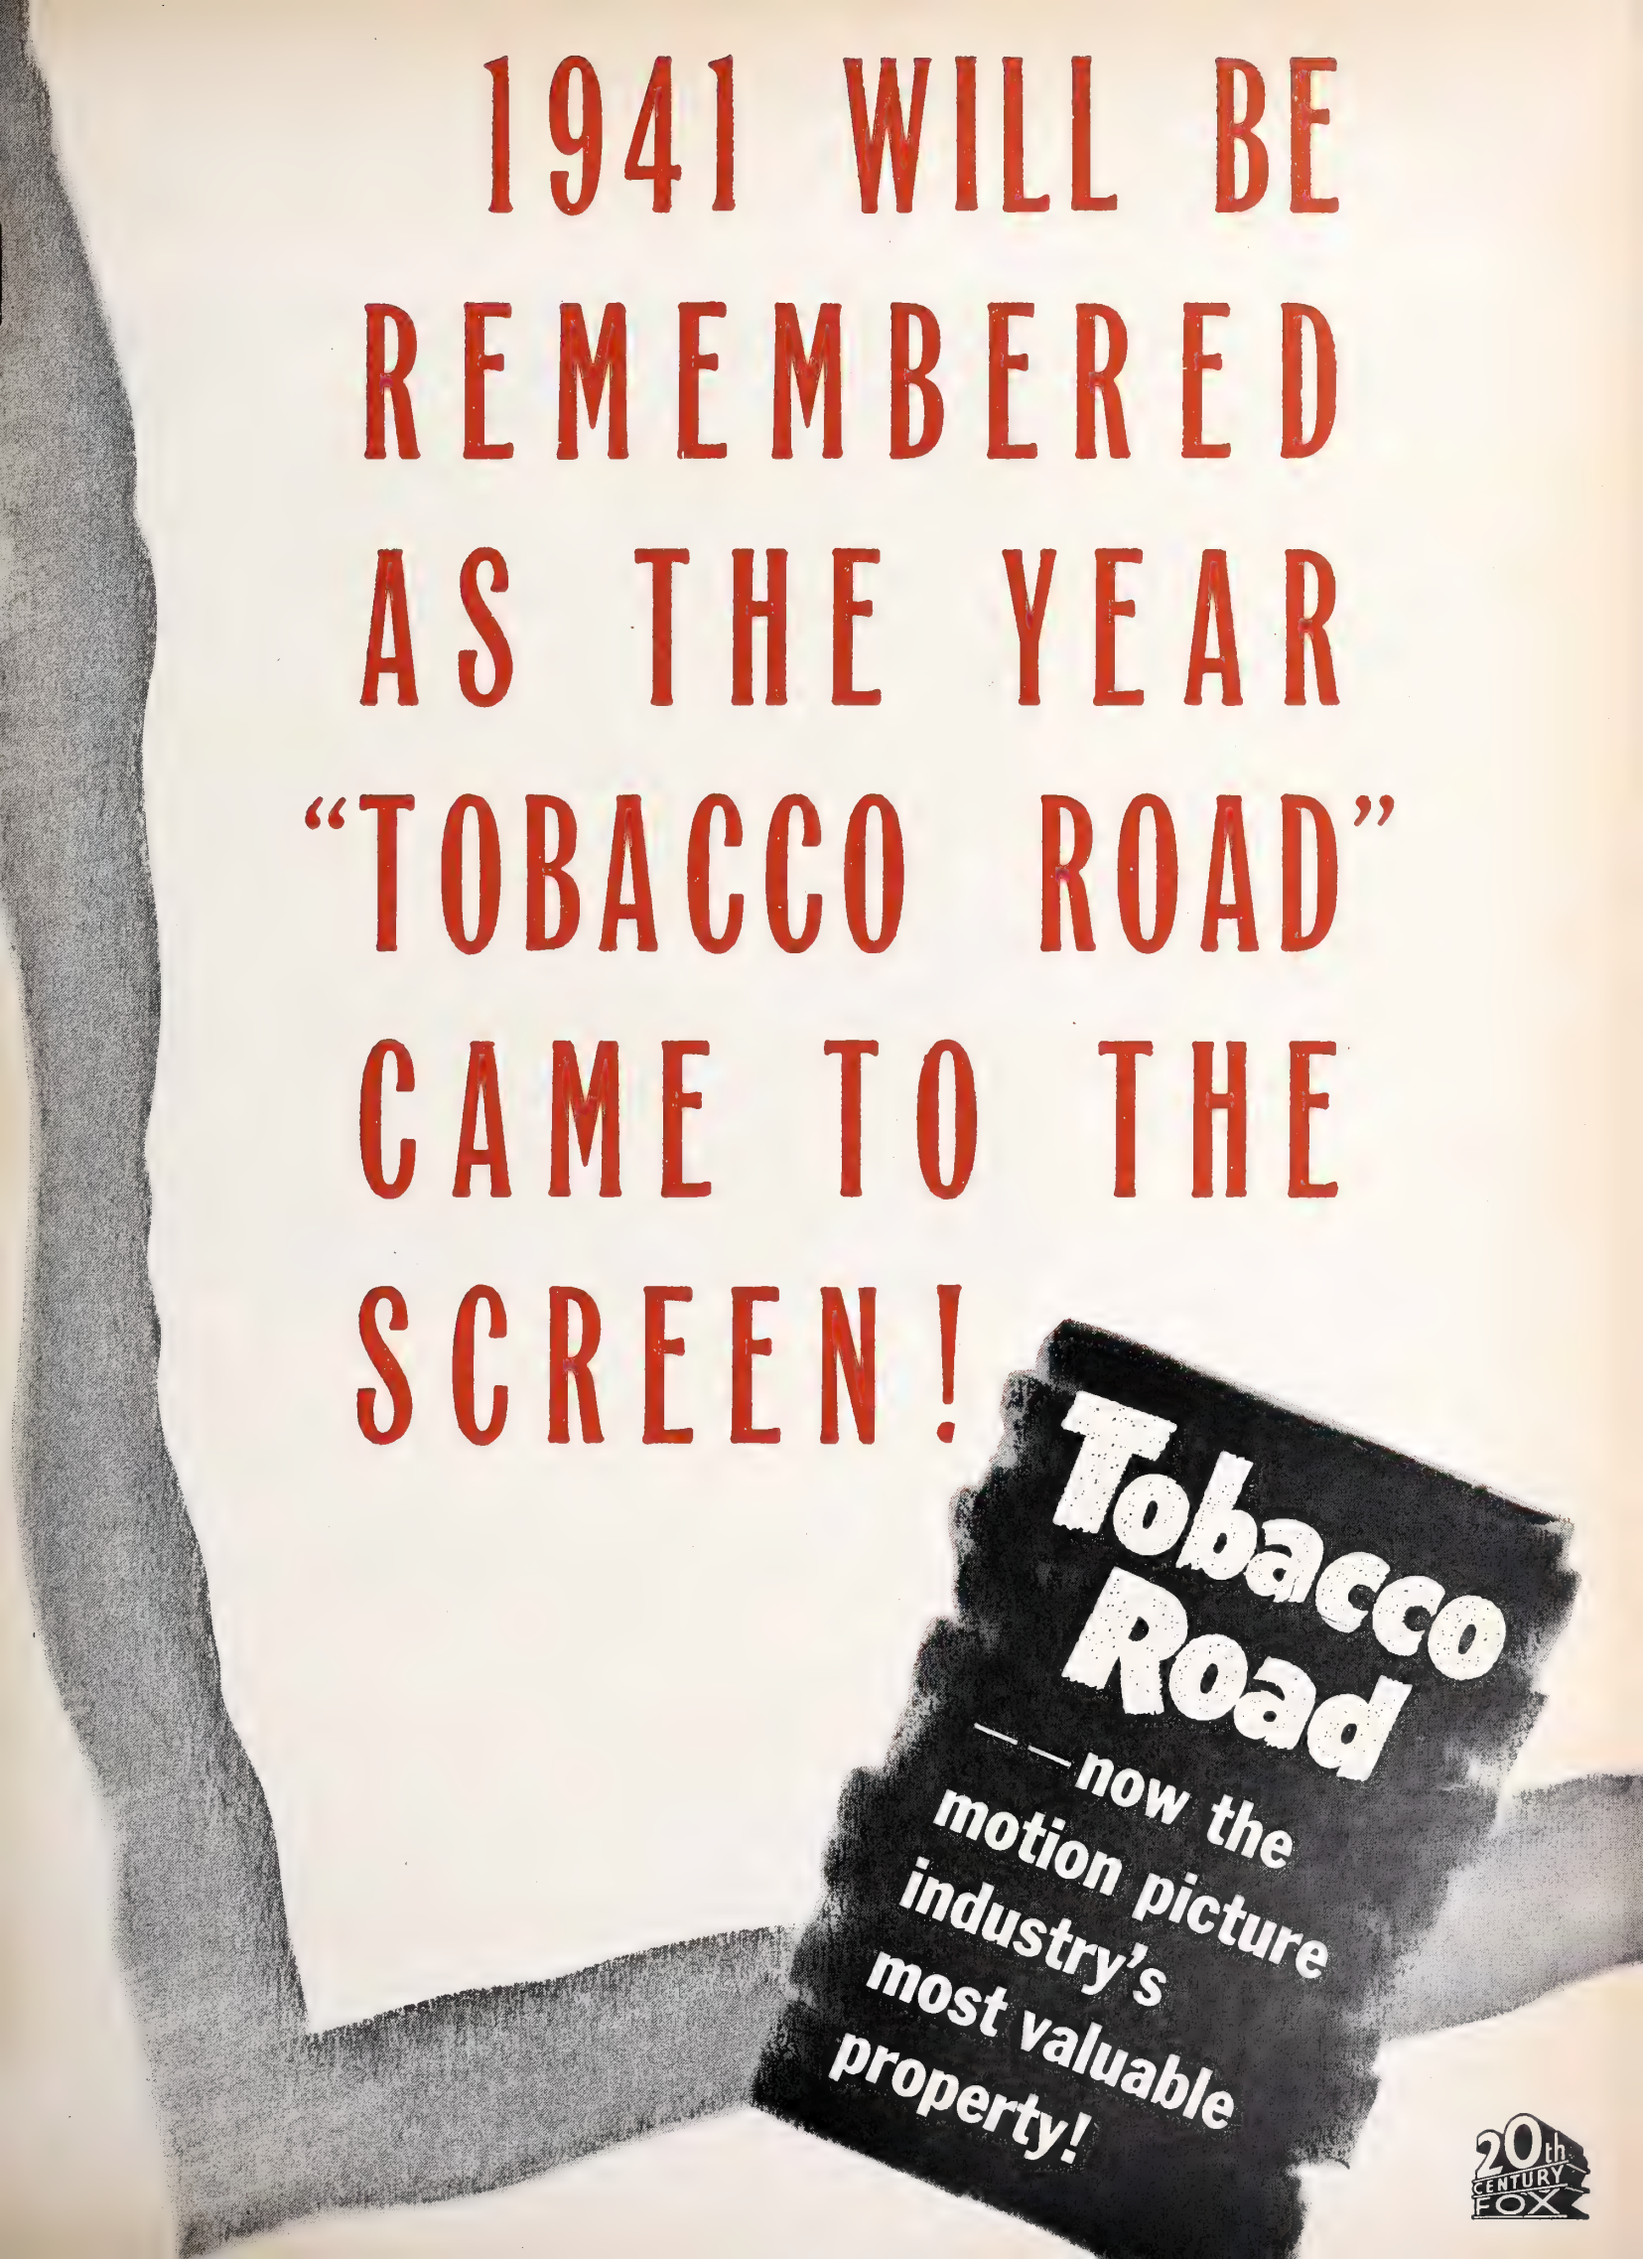
WRITES E. L. Stein, who runs the Out-Wickenburg-Way Theatre, Wickenburg, Ariz.:

Your editorial in the January 11 issue of BOXOFFICE merits compliments. Especially the last short paragraph:

["If the public gets a big admission's worth, the climax of this tale will write itself. It will need no embroidery rolling out of this typewriter."]

For the past three months exhibitors have been given very little but "quickies" to show to the public. Result? The public has begun to wander away from this industry's product as "its best entertainment." What to do? The theatres of the country must have bigger and better pictures immediately to re-attract the public.

The statement of Nicholas Schenck that "there is nothing wrong with this industry that good pictures won't cure" was never more true than today. But some "cure" must be applied or there won't be any industry to work on.



Thanks to Stein for the roses. Word to Stein about his worries:

It couldn't possibly be as appalling as he feels. There will be an industry to work on, down curve and up curve as circumstances may occasion. If it will help any, he might be interested in learning what the indications are:

Good attractions and plenty of them are on the way. A lot of best feet are being put forward—now that selling under the decree is getting closer. For one thing, the distributors appear to be in a frame of mind of sweetening, if not softening, theatre reaction to their wares. This is designed to help current merchandise and to develop a more brotherly sentiment for and on behalf of the impending blocks of five. The advantage, for the time being, appears heading in the direction of the exhibitor.

These are the indications, the signposts. Remember, please, not to hold us to account if the directionals prove faulty.

1941 WILL BE REMEMBERED AS THE YEAR "TOBACCO ROAD" CAME TO THE SCREEN!

AAA CLERKS DRAWN FROM MANY FIELDS AND SOME PROFESSIONS

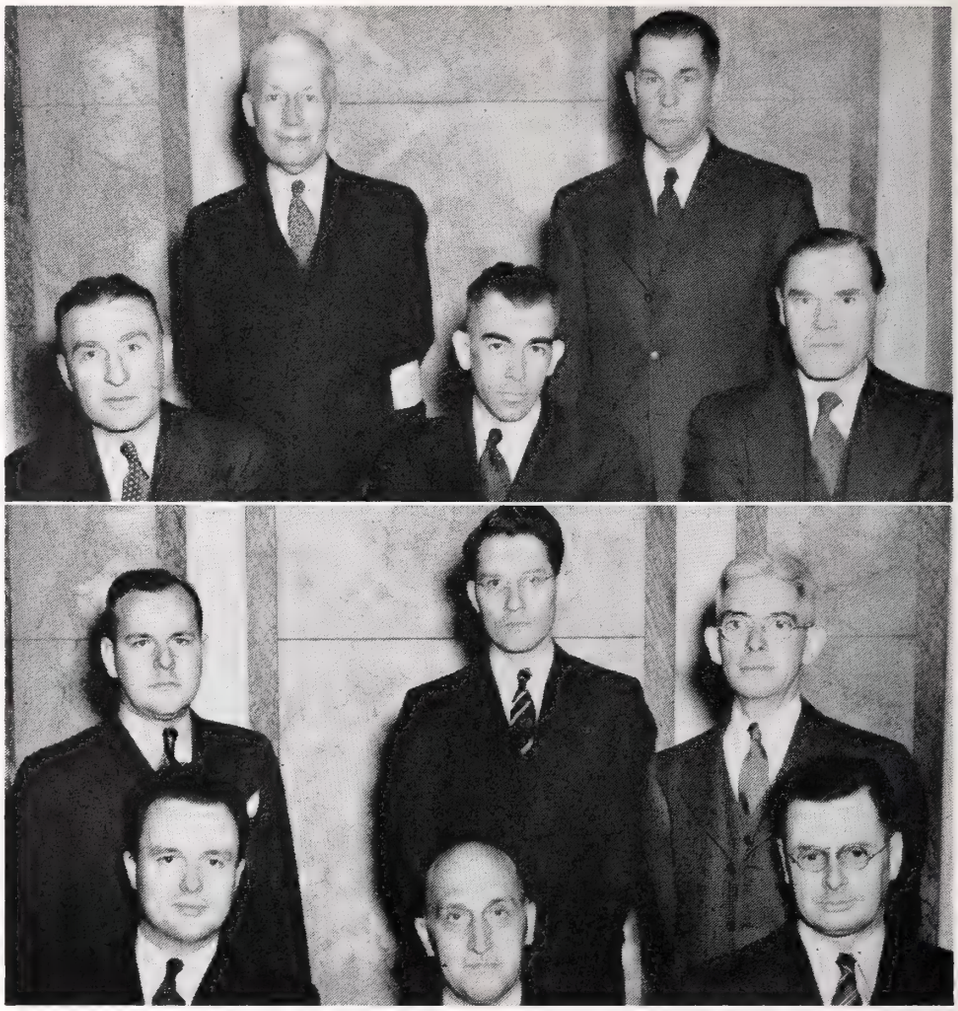
The 31 Tribunals Now Open Throughout The Country

The 31 clerks of the arbitration tribunals are now functioning throughout the nation, the promise of the AAA that the system will be functioning by February 1 thereby having been met on the dot.

These men have been drawn from many business fields and a sprinkling of the professions, as their biographies on these and other pages reveal:

Albany—Robert Elliott, a graduate of the High School of Commerce, New York, took a special course at the pay officers' school and a war training course at the U. S. Naval Training Academy, Annapolis. He is married, a life-long resident of New York City, a member of Amity Lodge No. 323, A. F. & A. M., and was an ensign in the supply corps with the first salvage division of the navy during the last war. His business background, 25 years with the Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corp., engaged in marine salvage, heavy lighterage and construction. From July to December of last year, he was attached to the New York office of the AAA. His office is located in the Standard Building.

Atlanta—Detlef H. Hansen jr., has been a resident of this city and state for 38 years. He is married. Business background includes a manager-cashier post with a Wall Street brokerage house for 14 years; for over five years, he was an employment supervisor of the department of welfare, New York City. Education includes two years at Columbia University, two at Cooper Union, one at Mechanics Institute and two at New York University where he studied business organization and administration, bookkeeping and accounting and architectural design. His office is located in the Mortgage Guarantee Building.



Boston—Henry de la Morandiere is a native of New York. He is married, has one child and was educated at Oxford, the University of Paris and Pratt Institute, Brooklyn. His business background traces to England and France; he was also a salesman with B. Altman and Co. at White Plains, N. Y. His office is with the Chamber of Commerce.

Buffalo—Edward William Spitznagel is a life-long resident of this city. He is married, has a grown daughter and for 27 years was credit manager of Jacob Dold Packing Co., meat packers. His office is with the Chamber of Commerce.

Charlotte—Joseph C. Wright has lived in Charlotte and North Carolina for 13 years. He was a member of the graduate class of 1926 of The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina and is a bachelor of science in business administration as well as a senior cadet officer. Wright is married, belongs to the Walhalla Lodge, No. 66 of the A. F. & A. M., and a member of the Charlotte junior chamber of commerce. Business background includes five years with the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., seven years prior to that with H. V. Johnson and Son, coal dealers; membership on the school board of the city of Charlotte and 16 months with Burroughs Adding Machine Co. His office is located in the Liberty Life Building.

Cincinnati—Lorenz L. Lemper is a life-long resident of this city and got his LLB. here. A bachelor, he is a member of Cincinnati Council No. 373, Knights of Columbus, the Hamilton County Republican Club and the 3rd Ward Republican Club. Lemper was formerly secretary of the municipal civil service commission and a practising lawyer for the past 25 years. His office is with the Chamber of Commerce.

Cleveland—Luke H. Lyman has been living here over six years, but 34 years in Ohio. He is married and has a baby daughter. He is a Mason and a member of the Goodale Lodge, Columbus and was a Kappa Sigma at college. He practiced law for two years after four years of undergraduate courses in the commerce college of Ohio State University where he graduated in '29. Graduating from law college there in '32, he passed the Ohio bar the same year.

This Is What Eleven Look Like—

All of the men in these photos attended "school" early in the week to become acquainted with the decree under which they will function as clerks of the arbitration tribunals. Their names and their offices: Upper shot, left to right and seated are William A. Livingston, Pittsburgh; Charles Q. Blomquist, New Orleans, and Harold B. Barton, Washington, while standing are Charles S. Wall, New York, and Oliver F. Bishop, New Orleans.

The lower panel includes these, seated and moving from left to right: Henry de la Morandiere, Boston; Lorenz L. Lemper, Cincinnati, and Joseph C. Wright, Charlotte. Standing, also from left to right, are Jack W. Harmon, Memphis; Luke H. Lyman, Cleveland, and Edward W. Spitznagel, Buffalo.

He was a law clerk for Florence E. Allen, judge of the U. S. circuit court of appeals for the sixth circuit from 1934, until assuming his AAA post. His office is located in the Standard Building.

Dallas—Charles Calvin Williams. A born Texan, he has lived in Dallas for six months. He is married, has one son, is a Mason, has been active in civic work through the chambers of commerce and was assistant manager of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce during 1935-36. Williams is a graduate of East Texas State Teachers' College; was president of his graduating class, attended two sessions of the national school for chamber of commerce and trade organizations at Evanston, Ill., spent four years teaching English in the Philippines and has traveled extensively in the Orient and Europe. His office is located in the Fidelity Building.

Denver—John B. Milton has lived in Denver for 32 years. He is married, has two adult children and is a Mason. He has an A.B. degree, '06, from Washington and Jefferson. Business background is in general real estate. His office is located with the Chamber of Commerce.

Des Moines—R. Bruce Wilson is married and a relative of John Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; a Mason. Educated in high school, he has spent about 10 years in municipal and county government as a bookkeeper. His office is located in the Walnut Building.

Into the Field After "School" Sessions Held in East

Detroit—I. H. Yackness is a bachelor and a member of several college fraternities. He was educated at Wayne University where he specialized in personal administration and attended the Detroit Institute of Technology and Sociology. Territorial Round-Up Continues to Show Optimistic View

This edition continues BOXOFFICE'S 'round-the-country analysis of business conditions and latter day reactions to the decree and what it may hold in store.

On business prospects: Encouragement and general anticipation the year will be a good one, certainly far better than its predecessor.

On the decree: Virtually a nation-wide question mark.

And now the detail:

New Haven

NEW HAVEN—They're uncertain about the future here.

Consensus of available exhibitor opinion reflects dislike and distrust of the decree and uncertainties about business as a consequence. Independent exhibitors are on the qui vive awaiting announcements of selling policies and are not at all cheery about the buying outlook. They predict confusion.

At the same time, general rising business indices in the territory lead them to believe business should improve, although showmen are disappointed their grosses have not kept pace with the improvement in retail trades.

Impending arbitration arouses no enthusiasm. The belief largely is that the time lost under the rules of procedure is too great for effective relief.

Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY — Uncertainty over operation under the decree prevails here. Cross-sectionally, what follows is the exhibitor reaction:

"We don't know how it's going to work out. It would be only a wild guess to make one. We expect bigger and better pictures and we also expect to have to pay more for them."

An approach, in terms of general business indices, however, is a much more clear-cut and optimistic story. Deposits in nine local bank and trust companies reached an all-time high at the close of the year and bank loans showed almost a 15 per cent increase over the same period a year earlier. Local postal receipts, moreover, were the largest in the city's history last year.

Real estate sales last year represented a new high, according to the real estate board. Department store sales reached a 10-year peak by mid-November.

At Las Vegas, announced construction projects total more than $6,300,000, presaging the biggest business year that area has yet experienced.

Predicts Appreciable Increase

New York—John J. O'Connor, vice-president and general manager of the RKO circuit, sizing up the theatre situation, currently and in the future:

"Our opinion of the 1941 outlook for theatre attendance is that from a business improvement standpoint patronage should certainly jump considerably over 1940 figures.

"The national government's 'on order' plans for defense are coming out of the tool stage. With the necessary implements available for production purposes, the billions of dollars appropriated will slowly be distributed in every corner of the country. And, as employment rises and the government's spending increases week by week this industry, supplying as it does the great outlet for recreation for the masses, should also find its attendance jumping.

"It would also be very helpful to business if producers would stay away from war subjects and heavy, dismal dramas and keep new production on the lighter side by giving us more comedies and musicals as an offset to the disturbing influences contained in newspapers and radio broadcasts."

Dallas

DALLAS—The outlook for Texas appears rosy, according to a BOXOFFICE survey. There is a minimum amount of uncertainty expressed which is far outshadowed by a greater confidence that the industry will weather its ills.

Karl Hoblitzelle recently expressed his views on the decree in BOXOFFICE. He made a plea for unity and at the time voiced the opinion all effort should be made to adjudicate differences before rushing to arbitration. He favors a harnessing of the industry's manpower "for the betterment of the entertainment and services offered the American people, as well as the betterment of our public relations and our own internal affairs; we must continue our efforts to dignify our business."

Holger Jorgenson, an exhibitor here antedating the first World War and a neighborhood operator now, does not look for any marked changes. He thinks the product looks good, but urges exhibitors, however, to work for a basic availability so that when he buys pictures he will know then when he is going to get them. Jorgenson looks for no boom conditions in normal situations. He sees nothing that should cause alarm except to what height the defense taxes will mount. As far as the decree and operations under it are concerned, he believes anything in it that is not right will soon be made right.

In the smaller situations, Mart Cole, circuit operator of Rosenberg, is in doubt on the decree. "We don't know—we have to try it and it may help or may hinder. I can't see how it will benefit the independent theatres, but we have got to try to make it work," he said.

He expects a good year. He feels that, while defense towns are getting the money, that there is more general spending all over south Texas now which he believes will continue. Flu cut grosses way down in his towns, but he regards that as only temporary. Grosses in theatres depend largely on the headlines, Cole believes. When the war is going as they want it people are in the frame of mind to go to the theatre but, when it goes wrong they stay at home, he observes.

"There has to be a top in the raising of film rental and taxes. We have to have taxes and especially the defense taxes, but we don't have a chance to raise admissions," he thinks.

Sees Income Increase Reflected in Grosses

New York—Thinks Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp. about 1941:

"With the reduction of the relief rolls and increased employment on the defense program, the rise in national income should be reflected in motion picture theatres.

"With more people going oftener to the movies, boxoffice results should be definitely better this year."

San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO—Local theatremen are optimistic over 1941. The national defense program is expected to boost receipts in this area since thousands of new recruits will be hungry for flesh shows as well as films and Interstate will supply their entertainment at both downtown and near army post theatres. The estimated military population of the Alamo City, for instance, was placed at 30,000 at the turn of the year.

Jean Wildenstein, manager of the Municipal Auditorium, predicts that "1941 will be the most prosperous year San Antonio has ever had."

F — Drama

United Artists (——) — 118 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 14, '41

When judged solely for its artistry, overlength is the only possible criticism which might be made of the first offering from Producers David Loew and Albert Lewin. Viewed as entertainment with a popular appeal, however, a different story must be told. The screen play was adapted from Erich Maria Remarque's novel, "Flotsam," to the text and atmosphere of which it adheres, being a slowly-unfolded account of German refugees, their sufferings and tortuous wanderings over the face of Europe. Resultantly, the theme is monotonous part of the time, sombre and depressing all of the time. The feature will probably require intensive selling before it can be widely dovetailed into current tastes in film fare. Even its anti-Nazi note, which will undoubtedly strike a sympathetic chord, may be too late to be a great asset. While Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan and Frances Dee occupy the toplines, the brunt of the acting chore falls on Glenn Ford, who ably handles the task. Miss Dee has deplorably little to do, but does it well. The supporting cast is large, possesses numerous well-established names and is generally excellent. John Cromwell's direction does everything possible to elevate and speed the picture.

Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan, Frances Dee, Glenn Ford, Anna Sten, Erich von Stroheim, Allan Brett, Joseph Cawthorn.

EXPLOITIPS: If the marquee permits, Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan, Frances Dee and Glenn Ford are all entitled to mention thereon. Hail Ford as a new star discovery. The name of Erich Maria Remarque, who authored "All Quiet on the Western Front," is also exploitable through library and bookstore tieups. Stage a debate, either by letter through a newspaper, or orally on the stage, on the question of whether or not the U. S. should admit any and all foreign refugees.

CATCHLINES: The Saga of a Homeless People . . . Driven From Comfort and Security by a Ruthless War They Did Not Make.

Here at Last Is the Film You've Been Waiting to See . . . Based Upon Erich Maria Remarque's Powerful Novel, "Flotsam."

Along the Rio Grande

F — Western

RKO Radio (183) — 66 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 7, '41

Youthful Tim Holt stakes out a new claim on his enviable and rapidly growing reputation as one of the up-and-coming new western stars in this, the fourth picture featuring his six-gun and saddle heroics. He again demonstrates that few, if any, of the sagebrush supermen can surpass him in acting ability. Other assets include a story with more meat than the average outdoor script, although motivation pretty much follows established routine; a good supporting cast; a few diverting musical sequences; and able direction. It rates, in toto, as prime western fare. Holt is a cowhand who, with the inevitable two buddies, undertakes to run to earth the villain who has been terrorizing the community and who has murdered his kindly employer. To accomplish their ends, they join the gang and work from within—successfully, of course. Directed by Edward Killy.

Tim Holt, Ray Whitley, Betty Jane Rhodes, Emmett Lynn, Robert Fiske, Hal Taliaferro, Carl Stockdale.

EXPLOITIPS: Tim Holt is the name to sell in this one. Erect a blownup figure of him in the lobby or above the marquee, in western costume and with a gun in his hand. Launch a Tim Holt Fan Club for juvenile sagebrush fans, giving out inexpensive membership buttons and other paraphernalia. Make over the lobby in the usual western style, and play range ballad recordings over the lobby p.a. system. You might also tie in with spot announcements on hillbilly and western radio shows. For Saturday matinees, hold a "rifle shoot" with BB guns on a vacant lot, awarding a Tim Holt trophy to the winner, or stage a juvenile "rodeo" on the stage as an added matinee attraction.

CATCHLINES: Unfair to Organized Outlaws . . . That's Tim Holt . . . When His Guns Blaze Into Action to Clean Up the Border.

Your Newest Western Hero . . . Tim Holt . . . Rides Into Action Again in the Rugged, Roaring West.

Come Live With Me

F — Romantic Comedy

M-G-M (122) — 85 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 31, '41

Charming romantic comedy, into which has been woven sufficient whimsical and idyllic strains to set it apart from the trend toward the screwball and slapstick approach which has characterized so many recent humorous offerings, this has much to assure a wide general audience appeal and should be a breadwinner at the boxoffice. It is clean, wholesome fun from start to finish and considerable of a triumph for Clarence Brown, who produced, directed and, it is reported, had a sizeable finger in the preparation of the script. James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr are co-starred, the former in the type of role which fits him best and which has crystallized his marquee magnetism. Pulchritudinous Miss Lamarr continues to show marked improvement in her Thespic abilities. An Austrian refugee, she faces deportation unless she marries an American citizen within the week. She isn't too anxious to stay, but Playboy Ian Hunter, himself married but interested in her, persuades her to seek a husband. It turns out to be Stewart, a penniless writer, who accedes to her proposal as a business suggestion, gradually falls in love with her and wins her away from Hunter.

James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr, Ian Hunter, Verree Teasdale, Donald Meek, Barton MacLane, Edward Ashley, Ann Codee.

EXPLOITIPS: Co-starred for the first time, James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr rate concentrated effort via exploitation, advertising and the marquee. Title might be used in a promotional tieup with hotels, apartment houses, the rental section in newspaper classified ads, and in other ways. Use the "refugee" angle to stage a special "Refugee Benefit" performance, turning the proceeds over to a worthwhile charity agency. Give supporting credits to Ian Hunter and Verree Teasdale.

CATCHLINES: She Used Her Marriage Certificate as a Passport . . . Then Surprised Herself by Falling in Love With Her Husband.

Gay, Gorgeous Hedy Lamarr . . . Teamed for the First Time With James Stewart . . . In One of the Brightest New Comedies of the Year.

Rolling Home to Texas

F — Musical Western

Monogram (4052) — 63 Minutes — Rel. Dec. 29, '40

Producer Edward Finney apparently had some difficulty in deciding what he was trying to produce—a filmusical, a western or a broad burlesque on the latter. The result is he has a little of each but not enough of any one to make much of a picture. It is probably the worst Tex Ritter sagebrusher to date, and there have been 17 preceding it. Because of its many motivating elements and an unsuccessful effort to avoid formula, the story is extremely improbable, even for an action melodrama. Dialogue is strained and jerky and direction by Al Herman does nothing to mitigate. In fact, even the title doesn't fit, inasmuch as the story has nothing to do with Texas or rolling home. Rather, it concerns a prison in Arizona from which convicts are helped to escape by an organized gang which makes a business of framing and killing them to collect rewards. Rugged Ritter comes to the rescue and saves the warden's job by exposing the dastardly plot and capturing the perpetrators.

Tex Ritter, Cal Shrum, Slim Andrews, Virginia Carpenter, Eddie Dean, Jack Rutherford, Minta Durfee.

EXPLOITIPS: Tex Ritter is the principal source of interest here. Prepare a large cutout of the cowboy star in a two-fisted, shootin' pose for the theatre front. Worthy of extra plugs are Cal Shrum and his Rhythm Rangers, cowboy band which has made a number of recordings and is well known to addicts of hillbilly music. Ritter himself can be tied into displays of records and sheet music with local music stores. Make over the lobby in the usual western style and be sure to hold a Saturday matinee meeting of your juvenile "Tex Ritter" Fan Club on the day the film opens.

CATCHLINES: One Against a Gang . . . But Tex Ritter Swings His Fists . . . With the Law on His Side.

There's Action . . . There's Mirth . . . There's Music . . . and There's Tex Ritter in This Exciting New Western.

The plus and minus signs indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the review. Where our compiler is unable to form any opinion from the review the sign "o" is used. Blank spaces indicate no review. This department serves also as an Alphabetical Index to feature releases. Listings cover reviews appearing by the Saturday preceding date of this issue. It will be brought up to date from week to week. The meaning of the various signs and their combinations is as follows:

∓ Very Good; + Good; ± Fair; ∓ Mediocre; – Poor; = Very Poor

In the summary ∓∓ is rated as 2 pluses; = as 2 minuses.

Nobody's Children F — Drama

Columbia (——) 65 Minutes Rel. Oct. 17, '40

Popularity of a coast radio program designed to get homes for orphans is responsible for this maudlin tale of a brother and sister, the latter a cripple, who experience heartaches when separated and great joy when eventually they come to live together under the same roof of adoption. It is an item for the sentimental segment of the audience, the group that is touched emotionally by the poignant situation. And the exhibitor, with the aforementioned in mind and with his chart of past performances before him, should take them into consideration if and when he plays it. Best bet for the picture will probably be women. Edith Fellows and Billy Lee carry the burden of the story.

Edith Fellows, Billy Lee, Georgia Caine, Lois Wilson, Walter White jr., Ben Taggart, Mary Currier.

EXPLOITIPS: Edith Fellows has probably carved a place for herself in the film-going esteem of the general run of audiences and should continue to measure up with this offering. Tieups are indicated with the local Mutual Broadcasting outlet, 'teen age styles and coiffures, parties for orphans, milk dealers, an adopt-a-child campaign, women's clubs. The radio program goes out over 34 stations, emanating from Los Angeles.

CATCHLINES: Their Small Hearts Ache Just to Call Someone "Mother" and "Dad."

Larceny Street F — Comedy Drama

Film Alliance (SR) 65 Minutes Rel. ——

Here is an English variation of the husband-wife style of crime detection brought into vogue by the "Thin Man" cycle. Jack Buchanan produced. He has the leading role. Generally the plot manages to provoke laughter and the criminal pursuit provides sufficient thrill business. Storywise, it leans heavily on dialect—Anglo-Italian vintage. Buchanan and his wife, Elsie Randolph, track down a gang of insurance company defrauders and jewel thieves in Dublin by getting into the good graces of a barber shop proprietor who, as a sideline, commits murder and disposes of bodies. Tim Whelan directed.

Jack Buchanan, Elsie Randolph, Arthur Margetson.

EXPLOITIPS: Where Jack Buchanan has a reputation, plug him in advertising copy and on the marquee. Elsewhere, circulate publicity telling of his theatrical career in musical comedy and the like. A tieup with toy train dealers is indicated. For clue display get some facial clay shaped into a likeness of a man's face, a toy locomotive and an assortment of cheap jewelry. The barber shop angle is interesting.

CATCHLINES: Meet the King of the Smash and Grab Racket . . . An Underworld Dealer in "Hot Ice" and Sudden Death.

Marked Men F — Melodrama

Producers Releasing Corp. 67 Minutes Rel. ——

"Marked Men" is a feeble remake of that old melodramatic worthy which has run the gamut of treatment on the screen from a novel story idea to something in a hack writer's filing case. For the record, the story deals with an innocent who is forced to break jail with a gang of plug uglies just because he happens to be there. He makes his way to Arizona. En route he befriends a police dog. They work themselves into the good graces of a doctor and his daughter. Eventually he is apprehended and, in the last two reels, catches the jailbreakers.

Warren Hull, Isabel Jewell, John Dilson, Paul Bryar.

EXPLOITIPS: The police dog angle is important. Work up a dog show which features prizes to the best looking police dog, or awards to the cleverest mongrel. This should particularly attract youngsters. Get up a display of the cactus found in Arizona, and its various food derivaties. Get a sandwich man to parade the main drag with signs calling attention to "Is It Fair That Ex-Convicts Should Always Wear the Brand of Marked Men?"

CATCHLINES: Six Fugitives for Freedom . . . Four Die on a Desert . . . One Is Captured and the Other Finds Freedom and Happiness.

Case of the Black Parrot F — Mystery

First National (572) 60 Minutes Rel. Jan. 11, '41

What might have been a good idea at a Hollywood story conference, certainly falls short in the delivery. "The Case of the Black Parrot" is merely a case of cut and dried hokum, corny humor, trite lines, ineffective mystery and a hodge-podge of stock situations, all handled in routine fashion and topped off with a climax that gives itself away many hundred feet before it should. The "Black Parrot" is revealed as a slick fellow who is in the blackmail, murder and stolen antique business. The case struggles along bravely with a weak story. Noel Smith directed.

William Lundigan, Maris Wrixon, Eddie Foy jr., Luli Deste, Paul Cavanaugh.

EXPLOITIPS: William Lundigan manages to make the best of a mediocre role. He is the up and coming player in this film. Get a crime detection equipment display from the police. Paste a tab on the back pages of detective pulp fiction magazines in cooperation with a newsdealer. Get up a "guest of honor" screening for the detective force "ace." Get a stuffed bird, spray it with black paint, and place in the right spot, appropriately captioned.

CATCHLINES: Who Will Be the Black Parrot's Next Victim . . . Do You Dare Match Your Wits With a Master Killer.

Ridin' on a Rainbow F — Western

Republic (——) 79 Minutes Rel. Jan. 28, '41

The extra money and effort that went into this western to take it out of the routine category has paid off dividends entertainment-wise. That is, if your action customers expect action in a western, they must sit through no less than eight song numbers and long stretches of footage aboard a river showboat. The story gets very cluttered up between too much solo vocalizing, showboat entertainment and making room for very talented little Mary Lee. But that doesn't make for action any more than does Gene Autry's efforts as a confidant in getting her to reveal where her father, innocently involved, has hidden a cache of stolen cash. Lew Landers directed.

Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Mary Lee, Carol Adams.

EXPLOITIPS: You would not be misrepresenting this film and you might be giving it a new twist by selling it as a super musical western. For one thing, western fans who like Autry for his singing as well as his shootin' should certainly know about all the songs in here. Then there should be a new motif in the front, if only to maintain the new atmosphere presented.

CATCHLINES: Bringing Law and Order With Fist and Bullet.

Death in His Trigger Finger . . . Dynamite in His Fists.

Cavalcade of Faith F — Documentary

Jeffrey Film Corp. (SR) 65 Minutes Rel. ——

Not in any sense of the word is this Catholic subject entertainment in the accepted sense for average theatre consumption. It is a compilation, and not a very good one, of scenes taken at various church functions in Rome, for the most part, and at Eucharistic Congresses in Chicago, Buenos Aires and other cities. While the foreword purports to establish the film as a recording of milestones in the ascension of Christendom this is not borne out in the footage, which is heavily repetitious, laboriously jointed and below par photographically. Most interesting sequences are close range shots of the induction of the late Pope Pius XI and many activities he engaged in, as well as similar footage of Pope Pius XII. Background dialogue is handled by Basil Ruysdael.

EXPLOITIPS: The local Catholic laity would seem to be a pre-sold audience for this subject, merely for the asking. In other words, contact the bishop of your diocese well in advance of booking so that he may inform the community of the playdate. Obviously, the film should be especially attractive to children. It may be desirable to arrange with the Sunday school for a contest on any subject allied with the picture.

requiring a distributor to include as many as five in a group. "Features may be offered singly or in groups of two, three, four or five. So long as the number . . . is five or less, the matter is entirely one of negotiation with the exhibitor. You can insist that the exhibitor must take all or none of that particular group or you can reduce the number which were originally offered as a group," go the instructions.

The analysis thereafter goes into careful detail to explain how blocks of five are to be sold. For instance:

"If more than five trade shown features are available, you may substitute features from one group and place it in another. Likewise, you may offer one exhibitor a group containing five particular features and offer his competitor a group of five in which only three, for example, of the features offered the first exhibitor are included. The vital thing is that not more than five features may be the subject of any one offer or negotiation, and that in all negotiations in which the question of a substitution of features is involved, no basis be given for a claim that, in fact, you were offering more than five features in a single group.

On Price

"In negotiating with an exhibitor as to price, there is no requirement that a separate price be placed on each individual picture in a group. They may be priced individually, or a flat price may be fixed for the group as a whole and negotiations conducted on that basis.

"The decree expressly recognizes that a distributor's salesman may license or offer for license more than one group of features at the same visit, provided, however, that the licensing of one group may not be conditioned upon the licensing of another group or feature. In other words, you cannot force the exhibitor to take one group or feature in order to secure a license for another group.

"In any negotiation, however, which involves more than one group of features, the utmost caution should be used so as to avoid any claim that in fact you were offering more than five features at the same time.

May Choose Customer

"Where competitive situations exist it is not necessary for a distributor to offer a group of features to each of the competing exhibitors. You may freely choose the exhibitor to which you wish to make the first offer and, if satisfactory terms are arrived at, you may license the features without attempting to license the competing exhibitor.

'Where competitive situations exist it is recognized that difficult questions may arise when a distributor has more than one group of features available for licensing. In all such situations you must be certain that the negotiations in question relate only to individual groups and that the licensing of one is not tied up with the licensing of another.

"Where an exhibitor has entered into a license agreement and claims that he was forced to take the particular group of features involved in order to secure another group of features which he desired, he may arbitrate the matter.

"Where an exhibitor does not enter into a license agreement, but claims that more than five features were offered as a part of a single group or that the licensing of one group of features was conditioned upon the licensing by him of another group, he may arbitrate the matter."

Circuit buys for the entire country, or any portion of it, may continue to be centralized in New York as in the past, according to Jenkins, but the contracts must be individually applied to the territory in which the theatres function. "This means," he states, "that if an exhibitor has theatres which are located in the Chicago exchange district and others located in the Indianapolis exchange district, the license for the theatres in the Chicago district cannot be made applicable to and cannot include the theatres in the Indianapolis district. There is nothing, however, that prohibits either the distributor or the exhibitor from negotiating with respect to both groups of theatres at the same time and the same place." And, of course, one deal cannot be conditioned upon any other deal involving a different area.

Perhaps open to future controversy is that portion of the handbook which gives 20th-Fox's interpretation of an independent buying through combines. In discussing Sec. X of the decree, which deals with refusal to license an independent exhibitor on the run requested by him, Jenkins holds such an exhibitor is not entitled to arbitrate under this section unless he can show he is an independent. What Jenkins views as an independent follows in his own language:

"This means that he must be wholly independent of any circuit or buying combination of more than five theatres. If the exhibitor in question operates, or is interested in any way whatsoever in the operation of more than five theatres, or if the features for his theatre are licensed by, or through, a buying combine, cooperative or agent which acts for more than five theatres, he is entitled to none of the advantages set forth in this section."

Kent and His Decree Credo

New York—In a foreward to the handbook on the decree prepared by Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel, for 20th-Fox sales force, Sidney R. Kent, president, states:

"We intend that this company shall live up to both the letter and spirit of the decree.

"A system of arbitration has been set up which will be honestly and impartially administered. It is our hope that our company will be in only those arbitration proceedings in which a fundamental and honest difference of opinion is involved. We have no business in any other kind of dispute.

"We think you men in the field can straighten out most local problems on a man to man basis and we expect you to continue to deserve the respect of exhibitors."

slap in the face because of the pending suits. Yet, nothing can be done about it unless the suit is tried or an agreement on expansion reached in the form of decrees.

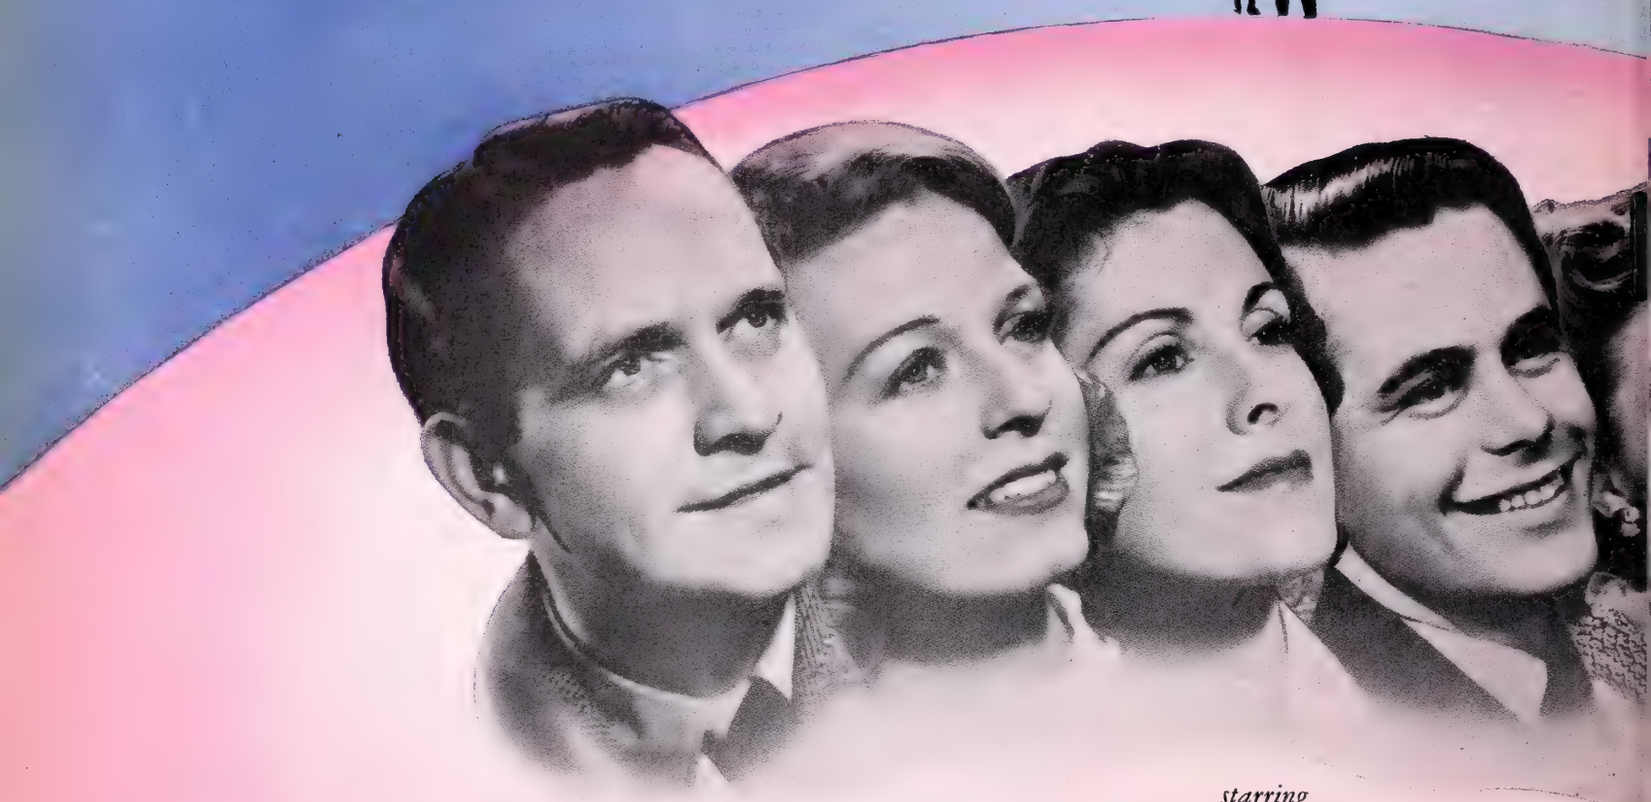
Tony Sudekum of the Crescent circuit in Nashville has been holding out and has not approached the government on any kind of a deal.

BOXOFFICE, some months ago, intimated that the department of justice would entertain settlement negotiations on the three pending suits. Likewise, the same idea has been talked about for "The Little Three," which declined to become parties to an all-industry decree in the big suit.

In addition to the big suit, "The Big Five" have been eliminated as defendants in the Griffith and Crescent actions and, while a similar stand was expected in the Schine suit, it is believed no move has been made because of the possibility a favorable outcome of pending negotiations, which would automatically take care of the distributor defendants.

Small Will Make Five This Year for UA List

HOLLYWOOD—Hitting back at published reports stressing a "strike" among UA producers, but without recognizing the fact such stories had been published, is word from Edward Small he will make five this year.



Two of the quintet he plans to deliver to UA for distribution this year. The others presumably will be sold next season. "The Corsican Brothers" already had been listed, but new are "My Official Wife," "Sabotage," "She Was a Working Girl" and another so far untitled.

Support Gov't on Decree, Despite Its "Flaws"

WASHINGTON—Section III of the New York consent decree will be an adequate solution for the problem of blind selling, but other provisions of the decree have serious drawbacks, in the view of Allied.

Nevertheless, it was decided at the annual meeting of the Allied directorate this week, the association will go along with the government in its effort to bring about a new order in the industry.

Officers Re-Elected

At the annual election, all 1940 officers were re-elected and Arthur K. Howard was named recording secretary, to fill a vacancy. Col. H. A. Cole was re-elected president; Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board and general counsel; Martin G. Smith, treasurer; Herman A. Blum, financial secretary, and Charles H. Olive, secretary.

The executive committee, with one exception, also was renamed, the only change being the substitution of Roy E. Harrold for W. A. Steffes, for whom, "in consideration of his long and faithful service to the association," a new position of honorary national councillor was created. Other members of the committee are Colonel Cole, Nathan Yamins, Sidney E. Samuelson, Martin G. Smith, Jack Kirsch and M. A. Rosenberg, with Myers an ex officio member.

Although the directors considered a number of subjects, the consent decree was the most important matter to come up and was, in fact, the only subject on which any statement was issued publicly.

Pointing out that Allied's main objectives in the past have been the abolishment of compulsory block booking and blind selling and the right of the independent exhibitor freely to contract for pictures on appropriate runs and on "fair and nondiscriminatory terms," the committee on policy, in a lengthy report, analyzed the decree from these angles.

"Admittedly Section III, providing for trade showings, is a remedy for blind selling," it was declared in that report.

"Heretofore, Allied has contended for the identification of pictures, synopses instead of trade showings, so that pictures could be sold in advance and in such quantities as the parties might agree upon. Some exhibitors are concerned about Section III because of its close relation to the provision for selling in groups of five. But putting out of mind differences as to the most acceptable method of accomplishing the desired end, it must be conceded that the consent decree ends blind selling.

"Section IV, providing for the selling of pictures in groups of not more than five each, makes selling somewhat more elastic than it now is, but it does not abolish compulsory block booking.

"Under the new system weak pictures can still be forced with the strong. Selling at frequent intervals instead of on an annual basis casts an undue burden on the exhibitors and increases the opportunities of the distributors to play one exhibitor against another and to impose harsh terms. Unless the distributors are scrupulously fair in selling under the new system, the hardships will outweigh the benefits.

"Section IV contains a forthright declaration that no exhibitor shall be required to license short subjects, re-issues, westerns or foreigns as a condition to the right to license desired groups of features. This should be effective to eradicate a serious evil. We recognize, however, that so long as distributor representatives have several classes of products to sell the exhibitors at the same time there will be a temptation to condition the sale of desired product upon the acceptance of unwanted product. This can be overcome and the provision can be made effective if the distributors insist upon good faith observance by their sales forces and exhibitors are alert to make a record of all infractions which will stand the test of an arbitration proceeding."

Believe "Divorce" Essential

The committee paid particular attention to those provisions of the decree touching upon the right to buy, but expressed the view that the abuses long complained of can be eliminated only by the divorce of exhibition from other branches of the industry, holding that the decree provision postponing action on that point for three years is the "most disappointing" feature of the decree.

"Section VI should be effective to prevent exclusive selling," it was stated. "The language is nicely balanced to insure a run to all worthy exhibitors without lending encouragement to shooting galleries and fly-by-nights. We feel that the clause protecting the distributor's total film revenue in the area should not be interpreted to cover threats of withdrawal of patronage made by circuits to perpetuate their local monopolies.

Praise for Arbitration

"Section VIII, providing for the arbitration of complaints of unreasonable clearance, is in good form and should be effective except for the provisions protecting clearance granted in certain franchises.

"Section X, relating to discrimination in the granting of a run, imposes so many conditions to the right to arbitrate thereunder as to be of little practical value. However, for those who can qualify under its provisions, the section holds out the prospect of relief from the most serious abuse that has been practiced by the Big Eight.

"For a number of years Allied has contended that the only effective remedy for the abuses attempted to be dealt with in the foregoing paragraphs was the separation of production and distribution from exhibition. Section XI, postponing the issue of theatre divorcement for three years, is the weakest and most disappointing feature of the decree. It is doubtful whether, under its provisions, the government can control acquisitions to any extent during the test period. However, in view of the outstanding importance of this subject, acquisitions or new developments by any of the consenting distributors which indicate a general policy of expansion, such as would violate the decree, should be promptly reported to national Allied."

Flashes From the News Front

Hub Film Curb Strict

BOSTON—John G. Spencer, chief of the licensing board, has ordered exhibitors here to notify him in writing, within four days before the showing, of plans to exhibit any in the list of 34 pictures he attached to the order. All were foreign-made or states rights films. Included, however, was the reissue of "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

New Nebraska Bills

LINCOLN—Senator Neubauer is back this year with two industry tax bills. One, a duplicate of his 1939 try, would impose a license fee of $1,000 annually and a tax of $1 per reel upon distributors. The other would levy ten per cent against admissions.

New England Flu Wanes

PORTLAND, ME.—Numerous schools in the New England states that were closed in the wave of flu and grippe epidemics are reopening. Children were barred from theatres in some localities.

Walker Is Renamed

WASHINGTON—Frank C. Walker has been re-appointed by President Roosevelt as postmaster general.

Product Problem First

MINNEAPOLIS—Bennie Berger, independent, has announced he will complain to the local arbitration board of inability to obtain suitable product for his Esquire here and World in St. Paul. Irving Gillman, owner of the Gayety, says he will ask relief for his house on the same plea.

Two Suits Postponed

DETROIT—The suit of Midwest (Raymond Schreiber) against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan has been postponed to Monday. Another suit, in which Jacob Schreiber, uncle of Raymond, is seeking to regain possession of Midwest houses, has been delayed to March 18.

To Talk on Decree

CHICAGO—Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel for 20th-Fox, is due here February 7 for a two-day session with the local sales setup to outline company operation under the consent decree.

Boston Allied Meet Set

BOSTON—The annual convention of the local Allied unit has been set for February 11 by Frank Lydon, president.

Dwight and Pride Explain Decree at Circuit Meet

LOS ANGELES—Richard Everett Dwight and Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, attorneys for 20th-Fox, will explain all phases of the decree to National Theatres divisional managers at their annual meeting slated to get under way at the Ambassador the week of February 10.

These attorneys assisted Felix A. Jenkins in the preparation of a handbook for 20th-Fox sales forces and are understood to be working on a similar book for National Theatres men. William T. Powers and Aubrey Schenck of the circuit's home office staff have prepared a tentative draft of an analysis of the text, but this is being polished up by Dwight and Pride.

Spyros in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—Spyros Skouras, president, and Harry Cox, treasurer of National Theatres, were here during the week for business conferences.

What the Studios Are Doing

Studios Near Winter Production Record

HOLLYWOOD—A picture-a-day tempo is indicated for a new winter production record as 31 features are scheduled to go before the cameras during February. Looking further ahead, 11 have been set for March starting, with four already pointing to an April sendoff. Paramount and Warner are starting six each this month; Univeral, four; Metro and RKO, three each; 20th-Fox, Columbia, Republic, Monogram, two each; UA, one.

Academy Award Selections Entering Home Stretch

Approximately 4,000 creative artists have begun voting for the candidates for Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences awards. The banquet for distribution of the "Oscars" will be held February 27 at the Biltmore Bowl.

Employment Fails to Keep Pace With Production

Despite the fact that production is soaring toward a winter record, a drop of $14,317 in weekly payrolls for December as compared with November is announced by the state labor department. While studios employed 12,391, only 37 less than in November, the average weekly salary of $43.87 was $1.03 below the preceding month. Central Casting disclosed extra players wound up 1940 with $594,905 less than at the end of 1939.

"Jane Eyre" Is Next Selznick UA Release

The first of three pictures David O. Selznick will produce for United Artists release will be "Jane Eyre," from the novel by Charlotte Bronte. The producer is asking fans to write their choice of Vivien Leigh, Joan Fontaine or Katharine Hepburn in the title role. The first two are Selznick pactees.

Miscellany

"The Red Pony," by John Steinbeck, will be the first independent feature to be made by the unit headed by William Hawks and Lewis Milestone for 20th-Fox release. The duo will do "My Life With Caroline," starring Ronald Colman, for RKO Radio release . . . Newly designed and perfected film laboratory equipment was described and demonstrated at a meeting of the western section of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers . . . Carolyn Lee's first under her new long-term Paramount pact will be the starring role in "You Go Your Way," by Katharine Brush. Edward H. Griffith will produce and direct . . . Warner has lifted its suspension on Wayne Morris and pegged him for the topline role in "Parachute Jumpers." The star was suspended when he turned down a proffered role in "Knockout" . . . The trade's official spokesmen are looking the other way when RKO-Hearst battle comment is sought.

Universal in Lead Bandwagon On Marketing New Output

NEW YORK—Universal will lead the bandwagon in next season's selling and begin marketing its 1941-42 features and shorts shortly after a three-day mid-season meeting at the Blackstone, Chicago, February 8-10 of all branch, district and division managers.

Matthew Fox, vice-president, has been in town all week from the coast going over plans with Nate J. Blumberg, president, who returned a week ago after an extensive stay on the coast, and William A. Scully, general sales manager.

The number of features and shorts for the new season has not been completed. The various groups of pictures proposed are now being studied as well as the possibility of a new series of shorts.

The Windy City sessions will take up the balance of the current season's output, in addition to new product to be announced before the men depart for their headquarters.

Universal is not a signatory to the decree and may begin selling its new product without screenings as soon as it desires. Because of plans by "The Big Five" to begin trade showings as early as July on next season's schedule, Universal will be taking the leadoff when it begins to swing into action after the Chicago palavers.

Directors met Tuesday at the home office for a regular meeting at which time the contemplated program was reported to have been presented by Blumberg and Fox. J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, also has been on the coast looking over material for next season.

Scully, who will preside at the Chicago meetings, states he does not plan any changes in personnel.

Two New "U" Buildings; One Being Altered

NEW YORK—New exchanges are being built for Universal in Cincinnati and Indianapolis and alterations have been completed at the Cleveland branch. The new Cincinnati building will be ready for occupancy March 1, and the Indianapolis quarters April 1.

Variety Club Convention Set for May 15-16-17

PITTSBURGH—The national convention of the Variety Club will be held May 15-16-17 at the Traymore Hotel in Atlantic City, according to John L. Harris, president. Dates previously were announced as April 17-18-19.

Committees are being appointed and work is starting immediately from the Traymore headquarters.

Equipment Dealers To Name Officers

CHICAGO—The roster of officers will be elected at the second annual convention of Theatre Equipment Dealers Ass'n, slated for the Congress Hotel, February 8-10. Harry Graham of Denver will be acting chairman.

All equipment manufacturers will be represented, although no displays are being permitted. The main purpose of the three-day meeting is to cooperate with President Roosevelt's rearmament program.

Among dealers who have made known their plans to attend are Ken Douglass of Capitol Theatre Supply, Boston; Des Moines Theatre Supply, Des Moines; Roy Colvin of Exhibitors Supply Co., St. Louis; Falls City Theatre Equipment, Louisville, Ky.; John P. Filbert of the company of the same name in Los Angeles; Ger-Bar, Inc., Indianapolis; Joe Goldberg of the same name in Chicago; Harry Graham, Graham Bros., Denver; M. O. O'Neill, Guercio & Barthel, Chicago; Joe Hornstein, Joe Hornstein Theatre Supply, New York City; Louisiana M. P. Equipment, New Orleans; George McArthur, McArthur Theatre Equipment, Detroit.

Also Eldon Peek, Oklahoma Theatre Supply, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Walter G. Preddey, Walter G. Preddey Theatre Supplies, San Francisco; Miss V. Harwell, Queen Feature Service, Birmingham, Ala.; O. J. Hazen, Service Theatre Supply, Salt Lake City; Ben Shearer, representing his own offices in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland; Ray Smith, Ray Smith Co., Milwaukee; Southwestern Theatre Equipment Co., Houston; Stebbins Theatre Equipment, Kansas City, Mo.; Superior M. P. Co., Pittsburgh; George Breneman, United Projector & Film Corp., Buffalo; F. A. Van Husan, Western Theatre Supply Co., Omaha; C. B. Paden, Western Theatrical Equipment, San Francisco.

REVIEW FLASHES

BUCK PRIVATES (Univ)—Timeliness is this feature's greatest asset. As the first of an impending large number of pictures dealing with the draft and other phases of national defense, it will doubtlessly strike a popular chord and register revenue scores of husky proportions. During the film's comic and musical moments, it is very good entertainment, thanks to Abbott and Costello and the Andrews Sisters. When the story veers toward the dramatic and super patriotic, however, it loses ground. Alex Gottlieb produced; Arthur Lubin directed.

YOU'RE THE ONE (Para't)—Fans who have dumped carloads of nickels into the juke boxes to hear wee Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker's orchestra should be more than satisfied with their first film appearance. It's a nonsensical musical giving Bonnie plenty of opportunity to display her talents. Gene Markey produced; Ralph Murphy directed.

popular tunes are not sung or played. The advertisers will force the networks to make peace with Ascap or withdraw or decline to renew their contracts.

For number two it goes like this: The networks are "not excited" because they know the peak of perfection in radio broadcasting has been reached. With NBC, through RCA, and CBS, through Columbia Phonograph, directly interested in the production and sale of television receivers, the new medium will get going with such a blast that the public may be promised a variety of programs—although coverage will be limited—and combination television and radio receivers at "moderate" prices. This could not fail to excite the public, at least long enough to temporarily distract their attention from Ascap-less radio programs, and thus give the networks even more time to offer resistance to Ascap. The promise of television, however limited, would, of course, be sincere.

Theatres May Plug Songs

The number three answer is said to have come under consideration of a few music publishers and points to this: The one-time popular "bouncing-ball" slide which invited audiences to participate in community singing would be revived. A group of the bigger music publishers would offer the slides either gratis or for a small fee. They would be the most popular Ascap tunes of the day and would be nothing more or less than an out-an-out plug for the songs that have been depopularized through lack of radio presentation. The idea would be launched with a national advertising campaign built around a slogan like: "Hear Your Favorite Songs at Your Neighborhood Theatre."

Long a dream and now closer than ever to realization is that of another national network made up of affiliated and independent stations. This is the gist of number four. It stems from the long opposed exclusive contract arrangement NBC and CBS has had with many stations which pipe in to the major programs whenever they are so called upon. If such a new chain were formed it would tie up with Ascap, a situation held to be desirable but denied the smaller stations in the past. The reason such a network is not at the moment under formation is that it is feared CBS and NBC might "any day" capitulate and come to terms with Ascap and leave the new network "out on a limb."

Calls National Theatre Supply Meet for Feb. 9

NEW YORK—Walter E. Green, president, has called the annual meeting of National Theatre Supply branch managers, officers and general sales promotion personnel for February 9-14 at the Belmont Plaza here. Manufacturers of various products distributed by National will be represented at the five-day session during which Green will act as chairman and Oscar S. Oldknow, vice-president, will be vice-chairman.

"U"-Pathe Lab Two-Year Contract Is Ratified

NEW YORK—Universal's board on Tuesday ratified a two-year deal with Pathe Laboratories whereby approximately 120,000,000 feet of film will be developed annually by that laboratory, starting February 1, 1941. The distributor's newsreel will be printed by H. E. R. Laboratories in the east under a sub-contract with Pathe.

Printing of the newsreel held up the deal for a while since Pathe could not handle it in New York, its laboratory being in Bound Brook, N. J. Sub-letting of the contract ironed this out.

Up to now Consolidated Film Laboratories has been handling all of Universal's developing in the east and west. There are no options attached to the deal.

Negotiations were handled on the coast by Nate J. Blumberg, president; Matthew Fox, vice-president, and Adolph Schimel, home office counsel for Universal, with Robert Benjamin and others for Pathe. Benjamin is eastern counsel for the company and a partner of Phillips & Nizer.

NEW YORK—C. Merwin Travis, who has been vice-president of Pathe Laboratories in California, has been elected a director of Pathe Laboratories, N. J.

N. Y. Area Theatres Cut by 11 in 1940

NEW YORK—With a new total of 1,208 theatres seating 1,346,594 in the Greater New York area for 1940, the number marks a drop in 11 houses and a total of 2,711 seats, according to the New York Film Board annual survey. New York City saw the elimination of 10 houses while northern New Jersey showed one less than last year. The comparative years show 2,101 less seats in New York for 1940 and 610 for New Jersey area.

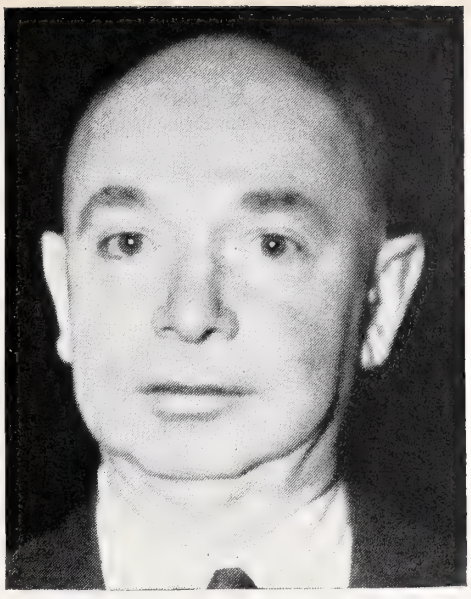
The number of theatres open in this exchange area was 1,068 seating 1,234,260 at the close of last year. This compares with 1,072 houses seating 1,240,304 in 1939. The latest report shows 140 closed houses, seating 112,334, as compared with 125 theatres and 103,579 seats for 1939.

There are currently listed 759 circuit theatres with 997,365 seats, as compared to 1939 when the figures were 771 houses and 1,023,016 seats. This is broken down to 131 affiliated houses in New York state seating 265,267, compared with 129 seating 262,958 in 1939; 66 affiliated theatres in New Jersey seating 117,492, compared with 66 seating 118,062 seats in 1939; 434 unaffiliated houses in New York seating 488,588, compared with 450 houses seating 519,112 in 1939; 128 unaffiliated theatres in New Jersey, 126,018 seats, compared with 126 seating 122,884 seats in 1939.

Independent theatres at the close of 1940 totaled 449 with 349,229 seats as compared with 426 and 320,867 seats in 1939. This is broken down to 314 houses seating 239,595 in New York state, compared with 290 and 209,279 seats in 1939; and for New Jersey, 135 theatres seating 109,634 seats, compared with 136 houses and 111,588 seats in 1939.

Total sound houses in 1940 were 1,192 against 1,179 the previous year. Total silent houses showed a drop of two. The total number of closed houses in 1940 was 140, or 15 more than in 1939, of which 124 were sound and 16 silent as compared to 107 sound and 18 silent in 1939.

Gulkas & Rosenzweig May Get Bronx Units



NEW YORK—Negotiations are under way by Gulkas & Rosenzweig to take over operation of the Beach and Yorke in the Bronx. The Cocalis circuit, current operators, is reported selling its interest. The circuit and G & R are partners in the Alpine, Bronx. G & R also have the Melba and Craft in the Bronx, in addition to a number of other theatres in Brooklyn and Long Island.

Sale of the two Bronx houses will mark the windup of operations in New York for the Cocalis circuit, which will continue to operate in New Jersey under J. J. Thompson.

William A. Scully, general sales manager for Universal, is an executor of the Cocalis estate. He passes on all deals.

Hartley Prod. Offices

NEW YORK—Hartley Productions, a 16 mm firm, have opened new offices and studios on W. 47th Street.

Albany, His Bailiwick—

This is Robert Elliot, thus far an unfamiliar face in the industry. He is the clerk of the AAA arbitration tribunal for the Albany area. Monday morning finds him, like his 30 confreres around the nation, open and ready for business.

To Chicago for 20th-Fox Talk on Decree Policy

CHICAGO—Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel for 20th-Fox, is due here February 7 for a two-day session with local sales force and personnel to explain the operations under the decree.

Prior to his arrival, he is due to have visited the Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha and Des Moines, Minneapolis and Milwaukee branches on similar missions.

From here he will embrace midwestern, southern, Atlantic and other branches in the east and north east. He started on the tour January 27 following a week's conference at the studio with Sidney R. Kent, president; Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, counsel for Chase National Bank.

Although 20th-Fox is affiliated with National Theatres, Jenkins will not discuss theatre operations under the decree, attorneys for the circuit having prepared a simplified analysis for the purpose. These lawyers were William T. Powers and Aubrey Schenck.

The 20th-Fox counsel recently completed a 34-page handbook which is being made available to every salesman, booker, branch and district manager, in addition to divisional heads. Each provision of the decree is published with an interpretative appendage by Jenkins.

National Theatres division heads most likely will learn first hand the way the decree affects them at the February 10-12 annual meeting slated for the coast in Los Angeles.

Ricketson in East

NEW YORK—Rick Ricketson of Denver was in town the latter part of the week for National Theatres conferences at the home office.

Recognize Exhibitor Music Row Status

WASHINGTON—The stake of the exhibitor in the music controversy between the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and Broadcast Music, Inc., is recognized in a consent decree which the latter has signed with the department of justice in a specific provision that BMI agrees never to engage in an all-or-none policy in licensing its music.

This means, it was explained by the department in announcing acceptance of the decree, that exhibitors and other commercial users of BMI music "will be able to obtain the right to perform any BMI compositions desired without being compelled to accept and take the entire BMI catalogue."

As a result of the agreement, BMI, the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System will be dropped from the four-party criminal suit which the department last month announced it was about to initiate in Milwaukee.

Awaits Similar Ascap Rein

However, the decree will not become effective until similar restraints have been imposed upon Ascap, by way of either decree or litigation. Negotiations with Ascap for a consent decree were abruptly halted last month. At the same time, the department announced intention to proceed promptly with criminal proceedings against Ascap.

Under the agreement, BMI is not to discriminate in either price or terms among the users of copyrighted music, and all BMI compositions will be offered for performance to all users of the same class on equal terms and conditions. Music will be licensed on a pay-when-you-play basis, on either a per-piece or per-program schedule.

In a statement announcing the consummation of the agreement, Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, explained that it provides merely for the practices which BMI planned originally to adopt and pointed out that the decree specifically stipulates that it does not constitute an admission or finding of any violation of law on the part of the organization.

Extend Collections for Paralysis Campaign

NEW YORK—Collections in theatres for the National Infantile Paralysis Drive, which was scheduled to end Thursday, were being extended to Sunday night.

At all theatres where cash is being given away on games, winners were asked to donate part of the awards. In addition, persons admitted on passes were asked to contribute at least one dime.

Nicholas M. Schenck, chairman, expects the current campaign to be the most successful ever held. Every employe in every company has been asked to lend full support.

David Whalen Resigns

NEW YORK—David B. Whalen has resigned from the advertising department at Republic.

Loew Also Switches Aces to the Front

NEW YORK—On February 6 Loew's will emulate the RKO circuit by switching the order of presentation of double features so that the "top" picture hits the screen at 9 p. m., instead of at 10:30.

That Loew's has long been considering such a move was exclusively indicated by BOXOFFICE on October 5, when it reported the circuit "is known to be conducting a careful checkup of the experiment being conducted by RKO at the 86th Street."

On September 26 RKO tried the idea at the 86th Street, after John J. O'Connor, circuit head, considered the feasibility of attracting more night patronage if audiences could see the main feature at 9 p. m., thus vitiating the necessity of waiting until about 10:50 and getting out well after midnight.

Since that time RKO has extended the idea to nine houses in the metropolitan area, but is still engaged in jockeying the starting time between 9 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. Once a clear cut appraisal is reached the circuit will "gradually add more" houses, according to a spokesman. However, he points out RKO's units invariably run their shows later than Loew's, the difference being about 20 minutes. For this reason the circuit is more inclined to a 9:30 p. m. starting time for the main feature than at 9 p. m.

The Loew changeover will affect 35 houses, and is designed, according to Oscar A. Doob, to "answer the complaints of single-feature fans." They may have a leisurely dinner, reach the theatre about nine, see the main feature and be home at a reasonable hour. An extensive advertising campaign will use the slogan "The 9 o'Clock Plan."

These are the houses where the switch will take place: Inwood, Dyckman, Olympia, 72nd Street, Commodore, Avenue B. and Canal in Manhattan; Gates, Bedford, Melba, Century, Warwick, Brevoort, Bay Ridge, Boro Park, Oriental and Premier in Brooklyn; Burnside, Elsmere, Victory, Boston Road, Post Road, Burland and American in the Bronx; Prospect, Hillside, Willard and Woodside in Queens, and Embassy, North Bergen, N. J.; Proctor's, New Rochelle; Coliseum, Pelham; Castle Hill, Keith's, Flushing.

RKO Tests Switching of Duals at 81st Street

NEW YORK—The RKO circuit has added the 81st Street in Manhattan to the list of units experimenting with switching the order of presentation of double features so that the last complete show has the main attraction going on at 9 p. m.

Warner Club Readies 12th Annual Ball for March 8

NEW YORK—Warner's 12th annual banquet and ball, sponsored by the organization's club, will be held March 8 at the Waldorf. Talent for the affair is now being lined up.

Author, Actor, Critic—

Maybe that explains the slightly quizzical look on Robert Benchley's face. Anyway, the news is he's back from the coast and next will be seen, and no doubt heard, in "The Reluctant Dragon," Disney feature cartoon for RKO release.

New York, Virginia Have Six in Construction

NEW YORK—Detail on theatre projects advanced in New York and Virginia during the last quarter of 1940 follow:

New York

Albany—Construction will start this spring on a 700-seat Warner house on Delaware Avenue.

Cohoes—Work is under way on the 1,000-seat Fabian theatre, scheduled to open this spring.

Great Neck—Construction has started on a 1,200-seat house by Bowler Realty Corp.

New York—The new Art in Greenwich Village, seating 600, opened a few weeks ago.

Loew's has opened the 2,000-seat American in the Parkchester development.

Virginia

Newport News—Abe Lichtman plans a new theatre.

Norfolk—The Levine circuit is completing the new Rosna.

Suffolk—The third Pitts-Roth house here is expected to be completed early this spring.

Start in Three Months On Bolognino House

NEW YORK—Construction will start in three months on the new 600-seat house, tentatively called the Mercury, at Eighth Avenue and 19th Street. Laurence Bolognino, operating head of the independent circuit, stated that, while no plans are set for additional units, he will consider any which have possibilities.

Rebuilt and Renamed

ALBANY—The Diana, Harrisville, badly damaged by fire last year, has been rebuilt and re-equipped. It is now called the Royal. Teddy Berkley is the operator.

Sees Readjustment As Earnings Boost

NEW YORK—Readjustment by the industry to conditions abroad as well as those developing as a result of the decree indicate "the moving picture business is moving ahead to much better earnings this year," states the Wall Street Journal, authoritative financial newspaper.

"The industry as a whole is probably in the strongest cash position in its history," the publication adds, "well prepared to weather any further business vicissitudes." It also states considerable progress has been made in cutting expenses and a smaller number of high priced films will be made this year.

"The provisions of the recent consent decree reached with the department of justice, modifying the industry's selling policies are not expected to have a serious adverse effect on business or costs."

Special notice is taken of Paramount's new position. The paper states the company is expected to show around $2.60 a share or more ($2.85 also has been reported) on the common for 1940. "Earnings so far in January are running much ahead of a year ago with the prospects good that the company will show the best first quarter earnings it has had in many years." Cash position is cited at around $12,000,000 for the parent company with an additional $10,000,000 in the treasuries of non-consolidated subsidiaries.

National Theatres has already declared a $700,000 dividend to 20th-Fox, which holds 48 per cent of the circuit's stock. Results of the last quarter "will be a good deal better" because of this dividend, the publication states. The first quarter of the new year should show continued improvement with indications the company will be well in the black for the first half of the year.

Sussman Adds Academy In Wappinger Falls

NEW YORK—Herman Sussman has added the Academy, Wappinger Falls, to his string of country towns upstate. He took the house from R. Marasco. M. Kaufman has finally given up the Sunshine, Manhattan, after months of trying to make it pay and without success. Joachim Tischler and Fred Stein have acquired the Costello from Edmund London. Seisser and Krasner are partners in Entertaining Playhouse, Inc., which recently relighted the Bobby, Brooklyn.

Smith & Sloane Boost Jersey String to 12

NEW YORK—Bringing their New Jersey total to 12, Smith & Sloane of St. Cloud Amusement Co., have acquired William Stein's four, the Palace, Flemington; Strand, Lambertsville; Gem, Frenchtown, and Strand, Hackettstown.

Charles Blum, formerly booker and supervising manager for the Stein group, has joined the Temple, Union City, in a like capacity.

BROADWAY

IT'S REASSURING to know that the industry need not fear a dearth of showmanship talent. There's gobs of it close by, and a healthy slice was dished up for the benefit of a few tables of RKO executives and trade press representatives when the Dexter Fellows Tent of the Circus Saints and Sinners Club of America inducted Christopher Morley as a member at a luncheon at the Astor. RKO and the trade press were in on the bombastic proceedings by way of the fact Morley is the author of "Kitty Foyle," which fact gave the club's ringmasters a corking opportunity to roast him . . . all in fun. But fun as the Saints and Sinners know it is something you just can't get unless you belong to the same golf club with License Commissioner Paul Moss. Anyway, the unique luncheon, attended by numerous critics, columnists and radio commentators proved a formidable buildup, publicity-wise, for the film, because those CSS luncheons make news . . . Gillespie Evans, Paramount radio contact working with Alec Moss, is mourning the loss of his father in Los Angeles . . . Carl Fishman, Jerry Sager and Morty Tauber of Loew's home office publicity are down with bad colds . . . Ben Serkowich, Capitol press agent, has gone to Florida to recuperate after a serious attack of influenza . . . Arthur Herschman of Loew's is at home after two months at the French Hospital.

Morris Kutinsky and his wife, Hinda, leave Monday for an indefinite stay at Miami Beach . . . Jack Kirsch has been hearing so much about "Land of Liberty" that he paid his own way into the Criterion Thursday afternoon to see what it was all about . . . Eddie Golden, independent producer for Monogram, is still around town, mapping plans for his two features . . . Charles Stern, UA district manager, was in New England during the week . . . Louis Hyman, general manager for Sol Lesser and Ernst Lubitsch, arrives from the coast Monday with a print of "That Uncertain Feeling" . . . Louis Weinzimmer and Harry Egert are back from three weeks in Miami. Shortly after Egert reached town he took a trip to Buffalo on behalf of National Screen's accessory division . . . George Dembow still basking under the Miami sun, what there is of it . . . Pete Wood and Martin Smith of Ohio were in town Thursday lunching with Bill Rodgers of M-G-M . . . Wilma Freeman of the Warner publicity department is recuperating from effects of a broken foot.

Harry Moskowitz celebrated another birthday the same day with President Roosevelt . . . Detective Johnny Leffler, well known in exhibition circles, has been down with the flu the past week . . . G. A. Durlam, writer and director of eight two-reel subjects on American history, will sell them through Producers Releasing . . . Charles Penser has joined Bernie Mills' Equity Film Exchange in the local area . . . Joseph M. Schenck is in from the coast, having made half the trip by plane and the balance by train . . . Al Wilkie has gone to Miami for his vacation, which means fishing and looking over the high spots . . . Richard A. Rowland attended the Washington premiere of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" . . . J. J. Milstein has been battling the flu all week.

John J. O'Connor has expanded the buying and booking offices for the RKO circuit on the 11th floor of the RKO Building. Fred Meyers and Max Fellerman now are in one office with the other bookers combined in one adjoining office . . . E. C. Grainger returned recently from a trip to Feiber & Shea houses in Ohio, Pennsylvania and upstate New York . . . Eugene Picker has been forced to delay his coast vacation and plans. He now intends to leave late in February by train and return by boat, which is a reversal of the original schedule . . . Max A. Cohen departed Wednesday for Miami and a two to three-week vacation . . . Joseph Bernhard says he spent most of his coast trip in his hotel confined to bed with the flu . . . Harry Gold has been trying to fight off a bad cold and was holding up pretty well . . . Uncle Lou Weinberg, circuit contact for Columbia, is going to Miami February 7 with the missus.

A Sweet "U" Profit; Net of $2,390,772

NEW YORK—Further evidencing its upward profit climb, Universal and subsidiaries report consolidated net profit of $2,390,772 for 53 weeks ended November 2, or an increase of 107 per cent over consolidated net income of $1,153,321 for previous fiscal year. J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, so advises the company's stockholders.

Completing its first full year under wartime conditions affecting many foreign markets, the company did a gross in the period covered of $27,677,627 which Cowdin points out is 16 per cent greater than the $23,878,868 reported for the preceding fiscal year and a four year gain of $10,269,373.

Consolidated current working assets, other cash and accounts receivable, including restricted British sterling, totaled to $12,953,683 on November 2 while current liabilities were $4,241,774, or a ratio of 3.05 to one. Net working capital of $6,823,563 compares with $5,512,194 the year before. Since the beginning of last year, the company retired 7,261 shares of first preferred at an average price of $118.03 per share, including 4,591 shares purchased in response to a request last month for tenders. This leaves 10,739 of this class of preferred outstanding.

Taxes totaled $1,210,648, or $267,490 greater than in the 1939 period, and were equivalent to about 50 cents on each dollar of net profit, according to Cowdin who adds the tax figure for last year was 97 per cent larger than taxes in the 1938 fiscal year. Although the new excess profits tax did not apply last year, it will this year and thereby add a substantial amount to tax payments, he further observes. "Your company desires to pay its full share of taxes, but believes better profits brought about by skilled management should not be penalized by taxation aimed at war profits," he told stockholders.

British revenue in the period covered was 1,306,187 British pounds as against 859,084 British pounds in the 1939 fiscal year and 621,476 British pounds in the 1938 fiscal year and 600,032 in the 1937 period. Thus, a substantial gain is reflected in that direction.

The domestic market, which always includes Canada, brought a gross of $18,073,055, or an increase of $2,602,535 over the preceding period. Cowdin re-emphasizes an earlier statement in declaring all effort is being directed toward making Universal self-sufficient in the home market and hopes "that this may be accomplished this year."

Home Office Executives To Universal Convention

NEW YORK—Home office executives to attend Universal's convention at the Blackstone February 8-10 will include J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board; Nate J. Blumberg, president; William A. Scully, vice-president and general sales manager; Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager; William J. Heineman, western sales manager; Bernard B. Kreisler, short subject sales manager; James J. Jordan, F. T. Murray, Andrew J. Sharick, Morris Alin and Hank Linet. From the studio will be Cliff Work, vice-president and general manager; Matthew Fox, vice-president; Joe Pasternak, Milton H. Feld, Dan Kelley and John E. Joseph, director of advertising and publicity.

These district managers will be there: Jules Lapidus, New York; Dave Miller, Cleveland; Harry D. Graham, Atlanta; J. E. Garrison, Kansas City; A. J. O'Keefe, Los Angeles, and E. T. Gomersall, Chicago.

Branch managers will embrace Dave Levy, New York; Paul Baron, Boston; John V. Pavone, New Haven; George E. Schwartz, Philadelphia; Max Cohen, Washington; J. R. Kauffman, Cleveland; Peter Rosian, Albany; John J. Scully, Buffalo; J. J. Spandau, Albany; Pete Dana, Pittsburgh; John Ezell, Atlanta; J. A. Prichard, Charlotte; H. I. Mansfield, Memphis; W. M. "Snake" Richardson, New Orleans; Ed S. Olsmith, Dallas; James Hobbs, Oklahoma City.

Also C. J. Feldman, Los Angeles; Jack Langan, Denver; R. O. Wilson, Portland; C. R. Wade, Salt Lake City; Barney Rose, San Francisco; L. J. Leon Fromkess Gets Top Post in PRC's Setup

NEW YORK—Leon Fromkess, formerly treasurer of Monogram, has been elected vice-president in charge of home office and foreign operations for Producers Releasing Corp. He also has a financial interest in PRC.

Call It a Success Story

New York—Universal's progress is graphically illustrated in the following chart, culled from the financial report for the 53 weeks ended November 2, 1940:

Year Ended	Gross Income	Net Income	Net Profit
Oct. 31, 1936	$17,408,254	$1,631,295 (Loss)	$1,835,419 (Loss)
Oct. 30, 1937	18,150,876	1,030,489 (Loss)	1,084,999 (Loss)
Oct. 29, 1938	20,190,117	391,461 (Loss)	591,178 (Loss)
Oct. 28, 1939	23,878,868	1,628,733	1,153,321
Nov. 2, 1940	27,677,627	2,954,467	2,390,772

Miami Is Set for 'Back Street' Bow

MIAMI—Film critics and columnists representing daily newspapers and syndicates in 34 cities, plus a contingent of Universal home office executives and trade-paper men arrived here Saturday for the world premiere on Tuesday of "Back Street" at the Lincoln and Cameo theatres over on the Beach. Most of them will remain five days, comfortably ensconced at the Miami Biltmore with beach cabanas available at the Roney Plaza and an assorted program of events to keep them occupied. In fact, the whole caravan stands up well alongside of any assembled by any other producing company at any other time, near and far.

And, of course, the place is Miami; the time, February.

The Universal group includes Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel; S. Machnovitch, treasurer; Peyton Gibson, secretary; J. H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales; John Joseph, director of advertising and publicity, and Lou Pollock, eastern advertising and publicity manager who represented the vanguard in order to check on the planned arrangements.

To attend, also, will be Bruce Manning, producer of the film, and Robert Stevenson, its director; Anna Lee, who is Mrs. Stevenson; and Felix Jackson, who wrote the script with Manning. Deanna Durbin, accompanied by her mother and Mitchell Hamilburg, her business manager, arrives Monday after attending the President's Birthday Ball in Washington.

New York sent the biggest newspaper group. It embraces William Boehnel, World-Telegram; Cecilia Ager, PM; Kenneth McCaleb, Sunday Mirror; Rose Pelswick, Journal-American; Eileen Creelman, Sun, and Selig Adler, Daily Mirror. The trade paper representation, a goodly one, includes Don Mersereau, Film Daily; Chick Lewis, Showman's Trade Review; Sam Shain, Motion Picture Daily; Jay Emanuel, The Exhibitor who plans to stay for several weeks; Pete Harrison, Harrison's Reports; Mo Wax, Film Bulletin; Arthur Ungar, Daily Variety; Lionel Toll, The Independent; Herb Stein, Hollywood Reporter, and Red Kann, BOXOFFICE.

The premiere here is designed to catch the annual winter concentration of important exhibitors. They are here from all over the nation, as usual.

David Rose Seeks Story To Star Luise Rainer

NEW YORK—David E. Rose, managing director for Paramount in England, is looking for a story to star Luise Rainer, he stated prior to his sailing on the Excambion over the weekend. He has had several talks with the former M-G-M star and is interested in signing her up provided suitable material can be obtained.

Two pictures will go into work shortly after his arrival in London, the first depending on stars available. Robert Morley is anxious to appear in "Hatter's Castle" and negotiations are under way to have him play a featured role, says Rose.

Skouras, Goldwyn Map A Benefit Air Show

NEW YORK—A mammoth air show to build a fund for Greek war relief, undertaken by Spyros P. Skouras and Samuel Goldwyn, promises to be one of the most novel ever presented along these lines.

Under supervision of Mort Blumenstock, eastern advertising and publicity director for Warner, a 90-minute broadcast will go out from Hollywood over NBC and Mutual the evening of February 8. Tieups have been made with about 60 department stores all over the country. Local announcers will tell listeners they can contribute to the fund by calling these department stores in their cities with their fund pledges. If the listener wishes to contribute immediately, he can call the department store and a messenger will be dispatched to pick up the money.

A flock of top flight Hollywood stars will participate in the air show, including Bette Davis, Spencer Tracy, Paul Muni, Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, Madeleine Carroll, Groucho Marx, "Rochester," Burns and Allen, Fanny Brice, Alice Faye, Carole Lombard, Myrna Loy, Mary Martin, and the entire "Hardy Family." Jack Benny and Bob Hope will be co-masters of ceremonies.

Assisting Blumenstock are Harry Maislish of KFWB, Ed Schreiber from the Warner home office publicity staff and Al Simon, promotion manager of station WHN here.

Broadcast Series Feb. 23 by "Free Company" of Talent

A "Free Company" of writers, playwrights and actors will launch a nationwide campaign to "remind the American people of what they have and believe in" with a 13-week series of half-hour broadcasts over 100 stations of CBS starting February 23. Burgess Meredith is chairman of the Hollywood group that will furnish the majority of talent for dramatizing the series; Robert E. Sherwood is chairman of the writers' group, and William Lewis, CBS vice-president, chairman for the radio group. CBS is making the time for the broadcasts available gratis.

Among writers and playwrights who will contribute scripts are Maxwell Anderson, James Boyd, Orson Welles, Paul Green, Archibald MacLeish, Ernest Hemingway, George M. Cohan, Sherwood, Marc Connelly, and Stephen Vincent Benet. None will receive remuneration.

The first dramatizations in the series will be devoted to the eight basic liberties in the Bill of Rights, with the remainder presenting the "general theme of liberty as it flows from these basic rights."

Jack Simons to Helm Of State in Boston

HARTFORD—Jack Simons, manager of the Poli, has transferred to a similar post at the circuit's State in Boston, replacing Fred Greenway, who has taken over at the Palace here. Greenway replaces Lou Cohen, who has been switched to the Poli.

Dissatisfied Over Films And Lend-Lease Bill

NEW YORK—Major foreign executives are represented by informed sources as "dissatisfied" with the government's lend-lease bill in that it allows for payment to American manufacturers of 100 cents on the dollar for goods ordered by England but ignores the fact that distributors' products are subject to an exchange restriction embodied in the film agreement that runs to October 25.

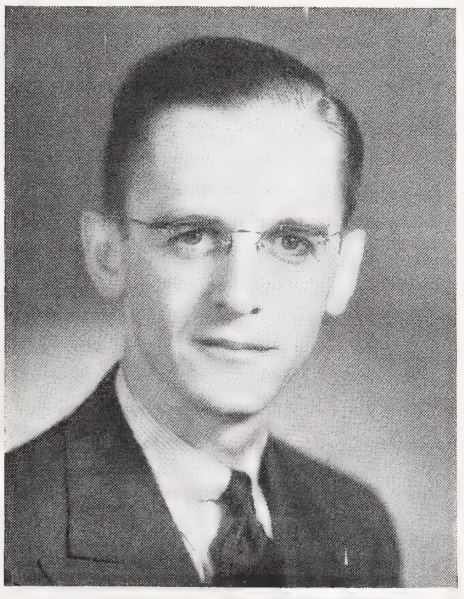
It is not considered as even remote that the foreign heads will ask Washington to consider the film situation in recognition of the fact that H. R. 1776 covers nothing but materials to be sent to England for pursual of its war aims. However, foreign sales managers still feel they have been ignored over something England very much wants although films are not as "essential" as planes, guns and munitions. In this connection, one spokesman declares films are the only major "commodity" being imported by Great Britain, so important are they to the country's morale.

This is the way a reliable informant avers the foreign managers feel about the situation:

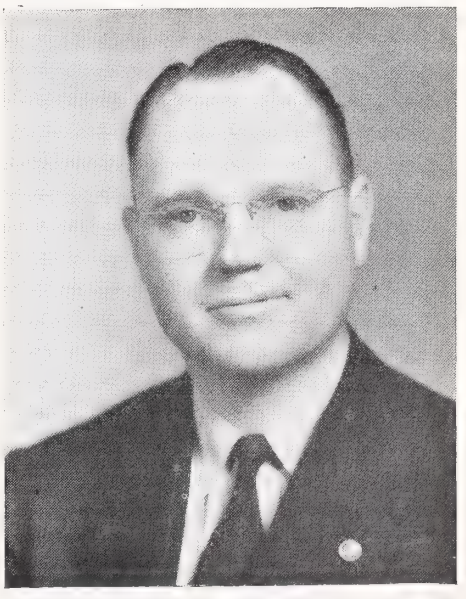
"The lease-lend bill provides that the government pay American manufacturers for war goods ordered by England for which it has no funds. If England wants 1,000 planes and says it cannot pay for them, the government will foot the bill. In effect, it is the same as if the government agreed to loan England the money, sent the money over there and England sent the money back to pay for the 1,000 planes.

"No matter how you cut it up, it still means England is paying 100 cents on the dollar for those 1,000 planes. Yet we are being asked to send over film, but instead of being paid for it in full we are asked to take only part payment. In fact, the film agreement allows a maximum of $12,900,000 to be withdrawn for all companies, even though all companies might have double that amount due them in rentals."

Russian Claims Third Dimension Effect Device



NEW YORK—Soviet science claims a new stereoscopic projector which its inventor says adds a third dimension, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow.



Smyon Ivanoff, the inventor, showed seven experimental shorts. One of them, in color, was a fancy dress ball which he said "combined all the most modern developments of the cinema-motion, sound, color and depth." He declared the essential of his development was a six-ton perspective grill, or transparent screen of 30,000 closely spaced wires having a total length of almost 100 miles. This grill is placed in front of the usual theatre screen.

The A. P. reports double films, photographed from slightly different angles, were shown and, with the aid of two mirrors, reflected back through the grill to the audience, providing a separate image for each eye.

Succumbs to Stroke

DETROIT—Suffering a stroke while on a business trip, Henry S. Koppin, 64, died while in Toledo, Ohio. He built and operated a string of 26 theatres in this area.

RCA Photophone Promotes These Two—

M. J. ("Mike") Yahr (left) has been moved up the line and is now Photophone product engineer at the company's Indianapolis plant. He was former commercial engineer at Camden, N. J. Carl Johnson, after 11 years with RCA, takes over Yahr's old position.

Broadway First Runs Kept Strong by Good Product

NEW YORK—Competition strong, weather far from fair, but business just dandy is the Broadway picture in a nutshell. It sounds like a paradox, but that's where Nicholas M. Schenck's line about "there's nothing wrong with this business that a good picture," etc., comes in.

Anyway, and paradoxically, it's a pair from Schenck's firm that is leading the parade in more than one respect. Take "The Philadelphia Story" for example. Not only did it hit a handsome $83,000 for its fifth week at the Music Hall, but the first four days of that week were better than the first four days of the fourth week. Currently in its sixth week, the film may go a seventh.

Over at the Capitol, where "Gone With the Wind" is in its second week of its anniversary repeat performance the first four days exceeded the original engagement by 15,204 admissions, this despite the fact that the current scale is approximately one-half less than last year. The first week wound up at a very profitable $53,000.

The Roxy has extended "Tall, Dark and Handsome" for a second and final week for the very good reason the first—which was to be final—clicked off a grand $50,000. Also well up in the money column is "High Sierra," which the Strand is holding after a swell $38,000 for opening week. Excellent staying power is being shown by "Kitty Foyle" at the Rivoli, which is no less true of the two roadshows, "Fantasia" and "The Great Dictator."

"Maisie" Plus Stage Show Washington Pace Setter

WASHINGTON—Business pulse returns to normal as F. D. R. digs in. "Maisie Was a Lady" at the Capitol with Will Bradley's orchestra on the stage getting the nod. "Mounties" ride through for a second week at the Earle, with "Neighbor" at the Metropolitan still in favor on the moveover. "Kitty Foyle" doing outstanding fourth week at RKO Keith's, and "Gone" at the Palace is far from it with capacity biz.

"Wind" Comes Back for Philadelphia Top Rung

PHILADELPHIA—Lines almost a block long at the Stanley greeted the return of "Gone With the Wind," in a week that saw business booming all over downtown. "Kitty Foyle," winding up the second week of its second run at the Keith's, was held over for a third week, the first time in three years that the Keith's had a three weeks' run. Last time was with "Snow White." "Philadelphia Story" was still pulling them in at the Boyd for a second week.

Warner Paying 96¼ Cents Dividend on Preferred

NEW YORK—Meeting Wednesday, the Warner board, in special session, voted to resume dividends on the preferred stock and declared a current payment of 96¼ cents per share. This is payable March 1 to stockholders of record as of February 14.

Broadcast Observes AAA Trade Entry

NEW YORK—The AAA dedicated its designation as official arbitrators to the industry in a 15-minute broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System network Saturday evening featuring C. V. Whitney, president; Paul Felix Warburg, chairman of the administrative committee, and Professor Wesley Sturges, member of the committee. It was the same day that the AAA's 31 film tribunals opened for the arbitration of exhibitor grievances.

A Pattern for Others

It was this event that served as a springboard for the broadcast, which was general in character but which was overtoned with the AAA's entrance in the film field as an example of what the association might, or could do, for other industries. It was Warburg who spoke on and reviewed events leading up to the selection of the AAA as arbitrators as an outcome of the government suit. He held out the "hope" the AAA's work in the film field may form a pattern by which other industries, possibly involved in anti-trust litigation, might benefit.

Whitney dwelt on arbitration as a channel through which industries engaged in national defense have been able to clear up their difficulties and thus prevent bottlenecks in vital production. Sturges outlined other phases of arbitration that the AAA comes in contact with, notably its tort tribunals.

The AAA was given the time on the network gratis, the broadcast coming under the broadcasting company's designation of "special feature."

Promotions and Shifts Announced by Loew's

NEW YORK—The following promotions and transfers around Loew's metropolitan circuit have been affected:

Sigmund Schwartz, assistant at the State, becomes manager of the Premier, Brooklyn. Nat Slater, assistant at the 83rd Street, replaces him. Schwartz, it seems, is the 26th man who has graduated from the State, which is something of a personal tribute to Al Rosen, the mentor of that house and one whom the "boys" cherish working with. Unless there is a sudden switch of plans, the graduating class of 26 will honor Rosen on the occasion of his eighth anniversary as manager with a dinner on February 3.

Joe Beck, manager of the Avenue B, moves to the Canal, replacing Walter Mock, who becomes assistant at the 46th Street.

Stanley Marks, Bedford manager, is transferred to the Avenue B.

William Woolfolk, relief manager, is assigned to the Bedford.

Joseph Citron, assistant at the Oriental, moves to the 83rd Street, replacing Slater.

Harold Zeltner, assistant at the 46th Street, transfers to the Oriental.

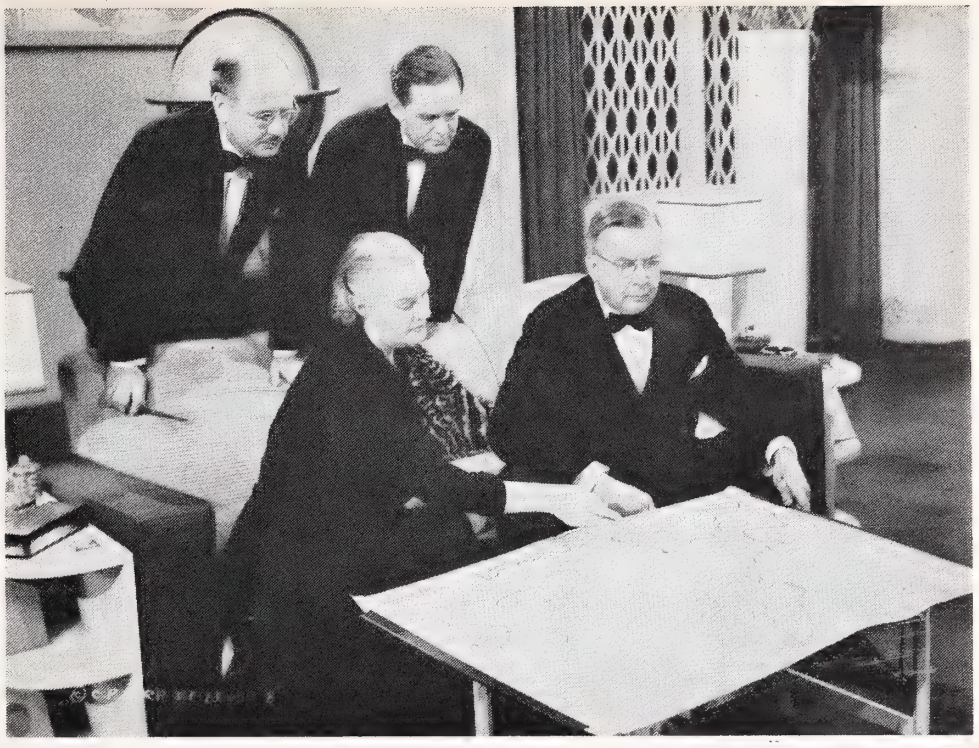
Predicts Regulation If the Decree Fails

NEW YORK—"It is urged that rigid statutory regulation will follow if the decree fails to work satisfactorily," observes an MPTOA bulletin, the while predicting "it will merely demonstrate once again the utter futility of trying to solve our commercial and economic difficulties by dragging them through the courts."

The bulletin, over the signature of Ed L. Kuykendall, president, expresses "doubt if it is constructive cooperation to see how many complaints and grievances can be stirred up for arbitration," but proposes "to watch closely developments under the decree and take advantage of any practical benefits (if any) that can be secured for exhibitors through its provisions."

The greater portion of the bulletin is devoted to a recent statement by the department of justice that it would set up a special unit under Robert L. Wright to handle matters arising in connection with operation of the decree. A preface by Kuykendall to reproduction of the justice department's statement goes like this:

Burden on Distributors



"No exhibitor cooperation or participation is required by the consent decree. The restrictions on licensing motion pictures are imposed entirely upon the distributors who submitted to it and will be carried out by them whether we like it or not. You are offered a restricted privilege of submitting certain types of complaints to the arbitration system established by the decree and placed under the terms of the decree entirely in the hands of the American Arbitration Association, but you are not required to submit any such complaints.

"In some quarters it is being urged that as many complaints as possible be filed for arbitration to 'cooperate in giving the consent decree a fair trial.' This is a strange sort of cooperation for exhibitors to offer. If the complaint is genuine and cannot be settled by negotiation, the exhibitor then must decide for himself whether it should be submitted to arbitration under the decree, with full knowledge of the costs and uncertainties involved."

Urges Vigilance on Taxes

Taking the position that film entertainment "today is not a luxury and most certainly should not be taxed as such," Kuykendall urges concerted action among organized exhibitors to combat the threat of a "number of states" to impose taxes in addition to the federal levy for "added tax revenue—not for national defense."

He observes that if legislators "really understood the theatre situation and the tax burden now carried they would not try to impose special taxes on admissions at three to four times the highest rate considered for a retail sales tax on any other business. Once the legislature realizes the disastrous consequences of such unfair taxation on the local theatres, on the working people who patronize the motion picture theatres, on the building of new theatres and the modernizing of the older theatres in their own state, they will realize the unfairness of excessive and discriminatory taxes on theatres."

Commentators Sign for Short—

Columbia gathers a whole flock of well-known commentators to co-star in "What's the Shooting For," first of an "International Forum" series of one-reelers which William Rowland will produce. Round-table discussions of events of the times are to be held. First are those above: William L. Shirer, long CBS commentator in Berlin; Linton Wells, war correspondent; Dorothy Thompson and Wythe Williams, who regularly broadcasts over Mutual. Columbia estimates they have a combined listening audience ranging between 60,000,000 and 80,000,000 weekly.

Para't to Deliver All on Schedule

NEW YORK—Paramount will deliver all of the current season's product as scheduled and will have three groups of five ready when the new selling season starts, Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager, stated on his return from Chicago where he attended a three-day meeting of district and division managers.

The first block will be ready for trade showing early in the summer. In making the announcement, Agnew stressed the fact there will be no withdrawals from the company's spring and summer schedule to be delivered under the 1940-41 contracts.

"I Wanted Wings" will be released in the spring on a plan which calls for special handling.

Three Electrical Suits

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Three suits asking for declaratory decrees adjudging radio, conduit, and cable patents invalid, were filed in the U. S. District Court here by the Crosley Radio Corp., the Emerson Radio and Phonograph Corp., and the Triangle Conduit & Cable Co. of New York.

Crotona, 30 Years

NEW YORK — A seven-day celebration, which got under way Thursday, marks the 30th anniversary for Skouras' Crotona, Bronx. Special vaudeville attractions have been booked for the entire week.

Delays "Little Three" Dismissal Motion

NEW YORK—Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard has postponed to February 17 the plea of Columbia, UA, and Universal to dismiss that part of the amended complaint by the department of justice against them that contains references to the five producer-exhibitors. The "Little Three" want every allegation referring to theatre ownership and all charges relative to that ownership dropped from the complaint.

Argument was supposed to be held January 30, but went over due to inability of attorneys to be in court as they are tied up on relative matters.

Columbia will also ask an outright dismissal of the action claiming it violates the 14th amendment to the Constitution in that it seeks to force a consent decree on the "Little Three" because of the necessity of holding the original decree made with the "Big Five."

"Pepe Le Moko" Replaces "Baker's Wife" at World

NEW YORK—The World, intimate house on 49th Street operated by Gilbert Josephson, will bring in on March 3 the French "Pepe le Moko," original version from which "Algiers" was produced. It will replace "The Baker's Wife," which will have completed a 53-week run. The latter opens the next day over the entire Loew's metropolitan circuit.

Chicago Allied Own Arbitration Counsel

NEW YORK—While other exhibitor organizations are prepared to have an attorney represent their members at arbitration hearings, Allied's unit in Chicago will not follow this plan, according to Jack Kirsch, president. His explanation is that the hearings are not supposed to involve legal questions, but anyone who wants the benefit of an attorney to present his case will do so on his own.

In town for a few days after the national Allied board met in Washington, Kirsch attended the Louis-Burman fight Friday night and then left for the Windy City. He stated the unit's annual convention will be held in March but there will be no elections. His term as president is for three years and has two more to go.

After a week in Chicago finishing up some business, Kirsch plans to leave for Miami to join his family vacationing there.

Sales Staff Promotions Likely Fox Development

NEW YORK—Several promotions within the 20th-Fox sales forces in the field are contemplated in the new operating setup under the decree, it is learned with the return from the coast of Herman Wobber, general sales manager.

Reports are current that a number of changes will be made in the mideast area, but Wobber and his associates decline to comment until further home office conferences are held and definite changes decided upon.

No switch in the production number for next season is contemplated with the regular 44 features slated to be made in Hollywood, four in England and 52 shorts.

Filmarte Will Cater to The "Discriminating"

NEW YORK—"Truly a center for the discriminating audience" is the management credo behind the reopened Filmarte now on the local scene again under the aegis of Joseph Plunkett, Mrs. Reda Kovacs and L. David Weiss. The opening attraction is "Hatred," a French import.

In addition to the policy of "only the finest French films available," the idea is to run lectures, concerts of recorded music and special Saturday morning performances of new "as well as old films" with an eye on student attendance and all at moderate prices.

A Trailer-Ambulance for Britain by MPTO Unit

BALTIMORE—The MPTO of Maryland is donating a trailer-ambulance to Great Britain, Frank A. Hornig, president, announces following approval by the board of governors of a proposal to that effect by Arthur B. Price. It will be named for Maryland's Governor O'Conor.

REVIEW FLASHES

WESTERN UNION (20th-Fox)—Clear all wires—here's a flash of action entertainment which should be a "must" on page one of everybody's motion picture theatre budget. It relates the stringing of the first transcontinental telegraph line, around which hazardous undertaking is spun such a yarn of hardship, adventure and romance as to make the film one of the all-time "superest" of the super-westerns. As a piece of red-blooded, he-man showmanship, it is close to perfection. Harry Joe Brown produced; Fritz Lang directed.

Additional Review Flashes appear on page 38.

"Virginia" and "Liberty" Get High Tone Sendoffs

NEW YORK—The Paramount and Criterion on Broadway went considerably—and profitably—out of their way in launching the premieres of "Virginia" and "Land of Liberty," respectively.

Behind a beautifully handled advance campaign, the Paramount brought "Virginia" into the house Tuesday evening under the aura of a gala benefit in behalf of the Maple Leaf Fund, national Canadian organization for British war relief. Plenty of names, kleig lights, loudspeakers, lavish decorations and police gave the opening a festive sendoff. A special stage show brought together, in addition to Glenn Miller and his band, Raymond Massey as master of ceremonies, Raoul Jovin, Metropolitan Opera tenor; Anton Dolin, premier danseur of the Ballet Theatre; Dean Murphy, mimic, and other singing and comedy acts. Madeleine Carroll, feminine lead in the film, spoke to the audience via telephone from Hollywood. The Canadian Minister to the United States, Loring Christie, and the British consul here, Godfrey Haggard, were among the distinguished guests.

No less ostentatious was the event signalizing the opening of "Land of Liberty" at the Criterion Thursday forenoon. Direct descendants of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Alexander Hamilton and other famous Americans who were represented in the film, took part in a tape-cutting ceremony in front of the house. Messmore Kendall acted as chairman.

Screen Publicists, Majors Continue NLRB Session

NEW YORK — Three hearings before NLRB trial examiner, Dan Baker, between the Screen Publicists Guild and representatives of major home offices were concluded Saturday and are expected to resume next week. The sessions were devoted entirely to evidence put in by the SPG on the question of whether free lance artists are to be considered home office employes in the same category as SPG members in the latter's demands for recognition as sole collective bargaining agency for a claimed majority of home office publicists.

Reserves Decision In RCA Action

NEW YORK—Court news of the week slowed up considerably with the most important development being a reserved decision by Supreme Court Justice Philip McCook in a plea by RCA, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., and General Electric to dismiss a $270,000,000 stockholder suit against them. The plaintiffs, some 17 in number, also applied to examine the president of the three corporations before trial in a cross-motion. The suit which charges waste and mismanagement alleges $240,000,000 was lost by RCA through the purchase of worthless patents from the other corporate defendants by handing over 600,000 shares of common worth $40 a share and a loss of $10,000,000 through investments in RKO.

To Examine Isidore Ostrer

Isidore Ostrer and Mary Larkin both of GB Pictures Corp. of America were ordered to appear for an examination before trial in the supreme court Feb. 10 in connection with two suits each for $100,000 against GB and Ostrer by Film Alliance of the U. S. The plaintiff claims GB breached an agreement to give it exclusive U. S. distribution rights to "Things Are Looking Up," starring Vivien Leigh.

On February 3 Universal, Universal Films Exchanges, Big-U-Film Corp., and the Roxy applied to the supreme court to preclude Producers Laboratories from giving evidence at the trial of its suit against them for failure to comply with a supreme court order and serve a bill of particulars. The suit seeks an injunction, accounting of profits, and damages, claiming "Hired Wife" was having its title infringed by Universal's "A Hired Wife."

Agent Sues Joan Crawford

Lee Morrison, agent, filed a $25,000 supreme court suit against Joan Crawford, claiming breach of an agreement made in November, 1939 whereby the actress agreed to appear in the lead of a play, entitled "Death of a Rose." Morrison's financial backers withdrew when Miss Crawford did, he says.

Judge John Foster Symes in the federal court dismissed after trial Milton Herbert Gropper's suit against Warner. Gropper claimed the plagiarism in "Alcatraz" of his play "Ex-Racketeer," which was submitted to the studio and rejected. An injunction, accounting of profits and damages was sought.

Examination of Jacob Wilk of Warner is under way in the federal court in connection with Katherine Moog's $75,000 libel action against the company. She claims she was libeled in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

Paramount Pep Club Will Celebrate Valentine Day

NEW YORK—The Paramount Pep Club will celebrate Valentine's Day with a buffet supper, stage show and dance at the Capitol Hotel, February 14. An original musical revue, titled "The Goofers Go to Town," will be the attraction. The book is by Sue Brust and Jesse Goodman, with music by Knox Haddow.

Charlotte Duncan Birge, secretary to Warner's publicity chief, Frank La Falce, subscribes to the ole adage that when it rains it pours. Her recovery from illness was comforting. However, her joy was short-lived when her husband was assigned on a war department mission to Trinidad, South America, for a one or two year stay.

Fred Thomas, manager of the Earle, was conspicuous by his absence due to illness, especially during the year's crowning event, the President's Birthday Ball, and his yearly midnight show . . . Rick LaFalce of the publicity staff carried on despite a sore throat . . . The Hollywood entourage for the President's natal celebration finally included the following: Deanna Durbin, Lana Turner, George Raft, Wayne Morris, Maureen O'Hara, Wallace Beery, Charlotte Greenwood, Stirling Hayden, Kay Aldridge, Preston Foster, Al Ritz, Clifton Fadiman, Tommy Harmon, Alice Marble, Jean Hersholt and Red Skelton.

Philadelphia Theatres Get a Tax Cut

Philadelphia—Substantial cuts in assessments on several center-city theatres are announced by the board of revision of taxes. Among the reductions are Aldine, from $593,500 to $549,000; Boyd, $656,600 to $573,800; and Karlton, from $1,003,000 to $980,000.

Election in Spring For N. Y.'s Allied Unit

NEW YORK—Following a statewide campaign, the proposed Allied unit for New York will meet this spring to elect officers. As reported, operators representing from 40 to 50 theatres reputedly are pledged on behalf of the new unit. Max Cohen, former regional vice-president of Allied of New York, issued the call.

BALTIMORE

VARIETY held its third anniversary dance at the Belvedere Saturday night. Many notables of the industry attended from Washington, Philadelphia and New York. Money raised will be used for another "iron lung" to be given the city . . . Bill Hicks has opened his new Mayfair . . . Baltimore exhibitors were invited to United Artists' screening of "Cheers for Miss Bishop" at the Circle Theatre, Washington, last Tuesday.

A gala time was had by all who attended the Jewish War Veterans annual cabaret dance at the Lord Baltimore last Sunday night. Among those from the film colony there were: Harry and Al Vogelstein, Baltimore Poster Co.; Dave Kaiser, Maryland Display, who is commander of the Post and acted as master of ceremonies; Sam Soltz, Howard; Harry Silver, Overlea; Lou Cohen, Essex; Bill Hicks, Mayfair and Hampden; Bernie Seaman, Hippodrome; Frank Hornig jr., Horn; Buddy Silverberg, Park; Milton Caplon, Linden; Eddie Perotka; Sam Taber, Universal salesman; Maurice Oletski, Republic salesman, and Frank Hahn, Horlacher Delivery Service. Along with Deanna Durbin, George Raft and Wayne Morris attended the President's Birthday Ball at the Fifth Regiment Armory . . . J. Harry Gruver, Glen, has returned to work after being confined to his home for a week by illness . . . William K. Saxton, Loew's city manager, is receiving visitors now at Sinai Hospital.

H. Ted Routson, Hippodrome, was chairman of the entertainment committee of the Baltimore Press Clubs first "Night in Hollywood" party held January 18.

Probe Government's Outlay for Films

WASHINGTON—An intensive investigation of the government's expenditures for motion picture production has been undertaken by the Bureau of the Budget, it was disclosed in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on the independent offices appropriation bill.

The bureau is sending a questionnaire to the heads of all departments, independent commissions and agencies, asking for detailed information on motion picture expenditures for the current fiscal year. The questionnaire will call for both the costs of any production or circulation of films which may be undertaken and information as to the number of persons employed and total salary payments.

The first census of its kind ever undertaken, the survey was initiated at the suggestion of the committee, which pointed out to bureau officials that information regarding the publicity expenditures of the government agencies has been impossible to secure heretofore.

It has frequently been charged in Congress that the various New Deal agencies have spent large sums for motion picture production and distribution which have never been revealed in detail, and that films have been used as a means of propaganda to whip up public sentiment for New Deal activities.

Sam Baker Opens Eighth: Mainstree in Flushing

NEW YORK—Sam Baker opened his eighth theatre Wednesday night when the Mainstree, Flushing, L. I., a 600-seater, debuted.

Joe Rosenzweig and M. Meyer have started remodeling the Empress in Washington Heights and Hugh Kent has installed new chairs at the Clinton, Clinton, N. J. Julius Charnow and Abe Ratner have installed new Erpi Mirrophonic at the People's Cinema, Brooklyn. Eisenberg & Cohen have installed new Brenkert Senarc lamphouses at the Star, Rheinbeck, N. Y., and Harry Kridel has installed the first pair of Brenkert 80 projectors at the Mayfair, Newark. All equipment was furnished by Joe Hornstein.

Mills and Cooper Form Equity Film Exchange

ALBANY — Equity Film Exchanges, Inc., has been formed to conduct a motion picture business, with headquarters in New York. Incorporators are: Bernard H. Mills and Philip Cooper, 723 Seventh Ave.; Attorney Irving B. J. Levine, 505 Fifth Ave. Filmrow gossip is that Mills and Jack Berkson, who operated the Republic franchises in Albany and Buffalo for sometime, may open exchanges in both these cities. They have maintained offices at the New York address since severing their connections with Republic. Mills and Berkson are releasing independent product, including former Grand National pictures. Cooper was cashier when Mills had the local Republic franchise. Mills still has a residence here.

BUFFALO

THOSE two inseparable Marions, Gueth and Walsh, of MPTO and Lafayette Theatre, respectively, are leaving on a two-week cruise of Panama waters. This may be called an act of solidifying Pan-American relations, for who could possibly find fault with two such charming ladies . . . Also taking to the south are Dot and George Gammel of the local circuit . . . We hear that A. C. Hayman of the Lafayette is enjoying his vacation . . . Gene Gorman, junior executive at Dipson's 20th Century, is Alabama-bound, but not for a vacation. He is to report to Uncle Sam for defense training. His successor is Donald Baecher, former right hand to Bob Dame at Shea's Niagara. Before that Don was at the Kenmore under Carl Rindcen, so Don is well fitted for his new position . . . Walt Leffler of the Bellevue in Niagara Falls has been made manager of that theatre, with Bob Murphy, former Shea booker, acting as city manager for the Falls branch of the Shea circuit.

Continuing in its benevolence, the local tent of Variety will hold a St. Patrick's Party in the club rooms to buy an "iron lung" to aid victims of infantile paralysis. The main charity of the organization, "The Heart," again has capable Elmer Lux of RKO at the helm . . . During the Lenten season, cooking schools will be conducted in the various Shea community theatres . . . Mat Konczakowski is reopening his Marlowe this month after complete and extensive alterations . . . The Apollo, formerly the Liberty, will be reopened shortly . . . Vincent R. McFaul of Shea Theatres is in the Big City on business . . . George C. Maurer of the Buffalo Theatre and vice-president of the Shea service employes' Benevolent Ass'n was appointed by unanimous vote to head the board of stewards of the clubrooms . . . Ralph Maw, M-G-M branch manager, attended the testimonial dinner honoring the Ralph Pielows in Albany recently . . . "Gone With the Wind" is still going strong at Shea's Great Lakes, according to Manager George A. Mason, as is "Ecstasy" at Dewey Michael's Mercury. The latter is in its seventh record-breaking week.

E. K. O'Shea was emcee at a testimonial dinner to W. E. Martin Monday night at the Variety Club. The dinner was tendered to honor Martin's years of service in the organization. Many prominent members of Filmrow were in attendance. Besides being secretary and treasurer of the organization, Martin is Sunday and dramatic editor of the Courier-Express . . . Bill Brett jr., ex-assistant manager of Shea's Elmwood under Bob Demming, is now assistant to Bob Dame at Shea's Niagara. Bill is the son of Bill Brett, house manager of Shea's Buffalo. Speaking of the Buffalo, Bill tells us that his theatre and the Courier-Express are holding auditions for girl instrumentalists to appear on the stage of the Buffalo with Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra. There will be $110 distributed among the first three winners . . . Bob Dame is still continuing his amateur contests at the Niagara. In addition to his managerial duties, he is starting another class in first aid for the Red Cross. Ushers from the various Shea houses will be his pupils.

Noted on the ever-increasing ailing list this past week are: Ed Frank, chief engineer for Shea's; Clayton Weston, Shea engineer; Emil Rothfus, manager of Basil's Victoria; Al Crato, Lafayette operator, and Freddie Koester, junior executive of the Lafayette. Gwen McDonald, also of the Lafayette, is just developing the sniffles . . . Nick Alico of the Shea pit band won't drive without lights any more. It seems there is a law against it . . . Has any theatre executive two more charming daughters than Spence Balser, booker for the Basil Theatres. The parties in question, Bernice and Beatrice . . . Ward Thompson, "ex" of the Shea staff, is now employed at the Twentieth Century as a relief doorman . . . In the alleys: The Buffalo One team won three Friday night with the aid of George Thompson, who is back after a recent illness. George Rosing, Roosevelt manager, and his team are way out in front in the league standings. Chuck McKernan and his Buffalo Two boys are on their tail. Shea's Hippodrome is the third place team. Mart Murret and boys of the Kenmore are coming along nicely and expect to take fourth place within a few weeks.

Para't Latin-American Convention on Feb. 6

NEW YORK—Paramount opens its first all Latin-American convention in Panama, February 6, when Austin C. Keough, vice-president and general counsel, will be the guest of honor. He and John W. Hicks, general foreign sales manager, are en route to the convention city now. The latter returns to New York immediately thereafter.

Attending will be Arthur L. Pratchett, general manager for Central America; John B. Nathan, in charge in the Argentine; Benito del Villar, who handles Chile, Peru and Bolivia; S. E. Pierpoint, Brazil; Robert L. Graham, Mexico; J. D. Rapoport, Cuba; Henry Gordon, Central American manager; Juan Oliver, Uruguay; J. P. Donohue, Puerto Rico; Alvaro Reyes, Colombia; Mrs. T. Andrews, Guatemala; Pedro Germano, Sao Paulo; Lazarus Constantine, Trinidad, and Larry O'Toole, assistant Central American manager.

Rites for I. H. Silver

NEW YORK—Funeral services were held over the weekend for I. H. Silver, 80, who died Thursday morning at Flushing Hospital. He leaves a widow, four daughters and a son, Milton, who is advertising and publicity head for National Screen Service.

PHILADELPHIA—The Diamond, Warner house, is being re-equipped with RCA Photophone sound. The house seats 927.

Succeeds Sweigert—

Ulrik Smith, former salesman for Paramount in Philadelphia, succeeds to the managership of that office now that Earle Sweigert has been made district manager of a newly-created area embracing that city, Washingington and Pittsburgh.

Philly Barkers Fete David 'Skip' Weshner

PHILADELPHIA—A spinet piano was the surprise gift David "Skip" Weshner received at a testimonial banquet tendered him by the Variety Club. Several friends had heard him say he was planning to buy a spinet, and the club beat him to it.

Weshner, who has left the Warner organization for an exploitation post with United Artists, was lauded for his services to the industry by half a dozen speakers. Powers Gouraud was master of ceremonies.

On the dais were Jay Emanuel, toastmaster; Harry Goldberg, Arthur and Emanuel Silverstone, Louis Krouse, Nat Levy, Morris Wolf, Ted Schlanger, Joseph Bernhard, Dr. Leon Levy, George Skouras, Earle Sweigert, Eddie Peskay, Sam Stiefel and Everett Callow.

The club announced appointment of new committees as follows:

Motion pictures: Ted Schlanger, Bob Lynch and George Schwartz. Cards: Ben Fertel, Maxwell Gillis and Leo Posel. Entertainment: Harry Biben, Stan Lee Broza, Oscar Neufeld and Lawrence Shubert. Luncheon: Al Davis, Sam Gross, Jack Kraker and Jack Greenberg.

Exhibitors Line Up to Aid Defense Program

PHILADELPHIA — Cooperation of the industry with the government's defense program will aid distributors and exhibitors to continue to keep control of their screens, Harry Brandt told 200 exhibitors at a meeting in the Broadwood Hotel.

The meeting was called by the local section of the theatre division of the motion picture industry committee cooperating for national defense. Jay Emanuel, local chairman, presided.

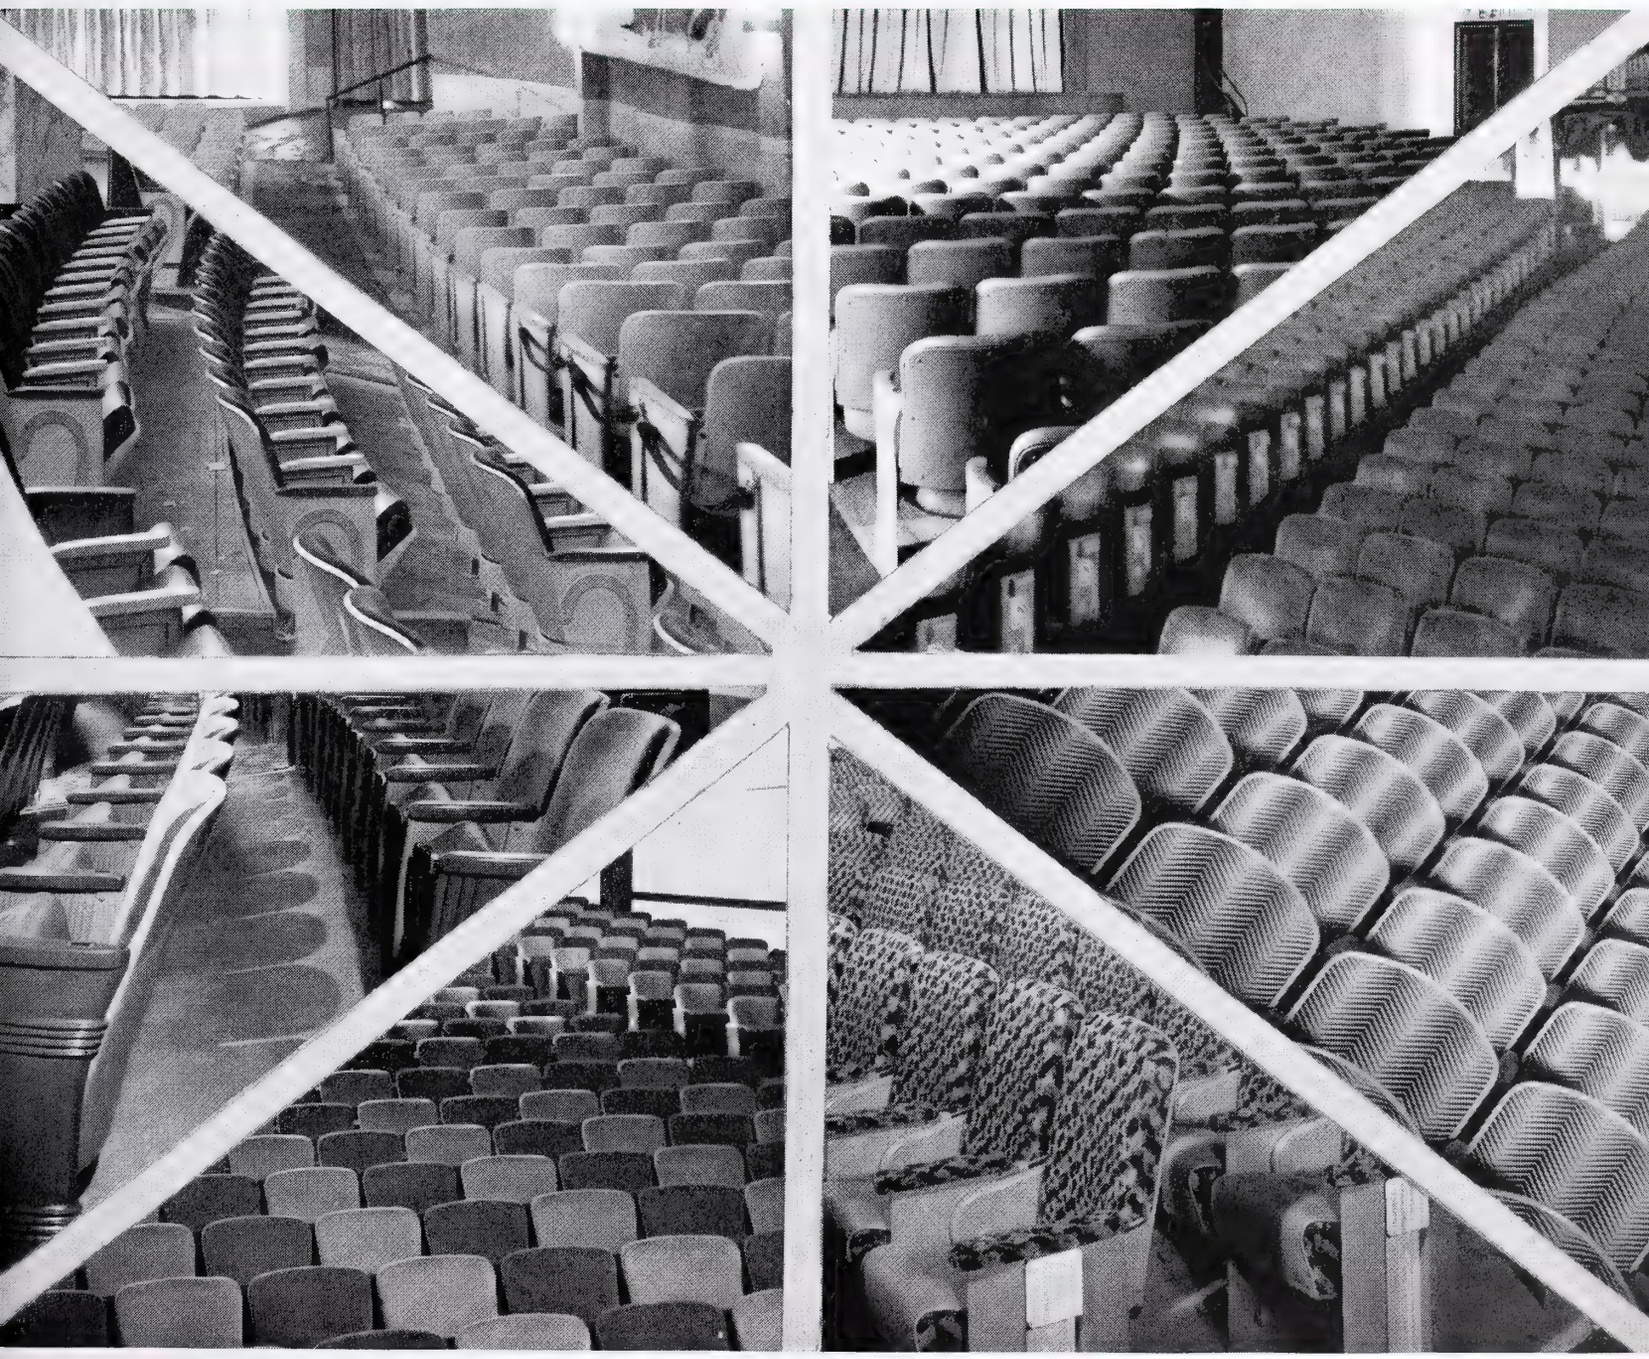
Brandt pointed out that the alternative to industry cooperation would be direct government control. He urged all exhibitors to sign pledges of service in the defense program.

Lowell Millet is the probable choice of President Roosevelt as co-ordinator for the theatre division, Brandt reported. His function will be to help the industry formulate policy on problems arising out of the defense program, such as the suggestion of reduced admissions for enlisted men. Exhibitors would be asked to refer to the co-ordinator and his associates in the industry all requests from organizations to use their stages or screens for "campaigns" and propaganda of various sorts, to make sure exhibitors do not unwittingly support unpatriotic bodies.

Brandt pointed out that producers already have enlisted in the defense program by making patriotic shorts, and urged exhibitors to play as many as possible.

William Crockett of Virginia MPTOA reported exhibitors in his territory are getting behind the program enthusiastically.

N. Y. Motion Picture Tax Nets More Than Estimate



ALBANY—The motion picture tax, collected on a per thousand foot basis for the examination and licensing of films, netted the state $9,635.50 more than the estimated $300,000 for fiscal year 1939-40. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman reported this in his annual budget message, which called for a nine million dollar cut in appropriations during 1941-42 and a $21,000,000 reduction in the personal income tax payable in April, 1942. The latter will be for the tax year starting January 1, 1941. Governor Lehman did not change the film tax estimate (by the Education Department whose motion picture division handles the licensing) of $300,000 for 1940-41, and for 1941-42.

Total appropriations for the next year, in the Governor's budget, are approximately $385,100,000, which is an actual reduction of about $5,000,000. He scaled down the estimated revenue on the stock transfer tax in 1940-41 to $14,000,000, compared to $19,181,000 in 1939-40. The governor fixed the 1941-42 estimate from this source at $16,000,000. He informed the legislature he did not expect an increase in revenue from betting through the pari-mutuel machines this spring. Lehman estimated the yield from July 1, 1940 up to June 30, 1941, would be $5,500,000.

Governor Lehman emphasized that while revenue has been rising, due to improved business conditions, the war situation makes predictions uncertain.

THE PRESSURE IS OFF THE Popliteal!

POPLITEAL—
According to Webster's, the Popliteal is the "back part of the leg behind the knee joint." It is very sensitive because arteries, veins, and nerves are close to the skin surface. Pressure on the Popliteal causes legs to "go to sleep," is responsible for nervousness and restlessness.

Underseating of Small Theatres Is a Serious Mistake

We often hear of over-seating as a problem of pressing concern to theatre management, but the complaint is usually centered on the existence of too many seats to fill in a given locality. The competitive situation, so to speak.

Seldom is heard any serious complaints about over-seating of theatres individually. Capacity sufficient to take care of a surge of extra patronage whether it comes unexpectedly or otherwise is something every theatre builder should plan to provide. And the time to do it economically is before the concrete is poured.

"My greatest trouble with theatre owner clients today," says an architectural associate of ours, "is to get them to see the wisdom of providing enough seats (and without crowding) to make their investment profitable. Too many of them want to hold their capacities to 400 when the situation really calls for many more."

The task of making a theatre of less than 500 seating capacity pay dividends at prevailing admission prices and under current costs of operation must be obvious to every experienced theatre operator.

The feast or famine factor is always to be reckoned with, especially in small town and suburban locations. Turnaways on weekends and holidays are disheartening.

Will theatre builders never learn to give their businesses a chance to grow? Under-capacity is easy to assume but hard and expensive to correct. An extra row or two of seats won't long remain empty in a theatre that's really modern in all respects.

Toler

Further emphasis on RELAXATION features Modern Seating Service

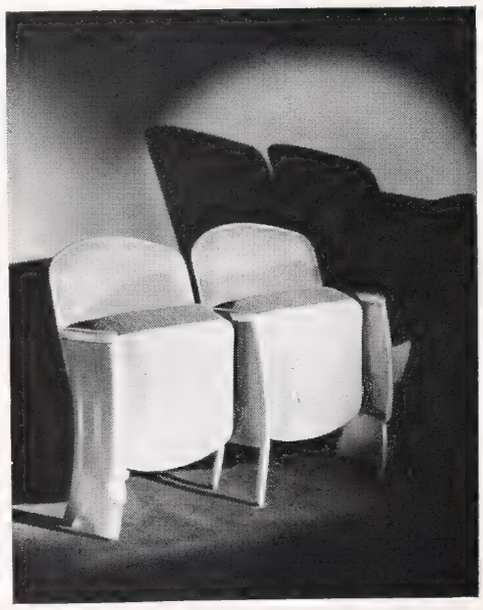
BY UNRELENTING persistence in research and fabrication for utmost comfort value in each succeeding new model they introduce, the public seating industry en masse has steadily contrived a higher standard in theatre seating efficiency each year during the past decade.

In reviewing the accomplishments each year we find it increasingly difficult to forecast the ultimate in theatre seating provision for comfort and the eye appeal that keeps steadily apace with it. Each year brings many new and unexpected contributions to the comfort of moving picture patrons.

Other industries have shown remarkable interest in relieving the many mechanical problems confronting modern theatre operation. They too have researched and contrived for improvement in the house appeal characteristics of the products they manufacture. But the theatre seating industry stands out by a wide margin on one important particular, i. e.:

GOOD MERCHANDISING

Seating manufacturers have not only assiduously applied themselves to the design and production of better merchandise, they have seen to it that the theatre industry is fully aware of all their developments in the direction of greater comfort for moving picture patrons, plus such other important considerations as attractiveness, lasting efficiency, and all-round quality of product. The theatre seating industry cannot be accused of laxity in the merchandising of its commodity—seating service.



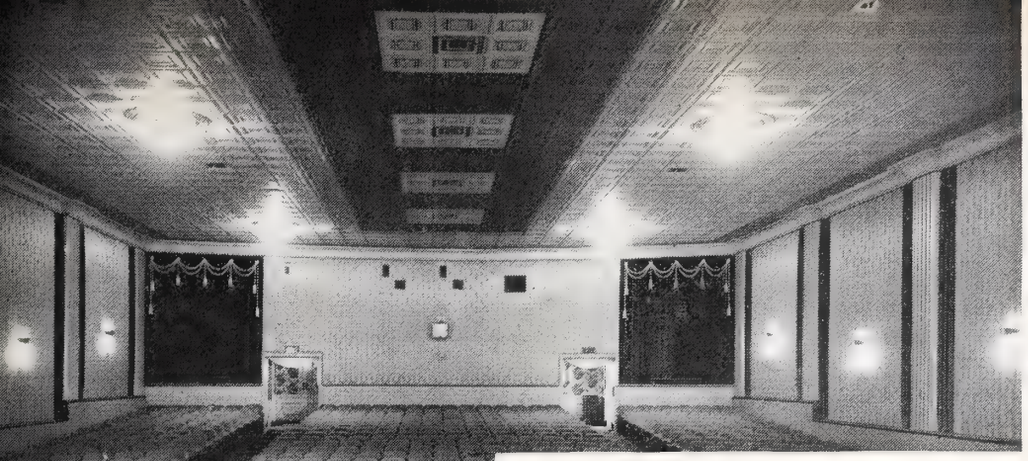
It is because of this fine follow-up to the fabrication of an ever-better product, that theatre owners are today more familiar with quality and use value characteristics in theatre seating than they ever were before. Despite the fact that competition among theatre seating manufacturers is quite keen, a condition which ordinarily might create a general cheapening of product, there is at present no evidence of any tendency to cheapness in the construction of seating for theatres. In fact the trend to quality was never more apparent than now.

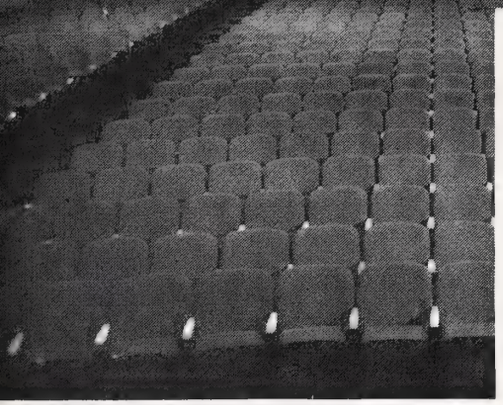
It would be manifestly unfair, however, to permit the seating people to take all the credit for a condition that augurs so well for the future brightness of the moving picture business. Theatre owners, their architects and others mutually involved in the building and equipment improvement cycle must surely be given a substantial share of the credit for remarkable accomplishment. Their ever-widening appreciation and understanding of what seating comfort means to the boxoffice has made them highly receptive to the sound reasoning of the sponsors of better seating for all classes and sizes of theatres.

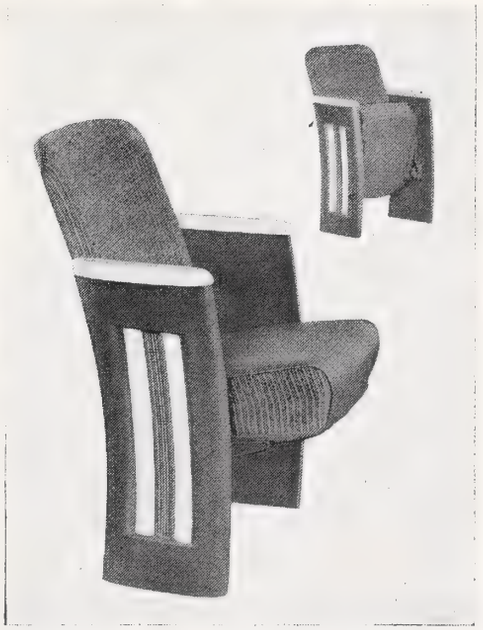
COMFORT CONQUERS ALL

Most experienced theatre owners now realize that without means of relaxation provided in their places of business the difficulties of entertaining the public are multiplied. They know, perhaps from weekly experiences and boxoffice records, that of all pictures they are permitted to play, there are comparatively few with such intense entertainment value that they will compensate for physical discomfiture, inconvenience or other common distractions during their presentation.

They realize quite as well too, that the former dyed-in-the-wool movie fan, to whom nothing mattered but what is on the







The new Royal Theatre in Detroit has an outstanding installation of 2,406 comfortable and beautifully designed theatre chairs. The lately introduced "Cameo" chair was selected and it adds its bit both decoratively and efficiently. The particular model (inset) in this instance features pillow-spring type construction and steel edge top finish. Its arms are of a new plastic material which resists scratching and end standards are of cast iron with aisle-light louvres inset. The upholstering material for this installation is a high grade, high-pile turquoise colored mohair to complement the theatre's stunning decorative scheme. (Photo courtesy Heywood-Wakefield Company).

Cover Plate

The essence of comfort and relaxation is expressed in our photomontage of modern theatre seating in actual situations. Each of the eight angles presents the case for patron appeal in a forthright manner. Each extends an invitation to relaxation and enjoyment of entertainment. The theatre patron who is accorded this added advantage in his moving picture diversion is the satisfied customer who will return again and again for more of the same. Beauty too is a magnetic characteristic of modern seating as shown in these pointed views. Each depicts the sleek lines and contour of functional design and all are products of the comfort-creator's art in posture correctness, upholstering snugness and beauty of finish. The specific attributes of such modern theatre chair installations as those shown on the cover are outlined in this, our issue devoted to the natural science of "Public Seating."

Charm and comfort in a modernized theatre, the Majestic in West Springfield, Massachusetts, are heightened by its new seating installation. The "Challenger" model, a streamlined exponent of relaxation and patron comfort, was chosen for its many construction features as well as economy since it is in a moderate price range of seats. The Majestic's model (inset) has streamlined standards in Spanish orange with buff trim, with full upholstered back and spring-edged seats in orange corduroy of a new specially processed type that is moisture resistent. (Photo courtesy Ideal Seating Company).

screen, is well on the way to extinction, and that the demand for physical relaxation has become common to all except a relatively few patrons. Even this minority can be quite easily made comfort-conscious, to the detriment of the neighboring competitor who still feels that comfortable seating service is only a minor consideration of a ticket sale.

Theatre men who have reseated their houses properly in the face of competition from those favored with the privileges of picture priorities, but whose theatres are allowed to deteriorate because of such special protection and privilege, have found comfortable seating an ace-in-the-hole, because of its definite appeal to the majority of patrons who now seek relaxation. An easy chair makes a man or woman much less critical in regard to the program.

To illustrate the point of this article, that, the seating industry has done, and is still doing, much to re-establish and then stabilize the movie-going habit, we present herewith a few pictorial examples of seating and reseating projects recently completed. Each of the seating manufacturers represented, submitted at our request, a picture of a current theatre seating project, together with a close-up view of the chair model installed. We reproduce them here, with brief descriptions to emphasize the fact that more than ever before, Relaxation Features Modern Theatre Seating Service.

The Columbia Theatre in Longview, Wash., illustrates how well beauty and comfort are being combined. Its installation of 858 "Crusader" model chairs is modern to the minute in both public seating efficiency and attractiveness of design. The "Crusader" (inset) is of the full-upholstered type with a seat feature known as spring-to-edge. This model also has the new seat bucket construction and indirect compensating hinges for smooth operation, as well as self-raising seat mechanisms. On the aesthetic side, the Columbia installation is upholstered in orange mohair at back and leather for seats, with standards in sand color trimmed with red. (Photo courtesy Irwin Seating Company).

Yet, in contriving for ever greater comfort in theatre seating, the secondary factors of greater eye appeal, decorative harmony and general quality of construction have not been slighted, as will be noted from the examples illustrated, which indicate a range of prices as well as requirements. Practically all theatre seats, except the very cheapest ones being offered today have one or more pronounced comfort characteristics. Logically in the higher-priced brackets these characteristics become more pronounced. As always the selling price affects quality on all points.

Numerous Innovations

The latest model chairs offer certain innovations in design and construction that should be noted here. Such for instance, as improved spring and hinge construction; rubber cushioning; pillowy softness in seat upholstery due to new discoveries in upholstery technique; plastic arm rests and many other functional refinements—all with a well-studied design for greater comfort, convenience of access with unusual attractiveness to the eye.

Both full and partially self-raising seats continue in popularity. Double width (love seats) settees and special roomy lounging chairs for loges are now in vogue. Steel pan construction for theatre seats and backs which are molded for posture correctness form the basis of body-caressing upholstery while artistically designed end standards in pleasing harmonious color schemes suggest comfort even before the patron is seated.

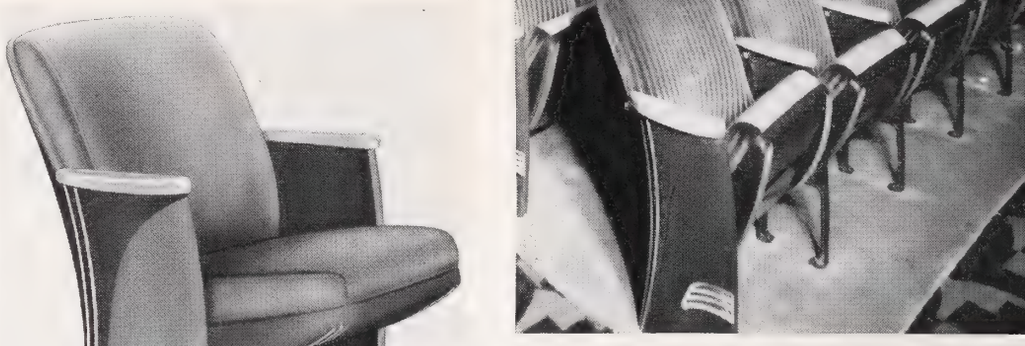
Other innovations include colorful new upholstery fabrics in mohairs, corduroys and leatherettes; special life-time enamel finishes for metal parts, and as previously mentioned the foam rubber cushion which either alone or cleverly combined with steel springs of various improved types provides all that can be called for in theatre seating comfort.

The Delivery Situation



While the National Defense Program requirements on American industry have not as yet seriously affected the manufacture and delivery of theatre seating, it is anticipated that some interference is to be expected soon, especially in a possible shortage of steel and certain upholstery fabrics.

But certain of the manufacturers have already protected themselves well against such events by laying in huge supplies of such materials that may be affected by defense measures. One such concern advises furthermore that they are standardizing or grouping their lines of seating, so that with a quick interchangeability of stock seats, backs and standards, they can accommodate theatre trade with delivery of the finest in modern theatre seating on even shorter notice than has been possible heretofore.

The price situation is seriously problematical in view of present conditions; but all indications lean well toward the probability that theatre seating costs are lower now than they will be in many years to come.

Meanwhile the theatre seating industry remains entirely at your service.

Detroit's new Parkside Theatre promotes comfort and relaxation as highlights of its recreational policy. For this purpose, 862 single chairs and 14 love seats in the new "Commodore" model spring back style were selected by its owners, Erving and Sidney Moss, and Architects Bennett & Straight, to serve as real comfort facilities for the patrons. The exact model (inset) has all the posture and ease qualities available today and for beauty it is entirely harmonious and complementary to the auditorium decorative scheme. Red aisle standards with cream colored trim are used with clover red mohair backs and ivory leatherette seats. (Photo courtesy American Seating Company).

The Loop Theatre in Mobile, Alabama, a new Saenger house, has all the elements of comfort and beauty highly exemplified by its seating installation. An insert panel chair was selected (inset), having all-steel welded construction and a metal rim on the back for the protection of upholstery material. The seat cushion is of standard 20-coil construction giving extra comfort without additional cost. To harmonize with and complement the color scheme used in the Loop's auditorium, the chairs are upholstered and enameled in delicate shades of coral and peach, thus making the installation by Wil-Kin Theatre Supply Co., decoratively beautiful as well as extremely relaxing. Special Advantages of Rubber Seat Toppings

Among the remarkable advantages of the new development of foam rubber seat topping for theatre chair upholstery, the following are pointed out by manufacturers of the material, seating companies and buyers of new theatre seats as well:

The material provides the most comfortable seat cushioning ever developed. It can't pack down, can't bulge or lose its shape. It actually outlasts the ordinary spring unit, and it is absolutely dustless, proved germ and moth proof.

Upholstery covers last longer over its smooth, flexible surface. It puts greatest strength at the most vulnerable point for seat wear. Furthermore, the material actually improves acoustics since it is a known sound insulator. Any customer survey will indicate the value placed on good seating. This new development is one way to assure seating comfort.

Gentlemen, Be Seated! . . . in some of your own chairs

by ANSEL M. MOORE

IT'S A SHAMEFUL, sordid and shabby suggestion that shouldn't be allowed to happen even to a dolt, much less to a moving picture patron; but because we've been ordered to do it, Gentlemen, we're going to ask some of you to swallow your own medicine, or to put it even less mildly, to stew in your own juice.

Gentlemen Be Seated! Not here and now perhaps; nor in that softly padded swivel chair behind your desk; nor at home beside your favorite book rack; but right down there in your theatre, in one of those tiny torture chambers, you choose to tell us are as comfortable as the day you bought them at $4.98 installed some 13 years ago! Don't rush it, please. The place is empty and you can take your pick —something your poor patrons can't always do.

Test Your Temper

Now, Gentlemen Be Seated! . . . and sit right there for the time it takes to dissipate one of your dual feature dissipations. No! No! Don't get up now! You haven't even got the feel of it yet and you can't duck the issue that way. Sit there a short while and you'll soon begin to wiggle and squirm; the first shift is due any minute now, and while we're waiting for it, let us (meaning your tormenter) squeeze through in front of you just to remind you what 32 inches back-to-back really means to We the People. Aggravating, isn't it? Scarcely satisfying, eh, what?

Be careful now Gentlemen. Don't commit yourselves! Remember, too, you're a patron, and good patrons can take it; anyhow that's what you think. And Gentmans, these are your very own little comfort-makers. They've been good enough for you for over 13 years now, and after all there's such a thing as sentiment in association. But the helluvit is, me hearties, this is perhaps the longest you ever sat in one of your theatre's seats for lo, these many years.

No sirs, you can't get up now. This is only the first reel. You ain't felt nothin' yet. Wait till your bones start creaking in earnest and your backache begins to bear down. Squirm some more. Make yourself comfortable with curvature of the spine. Enjoy the sensations you have so unselfishly showered on us patrons in the past.

Honestly men, we can't go on with this. Its heart-rending, cruel and beyond our conception of what you've got coming to you. We conclude the fiendish performance forthwith and take up the accustomed position of a polite theatre manager at the exit door, there to ask you blithely on your way out, "Gentlemen, how'd you like the show?"

We apologize for your acrimony, after such an experience. Of course it couldn't have happened to you—unless you are in the habit of changing places with your patrons. We likewise beg your pardon for bringing the subject so sharply home to you, in case the shoe is one that fits you.

Doing Unto Others

But seriously now and without further similes or beating around the bush about it; don't you think we've preached a pretty good sermon on the evil effects of "doing unto our patrons that which we would not like them to do unto us"—all the while expecting them to continue to do business with us?

By the very nature of seating; the fact that it was created in the beginning by our ingenious forebears for one purpose, solely to provide comfort, and from the very fact that comfort of body is directly connected and contributory to ease of mind, it is the one condition of service that cannot be trifled with in the theatre. It is one phase of theatre operation on which you may easily fool yourself; but fooling the public, that's something else.

When the average theatre owner goes shopping for theatre chairs he has usually but one all-consuming objective in mind. He wants a piece of furniture that will look good for a long time. Next he desires a chair that is comfortable in the extreme and one that will stay comfortable for keeps. He'll demand quality construction, noiseless operation and all the use values and advantages he's read about in sales literature and seen demonstrated in the display rooms. He knows about what he wants.

But here's what usually happens to him if he doesn't stick closely to his buying guns: The siren call of the short-price proposal throws him off guard. A seeming chance to save from a few cents to a dollar or more per seat changes his buying mood from one of sound business logic to mere speculation. Under such a spell of a bargain offer he goes all out for good looks; and the guts of the proposal—what the product is made of and how it's put together—doesn't matter. His object is forgotten.

Lest You Forget

Let's remind ourselves emphatically, Gentlemen, that aside from the combined projection and sound system, theatre seating represents, as it should, the largest financial investment in the outfitting of a theatre plant. The size of the investment makes it imperatively necessary to look into the future and try to avoid the necessity of reseating too soon.

It is the most important equipment provision in the plant for another important reason, that the theatre chair is one of the few articles of theatre furniture with which the customers make personal and prolonged contact. The comfort of the patrons cannot therefore be trifled with for the sake of saving a few cents per seat or even a dollar or so.

In closing may we admonish you again regarding the long life and comfort-giving characteristics of the chairs you are going to buy. All chairs appear comfortable to the eye at first glance, and to the body when you sit quickly and promptly arise. They're all beautiful to behold—but as with other gorgeous creatures and creations, beauty in theatre seats can be only of dermal depth.

Your problem, Gentlemen, is how long they'll stay both good to look at and comfy. It's the hidden virtues that determine the value in public seating—not the shorter selling price.

Gentlemen, if you're still with us, you may now arise!

Creating a mood for relaxation is as much a part of entertainment as is the provision of comedy, tragedy or melodrama on the screen. This is accomplished by the addition of comfort and convenience to your exploitation points.

Patrons who are comfortable are much less critical of the entertainment provided for their enjoyment. This is a prime motivation for the reseating of many theatres.

Give Us Fresh Air!

In the forthcoming (March First) issue Ansel Moore will make another heroic plea for the physical welfare of the patrons and the benefit of the box-office with some pertinent hints to theatre men on what to do about air conditioning and how it appeals to "We, the People." Air Conditioning, incidentally is the theme subject for next issue of The Modern Theatre section. So look forward to something special—The Editor.

Detroit's new PARKSIDE... a 3-Unit Recreation Center

ALMOST logical combination of recreation attractions that heralds a basically new trend in theatre planning is embodied in one of Detroit's newest neighborhood theatres—the Parkside.

First of the additional crowd attractions is a cocktail lounge, including a bar and grill, which is designed as a neighborhood center of good cheer. More radical in planning, however, is the inclusion of the third unit, in addition to the theatre and cocktail lounge—a large, modern bowling alley.

In the past, exhibitors have looked upon bowling as a potential major rival to their own enterprises. In many cases, they have been bowling fans themselves, of course, and a few have also bought or built bowling alleys. But they were generally always individual enterprises, most probably in "opposition" to somebody else's theatre business.

However, in this new Detroit house, the owners have gone deliberately into the opposition field, and made the alley an integral part of the theatre structure itself —actually taking up half again as much space as the theatre auditorium. With the alleys right in the building project, the patrons of bowling are brought to the theatre building as often as they play—and traffic is increased to the spot; which is a fundamental objective of modern showmanship in theatre planning.

Mutual Benefits

But the alleys contribute to the theatre even more directly than as just traffic-builders. Bowlers playing their games early can go to the theatre afterward to see the show, while late bowlers can see the early show. Again, wives of bowlers need no longer be "alley widows," but can put in their time seeing their favorite pictures, while "friend husbands" who don't care so much for pictures, are enjoying themselves next door, making strikes and spares and "railroads." Families can well divide their patronage as their individual inclinations dictate. In any case, the theatre receives additional patronage, because the non-bowling wife who will go to a show while her husband is out skittling, for instance, will find it much more convenient to accompany him in the family car to the same spot, than to go out by herself to some more distant theatre.

The Parkside bar serves as a neighborhood gathering-place, as well as a spot for the after-the-show lunch. Meals are served there, as well as liquid refreshments, and the spot has made an important specialty of noon-day lunches, so that business men and women of the community are inclined to gather there from stores and offices all over the neighborhood. This brings still more people—who are well able to spend money for frequent show-attendance for themselves and families—to the house, to notice what is playing there daily from marquee and front signs and banners.

Such is the background of the strong "triple-threat" construction which makes this new house unique, probably, among American theatres. The success of the idea is evidenced by the boxoffice records of the house in the few months since its opening.

Site Suitability

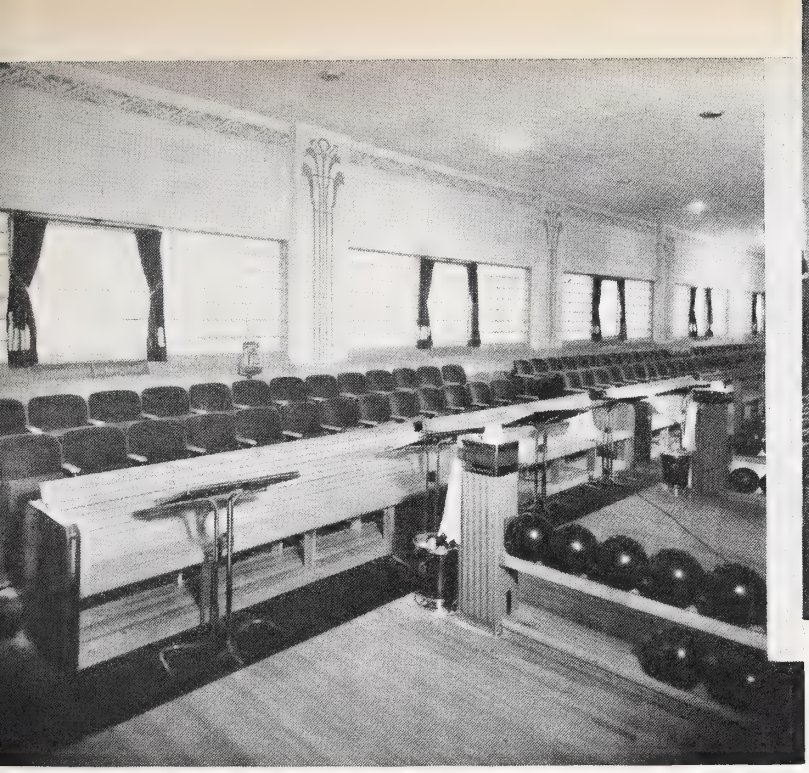
The Parkside is located in a thickly-settled east-side district of Detroit, and is nearly a mile from the next nearest theatre. Nearby are better working-class homes, built about 15 years ago, worth about $4,000-$6,000 in a largely home-owning section, and renting at about $40-$65 for single homes, with prices mostly in the lower brackets. Vacant lots are few, and the number of potential patrons is great, although the average number of children is not large in this section.

Across the street is the new Federal Housing Project, Parkside Homes, to house perhaps 1,000 families when completed. The last addition is now under construction, with the balance occupied. The theatre name was selected to tie in with that of the Housing Project, and it is essentially a community enterprise. Here on an old circus-lot, is the largest closely-localized addition to Detroit homes in many years. Older theatres took care of the original residents quite adequately, particularly when one large new house was opened on Harper Avenue a year ago. But this sudden increase of local residents through the Federal project made the construction of the new theatre and its allied units worth immediate consideration.

Community Interest

Practicing modern showmanship, the management of the house has used every means of stimulating the sense of community interest in the house. The manager was selected from one of the nearest theatres, as one who knew his people, and who was a sort of honorary official of the Project Community Association, composed of residents in the Federal homes. Special parties and adequate exploitation have helped to knit this tie closer.

The Parkside was designed by Architects Bennett and Straight of Dearborn, Michigan, who have created many of the more modern Detroit theatres. It was erected by the Moss Brothers—Erving and Sydney—who, as the Moss Investment Company, operate the house. The structure is unusual in that it was actually built by the exhibitors, who are themselves also in the building field. A number of special features of the house, particularly in detail work, such as artistic treatment and decoration, were designed or suggested by the brothers Moss.



The Parkside Theatre front expansively proclaims the dominance of motion picture entertainment by the brilliant display of color, light and promotional advertising. However, the Parkside project is a "triple-threat" for entertainment seekers, providing also an inviting bar and grill and a bowling hall which exercise a tremendous draw and which may be noted in the view at right. (Photo courtesy Long Sign Company).

The building is 260 by 100 feet in dimensions, fronting the full length of one block on East Warren Avenue, with the back of the theatre on Dickerson Avenue, while the side of the bowling alley runs 100 feet on Gray Avenue.

Effective Contrast

The structure is faced with enameled metal in contrasting colors on the theatre side, while the bowling alley portion

A bowling hall of the latest and most improved type is a part of the Parkside project, denoting a trend which will bring the two popular competing types of entertainment under one management for greater profit to both. and cocktail lounge are finished in face brick, marking a distinct break in style between the two sections. Enameled metal trim in contrasting colors is used on the brick part, to tie in with the general decorative scheme.

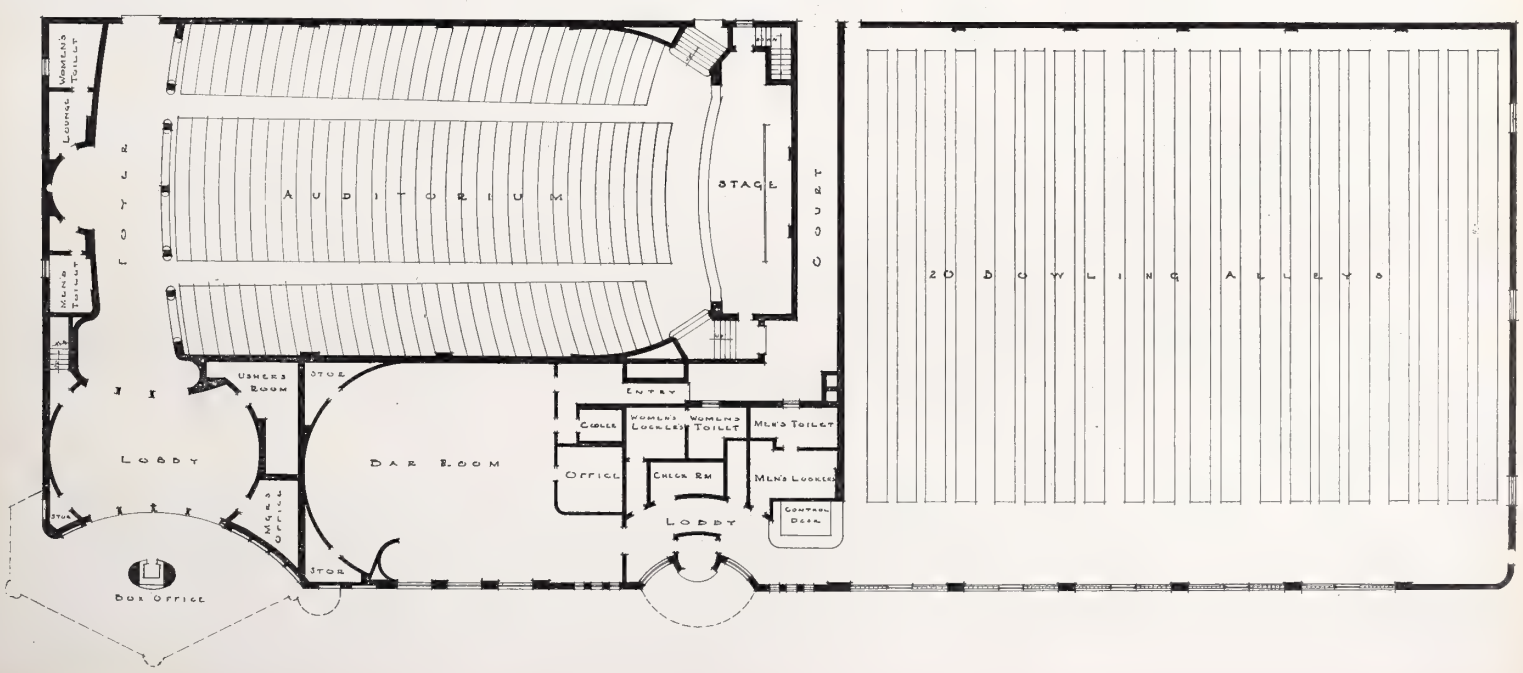
Basic colors of the theatre front are bronze, maroon and buff, repeated in the trim on the rest of the building. The upper portion of the theatre front, rising above the marquee and finished in a panel effect, has color striping between each vertical panel, with concealed colored neon tubing to give a fountain-like lighting effect. Additional relatively low-powered floodlights hidden in the marquee are used to dramatize the front.

The whole architectural style is genuinely modern with the color scheme in somewhat restrained tones on the glittering enamel as the basic exterior motif. The more conventional brickwork of the bowling alley portion is given a strongly modern tone by almost continuous glass-brick windows set essentially in sets of three—two glass-brick portions with one of louvred glass between, which contains a portion that may be controlled for ventilation.

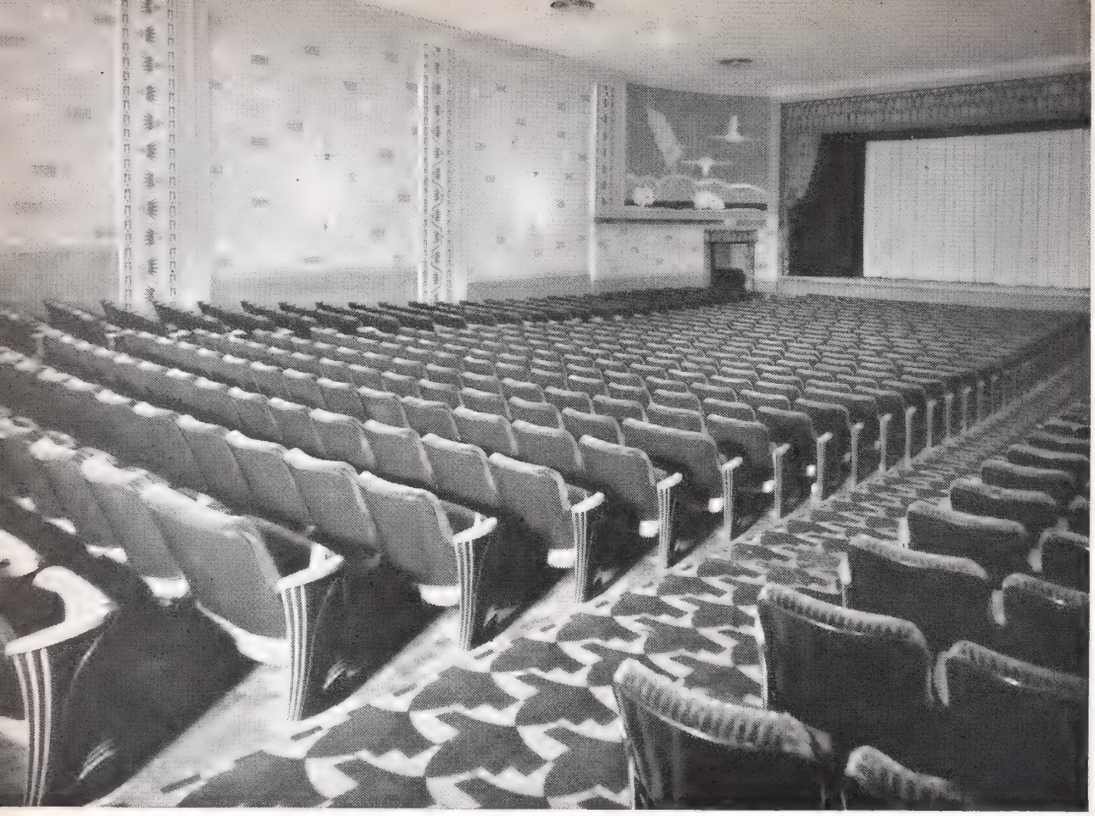
Brilliant Display

The marquee is triangular in shape, with three rows of interchangeable lettering on each of the two exterior faces. Colored neon tubing is used for the border lighting on the marquee, while a flat portion along the wall carries out the design of the center angle to balance.

Rising to 60 feet above the sidewalk, the sign at the end of an extended wall-border of the marquee, is V-shaped, with the name of the theatre on the two sides facing Warren Avenue. Projecting entirely over the sidewalk, the marquee and sign are visible for over a mile in each direction along this important east-and-west thoroughfare. The sign is suspended from an angle-positioned support of the false front of enameled metal erected over the theatre portion.



The lobby rises to full two-story height. Modern murals in an abstract style serve as unique decoration. Concealed colored lighting is used to enhance an unusually attractive entrance to the house—thus serving the purpose of good appearance in salesmanship, by inviting the prospective patrons to enter when they view the lobby from the outside, and in turn making the final effect a pleasing one as they leave the house.



The theatre seats 1,000 patrons. Its floor is elevated on a "bowled" plan, according to the architects, so that the curve of elevation gradually flattens out from the back of the house to a line which is practically level at the stage. This allows every row of seats to have five inches of clearance over the row in front, providing adequate screen vision for patrons.

Further attention to good view of the screen resulted in the installation of seats in a staggered arrangement. This made necessary the installation of many of the Floor plans by Bennett & Straight, architects of Dearborn, Michigan, for the Parkside Theatre and Bowling Alley project show the adequacy with which the owners tackled the public entertainment problem. The theatre, the bar room and the bowling hall each exerts a tremendous draw on the diversion-seeking public and with the three under one roof and one management a new formula for success has been achieved.

The Parkside auditorium seats 1,000 patrons and is a model of comfort, convenience and eye appeal. Loungey seats, luxurious carpeting, proper air conditioning and distinguished decoration are highlights. (Photo courtesy American Seating Company).

wide double chairs, known as "love seats," in order to even up the rows under the staggered arrangement. They are placed at about every fifth row, as indicated in the picture of the seating arrangement.

The stage is 15 feet deep, adequately designed for stage presentations of average size. The screen is normally set back about 10 feet from the proscenium arch. As designed, the house is not at present provided with fly-loft or dressing rooms.

The auditorium is lined with cinder block, decorated in contrasting colors. Each block is of a slightly different tone from adjacent blocks with occasional darker blocks to provide interest. Large murals, similar in design to those in the lobby, are painted on each sidewall near the stage.

Special equipment includes 100 seats provided with earphones for the hard-of-hearing—a modern convenience that has become increasingly important in neighborhood theatres, since exhibitors now know that some four per cent of the population may be considered in this unfortunate class.

Comfort Stressed

Air conditioning of the direct-fired type was installed, for complete year-round operation. Separate air-conditioning units were provided for the other two parts of the building, in order that they may be controlled separately. The theatre, for instance, can usually be kept at a higher temperature than that required for the more active bowlers.

The bowling hall contains 20 regulation alleys, with about 125 spectator seats. An unusual feature here is the provision of theatre-type chairs of the same design as those used in the auditorium, instead of the familiar hard benches. This convenience, almost unique in bowling alleys, has already brought the place much favorable comment from bowlers and spectators who like this unusual degree of comfort.

Acoustic Considerations

A special acoustical treatment was used extensively on the walls and ceiling of the bowling alley to drastically reduce noise, so that no interference with the operation of the theatre will ever occur. Acoustical treatment was used only in a very limited quantity in the theatre auditorium—only over the wall behind the standee rail—but it was used throughout the alleys to provide the greatest possible absorption capacity. Additional noise-deadening is provided by an eight-foot air court between the bowling hall and theatre proper. The ceiling of the bar room is also treated acoustically to reduce noise. This room, which seats about 200, is lighted from concealed cove lighting sources.

Separate entrances for the cocktail lounge and bowling alley are provided, leading from a common lobby. A checkroom and rest rooms as well as locker rooms are reached from this lobby. The alley-bar lobby entrance has its own marquee, semi-circular in design, and distinct in treatment from the theatre marquee.

The bowling alley portion of the building is designed to bear the weight of an additional floor, and ultimate plans call for its construction, with space for an additional 20 alleys.

The entire building is estimated to have cost about $300,000. The relative size of each of the three main units is well shown in their floor dimensions, including service and accessory rooms: Bowling alley, 12,900 square feet; cocktail lounge, 1,500 square feet; theatre, 8,670 square feet; a total of 23,070 square feet.

Centrifugal Refrigeration Booklet Released

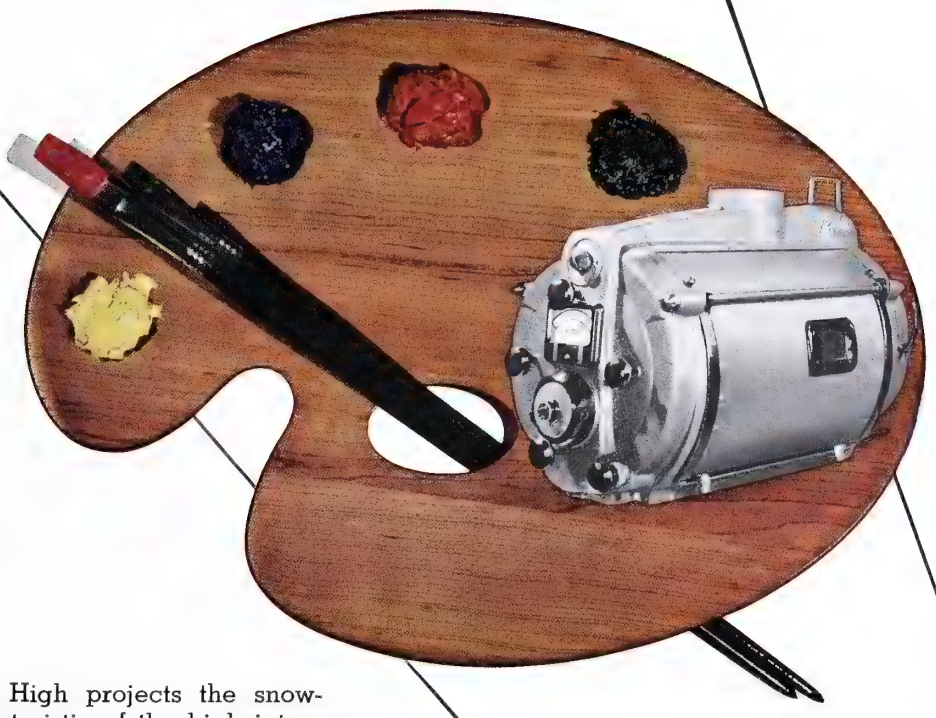
A new booklet entitled "20 Years Centrifugal Refrigeration" has just been released by Carrier Corporation for the use of air conditioning and refrigerating engineers and architects.

The booklet is a 44-pager in which the centrifugal machine is described in detail. Beginning in 1918, when Dr. Willis H. Carrier started experimental work on the centrifugal principle of compression for mechanical refrigeration, the history of the machine is carried through the following years. The first installation in 1922, still in operation, is followed with performance records of hundreds of installations.

All parts of the machine, each contributing to its life and economic service, are shown by simple perspective drawings accompanied by direct non-technical descriptions of the parts and the functions they perform. The refrigerating cycle with Carrene 2 is shown in a four-color diagrammatic drawing.

The center spread of the booklet is a cutaway brush drawing which shows interiors of compressor, cooler and condenser as if parts of casings or shells had been removed. A chapter on performance compares the cycle efficiencies of refrigerants as well as mechanical efficiencies of refrigerating systems.

Many installations, described and illustrated, show the application range of the centrifugal refrigerating machine. The ever growing number of installations since the first machine in 1922 is depicted by the rapidly rising tonnage curve.



Competition with other theatres dwindles when your house is modern, comfortable and attractive in appearance. Such a place can even compete with the charms of home and fireside—and that's real competition.

When new seats are installed, exploit their comfortability and beauty to the customers. Promote this item of equipment which has been provided for their greater enjoyment and they'll react in the most approved manner.

ONLY THROUGH THIS MEDIUM

CAN YOU REPRODUCE COLORED PICTURES SATISFACTORILY

The Simplex High projects the snow-white light characteristic of the high intensity arc which is so necessary to the projection of colored pictures.

This low cost, high intensity, direct current projection arc of intermediate capacity has been designed especially for theatres of up to 800 seats and using screens as large as 18 feet in width, heretofore restricted to the use of low intensity lamps, with their dim yellow light, because the operating, if not the original cost of the earlier high intensities has been prohibitive.

Although the Simplex High projects twice as much light as the low intensity, the over-all operating costs are only slightly higher.

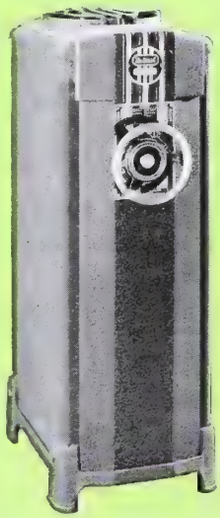
There's a National Rectifier to Fill Every Need



National
FOUR-TUBE RECTIFIER FOR HIGH INTENSITY PROJECTION ARCS

The most efficient, low-priced means of converting three-phase alternating current to direct current for use as a power supply to the Magnarc lamp. This rectifier is built in two capacities, adjustable 45 to 50 amperes and 45 to 65 amperes.

National
COPPER OXIDE RECTIFIER

A full metallic, heavy duty equipment which has been designed for converting three-phase alternating current to direct current as a power supply for Magnarc high intensity projection arc lamps.

Maintenance or attention is unnecessary. There are no moving parts nor physical changes in the rectifying process, since rectification is simply by molecular action.

National
SIX-TUBE HEAVY DUTY RECTIFIER

has been designed as a companion to the Magnarc lamp, wherever the lamp is to be used at high currents.

This rectifier employs six 15-ampere Tungar-type tubes, connected for full wave rectification on three-phase current which results in an overlapping in impulses sufficient to produce an exceptionally smooth output current.

National

has been designed for use as a direct current power supply for the Simplex High Intensity Projection Lamp. This coordinated rectifier equipment has the built-in volt-amperage characteristics necessary to maintain the perfect power balance required by this new type arc.

"There's a Branch Near You"

Mr. Popkin's Revenge . . . or the worm kicks back--but hard

by F. LOUIS FRIEDMAN*

While the characters and incidents depicted in this somewhat pathetic epic are entirely fictional, any resemblance to actual or living persons should come as no great surprise to the reader. It could be!

MR. POPKIN—Mr. Nicholas Popkin—had loved the movies for more than thirty years, ever since he and his three younger brothers had seen their first picture at the old tin-front Doric in Chicago. He still remembered that one nickel had taken all four of them in, by special arrangement with the theatre owner and the Popkin boys' mother, and he liked to look back upon those days of "The Perils of Pauline," "The Clutching Hand" and "The Keystone Cops" as among the happiest in his life.

Now, at thirty-eight, still a confirmed movie-goer, he went three times a week to the one lone theatre in the little town of Zinopolis where he lived. Mr. Popkin paid a quarter now—or twenty-eight cents, with tax—and he had long ago forgotten his allegiance to Broncho Billy Anderson in favor of Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette. He still liked to immerse himself in the exploits of his favorites and forget the world outside, but he had noticed of late that at the Zinopolis Rocksy it was becoming increasingly difficult to enjoy the pictures as he used to.

A Plot Is Hatched

"Maybe it's something wrong with me," Popkin told his wife. "Maybe it's my eyes." But his work in his cigar and stationery store gave him no trouble; he could still spot a moocher or a lead nickel as fast as ever, and it was just as easy as always to read aces back to back in the poker sessions with the boys on Sunday.

"That Rocksy, now," Popkin told Takasch the butcher, "is it the pictures getting worse, or is it something else? I just ain't enjoying them like I used to. What do you think, Herman?"

"I don't know," said Takasch. "I don't go to the Rocksy now for two year."

The next day Mr. Popkin went over to Tony Molinari's Elite Barber Shop for his periodic hair cut. "You go to the Rocksy this week Tony?" Popkin asked the barber. "They got a new Gene Autry there that's supposed to be a hummer."

"Me, I no go. I like-a better the Rivoli, over by Starkville. How you want the hair comb, wet or dry?"

"I'll take it dry," said Popkin, and relapsed into thoughtful silence in the barber chair.

That Friday Mr. Popkin put his wife in his Plymouth and drove ten miles into Starkville. Mr. and Mrs. Popkin went into the Rivoli at eight o'clock and came out at eleven-thirty, and when the two of them got into the Plymouth again, Mr. Popkin had his answer.

Episode No. 2

Early the next morning Nicholas Popkin, smiling broadly, visited in quick succession the butcher shop of Herman Takasch, the tonsorial parlor of Tony Molinari and the tailoring establishment of Sam Kopitsky. To each of his friends he presented the same conspiratorial plan, and when he left them, after fifteen minutes of whispered conversation, they had laughingly, and with much hilarity, promised to do what he asked them.

"It's just a joke, of course," Mr. Popkin explained to his three friends. "But it's the only way I can think of to make that Gus Malvina see his Rocksy like I see it."

"Sure, sure, we help," Takasch, Kopitsky and Molinari all said. "That fellow Malvina, it's 'bout time he wake up."

Episode No. 3

The Rocksy's Mr. Malvina had lived in Zinopolis for fifteen years. Up until a few years ago he had always made a comfortable living out of the place; he managed the house himself, and he rather fancied his ability to squeeze the last penny of concessions out of the film salesmen. Once in a while you could find a letter from him in "The Exhibitor Has His Say" column of his favorite trade paper. The letters were all the same. "Metro pictures? Terrible. Warner's? Awful. Fox? No good. These producers don't know how to make pictures any more. A small exhibitor just can't make money nowadays."

When Malvina wasn't thumbing idly through the trade papers in his little office next to the projection room, he could be found in Nicholas Popkin's tobacco and stationery store on Main Street or visiting with some of his other acquaintances in Zinopolis. So when Mr. Popkin left his three friends that Saturday morning and went back to his store, he knew that sometime that day Gus Malvina would be around. Mr. Popkin was prepared for him.

Popkin was down behind the counter checking up some stock when he heard the squeak of the door as it opened. Mr. Popkin straightened up and looked at Gus Malvina.

"H'ya, Gus," Popkin smiled. "How's the Rocksy?"

"How should it be?" said Malvina, sourly. "Gimme pack o' Luckies." He threw some change on the counter.

Mr. Popkin didn't move. He just stood still, smiling at Malvina. "Pack o' Luckies, eh, Gus?"

"I got 'em, Gus. Here you are." Mr. Popkin took down a package of Lucky Strikes from the shelf, picked up a razor blade, slit the package neatly down the sides and threw the paper wrapping away. Then he tossed the twenty loose cigarettes out on the counter.

"Hey, wootsa idea!" Malvina spluttered. "You crazy? What kinda monkey business you call that? If that's your idea of a joke . . ."

"Now, now, take it easy, Gus. You asked for cigarettes, didn't you? What do you need the wrapping for? It's the cigarettes you want, isn't it? What do you care if they're fixed up pretty? Go ahead, pick 'em up."

"I want my money's worth, that's what," Malvina yelled. "I want my cigarettes in a package. I don't have to buy from you—I can go some place else!" He swept up his money from the counter and stalked out.

Mr. Popkin smiled to himself as he watched Malvina leave. "Well, that's round one," Popkin said. "Just wait 'til he gets the rest of it."

Episode No. 4

Never had Mr. Malvina had such a day. It wasn't enough that he couldn't get his cigarettes decently wrapped as he always got them; it seemed that the other stores had suddenly gone crazy, too. Never before had Tony Molinari treated him as he had today when he had gone in to have his hair cut. All had gone well enough until Tony had suddenly whipped off the long cloth that covered Mr. Malvina and said, "Okay, Mist' Malvin,' finished. Glad to see you."

Malvina looked at himself in the mirror. He turned to Tony: "Finished? Whaddya mean, finished. You ain't combed it."

"Oh you no need it comb," Tony said, smiling. "What for you need it comb? I tell-a you what, you go comb de hair yourself, heh? What for you need-a the extra trimmings?"

"You comb my hair or you don't get paid."

"Okay, I don' get paid. I no worry."

"You'll go broke if you treat all your customers this way," Malvina shouted. "I'm through. I'll never come in here again."

Mr. Malvina stormed out of the barber shop and Tony Molinari went back and phoned his friend Mr. Popkin. They talked for a few minutes, and when Tony hung up the receiver, he was chuckling to himself.

But it wasn't until the next day, at the Sunday afternoon poker session, that the full report of Gus Malvina's tribulations reached Mr. Popkin. Herman Takasch, the butcher, had refused to wrap the porterhouse steak that Malvina had ordered, claiming that Malvina had asked for a steak and had got a steak, and that having it wrapped wasn't necessary. "I tell dat faller, dat Gaus Malvina," said Herman, "you cook paper, or you cook steak? Paper is trimmings. Not necessary."

Mr. Malvina hadn't taken the steak.

Yet it was in Sam Kopitsky's tailor shop that Mr. Popkin's plan had reached its final flowering. Into the shop came Gus Malvina, very dark and red in the face and demanded the topcoat he had ordered. "And don't tell me you're not going to wrap it, either," Malvina rasped out. "I've had enough of that today, already."

"Wrep op the coat?" said Sam. "Sure, I'll gonna wrep op the coat. But first you'll gonna try it on, please. For the fit."

"Okay, okay," grunted Malvina. "But hurry it up. I gotta get back to the Rocksy. Got work to do."

So Kopitsky gently took off its hanger the very new topcoat Malvina had ordered and holding it by the collar, helped Malvina into it. "There you are," Kopitsky said. "Look by the mirror."

Malvina stepped forward for a closer look into the three-sided mirror, smoothed the front of the coat down and then, putting his hands in the side pockets, looked at himself again. Then he tried to button the coat. There were no buttons.

Malvina was so mad he couldn't talk. All he could do was point. He kept stabbing at the front of the coat with his finger, trying to show the tailor what was wrong. Finally, he managed to splutter, "the buttons—where's them buttons? How'm I gonna wear——"

"Bottons?" asked Kopitsky innocently, "you want bottons, too?"

"Yes, I want buttons. What kinda dope you think I am, going 'round in a coat with no buttons. Sam, are you nuts?"

"Oh no, Mr. Malvina, I know what I do. You ordered one topcoat, I make you one topcoat. You'll gonna be warm even without bottons. Of course, I'm figuring all you're interested in is keeping plain warm. Yes, or no, Mr. Malvina?"

EPISODE No. 5

After the Sunday afternoon poker game, Mr. Popkin and his three friends sauntered by the Rocksy. The cashier behind the ticket window was reading a magazine. Gus Malvina standing near the box-office eyed the four men gloomily, but said nothing.

Popkin turned to his friends. "Shall we tell him?" he asked. Takasch, Kopitsky and Molinari all nodded their heads. "Sure, sure, tell him," Kopitsky said. "Tell him so he'll don't think we're so crazy."

"You don't have to tell me nothing," Malvina said. "I'm off you guys for life."

"Oh, no, you're not," said Mr. Popkin. "We're really doing you a favor. Now listen. You didn't like it when I gave you cigarettes loose like I did, did you? No. And you didn't like it when Herman handed you that steak without wrapping it? No. And when Tony cut your hair without combing it, you didn't like that either, did you? And you sure didn't like it when Sam gave you your coat without buttons, did you? No. Well, Gus, you're just as bad as we were trying to be. Maybe not quite so bad because we were kinda putting it on thick so's you could see the point——"

"Whaddya mean, me?" Malvina countered. What did I ever do like that—"

"Wait a minute; wait a minute! You run a theatre, don't you? You ask money for it, don't you? So what do we get? Sure we get pictures," Mr. Popkin said reasonably, "but how do we get pictures? I admit I didn't realize what was wrong until I went over to the Rivoli. I thought all pictures had to be fuzzy and gray-looking like yours. And the surroundings! The pictures ain't everything. Look at your place, worn-out, dingy-looking, run down . . . why you just give your customers the—the—the skeleton, the bare skeleton, that's what. So we—me and Sam and Herman and Tony thought we'd try the same on you—we'd leave out the trimmings and see how you liked it. Now you know . . . Whew! That was a long speech!"

THE OUTCOME

"That's right, that's right, Gus," said the other three conspirators. "We just wanted to show you."

"Aw, you fellows are crazy. Besides, I can't afford to fix this place over. The business just ain't there."

"Okay, okay," said Nicholas Popkin, "but remember, Gus, it's the trimmings that count. We don't HAVE to come here. Right, boys?"

"Right," said Takasch.

"Right," said Molinari.

"Right," said Kopitsky.

"Well, we'll be seeing you," said Popkin. "Now how about visiting a good theatre? How about the Rivoli, boys? What do you say?"

"Okay," said Takasch and Molinari and Kopitsky.

"Wrap it up, boys," Popkin said, and all four men walked away.

Gus Malvina watched them thoughtfully. "I wonder . . ." he said to himself. "Are they crazy, or am I?"

REPORTS PROGRESS; PREDICTS GOOD BUSINESS

REPORTING many important technical contributions to the motion picture sound recording and reproducing fields from the RCA Research Laboratories during the past year, Edward C. Cahill, Division Manager, recently reviewed 1940's progress and took a look into the future. He revealed that his company's sound reproducer sales during 1940 were considerably ahead of 1939's total.

"This has been a year of unusual progress in the technical field," he said. "It has seen the introduction of the revolutionary new Fantasound as the first practical solution of the problem presented by the unnatural concentration of motion picture sound behind the screen.

"Further, 1940 witnessed the development of Panoramic Sound, to provide more realistic sound reproduction for theatres of every size and description at a moderate cost, and utilizing all presently-installed equipment. Establishment of film standards by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences must precede its general release to the industry.

"Then there was the introduction of the new magic screen during the year, providing exhibitors with an entirely new type of low-cost screen—new in light reflecting characteristics, and in sound transmitting properties. Among other forward steps during the year were the introduction of new low-cost, highly-efficient reproducing system for small theatres, and the new record player mechanism especially designed to operate with modern theatre sound systems.

"Also introduced in 1940 was a radically new, portable recording equipment packed in suit-case size carrying cases. Used in recording "The Ramparts We Watch" and numerous newsreel sequences, the system was hailed as one of the most important contributions to the recording art in recent years. In addition, certain refinements in studio recording apparatus were introduced in 1940."

Mr. Cahill continued, "thanks to generally improved business conditions and an apparent understanding on the part of thousands of exhibitors of the need for modernizing their houses, the outlook for 1941 continues favorable.

"It is notable that during the latter half of 1940 an unusually large portion of reducer sales were to operators of new houses, either building or planned," he said. "The industry is continuing to expand its outlets in virtually every section of the country."

Plan Well for Safety in Stage Equipment

Too frequently, plans for the mechanical elements of a stage are subjected to demands for economy, because the workings of the stage are too little understood, or the safety element is not taken seriously.

When properly planned, an efficient stage can be installed with genuine long-time economy and complete safety. Proper planning, however, requires complete knowledge of the stress, strain and load to be handled on all stage devices. There are danger points which must have complete analysis and understanding.

It is unquestionably false economy to specify such material as head blocks, loft blocks, floor blocks, cable and so forth of a weight and quality less than is absolutely needed to handle the maximum load. Permanent safety in operation and low maintenance costs can be provided for with equipment that will stand up for many years.

Decoratively, the theatre chair is perhaps the largest item in an auditorium scheme. As such it should be a thing of beauty and harmony with all other elements therein.

AIR CONDITIONING NEEDS MEN WITH TRAINING

EVERY technical industry in this country, including air conditioning, needs men who have been "properly trained," Dr. Willis H. Carrier, chairman of the board of Carrier Corporation, told members of the New York Section of the American Physical Society at a recent meeting at Syracuse University.

Contending that there are plenty of openings for the right men, Dr. Carrier explained that by proper training he meant men who have been educated "rather than merely superficially informed as we find the great majority of students coming to us today."

"We need men who are able to advance the boundaries of human knowledge and accomplishment," he maintained. "If it had not been for old Steele's natural philosophy, which I found around the house when a boy, together with a natural curiosity which led to my reading and studying all by myself, thus acquiring my grounding in physics, it is quite possible that I would not have developed air conditioning."

He pointed out that the so-called "best students" often fail, where those considered their scholastic inferiors succeed.

"We want men with elastic minds, men who are not 'mentally muscle-bound'," said Dr. Carrier. "We need men who have a conception of the broad generalities, or the philosophy of physical science rather than the narrow technicians.

"This does not mean that the individual should not, in addition, have been trained in precision, in thoroughness and in respect for the truth," he added. "The latter is a part of all sound education and while it must not be ignored, it must not be overemphasized to the exclusion of a true perception and appreciation of the broader philosophy of the science."

Contending that undergraduate work in engineering should never be specialized, Dr. Carrier contended that emphasis should be placed on training to develop independent thinking and good work habits, rather than toward amassing factual knowledge.

"This is equally true of the training for an engineer who is later to follow air conditioning," he said. "He needs, however, a thorough grounding in the mechanics of fluids, in thermodynamics and heat transfer.

"The air conditioning engineer also must know something about sound. For air conditioning to be acceptable, it must be quiet. This problem of noise is particularly acute in broadcasting and movie studios, as well as in theatres."

Hospitality is a potent quality in entertainment provision. Practice it as you do in your home and you'll find your paying guests returning more often.

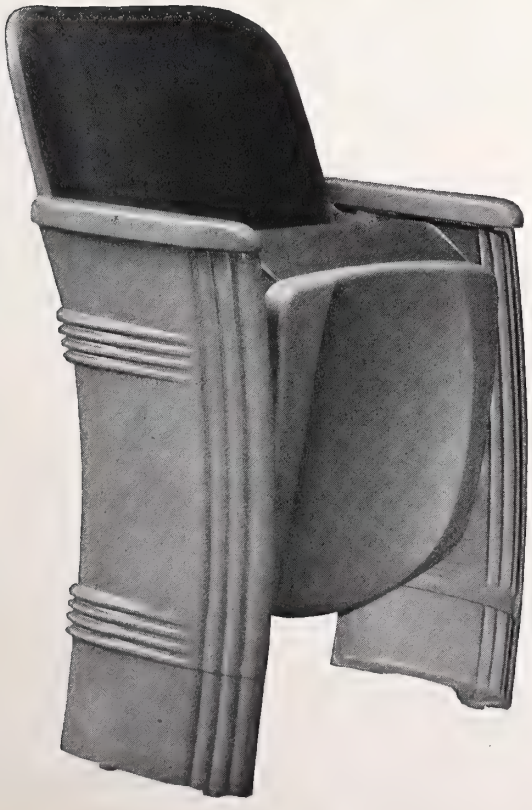
Lewin Designs Another Modern for Rockford

The Auburn district in Rockford, Illinois, is now the only important business sector in the city without a motion picture theatre. But ground was recently broken for the erection of the New Auburn Theatre in this district on Auburn Street just east of North Main for the Auburn Amusement Company, of which Willard N. Van Matre is president.

Edward Paul Lewin, a member of The Modern Theatre Planning Institute, who also designed and built the Times Theatre in Rockford in 1938, is architect for the new house. The Auburn and Times theatres are the only new houses that have been constructed in Rockford in the last decade.

The new house will be completely air conditioned and will contain many new developments in theatre construction and design, of which the main feature will be a circular crystal railed stairway from the main foyer to the lounge rooms in the basement.

The complete case history of this project with further descriptive sketches of the design will be presented in one of the forthcoming issues of The Modern Theatre section. Completion is set for September, 1, 1941.



A view showing how the circular crystal stairway immediately off the fountain lounge in the new Auburn Theatre will appear after completion this Fall.

Spring cleaning time will soon be upon us. This is the time when changes of appearance, installation of new equipment and general refurbishing are most timely.

A DEPARTMENT FOR THE DISCUSSION OF PROVISIONS FOR HOUSE APPEAL UNDERFOOT

Carpet is a Keynote in the Modern Theatre Plan for House Appeal

by HELEN KENT

THERE is one item of modern theatre furnishing which perhaps covers more territory both literally and figuratively, than any other-carpet. Yet, so often this very important functional material is passed over lightly and given too little consideration by theatre owners or builders of new houses. Unfortunately, beautiful carpet is just taken for granted. No doubt this may be attributed to the fact that we all place so much trust in the carpet manufacturers, and of course this trust is well-founded.

However, the carpet people certainly consider us, their customers. The American rug and carpet industry is a venerable and trustworthy element of the American scene. Reliability has been built up over years of service—and latterly over years of service specifically to the theatre industry. Theatre people are able to judge quality in carpet trustingly by no other scale than the list of prices, knowing full well that a real money's-worth will be received no matter what the purchase price.

The carpet-maker's advice may be taken quite safely in all matters pertaining to the purchase and installation of his product. He knows best and his advice has been found to be impartial and unbiased. The manufacturer wants to see the most practical product of his art placed in a position of trust at all times, yet if the purse-strings are not too elastic, he will advise accordingly and explain differences in the price scale in a forthright manner.

Basis for Decoration

Too, the carpet manufacturer has become a competent decorative and color counsellor. Since carpet is now regarded as a basic element of the decorative scheme, it is only natural that the carpet-maker's advice in this direction would be most reliable and studied. Staffs of artists are maintained by the leading mills and their representatives for this purpose and their counsel is highly valuable to all purchasers of theatre carpet.

But we take all these things for granted. We let the carpet people think out our problems for us and then we don't even give them a second thought. Perhaps we should, since undoubtedly the carpet weavers welcome cooperation—even criticism—on the part of those they serve so splendidly.

In the first place, carpet has been considered a necessity in the theatre only since the introduction of sound in motion picture entertainment. Prior to that time it was looked upon by most theatre men merely as a luxury for the lavish metropolitan houses and only occasionally was this beautiful decorative medium used in smaller theatres. Then it was used only for foyer decoration and very seldom in auditoriums, except for occasional aisle runners.

For this reason, grades of carpeting designed for homes or hotels were loosely adapted to theatre use and often they were neither particularly applicable nor long-wearing enough to be of much service either decoratively or otherwise. In the "movie palaces," as they were known, it was almost a custom to have carpet designed and woven especially for the purpose. The stock theatre carpet pattern was quite an unknown quantity.

Acoustic Necessity

However, with the coming of sound it was an acoustic necessity to carpet the aisles of auditoriums in even the most unpretentious houses. The scraping of feet on hard concrete or wood floors was a tremendous detriment to proper sound reception and carpeting soon became one of the leading elements in the improvement of sound conditions.

Hundreds of mistakes were made in these early days. Because of the added expense of procuring sound equipment, only the smallest appropriations were set aside for acoustic considerations and of these carpet was probably slighted to the greatest extent. Some of the cheapest and most impractical installations of this once-luxury furnishing were made hurriedly and without regard to decorative appropriateness or anything else.

Fortunately these hurried and inappropriate installations did not last long because they were not made for the heavy traffic service to be found in first class theatres. But many disappointments were felt among the theatre fraternity which by this time was bewildered by a great many other things as well.

Even the carpet mills were caught unaware when this sudden great influx of theatre floor covering business came their way. They had plenty of carpet on hand in all grades and colors, but they found that their cheaper grades were the ones which appealed to a majority of their theatre purchasers and it was with some reluctance that they saw these installed in such heavily trafficked areas.

Design for Theatres

A second puzzler was that of the "theatre pattern." There was no such thing as a stock theatre design for carpeting and the designs on hand were highly inappropriate and much too colorless for this new use. It was imperative that the mills bestir themselves immediately to satisfy this new demand, both as to finer quality and more dramatic design interest.

So the carpet weavers set to work and began turning out carpeting of a type with especial appeal to theatre buyers—and theatre patrons. For this purpose, they studied the situation and discussed it with theatre-owners, managers, architects, decorators and maintenance men—to learn the outsiders' angles on their business. It was of great help to them to have the cooperation and design assistance of the ones for whom they were working.

Thus was born the stock theatre pattern. From such a small beginning came the beautifully appropriate and highly ef-

PRELUDE

This article inaugurates a new round table medium for the discussion of theatre floor coverings. The department will be conducted by Miss Kent in collaboration with the design and production staffs of a number of leading carpet mills whose products and patterns are already familiar to theatre trade. Introducing the subject with a general resume of conditions leading up to the present status of carpet as a basic element of the modern theatre plan, succeeding articles in the series will deal more concretely with current developments and trends in all phases of floor covering for all classes of theatres, including reviews of current pattern and product development, decorative effects, maintenance factors and other details.

INFORMATION

Readers who desire special information or advice on the selection or application of theatre carpets are invited to communicate with Helen Kent in care of The Modern Theatre section, 332 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., accompanying such inquiry with postage for reply. All problems will be given prompt and helpful attention.

ficient floor covering which today is taken for granted as the most logical material for the purpose to be used throughout the theatre. Today in small houses as well as large ones, in just plain "picture shows" as well as "Music Halls," carpet is one item of furnishing which is of practically stable quality and beauty.

No longer is it necessary for theatre owners seeking novelty or innovation to have carpet patterns designed especially for their exclusive use. That is still done and is not to be discouraged in many cases, but it is a custom which the carpet manufacturers have made quite unnecessary in most instances because they now provide such an unlimited scope of patterns, colors and styles that are primarily suitable for theatre use. Almost any taste can be satisfied from stock these days.

The Quality Scale

Stock patterns for theatres does not necessarily refer to a single scale of quality or prices either. The gamut of quality and cost is as flexible as ever. There are still cheap grades and expensive luxury grades, with all the intermediates available as well. But there is a norm in theatre carpeting—a number of grades which have been found most serviceable for this use—and in this type one will find practically anything desired in the way of style and color selection.

The popularity of carpet as the most practical floor covering for theatres is no accident. It is the result of the carpet weavers' striving to be of the greatest service. Remember this in purchasing new floor coverings and the consideration will be well worth-while. Consider the advice of the carpet man; "he knows whereof he speaks," as in further articles on the subject we will undertake to confirm.

The Popliteal Rates Exhibitor Attention

A part of the anatomy, upon which a great deal of patron comfort depends, is being brought to the attention of theatre people by American Seating Company whose research department seems to have uncovered the very definite bearing this part of the body has on relaxation and comfort for the seated patron. This unfamiliar anatomical portion of the human frame-work is termed the "popliteal," described by Webster's as the "back part of the leg behind the knee joint."

Because arteries, veins and nerves are close to the skin surface at this point, the popliteal is very sensitive. Pressure on this part of the body causes legs to "go to sleep" and is responsible for nervousness and restlessness. A new seating development by the company is said to take pressure off this nerve center.

Incorporating a new front-edge construction in all except its lower-priced models of theatre chairs, American Seating Company has announced a "feather foam front" as its latest comfortizing development. The new seat edge is extra soft and pillowy, having no hard steel wires and no rolled or packed stuffing across the front. It fits the under side of the knee-joint and supports it amply, but without pressure of any kind. Thus, the popliteal, which really deserves attention despite its unfamiliar technical name, is caressed in another new move to bring more comfort to the theatre-going public.

LITERATURE

The following concerns have recently filed copies of interesting descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau. Readers who may wish copies of such literature may obtain them promptly by addressing The Modern Theatre, 332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Carrier Corporation, of Syracuse, New York, submits a most interesting 44-page brochure entitled "20 Years Centrifugal Refrigeration," in which the subject is covered understandably in all its phases. Many illustrations, drawings and graphs add interest to the presentation.

J. R. Clancy, Inc., of Syracuse, New York, presents its Catalog No. 44 on stage construction, equipment and theatrical hardware. The 48-page booklet is profusely illustrated with both actual installation photos and individual pieces of equipment in pictures and diagrams. Prices also are given in this catalog.

Ex-Cell Products Corp., of Chicago, Illinois, files a copy of its folder on modern sand urns. Several models are pictured in color and described. Advantages of the products are outlined and prices are given.

S. C. Lawlor Company, of Chicago, Illinois, submits a folder covering Lawlor Floor Maintenance Equipment. Scrubbing, waxing and polishing machines are described and pictured and general specifications are covered in this pamphlet. Mopping tanks and mop wringers also are given attention.

The Polaroid Corporation, of Boston, Massachusetts, presents its Survey No. 1 on the remarkable new scientific discovery, Polaroid. The new light controlling medium is delineated in a manner that is understandable to the layman and its advantages in many uses are outlined—with one of essential application to the motion picture industry.

Universal Building Products Corp., of Dallas, Texas, submits several pieces of literature on various metal products, including mirror frames, poster and display frames, and entrance doors and store fronts of extruded aluminum and bronze. All of the products bear the trade name "Sealuxe" and the informative literature covers their uses and advantages most comprehensively.

Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., of Stamford, Connecticut, presents an attractively designed little booklet entitled "Loxology," in which is given a history of lock security and of the Yale & Towne Company as well. Many attractive illustrations and drawings of lock mechanism make this booklet interesting and useful.

NOTICE: Manufacturers of all products adapted to theatre modernization or maintenance are invited to file latest copies of their catalogues or descriptive literature with The Modern Theatre Information Bureau.—THE EDITOR.

INTERESTING CASE HISTORIES ON CURRENT MODERN THEATRE PROJECTS

Case History and Notes on a New England Modernizing Project

BEFORE and after (modernization) views of the Majestic Theatre in West Springfield, Massachusetts, are quite inspiring. They bring to mind the many style changes this industry has witnessed within the past decade or so. An entire atmosphere was changed in this instance, which is typical of the many remodeling projects that have taken place recently and that are under consideration even at the present time.

The Majestic Theatre operated by Al Gould of the Majestic Amusement Corporation, was an example of the many small grind shops which do nothing much for the industry nor for their owners either. Such houses are not encouraging to theatre business and the entire industry is influenced by the fact that too many of these places still dot the countryside. More and more they are being changed into modern theatres with a purpose to entertain, but the process is yet too slow for the good of all concerned.

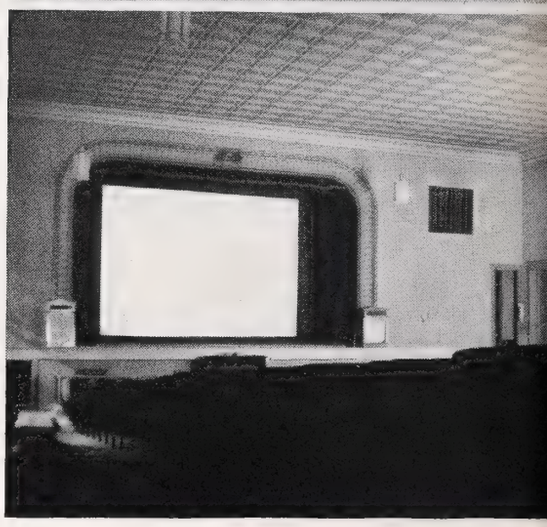
Primarily, one will note from the views of the Majestic Theatre before its recent renovation a general air of gloom and drabness which seemed to radiate to all parts of the house. Gloom was never a colleague of amusement and it is strange that the two should ever have met and resided together so long as in the case of too many of our older motion picture theatres.

Lack of Style and Beauty

Secondly, there was not one iota of style in the old Majestic. From front to rear, not a single element of beauty, novelty or good taste was evident. It was exactly like any other cheaply-put-together small movie, which makes one wonder at the infinite patience of picture patrons after all.

We are so condemning the little old Majestic Theatre in New England merely to cite it as an example of what has been so general throughout the theatre field. This one has now lost its dreariness and emerges as an invitingly beautiful showplace; but there are still thousands of its ilk which have not. They and their owners are the ones which deserve the pointed finger.

The new Majestic is a completely functional contrast to the old in every respect. The new is bright and smiling throughout, exuding hospitality and charm, whereas the old made one want to frown and hold one's breath to avoid the coldness of atmosphere which permeated every nook and cranny.

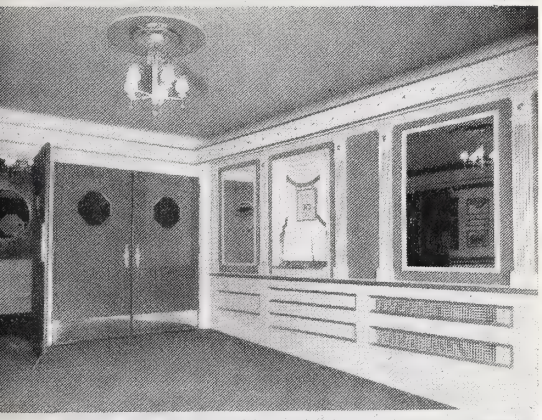


Colonial, Modern Version

As to style, the new house has it in all particulars. Wisely suiting the architectural and decorative motif to the New England locale and interests of its residents, a Colonial treatment was selected for application in a modernized version to this old house. The building required little

BEFORE

BEFORE and AFTER TAKING



The cure for the ills of the old Majestic Theatre in New England was a complete renovation tonic. The panel of views at left shows the generally dilapidated condition of the old house in which not one whit of invitation to patrons could be discerned. The panel of views at the right, arranged in the same order for cross reference, depicts what could be and was done to put the several departments of this house back on the profit side of the ledger. The comparison is interesting. Economy and quality combined to effect the complete recovery of this theatre. (All photos courtesy Capitol Theatre Supply Company, Boston, Mass.)

Dingy is the word for the original foyer (left) of the Majestic Theatre in West Springfield. Charming best describes the new foyer (right), wherein the Colonial motif provides a light and airy atmosphere. Note of irony: The display of dishes in the "before" view is no longer necessary in this house which has returned to the business of entertainment.

structural change except for cleaning the two-story brick facade and refurbishing the fronts of two shops at either side of the theatre entrance.

Structural glass in cadet blue was then applied to the entranceway to add a gleamingly reflective touch and more color. Display frames in Colonial styling also were installed at either side of the entrance. The familiar pillar and capital motif distinguishes them and adds beauty to the front.

A new marquee further graces the Majestic. Where formerly a poorly lighted and unimpressive small box affair served, now a broad three-sided canopy extends completely across the front of the building, above the theatre entrance and also over the shops. It is brilliantly lighted and display space with clearly legible silhouette letters makes the whole ensemble a potent advertising medium.

The lobby with boxoffice to one side is now beautifully treated in the Colonial manner. Its lightness and cheeriness contrast notably with the dreariness of the former lobby. White enamelled woodwork and pastel-tinted panelling, a characteristic of this most applicable style of interior decoration, lends a particularly pleasant note to the hospitality of this first-to-be-seen part of the house.

Inspired Traditional

Conventional and traditional describes the foyer of the renewed Majestic. Here a white enamelled wood panelled wainscot and other woodwork carry out the traditional, while conventional floral patterned carpet and wall paper, which might be an exact replica from an old Colonial mansion, give a charm which cannot be overestimated. Colonial-inspired lighting fixtures and mirrors enhance the scene further. A charming ladies' lounge may be glimpsed in the background.

How utterly different is this foyer from the one which it supersedes. Dingy and drab were the words for the old Majestic's reception room with its inappropriate lace curtains and a closed entrance to the ladies' lounge, which no doubt was hardly a pretty sight either. An ironic note is the display of "etched gold" dishes, a giveaway which could be and was banished when the owners of the house went back into the entertainment business.

The auditorium is a picture of newfound beauty and relaxing comfort for patrons. Here the charm of good taste in decoration and functionality combine to make a perfect setting for entertainment consumption. The barn-like contours of the old house have been obliterated by clever manipulation of lines and decorative effects to make a smart, yet not pretentious, scene for modern moving picture presentation.

Economy Plus Quality

Economy also was an important element in the Majestic's renovation. And it may be seen that not a great deal of money need necessarily be expended to gain an effect of refined charm and inviting atmosphere. The entire project bespeaks quality, however, and this rather than any other aspect keeps the new Majestic in the smart class of theatres—the money-making class. All of its new equipment and furnishings are of the finest quality, which

PRACTICAL DISCUSSIONS ON MODERN PROJECTION AND SOUND PRACTICES

Defects in Motion Picture Projection and Their Correction

by IRL GORDON*

CONTROL of the flicker evil has had much attention from the industry. Flicker caused by shutters, light fluctuation, and uneven photography has been investigated, and progress has been made on the elimination of each. But today there still exists an evil which has been with us since the first release print. It is the evil of oily film, which is becoming more and more noticeable through the adoption of more brilliant light-sources and high-key photography.

It is essential to good projection that the film be clean, since every defect is highly magnified, and any deviation from perfect cleanliness is detrimental. Perhaps the most commonly recognized indication of oily film is the traveling "frame-line effect," so noticeable with the high-key prints. A lighter area, the width of a frame line, starts from the bottom of the screen, and travels slowly to the top. This is surrounded by a darker flickering area superimposed over the entire picture.

All oil patterns are not of such a well defined shape. They vary from frame to frame and depend in extent upon the amount of oil on the film at that moment. The pattern changes from one rewinding to another. It always shows on the screen as a crawling, spotty effect which may move from bottom to top as the "frame-line effect," or horizontally as a dancing effect. It may even appear as a wavering mass of flicker. If the film is light or toned, the effect is very pronounced, due to the contrast between the oil spots and unaffected areas.

If oil is present on the film in a thick layer the image becomes blurred, causing an out-of-focus effect. This type of oily film shows a strong tendency to buckle under heating. The alternate sharpness and blur of the image, combined with "mass flicker effect," are very tiring to the eyes, and with the long show times of double-feature bills, running from three hours upward, sets up a condition discussed by Snell, namely, "Anything causing difficult seeing will result in eye-strain."

The combined action of all the various types of flicker caused by oil spots, constantly changing position over a period of hours, most certainly must affect the eyes of the theatre patron and mar his enjoyment. Almost all films, after the first and second runs, have some oil on their surface.

Various kinds of oil are used for lubricating motion picture projectors. Some are thin and fairly transparent; others are of a heavy, sticky automobile type used under the mistaken impression that they will cling to the bearings longer. When any oil is on the film, dirt, dust, and bits of grit are picked up and lodge along the path of the film in the projector, or cling to the rotary stabilizer drum of the sound-head thus constituting a prolific cause of scratches. If the emulsion with all this dirt, which acts as an abrasive, happens to "skid" while rewinding, fine scratches occur which soon fill up with dirt and show on the screen as a form of "rain."

Once oil is on the print, it is a difficult job to remove it without proper cleaning machines. The mere wiping of the film with a rag moistened with cleaning fluid will not do much good, since in a very short time the rag becomes so dirty it merely smears the accumulated dirt over a larger area. Very few theatres have installed cleaning machines.

Film images may be classified broadly into four groups accordingly as they show oil spots, as follows:

(1) The first and worst is probably the toned print, and the most seriously affected of this type is the brown toned film. Indeed if a liberal dose of oil is present, the result is so very annoying that it will detract from the dramatic value of the story in spite of concentration on the part of the observer. We have had many complaints of "something wrong with the picture," when showing this type of print. "Frame-line effect" and "mass movement of oil" stand out very clearly.

(2) The next is the print in the light or high-key, containing very light scenes, outdoor western shots, and scenes in which there are great areas of low density. "Frame-line" and "mass" effects predominate. Dirt and scratches show plainly. Cartoons are included in this group.

(3) Color-film comes next. With some scenes, the oil causes a fuzzy appearance; on the lighter scenes "frame-line" and "mass" effects are very annoying. In only a few instances, however, does the oil appear to change the color values. However, with the trend to lighter color prints the oil evil is becoming more troublesome, because on the dark prints of the past the oil spots did not show up so plainly as explained below.

(4) Probably the least affected are very dark prints, in which even the highlights are grayed considerably. These are called "low-key" prints. Oil on this type shows only as a mass effect in the lighter portions of the scene, causing a wavering effect. The tendency for the emulsion to become scratched seems greater, which may be accounted for by the fact that the emulsion appears to be softer when much oil is present. If oil happens to be present in considerable quantity the image seems to change color. Dense prints are difficult to project in any event, and the addition of oil and dirt further reduces the brilliancy of the screen image. Some tendency to buckle has been experienced with oily dark prints, though this can not be stated as the general rule.

Oil gets on film in various ways. A new print will begin to show signs of oil along the left side within a short time. With the new print, poor waxing or treatment before showing is one reason why the print is often "directly oiled." A new print as received from the exchange has been either waxed or treated. The first time through the projector everything is fine. After three or four showings, however, trouble very often starts. Usually during the evening show on the opening day the print begins to stick. Late-model projectors have means for tension release, but tension has to be so loose that the screen image will jump, and rather than face a bill from the exchange for strained perforations or have a jumpy picture, the tension is eased up a little and oil is poured on the perforation track, which in successive runs spreads over increasingly large sections of the film. Quite a number of first-run projectionists have felt obliged to resort to this oiling practice at some time or other. As to the relative merits of the various film treatments with respect to preventing oil spotting I have no reliable data, but do know that sticking occurs with all of them on occasion.

The most common path of access to the film is through contact of the film with oil in the projector mechanism, particularly near bearings or intermittents, and in sound-heads. Worn bearings, leaks at the intermittent and over-oiling cause oil to be smeared over the interior of projector and sound-heads, often causing pools of oil to be formed. Gears throw off oil which drains and seeps through crevices, often running down the magazines, to drop either in a pan or directly upon the floor under the lower magazine causing an oily area which collects dirt and dust. In threading, the leaders are dropped on the floor, gathering this oil and dirt. The first two hundred feet of a film are always oily and dirty, tending to make change-overs noticeable. The oil is carried by the back of the film, sticks to the rotary stabilizer drum in the sound-head, and is distributed over additional areas. As a result of rewinding, the oil and dirt are spread along the film until finally they are present from end to end of the reel.

NAME IN LIGHTS

Nipper, the venerable Victor Dog, has at last achieved that goal of all great entertainers—his name and picture in lights on New York's Great White Way. It took the revolutionary cartoon-movie "Fantasia" to put this most famous trade-mark into Times Square's aura of lights. It is located on the Palace Theatre building and occupies three floors.

The complete abolishment of the oil evil will be a difficult task. It requires careful study and cooperation by all concerned: everyone from producer to projectionist, including equipment manufacturers. Such evils lower entertainment values and, in the last analysis, detract from boxoffice income; hence everyone connected with the industry is affected. People tire of attending theatres where the screen fare is marred by flicker and the sound reproduction punctuated by pops, cracks, and unevenness caused by oil and accumulated dirt. With each new advance toward a brighter screen image, the defect becomes more visible, and the time to effect eradication of it is right now.

The theatre can do its part by providing the necessary rags, cleaning materials, and working conditions (some projection rooms boast as much as one rag a month). Above all, theatre managements should insist that exchanges supply cleaned prints. Projectors should be kept in good repair and a fair amount of supervision exercised by the theatre managers to see that the projection room is kept clean. Reports of film conditions should be kept and action taken when necessary, instead of merely filing the report against the time when the ex-of course is obvious to all who see the new Majestic.

Decoratively, the auditorium carries further Colonial devices in its wall panelling, lighting fixtures and proscenium treatment. The walls are covered with a soft acoustical material over which damask in a rust and gold tassel pattern was placed. This, and the fluted pilasters covered by biege leatherette, is an adaptation of the traditional Colonial wall treatment.

The Majestic Theatre owners also may point with pride to their installation of the first fluorescent carpeting to be used in New England. It is of the same pattern as that used in the foyer, but even greater beauty is brought out by the "black lighting" process. The full-upholstered comfort chairs upholstered in tangerine and finished in grey add another decorative as well as atmospheric touch.

Beautiful draperies and stage curtains on noiseless automatic tracks and control equipment were designed and made especially for this installation. They repeat the predominating rust and gold tones of the decorative scheme and are gracefully swagged with cords and tassels. This drapery treatment is also used at the rear of the auditorium to add interest to the decoration.

Equipment Completely New

Throughout the Majestic entirely new equipment and furnishings were installed. An air conditioning plant of the latest type provides year-round comfort temperatures through modern air diffusers in the ceiling of both auditorium and lobby where they were combined with the lighting fixtures.

In the projection room, the finest and latest model projection and sound equipment and accessories were installed for the most satisfying type of moving picture presentation, which is all that could be countenanced in so fine a theatre. A new screen also was one of the necessities provided.

This forward-looking modernization project is an ideal subject for consideration and study by those thousands of owners of theatres where boxoffice troubles continue to beset them in spite of temporary expedients. It was an economical project in every respect but one in which quality is the by-word, and for this reason greater profit and longer profit-making life is destined to be its lot.

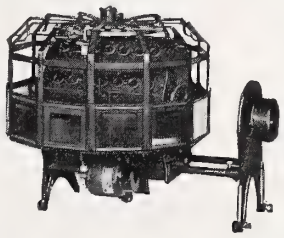
change might complain about film damage. The cooperation of the projectionist should be sought and encouraged, to get the best possible screen image and sound quality at all times. I wonder how many exhibitors, if they were in the automobile business, would drive a mud-spattered car before potential customers, yet they permit parading of oil-soaked films before their regular customers expecting them to like the show and come back for more.



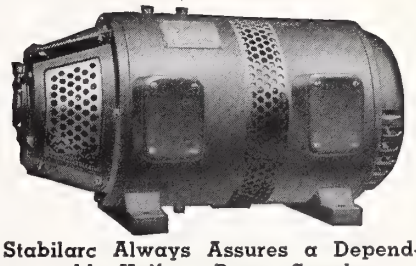
The manufacturers of motion picture projectors should investigate ways of eliminating oil seepage, even going so far as to make something foolproof if necessary. Grease-packed bearings, roller or ball bearings, or better sealing of existing bearings might be considered. Due to the excessive projection angles, much over-oiling takes place when it is attempted to keep oil in the top parts of the bearings. Sound-heads should be drilled to drain any oil that might collect, and some simple oil-catch, flexible enough to fit the older projectors, should be made available. Some of the existing oil-pans and drains will not fit older sound equipment now in use. By using a lighter color for the projectors the oil and dirt would show up, and through pride the projectionist would be led to keep his equipment cleaner. The black now used does not show the oil and dirt plainly and tends to cause neglect.

Exchanges should seek better green film treatment and should clean prints after each booking; also schedules should be worked out to stop the circuiting of prints from theatre to theatre with no inspection or cleaning. Sufficient additional prints should be issued if bookings are heavy. In one instance a print started in a first-run house and was passed on through seven houses before it went back to the exchange. This was regular practice. It was weeks before the print reached the exchange. Further study should be given the treatment of toned prints, and probably some work done on an oil repellent to coat all films. Crabtree and Ives in 1927 suggested that toned prints be treated with a solution that would fill up the pores in the surface of the toned film and thus repel the oil to a great extent. So far as my memory goes, I have never received a print treated in this manner.

If oil were of a brilliant color, it would be so noticeable that it would not be long before steps would be taken to deal with the situation; but since it is semi-transparent, its effects are not fully realized. It will take extensive education and vigilance to cope with the evil. Film goes into all kinds of projection rooms, some dirty, others clean, but by the use of reports, education, and vigilance, it may soon become apparent who are the worst offenders so that steps can be taken to eliminate the source. Only then will the projectionists in the smaller theatres be able to give the patrons excellent projection equal to that in the first-run houses.

It's not one bit too early to start considering your summer air conditioning problems. As a matter of fact, year-round air conditioning is the logical subject for consideration.

Best Automatic Slide Projectors



Extensively used in theatre projection booths, theatre lobbies, and on rooftops with outdoor screens. The 500-watt model accommodates ten standard size (3¼"x 4") or smaller slides, the 1000 and 1500 watt models handle twelve. Powered by heavy duty motors.

Come ready for use completely equipped (except lamp bulb) with an easily focused mirror (which obtains maximum efficiency from the lamp source), approved cord and control switch, and any focus objective lens from 6" up to 36".

"Best" Hand Operated Slide Projectors also come in three sizes. See them at your dealers or write direct for literature.

FACTORIES AT WORK

A series of introductions to theatre equipment manufacturers and the methods behind their products.

Where Curtain Controls and Tracks Come From

THOUSANDS of theatre owners and managers, their architects and others concerned with the selection and purchase of theatre equipment, building materials and furnishings may not believe themselves to be vitally interested in the origin of such products. But it is safe to propose that greater familiarity with sources of supply, methods of manufacture, plant facilities and policies of factory management, would make purchasing a more pleasant and profitable task.

Although many manufacturers invite and encourage their patrons and prospects to visit the factory and see how this or that is made, it is practically impossible for most theatre owners or their agents to accept such invitations unless the factory happens to be close at hand.

To substantially effect the very worthy purpose of the more intimate personal plant inspection tours, we undertake serially starting with this issue of The Modern Theatre section to conduct our readers through a number of factories, whose names and products are seen frequently in print.

Reversing alphabetical order, we start the series of Pictorial Plant Inspection Tours with a visit to Vallen, Inc., at Akron, Ohio, presenting in prelude a few remarks regarding the product and the man behind it.

The Beginning

Back in 1915 a young man just out of Buchtel College set himself up in the general electrical contracting business. His capital then consisted of a small and borrowed "stake," a rented sub-basement on Canal Street and the capacity for hard work over long hours, day in and day out. Akron, Ohio, was at that time experiencing its "mushroom" growth. From small jobs the young man of this narrative went rapidly to larger scale undertakings. First, a country club; then a hospital; several mansions soon followed.

Monte Winters, ever a good showman, was busy with his newly built Strand Theatre which was soon to become the latest and best in movie houses of that era. He stood and looked at his new and unadorned white picture screen and couldn't stand it! He called over the electrical contractor and told him, "I want curtains in front of that screen which will open and close when a switch is pushed in the booth. Can you fix it?"

PLANT LIFE

(Viewed from top downward)

(1) A corner of the clean, well-lighted modernly equipped plant, where the tooling of Vallen products is started; all but the best of raw materials having first been rejected.

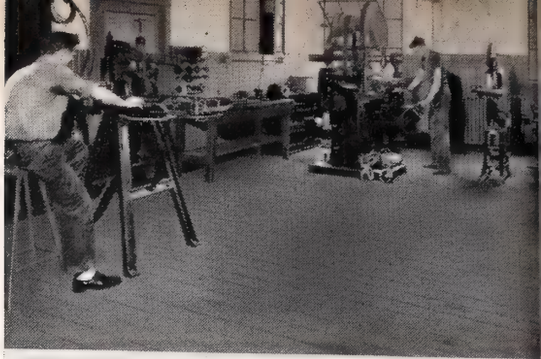
(2) Parts are carefully machined by skilled workmen in broad daylight on modern machinery, most of which was especially designed for the milling of Vallen products.

(3) Here is shown the process of assembly of the precision-built Val-switch—the inventor's own brainchild for the assurance of positive, fool-proof curtain control operation.

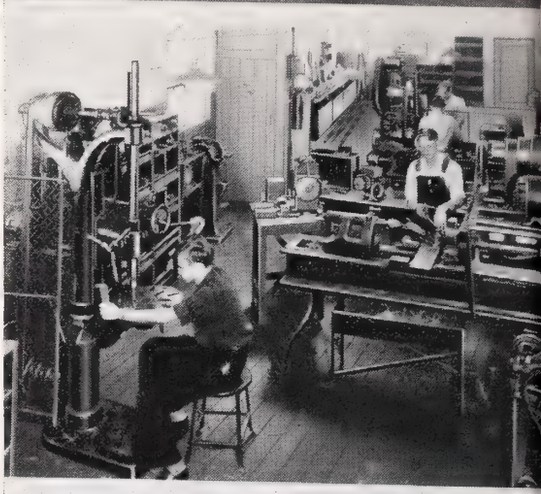
(4) The crucial period of rigid inspection takes place in this spacious, well-kept room where Vallen contrivances are subjected to exacting tests demanded by the man who gave them his name.

(5) And further inspection occurs here, where Vallen tracks reach their final examination which is made during assembly for shipment.

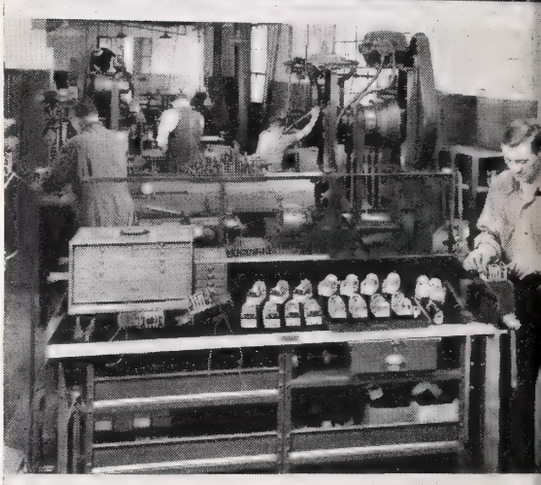
Earl Vallen did and thereby laid the foundation for Vallen, Incorporated, a firm which now is known the world over for its stage curtain tracks and electric controls.



Then came the first World War to temporarily disrupt the proceedings; but when Vallen returned to his business after eighteen months in the A.E.F., he discovered that two more theatres under construction had contracted for electrical curtain operators and it had been stipulated that he should do the work. Then Vallen's creative career began in earnest.

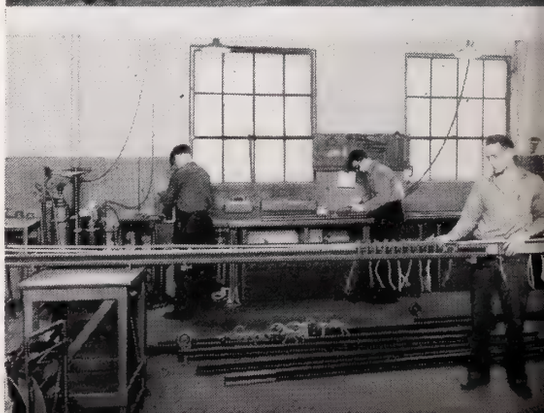


It was not long before the then Vallen Electrical Company had developed the first wooden curtain track which quickly outmoded all previous curtain carriers, particularly the taut-wire type of apparatus.



Created a Standard

Then followed the demand for a satisfactory unit to operate curtains around curved prosceniums. Vallen got busy and soon developed a unit which brought materialization to architects' designs. First of the new units was installed for Billy James, the oldtime Columbus, Ohio, operator. Job followed job. By this time Vallen's equipment had created a standard in curtain operation which became quite as inseparable from the theatre as pictures and play dates.



The time had arrived when concentration on noiseless curtain tracks and controls was indicated. Now franchised as Vallen, Incorporated, the firm built a new factory of its own in 1926. Some of the men still working for Vallen have been with him steadily for almost twenty years. They are part of a relatively small organization of skilled workers and have seen improvement follow improvement. They know every detail of their specialized trades and build equipment to application, thus achieving the best possible installation for the user's need. Today they ship curtain tracks of all-steel and fully automatic curtain controls to all points of the world, confident that they will perform efficiently for years to come. They know that distance is no detriment to the use of their products because they, to quote Mr. Vallen, "have built units not intended for 'peddling' but for purchase on purely manifest merits."

Visitors, always welcome at Vallen's plant in Akron, instantly observe the efficient and workmanlike atmosphere which prevails. They note the well-kept and busy machine shop, testing loft and equipment, modern steel storage bins and assembly benches. A portion of the factory is devoted to experimental study of the company's products with a constant eye to improvement of existing mechanisms and development of new ones.

A Mechanical Mecca

The oldest and largest concern of its kind, Vallen now supplies many unusual equipment requirements in addition to the manufacture of their regular line of curtain operating equipment. The market is no longer the theatre alone; churches, schools, auditoriums, hotels, hospitals and advertising promotions bring their special operating problem needs to Vallen. For instance, if you saw the hit show "Higher and Higher," the five sixty-foot curtains, used so effectively to disguise scene-shifting without necessity of lowering the front drop, were operated by special Vallen units built with special types of mechanical movements.

Earl Vallen, president of Vallen, Inc., is now 50 years old. He is married and has two sons, 15 and 17, in prep school. He is the inventive type of business executive, meticulously critical regarding the quality and use values of products bearing his name. He is practical mechanically and thoroughly at home in his factory where he may often be found helping to set up a milling machine or turning out special parts which he may first have developed and drawn. He dictates his letters "on the run," travels all over the country for his firm, frequently by air. His hobbies are fishing and gardening. With his family he resides on Sand Run Road in suburban Akron, Ohio.

Upholstery Cleaning a Smart Consideration

Theatre chair upholstery soiled by perspiration, dust and dirt from long use should appear as a "must" on the cleaning schedule of every operator. Too, periodic cleaning of upholstery will return handsome dividends in extra years of service for the expenditure of a slight bit of time and effort.

Thorough cleaning is simplicity itself when proper materials and procedure are employed. Needless to say, different materials require different cleaning methods. Selection of method should not be left to chance. A surface improperly cleaned may be damaged. Instructions for cleaning upholstery, removal of spots and stains and care of wood and metal finishes can best be secured from the manufacturer or supplier of the chairs.

ILLUMINATED COLOR-PHOTOS ON THE BOARDS

Not only does the modern theatre attraction board now proclaim the names of pictures and stars in legible silhouette letters, but a recent development, the Wagner Transparency Frame, also makes possible the use of colored photographic illustrations on the marquee in the manner above shown. Made to contain 24 by 24 inch National Screen Accessories transparencies, the new frame is of the same construction and slotting and is applied in the same manner as the changeable silhouette letters with which it is used, thus providing colored, illuminated illustrations which add further interest and life to the theatre's attraction board. DECORATING

THE ARTISTIC SIDE OF ARCHITECTURE AS APPLIED TO THEATRE DECORATION

Seating Plays an Important Role in the Decorative Scheme

by WILLARD H. BOND, Jr.*

A DISCUSSION of the part which seating plays in theatre decoration may start appropriately with the purpose for which theatres exist. While this statement has a somewhat pedantic flavor, it is good sense to remember that disregard of the obvious is one of human nature's more prevalent faults.

Theatres exist in order that entertainment may be made completely enjoyable; and this can come about only through the existence in the minds of patrons of the receptive mood and its companion, an alert imagination. This mood ought not to be taken for granted. "Let's go to the movie" has received its impetus from a long list of reasons, including family quarrels and a desire to get in out of the rain.

Once in the theatre, moods and imaginations are largely in the hands of that telling trio, form, line, and color; and they can be a tyrannical trio as well as gentle sedatives.

Fostering Functionalism

How to further the receptive mood through form, line and color brings us to functionalism, the current name for an age-old truth, the rediscovery of which has brought the usual host of camp-followers, counterfeits and exploiteers. Too often weird groupings of geometrical abstractions, huge glowering masses of masonry or raw color, a total lack of ornament and refinement, have been timidly accepted as functional design rather than the shriveling accusation of being old fashioned.

But in esthetics as well as economics there has never been a worthwhile substitute for clear thinking. Functionalism is the result of clear thinking and functionalism is synonymous with beauty. If this sounds paradoxical, consider that Michelangelo said of beauty, "It is the purgation of superfluities," and Emerson wrote, "We ascribe beauty to that which is simple; which has no superfluous parts; which exactly answers its end; which stands related to all things. It is the most enduring quality and the most ascending quality."

Every great work of art, whether it be a painting, a bit of sculpture, or an architectural masterpiece is built around one central theme; one dominant idea. In a painting it may be the beauty of winter sunlight falling upon melting snow. In architecture it may be the carefree simple life expressed in the rambling woodland lodge; or the precise regularity and orde red safety of banking that is translated into the adequate columns of a chaste and classical facade.

Whatever the theme, each component detail, however casual it may appear to be calls attention to or emphasizes this dominating idea. To the extent that it strays, so will the work of art lose its purpose.

The receptive mood therefore seems the logical theme around which to create the individual theatre, and the problem should be approached as an esthetic obligation.

First Impressions

Welcome, directional facility, relaxation, and rest are qualities contributing to the receptive mood and should be suggested as early as possible, for first impressions are vital. Provocative and startlingly interruptive motives ought to be avoided. Mild interruptives, however, may contribute to a needed sense of movement by stimulating the eye to desire the restoration of the interrupted motive. And in the desire for innovation and novelty, it is wisdom to remember that nothing is as tiresome as yesterday's gewgaws.

Within the auditorium simplicity is even more important. There the imagination performs its miracles, and immediate things recede to temporary oblivion. One day we roll indolently on the south sea swell; another we stagger through a desert waste, sharing the thirst of the foreign legion; while in the evenings we have all kinds of money to spend in the most fabulous of night clubs. In these circumstances should our actual surroundings take a definite decorative pattern and bring us back to an abortive realization of today; or should a luminous untouchable beauty seek to prolong the gifts of imagination and allow a gentle transition back to material surroundings? This is an important question for it has been said truly that the imagination and senses cannot be gratified at the same time.

Within this tranquil atmosphere rests the last opportunity to develop the receptive mood, but it is also the best opportunity. The smartest functional planning and decorative treatment can be more than wasted by imperfect seating.

Comfort Axiomatic

It is probably an axiom of the seating industry that the most desirable virtue of a theatre chair is comfort. Comfort, then, is its central theme; and the designers problem is to make the chair look comfortable.

The modern theatre chair is distinguished by unified appearance rather than the assembled effect of a collection of parts. It is designed as a complete unit. There is no abrupt transition from back to standard. Back and seat outlines flow naturally to fit the form of the body, with no angles to hinder free circulation. End standards are no longer regarded as grand and vertical opportunities for the exercise of cast iron sculpture, but are treated as integral parts of a unified design. Ornamentation and decoration beautify only so far as they emphasize the central theme, comfort. When decoration goes beyond this point, it becomes clever or tricky and betrays a lack of confidence in the fundamental design. These tricky or clever designs may appeal occasionally in the lower taste brackets; but the general average of public taste is high. For the great works of art are great because they have had universal appeal.

The cumulative effect of a modern seating installation is that of an invitation to comfort, an invitation to share the receptive mood.

Use Value of Color

There remains the great common denominator, color, with which to unify the entire theatre; color and light which bring life to form. The distinction between color and light need not be drawn, for color is, after all, sunlight taken apart and labeled. And when we rearrange these parts to emphasize some particular purpose, we must be sure not to leave one out and unbalance the collection. Disregard of the truth behind this statement is quite often responsible for the restless reaction so frequently expressed in the words, "Yes, it's beautiful I guess, but there's something about it I don't quite like."

Color need not be dull to give gentle and subdued effects. Some of the softest and "grayest" paintings are composed with pure and brilliant colors, not mixed, but placed judiciously. Brilliancy of constituent colors gives life to the color composition. This is particularly true in the auditorium where softening lighting effects reduce brilliant harmonies to that ineffable quality of restrained but pulsating life, impossible of attainment through a faint-hearted color approach.

Seating need not be dark and funereal. The receptive mood is not a gloomy one; it is buoyant, happy, expectant, hopeful. And theatre chairs need to be seen to be appreciated. They present a decorative opportunity for harmonious contrast, that necessary foil to balance the color scheme.

Thoughtful study spent in building up the patrons expectation is wasted if at the last moment he finds his chair shrouded in the mantel of precedent. Shall he be left with a let-down? Remember, his chair is the last chance. Give him a lift with a light-hearted color.

Plate Glass: Mirrors in Modern Decoration

Areas of plate glass are being constantly increased in present day architectural design—to draw more light into rooms and to add to exterior beauty. The widespread use of structural glass in theatre construction is an example. This opaque variation of polished plate glass, beautifully colored, sturdy and strong is ideal for theatre fronts, restroom and toilet walls, corridors and lobbies.

But great as the use of polished plate glass in building has become in recent years, its astonishing increase in importance in interior decoration has been even greater. Today it is one of the decorator's most valuable and versatile tools, lending its beauty, transparency and utility for scores of fascinating and modern purposes. The use of plate glass mirrors is an example.

Mirrors, originally employed only as looking glasses for utilitarian purposes, are now decorative and ornamental media of the highest importance. Mirror paneling of walls and furnishings has become highly successful. Framed and unframed mirrors of all types and colors now bring gayety and light into modern theatres. Mirrors are used for dressing tables and tops, for ornamental screens and doors and for numerous other novel purposes. Because only plate glass can give perfect, undistorted reflection, most mirrors are being fabricated from this material.

INDIAN SUMMERS

East is East, and West is West, as Kipling once wrote—but when they want air conditioning in Madras, India, they recognize no barriers!

In Charleston, S. C., several days ago, Frederick A. Bailey, Jr., local air conditioning engineer, received by air mail a request for an estimate on air conditioning a theatre in Madras, described as the "city's up-to-date and luxurious talkie house."

It asked for complete details and specifications, with lowest possible quotation, terms and time of delivery for air conditioning a theatre 84 by 60 feet, and 30 feet high, with a capacity of 900 persons.

"The outside temperature is 100 degrees Fahrenheit and the temperature of water, 90 degrees Fahrenheit," the letter further explained.

Mr. Bailey, who is the Charleston distributor for Carrier air conditioning, turned the letter over to company headquarters, where in turn it was referred to the company's distributors in Bombay, India.

Recently, Mr. Bailey wrote an article on air conditioning and believes a copy of the magazine may have reached far-off India, accounting for the unusual request.

Advisory Service

Since modern theatre decorating is a specialized art requiring counsel, creative talent and planning ability which are not usually available at all points of the country, Mr. Hanns R. Teichert, nationally known theatre decorating specialist of Chicago, was retained to serve our readers in an advisory capacity. He will be glad to correspond with any who may wish information and advice on decorating procedure. All such inquiries will be given prompt attention. Address your inquiry to THE MODERN THEATRE, *332 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. It will be immediately referred to Mr. Teichert for analysis and advice, without obligation. EMPHASIZING THE ESSENTIALS OF HOUSE HYGIENE IN THEATRE MAINTENANCE

Several Ways to Promote Theatre Cleanliness in Stormy Weather

by MILTON A. LESSER*

THE WINTER up-swing in attendance annually brings to the fore certain theatre cleanliness problems not met with, at least not to the same degree, during any other season of the year. As long as the winter weather remains dry and crisp, the routine methods for maintaining the theatre's cleanliness are quite sufficient. However, the advent of rain or snow throws an immediate extra burden on the maintenance staff and requires extra effort to keep the theatre neat and clean despite the deleterious effects of the wet and dirt tracked in by the patrons.

Practical Precautions

Obviously, one way to ease this strain is to have the necessary cleaning and maintenance supplies readily available. These include such items as mops, pails equipped with suitable wringers, plenty of soap and water, and clean dry wiping rags. In addition, adequate supplies for the washrooms and rest rooms, such as towels, soap, and roll paper must also be ready for use, inasmuch as these rooms have a higher influx of patrons during cold, stormy weather.

At the first sign of inclement weather, the floor mats, which should have been thoroughly washed with soap and warm water, and well dried before storage, ought to be laid out in the foyer; and if it is uncarpeted, in the lobby as well. However, if the weather is especially bad and attendance is especially high, a clean, solid rubber runner mat may be needed to protect the carpeting. Even if the storm does not materialize, it is far better not to take any chances than to be caught napping—to the detriment of the expensive floor coverings in the other parts of the theatre. During wet weather, these mats, whether of the jointed, open design, or solid, corrugated type, should be washed and then wiped dry with a well-wrung mop. When things get especially bad, it will be necessary to lift up sections of these mats, particularly the open type, to clean the floor underneath.

Floor Maintenance

Stone or composition floorings of theatres are certainly liable to show up the dirt, and since they do not absorb moisture, are prone to become thoroughly wet and muddied. Unless particular care is taken to wash up and wipe up these accumulations, not only will the appearance of the floor suffer, but it also often becomes dangerously slippery. Foyer floors are affected most in this respect, with the floors of the lobby and the washrooms, next in order of importance. If these accumulations are permitted to dry before previous cleaning, not only do the dirt blobs make an ugly appearance that is hardly an appeal to patronage, but they also make it a more difficult task to properly wash the floors afterward. Of course the mere fact that dirt is tracked from the foyer and lobby to other parts of the theatre, where cleaning is even more difficult, does not help matters either.

In some well managed theatres, it is a fixed policy to have an extra maintenance man on duty during especially bad weather. It is his particular job to see to it that stone, concrete, tile, linoleum or composition floors are as clean and dry as possible, with particular emphasis on the foyer and lobby floors, where bright lighting is most likely to reflect dirt. It should also be his duty to see that the cigarette receivers at the doors, particularly those near the ticket-taker are clean and regularly cleared of discarded cigars and cigarettes. It is also important that cigarette butts which have fallen to the wet floor be picked up as soon as possible. A wet cigarette disintegrates rapidly, and when it has fallen apart, makes a very messy looking spot.

Reassures Patrons

People do not resent the sight of a clean-up man, provided he is neat and not too conspicuous, anywhere nearly as much as they resent dirt and grime in a place where they have come to expect immaculate soap-and-water cleanliness. As a matter of fact, most theatre patrons have rather come to expect to see someone about, armed either with a dust-pan and brush, or in stormy weather, with a pail and mop. Consciously or not, it gives people a feeling that things are being cared for and that their comfort and safety is being considered.

At least once every three or four hours during the business day, the floors should be given a thorough soap and water cleaning followed by a rinse and a quick drying. It is usually best to do only a small section of the floor at a time, not so much to prevent freezing which is not likely to occur in a heated lobby, as to avoid inconveniencing patrons who may be entering or leaving the theatre. If feasible, it might be well to rope off the section being washed, so that people will be guided away from that area. A "Please Use Other Door" sign will also help toward doing a more thorough and speedy cleaning job without undue interruption.

In the legitimate theatre or in the two- or three-a-day motion picture houses where seats are reserved for each performance there is a special need for this more thorough, during-the-show cleaning because people congregate in the foyers and lobbies. Here, however, there is no particular difficulty inasmuch as the time between intermissions can be devoted to the cleaning task and there is no interference due to the traffic of patrons. The problem of timing is a bit more difficult in the continuous-performance theatre, but even here the problem is not at all insurmountable. The six o'clock, dinner hour attendance lag is probably the best time for the business day quick, but thorough floor washing. Such a cleaning heightens the theatre's attractiveness for those who come for the evening shows, and so is a definite good business practice during winter months.

Carpet Protection

Theatre rugs and carpets should not present any great stormy weather cleanliness worries, if the moisture and dirt problem has been taken care of adequately. This of course can be accomplished by proper cleaning of the outer foyer and lobby, before people enter the theatre proper. Naturally, a certain amount of dirt and moisture will be carried in on the shoes and clothing. Carpets, however, are fairly absorbent, but the immediate cleaning problem from blobs of dirt or scattered bits of paper or the like can be taken care of by the use of a stiff small long-handled brush and dust pan. It is generally considered inadvisable to try to clean rugs and carpets more thoroughly during the day and evening performances, but rather to allow them to dry overnight, so that efficient vacuum cleaning can lift dried dust and dirt off and out of these floor coverings. Since they get the brunt of footsteps, carpets on stairs and stair landings should receive particular attention.

Of course, carpets will require more frequent soap shampooing during the winter season, because wet dirt usually penetrates further and clings longer than does dry dust. The more walked-on portions will necessarily require more attention from the soap and water shampoos. Unless there is thorough and adequate ventilation to insure complete drying it is probably best to clean only a small carpet area at a time. The best period for cleaning rugs, without having to remove them is, obviously, just after closing since this permits a longer drying time.

Washroom Attention

Special attention should also be given to washroom and rest room cleanliness during stormy winter weather. The sudden transition from the cold outside air into the theatre's warm atmosphere, particularly with those who come a distance, often makes it a functional necessity to visit the rest room. In addition, what with larger attendance, the handling of rubbers, galoshes and wet clothes and umbrellas, people find it more than ordinarily necessary to use the other facilities of the washrooms. Of course, this heavier traffic brings more than usual dirt into these places. This, coupled with abnormal use of washbasins, and therefore more splashings and drippings from them, makes for dirtier and more sloshy floors and fixtures. Unless cleaned up regularly, these factors unquestionably mean that dirt and water will be tracked into the adjacent rest rooms and smoking rooms. This does not take into consideration the bad impression a dirty washroom leaves with cleanliness-minded patrons. This can occur only if there has been a let-down in washroom cleanliness standards.

*Cleanliness Bureau, New York City.

During the stormy weather washroom influx, it is usually necessary to fill the paper towel-racks more often and to empty the used towel receptacle more frequently. If cloth roller towel equipment is used, the rolls will undoubtedly have to be replaced with clean ones at closer intervals. Soap dispensers will need to be refilled and cleaned more often. The same increased frequency will have to be employed if the floors are to be clean and free of litter.

RESPONSIBILITY

In most large theatres, the responsibility for maintaining the cleanliness standards of the washrooms rests with the attendants assigned to them. Where a theatre is too small to warrant this extra help, the management will find it profitable to see to it that the regular maintenance man is prepared to meet these winter emergencies and so insure washroom cleanliness.

Although, in the telling, these stormy weather suggestions may appear to be a bit complicated, actual application of them will soon show that they can be easily applied without any marked strain on the regular cleaning routine. Properly applied, such use of the basic principles of soap-and-water cleanliness will not only heighten the appearance and attractiveness of the theatre, but also will tend to raise the comfort, health and safety standards during the stormy winter season. It is still good business to use cleanliness as sales appeal—no matter what the season.

Exposition Plans on A. C. Show Progress

Plans for the Pacific Heating & Air Conditioning Exposition are progressing rapidly, according to a recent report from the Exposition Management. Scheduled for Exposition Auditorium, San Francisco, June 16-20, this will be the largest event of its kind ever held on the Coast, and is already attracting the interest of professional and selling organizations.

Up to January 1st 70 leading manufacturers had engaged more than 50 per cent of the exhibit space in the main auditorium, and the remaining spaces are under active consideration.

This Exposition will present a summary of the latest available equipment for heating, ventilating and air conditioning. It will be of particular interest to theatre owners, builders, contractors, engineers and operating men, industrial and commercial building owners and operators, home owners, architects, designers, dealers and distributors.

Included among the exhibits will be interesting displays of air conditioning equipment, boilers and furnaces, fans and blowers, control apparatus, registers and grilles, pumps, oil burners, insulation material, piping, unit heaters, steam traps, steam specialties, radiators, etc.

The American Society of Heating & Ventilating Engineers, who are sponsoring the event, will hold its annual summer meeting during the same week. Also meeting at this time will be the Heating, Piping & Air Conditioning Contractors National Association.

AIR CONDITIONING

DEVOTED TO A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF TEMPERATURE CONTROL IN THEATRES

If This Makes YOU Uncomfortable Just Think of Your Patrons

by GORDON H. SIMMONS*

WHEN I read my article in the January 4th issue of this magazine, I liked it. Even I could understand what it said when the editor got through with it. It sounded like "plain talk" to me and perhaps it will do some good. So here's some more of the same line.

"The time has come," the Walrus said (and I'm the Walrus) "to talk of other things than ships and sealing wax and cabbages and kings." And the good Lord knows that you are the Carpenters who shed briny tears over the few little two-bit oysters who don't come to see your bally show. Exhibitor after exhibitor says to me, "Simmons, show me how to fill up those empty seats and I'll be glad to become air conditioned."

Call the Doctor

Now it would take a better engineer than I am to air condition such a sure-shot gambler. He's so hot and bothered about poor business, the poor guy, that he can't think about much else. I could air condition his theatre but when any person runs such a high temperature, he needs a Doctor of Medicine, not one of Mechanics.

I would like to make myself think that all this talk about poor theatre business is only a stall. But I am sure it isn't. If you can't get me into your houses on a pass more often than a dozen times a year, at least I know why, even if you don't. And exhibitors tell me that the trend of the public is away from the theatres! Wouldn't you like to stop it? I don't know all of the answers, of course. But all of the trouble can't be due to lack of air conditioning.

Methinks most of the trouble is due to a "lack" of several things, including air conditioning. And the particular lack that you can supply, is the use of your own God-given powers of practical perception.

Maybe I have talked to exhibitors who were dumb on the subject of air conditioning; but what of it? They were not dumb about anything else that I could notice, and many of them made me feel that I was listening to an intellectual superior.

But what I want to know is: Are you fellows showmen? Or do you just rent some films that come in a can and run them through your machines and let it go at that with a few cheap dishes thrown in on the side?

Did you ever undertake to "air condition" your thoughts and thus get some fresh atmosphere into that stuffy think-tank? If your business doesn't suit you, then its time to radically change your thoughts about it. And it wouldn't do you a bit of harm.

Just as long as you maintain a death grapple with "things" as such, instead of ideas for improvement, just so long will you enjoy poor business. And just as long as you go to the dime store for nickel ideas, just so long will you continue to do a dime and nickel business.

Cases of Inertia

Now in the science of mechanics we encounter "inertia." Mechanically stated, "Things at rest tend to remain at rest, and things in motion tend to remain in motion and move with uniform velocity in a straight line." I learned that one in the little old red school house, many years ago.

But the mental inertia of people, both in and out of theatre industry, is simply appalling. Sometimes I have deliberately made a person mad in order to gain his undivided attention. So I may as well attempt to make all of you mad because if I do, out of it will surely grow a constructive result. Anyhow I've nothing to lose.

I'm in the family you know, so I'm a privileged character. But I'll get an unholy joy out of it if I can start a family fight. A fight means action, and that's what I'm after.

How many of you study your business as intensely as I do mine? How many of you offer to the air conditioning industry constructive suggestions? How many of you view your competition across the street with jaundiced eye instead of collaborating on ways and means to get the crowd out? Fellows, most of you don't even know the meaning of cooperation and collaboration. Some of you are merely cutting throats—mostly your own!

*Air Conditioning Engineer, Milwaukee, Wis.

I should know, if anybody does, what's your mainspring of action. You are thinking in terms of "boxoffice" all the time. That "boxoffice" is a barrier between you and your public because you make it one. I doubt if any of you have air conditioned your house TO MAKE THE PATRONS COMFORTABLE. You did it simply because you consider it "good boxoffice," and because your competitor had beat you to the draw.

Well, there's no "boxoffice" between you and me and simply because there isn't, I'll get under your skin and onto your hides. If ten people read me for every one that writes, then darn near 17,000 of you do because I have gotten that proportion of letters. And if I can get 17,000 people on their ear all at once, that's some achievement!

Cut Out Cussing

Just get 'em hot enough and somebody will get orders for air conditioning even in the winter time, which is the time to do it, by the way, as I've often yelled at you heretofore.

But if your lackadaisical interest in real air conditioning is any criterion, then stagnant interest in other matters pertaining to your business is likely to prevail. You can't "cuss" the public back into your houses so why don't you cut it out?

Nor can I cuss air conditioning into your houses so I'll cut that out too. Anyhow it was you theatre men who taught me how to cuss. I was a perfect little cherub before I met some of you.

I can get downright onery in these pages, as I am trying to do right now, and I'm going to get tough with the next theatre owner I meet who slaps me on the back and says, "Simmons, that sure was a warm article you wrote last month. That's right boy, give 'em hell!" I always seem to be talking about two other fellows; never about the guy who lauds me and then lets it go at that.

Sure, I'm an agitator. A fifth columnist trying to overthrow air conditioning practice as it is being malpracticed in many of your theatres. And it smells to me as tho' there are many other practices that should be overthrown. Of the firms who try to sell you, only a few of them are in my social register. Many of the firms you patronize are not and will not be patronized by me.

There are many other members of the air conditioning aristocracy, whom I like and with good reason, because they give you fellows your moneys' worth. But space and editorial policy does not permit the compilation of a trade directory here. It is hoped that sooner or later, more of them will join in our effort to

Are You Confused?

The subject of Air Conditioning explained in common, non-technical every-day terms becomes less baffling to the man who wants to buy equipment. Simmons' Q & A Corner

Problems presented herein are bona fide and are not imaginary concoctions for the purpose of misrepresenting reader interest. Original signed letters are on file for examination, subject to the approval of correspondents.

Comes an interesting letter from a new confidant of mine out in Oregon. Its the frank and friendly sort of message that makes me feel good.

The Letter: "Your articles in The Modern Theatre are always a source of interest and information Someday, the good Lord willing, we hope to arrive at that place in the scheme of things, when we can afford to air condition this theatre.

"Fortunately, our climate here is such that, while air conditioning would be desirable, it is not vitally essential. Even so, it is an improvement we are eventually counting upon, to make our theatre complete in every detail, and when that time comes, it is our hope that we can employ your services to insure the finest installation possible.

"Fishing is good out here and from the articles I have read over your signature, that is a very decided inducement in getting you away from your home city.

"I note in your article in Modern Theatre of December 7, an air distribution outlet, which same, I would appreciate knowing more about. Have been looking for something of this type for sometime, and this looks as though it might fill our present needs very nicely. Any dope you can give me will be greatly appreciated. Thanks in advance—M. R. H."

My Answer: "Upon receipt of your letter of December 12, it would take very little inducement for me to throw a couple of those grilles in the rear of my Zephyr and drive them out to you.

"Talking to me about fish and salubrious climate while I am slipping and sliding around in this snow and ice. It ain't fair. I have heard quite a lot about Oregon's climate and I am going to sample it some day which I hope will be soon.

"So when you finally get ready to air condition, let me know and I'll come out—no foolin'.

"In regard to the air distribution outlets I use in my practice, I invariably specify the type you inquire about. But these grilles are perfectly useless unless the total C. F. M. of air to be handled is known as well as the length, width, height of the auditorium as well as the proposed location of the grilles.

"If you care to send this information to me, I will personally see that the proper grilles are selected. The interior core or 'lattice work' must be arranged just so for each individual job. And they cost approx. $..... per sq. ft. depending upon the finish selected.

"I will say that on one job only, out of the many handled, I made a dog-fall. I eliminated absolutely all breeze and drafts which was what I deliberately tried to do, but when the job started up (it being an air-washer job), some slight air motion in the face of the customers was wanted by the theatre owner, and he blamed me for doing the job too well.

"If you sent my usual fee in the form of a postage stamp, my wife must have swiped it out of the letter. My pocket change goes the same way.—G. H. S."

educate you by becoming regular advertisers in this journal.

But remember, these pages are open to any advertiser, and my endorsement does not necessarily go with every paid ad. But it is free to all those who merit it. If you make a practice of buying from firms whose names in air conditioning circles rate with Tiffany's on silverware, you will have less grief and my blessing.

An Accusing Finger

With only one theatre out of every six really air conditioned, the theatre industry has a l-o-n-g way to go before really tasting the benefits of it. I don't doubt but that some of you do have equipment installed that could be made into a real system by the use of proper controls. Without them you have no system. It takes controls to systematize the equipment.

Controls are no different in their function than a carburetor on your automobile, which proportions the gas to the air and delivers a proper volume of both under variable speed conditions.

In like manner, you have to proportion the fresh air to recirculated air while varying the volume of total air to the needs of the varying crowds in your house. And also while doing this, maintain a decent temperature and humidity.

If you think you can do all this by purchasing a $15.00 thermostat, or some other improvised gadget you've got another guess coming.

Because I've been designing "systems" of air conditioning and other systems for different purposes, I get awfully agitated when I view a procedure that has no system in it. I've never tried to devise a system for getting a crowd into a movie theatre but nobody had better shove dough under my nose and dare me to try. I might fool him badly even if at the moment I hadn't the slightest idea what I would do. All I know is that there is a right idea, and that a smart man can find it. So get busy scratching your own heads. I've scratched mine over your problems 'til its sore. All right! Call me a sorehead. I don't care.

Sometimes my correspondents take occasion to recommend me to others outside of theatre business. The following letter for example, which comes from the far reaches of Northern Canada.

The Letter: "Mr..... of the ..... Theatre, at....., Manitoba, has advised me of your facilities for air-conditioning. If you have any printed literature in connection with your work, I should be glad to receive a copy of the same.

"Our institution covers a floor space (all on one floor) of approximately 12,000 square feet. Last winter we air-conditioned the whole premises under the supervision of the.....Electric Company. All ducts and interior equipment for summer cooling are now installed, and the only part of the equipment which is incomplete is the compressors for cooling. We are told that it will cost us approximately $4,000 extra, in addition to $6,500 which we have already spent, to complete our cooling process.

"At the time of the installation it was considered advisable to hold off the air cooling until the spring of 1941, and we are advised that compressors can be installed within a period of ten days without disturbing any of our ducts which are now installed.

"Mr. ..... expressed to me that you have a system which would appear to be somewhat cheaper than the one referred to above, for cooling purposes. I should be very glad to hear about this in case the information is correct. Should you care to write me at any time, just address your letter in care of this institution.—D. F. F., President."

My Reply: "Referring to your letter to me of the 8th, in which you mentioned Mr. ..... of the ..... Theatre at ....., and suggested that you would like to save some money while cooling your building, I must advise that I wrote you promptly but have not to date had the pleasure of hearing from you.

"Am perfectly willing to give a little engineering advice when I have sufficient information to go on, but as previously written you I would need to know the maximum number of students in the building at any one time.

"It is true that I now get a sizeable discount on compressors and therefore could save you money after the proper size was selected, since I only make a 10 per cent engineering charge which includes the specification of needed equipment.

"But I fail to understand why it seems impossible to get a well drilled in Canada. We do it in Wisconsin right along, the water is amply cold for a superb result, and the operating costs are a fraction of the cost of running a compressor. I can only make suggestions to you, but if you wish to save some money you should look into this possibility.

"At any rate I would be pleased to hear from you if you care to write. I have engineered several theatre jobs in Canada and because I am rated by the manufacturers, I am familiar with proper prices for proper equipment.—G. H. S."

The New "One Kilowatt" Arcs use "National," "Suprex" and "Orotip" Carbons

1881-1941

This is our sixtieth year of continuous service in the field of carbon arc lighting. Remarkable progress has been made in carbons and carbon arc equipment. Many industries and the general public have profited by these accomplishments. Greater achievements are assured by the most modern research and manufacturing facilities.

The words "National," "Suprex" and "Orotip" are trade-marks of National Carbon Company, Inc.

● The new "One Kilowatt" arcs have established a record in performance. That's why hundreds of new installations have been made in the smaller theatres in every section of the country. The remarkable improvement in projection offered by these new high intensity arcs is just what smaller theatres have needed for years. Low initial and operating costs have been a great factor in their universal acceptance.

If you are not now using modern high intensity projection in your theatre ask your dealer for a demonstration. Note the improvement in black and white projection and how natural and pleasing the color features appear on the screen. Your patrons too will notice this difference.

Neutral Audience for Hearst-Welles Battle

A stalemate has apparently descended upon Hollywood's policy battle of the century, which finds that old warrior, Publisher William Randolph Hearst, in one corner, and Fledgling Orson Welles, RKO Radio's producer-director-writer-actor—and currently Number One headache—in the other.

The stake, as the industry well knows by now, is the issue as to whether or not Welles' four-way brain-child, "Citizen Kane," will or will not be released in its present form. The seconds of both contestants are marking time, with their eyes glued on the east, whence, they say, the next move must come. In other words, the buck is still rather firmly entrenched in the lap of George Schaefer, president of RKO Radio.

Schaefer Must Decide

In what appears to be an effort to expedite settlement of the issue, one way or the other, Welles and his general representative, Herbert Drake, have pulled out for the east to confer with Schaefer and to work out plans for the film's world premiere should Schaefer give its release the go-ahead signal.

Spokesmen for Welles are far from reticent in summing up their—and ostensibly his—views on the situation. Among sundry other points, they emphasize that:

An advertising campaign for "Citizen Kane" is going ahead apace, with full-page advertisements, announcing the pending release of the picture, to break in several national magazines—possibly in some of Mr. Hearst's—during the week of February 20.

At the same time, they also aver, an extensive newspaper advertising campaign will be launched in connection with the film. They take the attitude that their position is that of people who have made a motion picture, based on the life of no one individual, and are going ahead to advertise and show it.

Would Counter-Sue

Welles' attaches report further that they do not think any of the lawsuits at which Mr. Hearst's spokesmen have hinted as a possible part of his suppression manifesto will ever be filed. If they are, the Welles representatives declare, a counter-suit will immediately name Mr. Hearst as defendant, charging him with interference with contractual arrangements. Underneath their ostensibly brace and secure front, however, can be detected a very definite note of whistling in the dark.

When pinned down, they admit they are entirely at a loss as concerns what is happening in New York, and virtually confess they are entertaining some qualms as to what might be the ultimate results of the pressure the publisher is in a position to bring upon eastern executives of RKO Radio, and upon diverse other influential personages who figure prominently in the company's financial structure. Further, they say, they have heard rumblings of comparable pressure that is being, or might be, brought upon the larger circuits, to hamper normal bookings of the feature if, when, and as it is released in its present form.

While local RKO Radio officials are ostensibly lined up to present a solid front along with the Welles contingent, studio publicity men show a marked aversion to discussing the situation, limiting their observations to the aforementioned stalemate and reiterating the next move must come from New York. Their non-communicativeness is surpassed only by that of the local Hearst camp, which has absolutely nothing to say on the matter.

Hands Off Policy

The Welles office has compiled a rather complete dossier of press comment on Mr. Hearst's demands—which is surprisingly small. Many newspapers, wire services and other media which normally cover Hollywood activities quite thoroughly failed to touch upon the embroglio, while those reports which did find their way into print were chiefly reportorial, although the Welles crowd is prone to read reactions favoring Welles' position into them.

Aside from the Gower Street studio, where Welles headquarters, Hollywood is continuing its hands-off policy, taking the attitude that it is a strictly private fight and that the less other companies and individuals have to do with it the better for all concerned. True, here is considerable unofficial discussion, with the consensus of opinion being that Mr. Hearst is holding most of the trumps, despite the brave attitude which Welles, through his representatives, is doing his best to maintain.

"Red Pony" Will Be First Hawks-Milestone for Fox

First independent feature to be made by the unit headed by William Hawks and Lewis Milestone for 20th Century-Fox release will be John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony." The Hawks-Milestone setup with the studio also includes the services of Charles Boyer, Irene Dunne and Ronald Colman, one of whom will star.

Signal Corps Unit Is Sought by Council

Another far-reaching step toward solidifying Hollywood's participation in the national defense program has been taken by the Academy Research Council, which has posted notices in the studios calling for volunteers among picture-making personnel to enlist in a Signal Corps photographic unit now being formed. Prospective enlistees are informed they will not be required for active duty at this time, but will be called into service only in the event the U. S. army becomes completely mobilized. Those joining the unit will serve, in emergency, in the branch for which their studio work has best qualified them. Required are experienced men in such divisions as:

Animation and title supervisors, camera repair supervisors, cameramen, chemists, clerks, cooks, editors, sound men, electricians, laboratory equipment engineers, laboratory supervisors, machinists, mixers, maintenance men, boom operators and recording machine operators. Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Research Council, and Major Nathan Levinson are in charge of recruiting.

Charity Front Active

On the charity front, preparations are going ahead on the Greek War Relief Fund broadcast, scheduled for February 8 at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. The motion picture permanent charities committee, headed by Samuel Goldwyn, is cooperating with a similar radio charities group in staging the affair, which will be tied into a gigantic three-way hookup with London and Athens also participating. Louis K. Sidney of M-G-M is producing the show, with George Watters, of Fox West Coast, handling the advertising. Set to appear are Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Frank Morgan, Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Shirley Temple, the "Hardy Family," Charles Laughton, Ronald Colman, Fanny Brice, Tony Martin, Alice Faye, Mary Martin, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, Merle Oberon, Myrna Loy, Groucho Marx, Madeleine Carroll and Robert Young. British War Relief and Assistance League leaders have pledged support and cooperation.

The annual Bing Crosby Golf Tournament, held at Rancho Santa Fe recently, netted more than $5,000 for a crippled children's hospital. The entire proceeds were donated to the charity by Crosby, who also bore the expenses of staging the affair.

Picture-a-Day Tempo Pointed by Schedules

Present schedules indicate that, on an average, at least one picture a day will go before the cameras this month, a tempo that bids fair to push productional activities up to new records for the winter season. A total of 31 features already has been announced for February starts, with 11 on schedule for March and four already set to go before the cameras during April.

Gunning six each this month, Paramount and Warner are sharing the top rung of the ladder. The former lists "Pioneer Woman," "The Night of January 16," "Little Miss Muffet," "College Mystery," "Hold Back the Dawn" and "Aloma of the South Seas." The latter has "Mother's Boys," "Sergeant York," "Bad Men of Missouri," "Highway 99," "The Gentle People" and "Flight Patrol."

Holding down second place is Universal, which will gun "Double Date," "Unfinished Business," "The Black Cat" and "Oh, Charlie." Three each will be started by M-G-M and RKO Radio. Metro lists "Lady Be Good," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Get a Horse." RKO Radio will gun "Tom, Dick and Harry," "Before the Fact" and "My Life With Caroline."

Columbia has "Texas" and "Her First Beau," Republic plans "Rookies on Parade" and "Lady of New Orleans." Twentieth Century-Fox lists "The Great American Broadcast" and "Miami." Monogram will roll "Trail of the Yukon" and "Million-Dollar Mystery." For United Artists, Richard A. Rowland plans an early start on "The Battle of Britain."

Paramount holds the lead in plans for March, during which month it will start "Nothing But the Truth," "Dildo Cay," "Henry and Dizzy," "Two Bad Angels" and "Buy Me That Town." "Man Hunt" and "A Yank in the RAF" are on 20th Century-Fox's schedule, with Republic to roll "Puddin' Head" and an untitled musical. Alexander Korda will gun "The Jungle Book" for United Artists. Universal has "Amateur Angel" and M-G-M will launch "Get a Horse."

The four April starters are Hal Roach's "Niagara Falls," RKO Radio's "True to Form" and "Water Gypsies," and Republic's "Alibi at Midnight."

Production Pace Not Profitable for Workers

The high tempo of picture-making to the contrary, the month of December 1940, definitely was not ear-marked as one of prosperity for the great mass of studio workers.

On the one hand, the California labor statistics department revealed a drop of $14,317 in weekly payrolls during the month as compared to November, the tabulation covering technicians, backlot and office workers and all others excluding the talent and executive divisions. Studios employed 12,391 persons, only 37 less than in November, but paid them an average weekly salary of $43.87. $1.03 less than in the preceding month.

On the other hand, Central Casting reported both placements and wages of extra players also dropped in December from November, and disclosed that extras wound up the year with $594,905 less than they did in 1939. Total placements for December were 17,381, while those for November were 16,974. Daily wage dropped from $11.06 to $10.82. Total 1940 earnings were $2,529,766, compared to $3,124,671 for 1939. The year ended with a decline of 66,090 placements from the 1939 total.

Director Frank McDonald has left the Republic payroll after a year and a half with the studio, during which he piloted several Gene Autry westerns. His last assignment was "Arkansas Judge," starring the Weaver Brothers and Elviry. McDonald has announced no future plans.

Warner Sets Wayne Morris In "Parachute Jumpers"

Warner has lifted its suspension on Wayne Morris, placed on the non-active list when he turned down a proffered role in "Knockout." Morris draws the topline in "Parachute Jumpers," story by U. S. parachute troops, being written by Barry Trivers.

Academy Ballots in Hands of Voters

Preparations for the 13th annual Awards banquet sponsored by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences have swung into high gear with the distribution of nominations ballots to approximately 4,000 creative artists—actors, writers, directors, producers and Academy members—who have begun voting for their candidates for best achievements in acting, writing, direction and production.

Simultaneously Walter F. Wanger, Academy president, announced the banquet will be held on the night of February 27 at the Biltmore Bowl. Mervyn LeRoy will serve again as chairman of the dinner committee, the post he has held for the past two years.

Nominations End Feb. 5

Voting on nominations will end at midnight, February 5, ballots being mailed to an auditing firm which will do the counting. Nominees will be made public February 10.

Senior members of the Screen Actors Guild will select the following candidates for Thespic awards:

Five actresses for "best actress," five actors for "best actor," five actors for "best supporting male performance" and five actresses for "best supporting female performance."

Screen Directors Guild will nominate five outstanding directorial achievements.

Screen Writers Guild will name five achievements in three writing classifications—"best original screenplay," "best original story," and "best screenplay developed from another writer's story, play, novel or idea."

While actors, writers and directors will do the nominating in their respective fields of endeavor, they, as well as producers, Academy members and technicians, will vote for the nomination of the ten best productions of the year.

12,000 to Participate

Approximately 12,000 individuals will participate in the final ballot, including junior members of the SAG, who will vote on acting honors and best production. Ballots for the final vote will be issued February 13.

Carolyn Lee Role

First assignment at Paramount for Carolyn Lee, five-year-old actress, under terms of her new long-term contract will be the starring role in "You Go Your Way," a story by Katharine Brush, which Edward H. Griffith will produce and direct.

Cinémarks

The Warner Club will hold its seventh annual party at the Biltmore Bowl, February 15, with Steve Trilling in charge of the entertainment committee. About 1,200 are expected to attend.

Director Leslie Goodwins of RKO Radio is recovering in Las Vegas from an influenza attack which sent him to the hospital . . . Lester Cowan has planed to New York to confer with Gilbert Miller on plans for filming "Ladies in Retirement." They will co-produce for Columbia.

Douglas Yates, of the Republic production staff, has returned from a four-week stay in New York . . . William Boyd and his wife, Grace Bradley, are planning a New York vacation, leaving next week when both have completed film assignments.

Basil Rathbone has accepted an invitation to act as master of ceremonies at the annual banquet of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, to be held February 21 at the Ambassador Hotel . . . Producer Erich Pommer of RKO Radio is the recipient of a trophy given him by Dr. Frederic M. Thrasher, director of motion picture study at New York University, the award being inscribed: "In recognition of the fine art of blending commerce and artistry in the making of films." Pommer's "They Knew What They Wanted" was a major factor in his winning the award, the producer was informed.

WITH THE return of David O. Selznick to the active production front at a time when the conducting of polls and the tossing about of sundry awards and accolades seems to be the most popular sport for the industry and its extra-curricular attaches, attention automatically focuses upon the impressive number of kudos which has accrued to the producer of "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca" in the past two years.

In the forthcoming annual BOXOFFICE BAROMETER, "GWTW" is given a special Merit Award, and set aside from the regular section in that issue devoted to reporting the grosses established by features during the past year, because it chalked up such an outstanding revenue record in its advanced-price roadshow engagements. It established a precedental 361 per cent of normal business at the boxoffice, BAROMETER figures revealed. This achievement, consequently, was considered significant enough to warrant individualized treatment in the annual volume. "GWTW" was given similar rating and handling in the 1939-40 edition of BOXOFFICE RECORDS, which made its appearance some months ago.

"Rebecca" won the coveted BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for April, 1940, when the National Screen Council voted it the best feature released in that month.

Further recent recognition came through the Film Daily's annual critics' poll, in which 546 reviewers participated, and which voted "Rebecca" first in a list of the "ten best." Canadian critics voting in an exhibitor poll named "GWTW" first and "Rebecca" second in the year's outstanding films.

Other "Rebecca" honors include:

Best picture, National Board of Review; best, North American Newspaper Alliance, in a poll conducted among screen artists by Harold Heffernan; best, San Antonio Evening News critic; second best, that newspaper's readers; best, St. Louis Post-Dispatch readers; second best, foreign correspondents representing the world press; among Louella Parsons' "ten best;" first, Philadelphia Record; first, Detroit Free Press; fifth, Showmen's Trade Review.

The "GWTW" record:

Second place, National Board of Review poll; year's outstanding production, Showmen's Trade Review; Photoplay Magazine's gold medal for best picture of the year; 1939 Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award for best production of the year.

Additionally, Selznick was voted the Irving Thalberg Memorial Award for the most consistent high quality of production in 1939, and has won three previous BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Awards, in 1934, 1935 and 1936.

The above represent just a partial list of the honors which have been heaped upon DOS and which have contributed to keeping him in the limelight as Hollywood's most important production figure, even though he has been inactive for many months.

Add charter members of the They-Can-Dish-It-Out-But-They-Can't-Take-It Club (W. R. Hearst, president):

Jimmy Fidler, who easily qualifies because of his $250,000 lawsuit against a local tradepaper, alleging libel.

At least 50 per cent of the preview announcements which reach film reviewers are Western Union telegrams.

Invitations to the debut of Fox's "Western Union," however, were printed and were delivered by Uncle Sam's mails. In order to adhere to Hollywood's propensity toward the paradoxical, they should have come through Postal Telegraph.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is reportedly seeking an account to sponsor a coast-to-coast broadcast of the annual Oscar dinner, asking a modest $25,000 for the tieup. To date there are no takers—which is easily understandable. Attending the annual function and sitting for hours to listen to prepared extemporaneous speeches by recipients of the statuettes is, in itself, a boring enough ordeal. It is hard to conceive of anything less entertaining as radio material.

Perry Lieber reports that six emergency fire cabinets, each containing an all-purpose gas mask, and various other equipment, have been installed on the RKO Radio lot. The all-purpose gas masks should have no trouble in justifying their cost. They can always double in brass at a Cliff Reid preview . . . And Orson Welles might find them useful when Louella Parsons next visits the lot—if ever.

Whimsy, Whoops, Whinnies

Members of Hollywood's reviewing battalions were afforded plenty of time to brush up on their bowling, parcheesi and sundry other extra-curricular activities by a preview week which witnessed a meager three features finding their way to the critical screen. Of the trio, Metro's "Come Live With Me" was an unanimous best.

It classifies as a charming romantic comedy, clean and wholesome fun from start to finish; considerable of a triumph, too, for Clarence Brown, who not only produced and directed but also, it is reported, had a sizeable finger in the preparation of the script, credited to Patterson McNutt, from an original story by Virginia Van Upp. Brown and the writers wove sufficient whimsical and idyllic patterns into it to distinguish it from the screwball-slapstick trend characterizing so many recent humorous offerings. There is much in the offering to assure widespread audience appeal and to make it a boxoffice breadwinner. Co-starred for the first time are James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr; the former in the kind of role best-suited to him and in which he has become a marquee name. The beauteous Miss Lamarr, it might be mentioned, continues to display marked improvement as an actress. Supporting players, including Ian Hunter, Donald Meek and Verree Teasdale, are likewise very good.

To keep the boys and gals from considering life a total loss, however, Universal tossed an "army dinner," complete with the proverbial beans, as an adjunct to its showing of "Buck Privates," the greatest asset of which is its timeliness. The forerunner of an expected avalanche of films dealing with the draft and other phases of the national defense program, it is certain to strike a popular note and register accordingly on the revenue side. Assigned the task of concocting a yarn about life in Uncle Sam's newly recruited army, Arthur T. Horman fulfilled the task with tongue in cheek, successfully keeping the motivation within the established limits of musical comedy most of the time. Consequently the production—Alex Gottlieb's first as an associate producer—is topflight entertainment during its comic and musical moments, which, fortunately, predominate. To be credited for substantial contributions along this line are Abbott and Costello, the funsters, and the Andrews Sisters, singing trio. Only when the vehicle veers toward dramatic, super-patriotic and romantic interludes does it lose ground; and that is attributable chiefly to weak performances by the remaining members of the cast. In his initial "A" assignment, Arthur Lubin turned in a directorial job of high calibre. John Grant supplied special material for Abbott and Costello.

Limping in for show money came Monogram's newest Tex Ritter opus, "Rolling Home to Texas." It is probably the worst Ritter western made to date, and there have been no less than seventeen preceding it. Apparently Edward Finney, who produced it, had some difficulty in deciding just exactly what he was aiming at—a filmusical, a sagebrusher or a broad burlesque on the latter. As a result he emerged with a little of each, but not enough of any one ingredient to make much of a picture. Robert Emmett's script is extremely improbable, even for an action melodrama, because of its many motivating elements and its unsuccessful effort to avoid formula; and Al Herman's direction doesn't help matters.

Twentieth Century-Fox has signed Harold Clurman, founder of the Group Theatre in New York, to a term ticket as an associate producer. Under the deal Clurman draws no immediate assignment but will survey production procedure and line up story material. He was at one time an advisor to Producer Walter Wanger but has been connected principally with the legitimate stage.

A Story to Paramount

Paramount has purchased the screen rights to "Dangerous Holiday," story by Sidney Shelton and Ben Roberts. The spy melodrama will be produced by Sol C. Siegel, with Albert Dekker, Patricia Morison and Robert Preston topping the cast.

"Jane Eyre" Is Initial Selznick UA Release

Just a month after incorporation of his new company, David O. Selznick Productions, was announced, Selznick has disclosed the first of three pictures which he will produce for United Artists release will be "Jane Eyre," from the novel by Charlotte Bronte. The producer is issuing invitations to those who have read the novel to write and offer their suggestions as to whether Vivien Leigh, Joan Fontaine or Katharine Hepburn should have the title role, his choice of actress to be influenced by the opinions forwarded to him. Both Miss Leigh and Miss Fontaine are under contract to Selznick.

Other Activity

Cameras will begin turning within a few days on "'My Life With Caroline," co-starring Ronald Colman and Anna Lee, which William Hawks' United Productions is making for release through RKO Radio. Lewis Milestone is the director.

Upon completion of "Broadway Limited," now near the finish line, the Hal Roach studios will shut down temporarily, to reopen in April when Roach signals a start on "Niagara Falls," a comedy, for United Artists release.

The Frank Ross-Norman Krasna independent production unit is preparing the tentatively-titled "Googer Plays the Field" as its next film-making venture, upon which it wil embark when "The Devil and Miss Jones," being made for RKO Radio, is completed. Krasna has returned from Sun Valley, where he worked out a rough draft of the script of the new film.

Westerns Exclusively Will Be New Policy

The film colony's first and, to date, only theatre screening western films exclusively, got off to a flying start when the Hitching Post opened January 24 amid gala ceremonies, including a cowboy-and-Injun parade along Hollywood Blvd.

Leading the parade astride his white horse was Monogram's sagebrush star, Tex Ritter. The "Range Busters" were represented by Johnny King, who rode in a stagecoach filled with beauties from the Earl Carroll Theatre. Chief Iron Eyes, Jack Hoxie and other western film players were also in the procession. Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette, originally scheduled to appear, were withdrawn at the last minute by Republic when studio executives changed their minds about allowing them to participate.

Manager Russell Desmond of the Hitching Post reports exceptional business is being registered with the opening program—Gene Autry in "Melody Ranch" and Roy Rogers in "Robin Hood of the Pecos." The house was previously known as the Tele-View Revival Theatre, and is operated by the Tele-View Corp.

The Hitching Post has set a deal with Monogram whereby it will book all of the films in the Tex Ritter and "Range Busters" series for 1940-41.

Korda Buys Hecht Yarn

"The Forbidden City," an original by Ben Hecht dealing with Nazi-occupied Paris, has been purchased by Alexander Korda.

Greenthal on Coast For UA Confabs

Joining other United Artists executives already in Hollywood for conferences on UA's productional future and other topics, Monroe Greenthal, publicity-advertising director, has arrived from the east. His colleagues here include Murray Silverstone, UA's head; Arthur W. Kelly, sales chief; and Charles Schwartz, UA counsel. The delegation is expected to remain for two weeks or more, discussing production plans with UA units including Hal Roach, David O. Selznick, Alexander Korda, Edward Small and others.

Twentieth Century-Fox's production conferences officially ended with the departure of Sidney R. Kent, president, and Herman Wobber, distribution chieftain. They followed Charles E. McCarthy, advertising-publicity director, who was the first to return east. Also going to New York was Francis L. Harley, managing director of 20th Century-Fox in London, who spent a few days here to give Darryl F. Zanuck and other studio officials a first-hand report on conditions abroad. Felix Jenkins and Fred Pride, company attorneys who sat in on the huddles here, left for San Francisco to begin a tour of all 20th Century-Fox exchanges explaining terms of the consent decree.

Matty Fox, Cliff Work's production assistant at Universal, left for a two-week stay in the east, during which he will attend the world premiere of "Back Street" in Miami, Florida, February 4. The balance of his time will be devoted to conferences with homeoffice executives.

Wanger to Washington

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president in charge of studio operations, has returned from Chicago, where he attended the testimonial dinner given for President Barney Balaban, and which was followed by a conclave of homeoffice sales executives and district managers. Freeman was accompanied westward by Edwin L. Weisl, member of the company's board of directors, who will spend a few days at the studio surveying the scene.

William F. Rodgers, distribution chieftain for M-G-M, left for New York after two weeks at the studio discussing the consent decree and possible changes in sales policy on short subjects.

Walter F. Wanger planed out for Washington, D. C., to keep a long standing dinner engagement with President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Wanger attaches here asserted Wanger would probably continue on to New York for a stay of a day or two before returning to the coast.

O. Henry Briggs, new president of Producers Releasing Corp., is expected in from New York to embark on a series of production conferences with George R. Batcheller jr., recently named supervisor of PRC's picture-making activities.

Collaborate on "Ladies"

Reginald Denham and Garrett Fort are collaborating on the script of "Ladies in Retirement," which will be co-produced for Columbia by Gilbert Miller and Lester Cowan.

"Back Street" Dominates Current Premiere Scene

With activity on the premiere front otherwise at a standstill, Universal's projected debut of "Back Street" in Miami, February 4, is drawing the lion's share of attention. Matty Fox, production aide to Cliff Work at the studio, heads the Hollywood contingent which will attend the premiere, with Deanna Durbin, Producer Bruce Manning, Scenarist Felix Jackson and Director Robert Stevenson in the party. Universal is bringing newspaper critics and correspondents to the Florida city for the event.

Twentieth Century-Fox held the world premiere of "Western Union" in New York, January 31, with Robert Young, one of its stars, appearing in person following a guest-shot on the Kate Smith airshow. An additional $80,000 has been ear-marked for the advertising budget, with Western Union cooperating to the extent of a $100,000 outlay.

Noted stage and screen names formed the committee handling the January 28 premiere of Paramount's "Virginia" at the Paramount Theatre in New York. Proceeds from the opening went to the Maple Leaf Fund, Canadian organization raising funds for British war relief. Committee included Mary Pickford, Gertrude Lawrence, Diane Barrymore, Maurice Evans, Constance Collier and others. Attending from Hollywood were Stirling Hayden and Carolyn Lee, featured in the cast.

A midwest premiere of Monogram's "Her First Romance" was staged January 23 in Waterloo, Iowa, where Barney Rosenthal of the Iowa Theatre scheduled the event to honor W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president. Waterloo is Johnston's birthplace.

SMPE Demonstrates New Laboratory Equipment

Newly designed and perfected film laboratory equipment was described and demonstrated at a meeting of the Pacific Coast Section of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers on the RCA Manufacturing Co.'s scoring stage. Michael Leshing, 20th Century-Fox laboratory chief, described a new waterproof tape splicer. J. H. Van Leuven discussed the new Fonda developing machine. G. R. Crane of Erpi displayed the integrating sphere densitometer. A U. S. government film, "Power and the Land," also was shown.

Uniform Lens Calibration Academy Council Goal

Major studios have been requested by Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Academy Research Council, to approve adoption of a standard method of lens calibration, the lack of which, Zanuck asserts, lowers picture quality and necessitates many retakes, increasing production costs. Zanuck's recommendation came after a study of lens calibration had been completed by the Research Council's basic optical committee.

Pilots "Highway 99"

"Highway 99," Jane Wyman starrer, will be directed for Warner by William McGann.

"Thing Called Love" Is Greatest Draw

SAN FRANCISCO—Continuous rain coupled with continued runs made for a dull week at the first run boxoffices. Five of the seven first run theatres were playing holdovers, some in their third and fourth weeks. "This Thing Called Love" was the topper along Market Street keeping up the fine draw it proved in its first week. The Golden Gate, with Earl Carroll's Vanities on the stage and "Play Girl" on the screen had an excellent week. All others were below average.

Third Week's Stanza for "Neighbor" Forte in L. A.

LOS ANGELES—No startling records were hung up in local first-run houses, most of which reported only an average week. A bright spot was the remarkable showing turned in by "Love Thy Neighbor" in its third week at the Paramount, polling par business with "Texas Rangers Ride Again" and a stage show in support. "Kitty Foyle" and "Ellery Queen, Master Detective" managed to garner a normal second week at the RKO Hillstreet and Pantages.

Detail for week ending January 22:

Gracie Fields Outranks Seattle's Offerings

SEATTLE—Folks in this town will pay real money for real attractions. Gracie Fields, appearing at the Music Hall doing a "one night stand" garnered $7,500 plus a thousand dollar donation for her evening's work. The English gal gave a tremendous one-woman show. Her appearance was for funds to aid Britain. All other theatres with regular attractions did only fair business this week with nothing outstanding in the way of grosses.

SEATTLE

RKO's Eddie Lamb "sneak" previewed "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" last week. Affair, held at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, was preceded by loads of publicity. Drama critics from various cities were invited along with their wives. Seen among the gang were Wafford Conrad of the Spokane Chronicle; Ros McTavish, Vancouver, B. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Hal Nelson, Tacoma Times; Len Higgins, Tacoma Tribune; Ralph Daly, News-Herald, Vancouver, B. C. . . . This town went overboard for the personal appearance of Gracie Fields, the British songstress and comedienne. They're still talking about her number, "The Biggest Aspidestra in the World." Gracie will be back in a few days to make a "free" personal appearance at all three of the Birthday Balls being held in town for the President's infantile paralysis cause.

Special memorial services were held here last week for Anna Pavlova by Ivan Novikoff, local ballet master. Jean Yazvinsky, director general of the Ballet Russe Monte Carlo, flew in from Vancouver, B. C., for the ceremony, which was attended by many artists and local citizens . . . Word from Hollywood tells of the death of Sam Brafford, recently chief of police at the Metro studios. What makes this a local item is, that for 17 years Sam was on the Seattle police force and was once given a medal by the merchants of Yesler Way for stopping a team of run-a-way horses at the risk of his life. He was an uncle to Buster Keaton . . . Bob Crosby, brother of Bing, hopped a plane from here this week for Hollywood where he will make a new picture, "Sis Hopkins" . . . During evening previews on the Row, a "nasty" man has been breaking into cars and getting away with a lot of fine things. Pete Higgins lost a radio, W. B. McDonald of Olympia lost luggage and booking sheets, while Tony Silvaggio lost two pair of ice skates and bowling shoes. Good news boys. The police have got the fellow and all of your property is safe. Don't say we didn't tell you.

Frank Jenkins of the Jensen-von Herberg house in Renton has gone to California for a couple of weeks. Bob Shearer of the Ballard Roxy is looking after things while Frank is gone. Reason for the trip is that Frank's father died a short time ago and he could not get away at that time, so he is taking this opportunity to go home and get family matters settled . . . We have been informed of the following changes in the Paramount organization. Charles Reagan moves from western district manager to assistant to Neil F. Agnew; George Smith moves into Reagan's spot, while Hugh Braley is in Smith's berth. This is for the coast territory only. Denver and Salt Lake will have a D.M. of their own . . . B. F. Shearer announces he has purchased the Smith Theatre Supply in Spokane and has placed E. H. Bechtel in as manager.

Bill Forman, general manager of Sterling Theatres, out by plane for Los Angeles. At San Francisco, he will be met by Jimmie O'Neal who will be able to chinwag with Bill for about 15 minutes . . . Roy Peacock is east of the mountains on company business . . . Vic Gauntlett back at his desk after the fight with the flu . . . John Pollock, traveling in advance of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, in town accompanied by Mrs. Pollock . . . Expected this week are Jimmy Grainger, head of Republic Pictures, and Frank Soule of the west coast offices . . . Art Kallen, Universal booker, back at his desk after the flu siege . . . Art Huot and Art Gollofon back from a very successful fishing trip . . . Ben Fish, western division head for United Artists, out for Portland accompanied by Pete Higgins, local manager . . . Al Rosenberg back from a California vacation and rest . . . Hal and Ethel Daigler sending greetings from Arizona where they are spending some time at a resort . . . Frank Newman, president of Evergreen Theatres, out to Bellingham for a looksee.

Carl Walker, district manager for Warner Theatres, in from Hollywood and spending some time in Aberdeen and Hoquiam. He will drop in on Seattle before returning home . . . Henry Davidson of Port Angeles on the Row after spending some time in the hospital. Likewise Mickey De Leo of Port Townsend . . . Mrs. Martin Brown back to Yakima after her long visit here . . . Joe and Mrs. Kendall of Ellenburg here for the preview of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mercy jr. . . . Bill Shartin back at his desk, but standing, after his operation . . . Al O'Keefe, division manager for Universal, writes he is enjoying a vacation in Death Valley . . . Haskell Masters, new district manager for United Artists, is expected soon on his first visit from the east.

DENVER

J. S. ABROSE, recently branch manager for United Artists in Milwaukee, has been appointed district manager for them, and headquartering in Denver, will have charge of the territories of Denver, Salt Lake City and Omaha.

John P. Bryne, recently branch manager for M-G-M in Boston, and who started in the film business 16 years ago in Denver as a salesman for the same company, has been named district manager and will have Denver, Omaha, Salt Lake City and Des Moines in his territory. He will headquarter in Denver.

A bill introduced in the Colorado legislature would provide an excise tax on theatres—the annual tax to be equal to one admission for every seat in the house. The bill still is in committee . . . The members of the Colorado state legislature received their usual season passes, good for all the theatres in Denver, for the length of the session.

Reports reaching Denver say that Harry Marcus, formerly owner of the Allied exchange in Denver, died at his home in Philadelphia . . . Joe Hammer, booker for JCR sanitarium, died in Denver January 10.

Fire in the booth of the Mara Theatre, Mara, N. M., owned by Albert Coppell, resulted in the closing of the house for a few weeks . . . New sound has been installed in both the Egyptian and Rex theatres, Denver, both Civic houses. A new front also has been put up at the Civic Oriental.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Hynes have gone to New York City for a two-week vacation. He is manager of the Denver Theatre . . . Charlene Davis, daughter of Dave Davis, district manager for Atlas Theatres, was elected head girl at Smiley Junior High School, Denver.

A consent decree meeting, presided over by Felix Jenkins, head of the 20th Century-Fox legal department, will be held in the exchange here February 3 . . . Mrs. Ed Mapel was seriously hurt in Los Angeles when her car overturned.

PORTLAND

PORTLAND begins to derive some benefits from the defense program. A recent announcement revealed the allocation of 57 million dollars for the construction of 31 ships in Portland harbors. A shipyard boom will no doubt make a tremendous improvement in theatre grosses.

The 7th Infantry, long stationed at Vancouver Barracks, will leave that post to make way for a regiment of engineers. The change is not expected to affect Vancouver theatre business as the engineers carry practically the same enrollment as the 7th infantry.

The town of Mossy Rock, Washington, is soon to be represented with a theatre. G. Ghosen is building a new 350-seat house to be called the "G" Theatre. Ghosen is making his initial entry into the show business with the G Theatre, but is well known around Mossy Rock, where he operates the general store.

Ralph Wood, long an exponent of 16*mm films, announced the booking of his feature-length color pictures of the Portland Rose Festival to be shown to Henry Ford and also to the New York Chamber of Commerce. Arthur B. Carlson, of the Portland C. of C., will transport the pictures in the interest of Oregon publicity.*

Talk has been started for the establishment of a Luncheon Club for Filmrowites. The idea is sponsored by Banjo Miller and Lou Amacher. The plan is for a meeting once each week for a get-together with no business discussed except under penalty. For further information see either Miller or Amacher.

Filmrow visitors were varied the past week with Ben Fish and Pete Higgins of the UA sales force; Bill McKevitt, Newport; Mrs. L. A. Moore, booking for Goldendale, Hermiston, Athena and Arlington; Harry Percy, Mr. Harrington, of Aratskanie and White Salmon, were about the Row on one business or another.

The Liberty and Kelso theatres in Kelso are shining under the finishing touches recently added to them by Basil Bashor and Bill Ripley.

The Portland city council met last week with the idea of considering ways and means of controlling stage shows. Some one felt the stage should be censored in the same way as the films, but it was decided to allow the individual theatre manager to make his own deletions.

Lead Still "Kitty's" After Four Weeks

CHICAGO—Despite cold, sloppy weather, boxoffice receipts in the Loop held up the week ending January 23, with "Kitty Foyle" continuing its smashing pace in its fourth week at the RKO Palace.

Revive Curfew

GRANITE CITY, ILL.—Mayor M. E. Kirkpatrick has ordered that beginning on February 1 city police must begin enforcing a quarter-century old 9 p. m. curfew ordinance. Children of the city must be off the streets by 9 p. m. Warning whistles will be blown at 8:45 o'clock nightly. Parents of violators are subject to a $1 fine.

Cooperate in Kenosha With Paralysis Drive

KENOSHA, WIS.—Theatre managers Francis Schlax at the Kenosha, Elroy Luedtke at the Orpheum and William Exton at the Roosevelt cooperated in the local drive conducted by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis by featuring special lobby displays to help collect funds for the affair.

Miss Laurinda Webb was in charge of the appeal drive at the Kenosha, while the Orpheum and Roosevelt had coin collection boxes in their lobbies. The Kenosha also sold tickets to the Crippled Children's ball at the Elks Club on January 31 and at the Eagles Club on February 1. The same tickets were also good for admission to the Kenosha Theatre if they were not used for the dances.

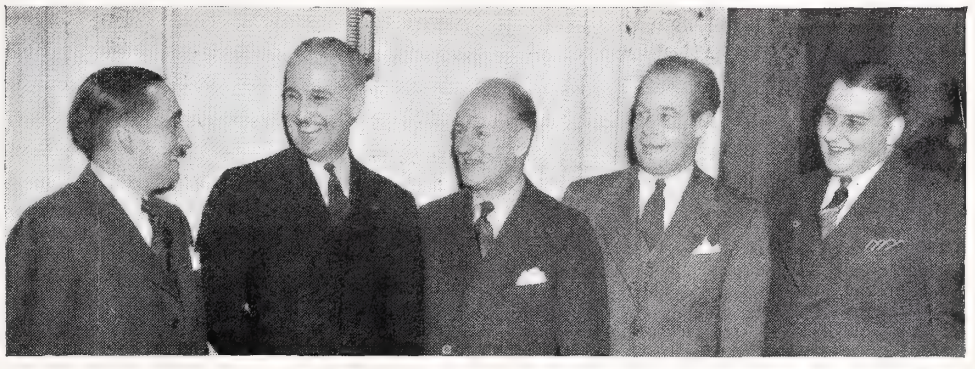
Stars at Benefit

ST. LOUIS — Constance Bennett was scheduled to be one of the speakers at the Aid to Britain mass meeting to be held at the Municipal Auditorium the evening of Friday, January 31. Douglas Fairbanks jr., who is president of the Los Angeles chapter of the national organization, has also signified his intention to be present at the mass meeting, according to George W. Gardner, secretary of the St. Louis chapter.

Pirtle Remodels in Jerseyville

ST. LOUIS—S. E. Pirtle, Jerseyville theatre owner, plans alterations and improvements to a two-story store building there.

Variety in St. Louis Will Aid Polio Ass'n



ST. LOUIS—A five-year program to raise a total of $250,000 through special entertainments and benefit shows for the erection of a building for the Midwest Polio Association has been decided upon by the St. Louis Tent of the Variety Club, of which Harry C. Arthur jr., Fanchon & Marco executive, is chief barker.

The Variety Club has adopted the Midwest Polio Association as its sole charity. The association is composed of those in Greater St. Louis who have been or are afflicted with infantile paralysis.

Louis K. Ansell, head of the Ansell Bros. circuit; Clarence D. Hill, manager for Columbia Pictures, and Fred H. Wehrenberg, head of the Wehrenberg circuit and president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, were appointed by President Arthur to formulate plans with the Midwest Polio Association officers for the five-year program.

During this period the net proceeds of all benefits under the auspices of the Variety Club will be used to establish the proposed building. It will include a swimming pool, a work shop and other rehabilitation facilities.

The first show under the program will be a midnight performance at Fanchon & Marco's Fox Theatre, March 29.

Winners All—

By HAL TATE

CHICAGO—Probably no happier man existed in the motion picture business the night of January 23 than Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures. His theatre associates, in paying him tribute at the Drake Hotel here on his fifth anniversary as president of the theatre company, gave him two gifts that he will long remember. One was a check for a fully equipped ambulance which will shortly see service for the Greek Army; the other was an engraved silver plaque mounted on glass commemorating the gift of the ambulance, and the Barney Balaban celebration.

Making the presentations was E. V. Richards, head of the Paramount-Richards theatres. The plaque read as follows: "To Barney Balaban From Your Theatre Associates: In sincere appreciation of your exemplary character, your fine human qualities, and in commemoration of the fifth anniversary of your presidency of Paramount Pictures, we present this day to the American Red Cross in your name an ambulance, a messenger of mercy to the valiant people of Greece who are fighting for the right to live at peace with their neighbors, for democracy, for humanity."

Medallions to Winners

Balaban personally congratulated the 55 winners of the Barney Balaban drive. They were introduced by his brother, John Balaban, who presented each winner with a special victory medallion. Each winner also received cash awards.

Preceding the actual banquet was an informal luncheon held in the Grand Ballroom of the Drake Hotel. It was here that many Paramount people saw for the first time a new entertainment medium which may revolutionize the entire motion picture industry. It was television. Balaban and Katz held a special exhibit of their new television station, W9XBX at the Drake. The exhibit, which was under the direction of Bill Eddy, director of the station, amazed the onlookers who expressed great surprise at the clarity of the pictures.

Botsford Toastmaster

The entire day was given over to paying tribute to Barney Balaban. From the United States and Canada nearly 400 executives of Paramount and its theatre managers, together with the winners of the Barney Balaban drive, joined in paying tribute to Balaban.

At the beginning of the banquet, Thursday evening, A. H. Blank, chairman of the Barney Balaban celebration committee, gave the signal for the participants to take their places. As they took their seats, a burst of music from the stage heralded "To the Stars and Stripes," a stirring prologue of blended choral voices and marching feet that reached its climax in the living American flag at the opposite end of the banquet hall.

At the dinners' conclusion, A. M. Botsford, associate producer for Paramount, who acted as toastmaster for the banquet, introduced Balaban's best friends, who had come to felicitate the Paramount president.

The dramatic high-point of the evening came when E. V. Richards presented Balaban with the plaque and check for the ambulance. Balaban, in accepting the gifts, said that nothing could have made him prouder or happier, and that there was no cause more worthy than this ambulance for a people doing their utmost against great odds.

Besides Blank, Richards, John Balaban and Botsford, addresses were made by Y. Frank Freeman, Stanton Griffis, Adolph Zukor, Neil Agnew, Hugo Sonnenschein, noted Chicago attorney, and Leo Spitz, Chicago attorney, former president of RKO Radio pictures, and one of Balaban's closest friends.

Entertainment by Platt

The evening's entertainment, which had been arranged by Nate Platt, stage production manager for Balaban & Katz, started off with a community songfest entitled "Love Thy Neighbor," and pulled no punches in its ribbing. The Paramount Studio's contribution to the evening's festivities was a special studio newsreel with Jack Benny as chief "Balaban-terer." Other stars participating in satirical bits were: Bob Hope, Mary Martin, Bing Crosby, Lynne Overman, Claudette Colbert, Madeleine Carroll, Fred MacMurray, Henry Fonda, Don Ameche, Rochester, Oscar Levant and Allan Jones.

Making a personal appearance at the banquet were two new Paramount stars, Constance Moore and Stirling Haydon. From Chicago's leading show places, top name stars appeared at the banquet. These included Lou Holtz, Jane Froman, Bert Lahr, Lola Lane, the Nicholas Bros., and Tommy Bartlett.

MILWAUKEE

NINE P. M. "Sneak Previews" were staged here last week by the Warner and Palace theatres on Wednesday and Thursday nights, respectively . . . Harry Perlewitz, Milwaukee, business manager of the ITPA of Wisconsin; William L. Ainsworth, Fond du Lac, president of the association, and A. C. Berkholtz, West Bend, the organization's treasurer, journeyed to Washington to attend the Allied board meeting.

Ray Smith Co., theatre supplies, observed the formal opening of its new offices here at 710 W. State St. A representative group of exhibitors from around the state attended.

Charlie Koehler, operator of Astor Pictures exchange here, observed his birthday last week. Charlie, who has been in the business for 32 years, maintains he's "the oldest film peddler in point of service in this neck of the woods."

George D. Skinner, New York, head of the public relations department of Broadcast Music, Inc., was in town making speeches in response to talks by Robert A. Hess, Wisconsin counsel for Ascap.

Warner's Venetian in Racine is installing new earphones for the hard-of-hearing . . . The Fox in Stevens Point, which last September announced it was going to give single feature programs a trial, is back playing the duals.

Barney Balaban Dinner Notes

CHICAGO—Jimmy Savage of the B&K publicity department got up some very clever sayings to tie in with the decorative motif in the Grand Ballroom of the Drake Hotel, which was as much American as it was Balaban. The sayings were on placards between flags, and read: "It's a Great Country . . ."

Where bottoms up means "Here's How" instead of "here lies."
Where you stand up at a bar and call for a shot . . . not behind bars, waiting for one.
Where you run to a cellar for a bottle . . . not from a battle.
Where Goldwyn kills the King's English, not Goering trying to kill the English King.
Where you can hiss Hitler and still live for the feature picture.
Where the blackout means you've only blown a fuse . . . and not your top.

Part of the decorations at the luncheon preceding the dinner were huge ice carved figures of the American Eagle.

B&K prize winners divided up a $2,000 slice. First prizes to winning managers was $100 and one week's vacation; winning assistant managers received $25 and one week's vacation. Special awards varied from $25 down to $10.

All guests at the dinner received an envelope containing a badge, a special guest card and a special book of guest admissions. The guest card was good at all B&K theatres, while the booklet entitled bearer to principal places of interest in Chicago.

The Chicago committee deserves special plaudits for the perfect time accorded the guests. Chairman of the committee was A. H. Blank, with John J. Friedl, E. J. Hudson and John Balaban committee members.

Chicago Herald-American got out special 4-page edition on the occasion. Contained news stories, pictures and reprint of recently published story in the American called "Mr. Barney of the Balabans." Following items are reprinted from the "Balabanter" column in the special edition.

"You may make your own comments, but Mr. Adolph Zukor, gentleman farmer of Nyack, N. Y., couldn't show a profit on his farm until he made barn-grown fertilizer his chief crop."

Bill Hollander, B&K's ad head, just can't get mad at adverse criticisms from local scribes. Bill used to tear films apart on the editor's desk at the Daily News. Mr. Barney brought him over to B&K for self-protection.

Winning drives is old stuff to Carl Hermann of the Strand in Carlisle, Pa. Carl has been under the wire in every drive conducted by the Comerford organization for 16 years.

"Chesty" Price, Salt Lake's youngster, can afford to be as cocky as his nickname. Given the "problem child" of his circuit, he converted the Victory Theatre into a $3,000 profit house in five weeks. He will next attempt to balance the national budget.

The Horatio Alger influence, it seems, is more discernible in theatre operation than in any other comparative business. A survey of the drive winners reveals a huge percentage of managers who started as ushers. Among the most successful is Everett Olsen of the Orpheum in Minot, N. D. Everett used to patrol the lanes at the Lyric in Duluth.

Earl J. Hudson, Detroit's "Mister Big," is more than proud of Grant Hawkins, Varsity Theatre head coach. Grant went into the drive before recovering from an appendectomy. The winning patient claimed the hospital took less out of him than the "big push."

Bill Miskell, Tri-States veteran, was singled out by your Uncle Sam'l for the lofty job of "co-ordinator for all amusement activities throughout the United States." Which is our idea of classification A-1 in the defense draft.

Two Martins, Guy and "Scottie" of South Bend, are ready to meet any number of Coys at any time. The unrelated pair were opponents in the drive, but as tough as a pair of Notre Dame tackles when Coys are a-lurkin' in the woods.

Harry Sherman, producer of the "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns, appeared at the sales meeting and was gently twitted. "We have decided to abandon westerns," Barney Balaban told him. "But how would you like to do 'For Whom the Bell Tolls'?" Sherman didn't bat an eye. "Mr. Balaban," he answered, "I'll do THAT one for nothing!"

Bob Gillham is more heroic-appearing than many of the screen heroes he so ably publicizes.

Woody Praught, St. Cloud, Minn., Silver lining, came up with a 128 per cent increase for his blue ribbon.

Bill Eddy has televised subjects from diving bells to stratoliners. His new assignment—in charge of the magic mirrors—will be the "Comrade X" of W9XBK.

Bill Holden, B&K's flagship Commodore, was not on hand to receive his medallion as Chicago Theatre winner. Bill was personally handling the National Canners' Ass'n annual theatre party that night.

It was a return trip for A. G. Pickett all the way from Orpheum in Phoenix, Ariz. He was one of the original members of the Paramount 100 Per Cent Club when Sidney R. Kent called that body to a meeting in Chicago several years ago.

Wheeler 'Propaganda' Proposal 'Untenable'

JANESVILLE—Senator Wheeler's proposal to halt alleged propaganda films is labeled "untenable" in an editorial appearing in the Gazette. The newspaper says that Senator Wheeler's suggestion "plops the whole Bill of Rights squarely into the limelight."

The editorial continues: "Who is going to decide, as Senator Wheeler proposes, what amounts to presenting 'both sides' equally? Who is going to make up for what the motion picture industry loses, by offering its fans something they don't want?"

According to the editorial, "it is public opinion that engenders the propaganda, however, rather than the opposite. Show people follow public demand, they do not create it. Their income depends upon the popularity of their themes," the newspaper observes.

The editorial concludes as follows: "Senator Wheeler must know that movies and radio give their audiences the bill-of-fare they want, insofar as capabilities and subject material permit. To do anything else would be economic suicide, and for the government to insist upon anything else would be to choke democracy at its very fount."

Woytinek, Gayble Theatre, North Judson, $1.00.

Terre Haute theatre owners have joined in an effort to accomplish a fund raising program. The downtown houses will stage midnight shows and the neighborhood theatres will have special matinees with the Greek Relief Fund as beneficiary. Participating are the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co., Abe Kaufman, J. B. Stine, Mrs. L. J. Murdock, Alliance Theatres of Chicago, and Maurice Reinking.

Two Army Draftees Are Given Farewell Party

LA CROSSE, WIS.—The La Crosse Theatres Co. gave a farewell party last week for two of its employes leaving for army service. They are Emil Mitley of the Rivoli and Ray Bender of the Strand. Two other employes—Lowell Hanson and Carl H. Eyler—have already enlisted.

The party was held in the Rivoli lobby and the company presented the boys with leather goods. Guests included Sam Segal, Minneapolis; Messrs. and Mmes. William Freise, C. L. Morrissey, L. V. Markgraf, Al Olson, Lyle Gilbert, Phil Dyer and Sylvester Busche; Mmes. L. B. Kanard, Lillian Zemlicka, and Mel Olson, Miss Anita Cameron and Charles Kramer, Misses Jeannette Wright, Mildred Fries, Lucille Katchel, Myrtle and Marie Rosendahl and Mary Jane Koppelberger, Art Frey, Ray Larson, Paul Spettel, Jim McKillip, Charles Larson, David Benrum, Jack Hall, Frank Seiger, Ray Plamador, William Reichelt, John Elstad, Jerome Roth, Jerome Spah, Ronald Lindstrom, Don Hanson, Art Hanson, Frank Pretasky and Norman Tevis.

La Crosse Theatres Hold Greek Relief Benefit

LA CROSSE, WIS.—A benefit performance at the Wisconsin Theatre, participated in by radio station WKBH, for the local Greek Relief Fund, did capacity business at a midnight show Tuesday, January 14.

The show was arranged by Manager James McKillip with the assistance of the Greek Relief Committee and Raymond Plamadore of WKBH. La Crosse Theatres Company donated the use of the house, the station provided announcements a week in advance as well as its Barn Dance unit for a stage show, and the stagehands of Local 141 donated their services.

The benefit closed with an old-fashioned country store in which local merchants gave some $100 in prizes.

ST. LOUIS

OLIVER F. LESSING has incorporated his Variety Pictures exchange under the name of Variety Pictures, Inc., with $5,000 authorized capital stock. The incorporators were Lessing, Peggy Lessing and George R. Williams. Lessing, formerly with Judell Pictures, has been operating as an independent at 3215 Olive Street.

"Truth or Consequences," one of the currently popular radio quiz shows, opened a week's engagement at Fanchon & Marco's Fox Theatre, January 24. Theatre patrons were invited to participate in the show. Cash awards were given to winners.

Funeral services were held here Friday, January 24, for Pat Garyn, independent exchange owner of Dallas, Tex., and one time sales head of the National Screen Service. He died in Dallas on January 22. His former executive posts included connections with M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox and March of Time. He is survived by his wife and a sister, Mrs. Augusta Garyn Wolff of St. Louis.

The second semester of the St. Louis School of the Theatre opens this week. New courses in radio writing, makeup and dancing will be given. A new course will present a historical revue of the outstanding motion pictures since 1895. It will be offered for 15 consecutive Thursday evenings.

Nat Steinberg, manager for Republic Pictures, has purchased a new residence in Clayton, a St. Louis suburb . . . A. B. Marcus' "Continental Revue" with a cast of 75 persons opens a stage engagement at Fanchon & Marco's Fox Theatre on Friday, January 31.

Stench Bomb Possession Brings Suit in Kirkwood

KIRKWOOD, MO.—Theodore Lending, proprietor of the Kirkwood Theatre, has applied for warrants, charging possession of stench bombs, against Ernest Brown, 37, and Herman Brawley, 27, both of St. Louis, who were arrested outside the theatre the night of January 17.

Kirkwood police reported that after the pair's arrest, two time stench bombs were found on Brawley, who asserted Brown had promised him $10 to place them in the theatre.

The theatre has been operating with a non-union projectionist since September 1. Stench bombs have been dropped there on several occasions since the management rejected the demands of Local No. 146 of the Operators Union that it employ two union projectionists.

Edward C. Bergt

ST. LOUIS—Funeral services were held Friday, January 24, for Edward C. Bergt, former alderman from the eighth ward, and one time motion picture theatre owner, who died January 22 at his home following an extended illness. He was 65.

Northwest Allied Prepares Fair Trade Practice Bill

MINNEAPOLIS — Counsel for Northwest Allied States are now preparing a fair trade practice bill to nullify important consent decree provisions and to be introduced in the present Minnesota state legislature under the organization's sponsorship.

The decision to try to obtain passage of such a measure was decided upon with only four dissenting votes at the organization's convention here. Members signed pledges to contribute to a fund to finance the necessary expense and to cooperate to the fullest extent possible with the legislative committee handling the proposed law.

The law would require distributors to offer for sale to exhibitors their entire season's product, as at present, with a minimum of 20 per cent cancellation and the right to eliminate films which are objectionable for moral, religious or racial reasons. Under its provisions, too, forced selling of shorts would be illegal.

Aimed at the consent decree provision calling for sales in groups of five, the code incorporated into the bill would not be opposed by distributors, it was declared during the convention.

Considerable discussion preceded the convention's action and at times the arguments became heated.

Field Points to Opposition

Harold Field, circuit owner, advised the members that capable counsel had advised his committee that the state has the power to enact such anti-consent decree legislation which wouldn't infringe on federal rights and the constitutionality of which undoubtedly could be upheld. He warned the members that opposition to it may come from PTA groups, the Legion of Decency and women's clubs which mistakenly believe that the consent decree eliminates block booking. He said that there was the further danger that state admission tax and censorship amendments might be tacked onto it.

Bennie Berger, another independent circuit owner and former Northwest Allied president, urged that the consent decree be given a two-year trial.

"The decree is the result of four years of work by the U. S. department of justice and it gives the independents at least one-third of the things for which Allied has been fighting," asserted Berger. "The least we can do is to give it a trial.

"Many of us are being forced out of business by the present policies. Buying in groups of five won't do us any harm and may do us some good. We've been told that the producers-distributors aren't against the nullifying law so the chances are that, if they favor it, it can't be any good for us."

Fear Film Cost Rise

One of the principal arguments in favor of getting behind the nullifying law was that the consent decree's new buying plan would raise film costs.

Ben Friedman, another circuit owner, said he had favored the code of fair trade practices which distributors proposed to Allied States and which had been rejected by that body, but he was opposed to the consent decree.

"The important things for which we have been striving and which we would have obtained in the code of fair trade practices are missing from the consent decree," asserted Friedman. "If this consent decree becomes effective, exhibitors will be in hot water constantly when it comes to buying. Exhibitors need pictures in order to operate and they'll find it necessary to buy every group of every company without having a cancellation privilege. That will be block booking with a vengeance. And our film costs will be higher than ever."

S. G. Lebedoff, Northwest Allied treasurer and executive committee member, denounced the consent decree bitterly.

"After the department of justice had accumulated enough evidence during three years' investigation to send many producers to prison for 30 years, the independent exhibitors were sold out," charged Lebedoff. "This decree is 100 per cent for the distributors and 100 per cent against independent exhibitors. It isn't good for any of us. Nobody knows who is responsible for what's happened. The producers themselves set up their own groups of five. That, in itself, is bad. We buy at wholesale now. Under the decree we'll buy at retail. It will be ruinous for all of us."

W. R. Frank, still another large circuit owner, discussing the decree, assailed exhibitors' cowardice.

Cite Affiliates' Action

"The film business is built on fear," said Frank. "Few exhibitors have the guts to fight distributors when the latter are in the wrong, but they'll run to the exchanges and tattle on courageous fellow-exhibitors. The very nature of this business lends itself to coercion. If an exhibitor has guts and determination he'd be able to leave out groups, although in the big cities, where the independents must follow the affiliated circuit first-runs, a different problem would be created."

Field said the five-group selling system isn't new, being practiced now in England where "film rental runs 60 to 70 per cent for most pictures and where exhibitors do not battle on price, but for playing time."

Kansas Independents To Meet in March

Abilene, Kas.—The next meeting of the Kansas Independent Theatre Owners is scheduled to be held the first week in March at Topeka, according to Homer Strowig, of Abilene, president.

Serving with Strowig as officers of the newly formed association are Merle Swank, Stockton, vice-president; Ralph Larned, LaCrosse, secretary; Mrs. Kate Blair, Belleville, treasurer. Directors are Ralph Winship, Phillipsburg; Roy Culley, Medicine Lodge; Warren Weber, St. John, and J. E. Pennington, Topeka.

Among the arguments against the consent decree from the floor were:

Since consent decree approval, major affiliated circuits have rushed in to complete long-term film deals with all companies. So apparently these chains, receiving the best legal advice, wish to avoid buying under the decree. And if the affiliated circuits don't want the decree provisions, or wish to circumvent them, why should the independents want to operate under it.

Will Bring Bidding

Decree will cause competitive bidding up of prices for product.

If a small-town exhibitor buys the first group and turns down the second under the consent decree, and the second is bought by his competitor, the latter will become the preferred account. Points made in the decree's behalf included:

The assertion that there's no way to tell how good or bad the decree is until it has been tried.

If decree provisions prove harmful to independents they can be modified or the entire instrument tossed out after two years.

State legislators will be averse to nullifying a governmental code until it has been tried out and interested parties can prove specifically that they've been harmed.

Civic and religious groups will be antagonized by any move to circumvent the decree.

If distributors want to charge excessive prices they'll do it, consent decree or no consent decree, Berger contended. Friedman made the point that, regardless of any attempt to nullify the decree, the exhibitors will have to fight a state admission tax and censorship proposals.

Arbitrators May Get Product Problem First in Minny

MINNEAPOLIS—With the launching of arbitration under consent decree provisions, indications were that the first cases in this territory would involve the obtaining of product.

Bennie Berger, independent circuit owner, has announced that he'll complain because major companies are refusing to service his Esquire Theatre here and World in St. Paul.

Irving Gillman, owner of the Gayety here, also has stated that he'll seek relief for his house which is encountering difficulty in securing product.

The Middle-States corporation, operating the 4,000-seat Minnesota Theatre here with a policy of stage shows and first-run pictures, also is expected to lodge a complaint with the board because major product is unavailable for the de luxe house, the Minnesota Amusement Co.-Mort Singer pool having practically all of the major companies' output sewed up for downtown Minneapolis.

Bill Taxing Distributors Is Back With Neubauer

LINCOLN—When Sen. E. M. Neubauer of Orleans, Neb., left the legislative halls of the legislature here at the conclusion of the session in 1939, two trade bills, one pleading divorcement of distributors and exhibitors, and the other, asking $1,000 a year license and $1 a reel tax on distributors, authored by him, had been killed in committee.

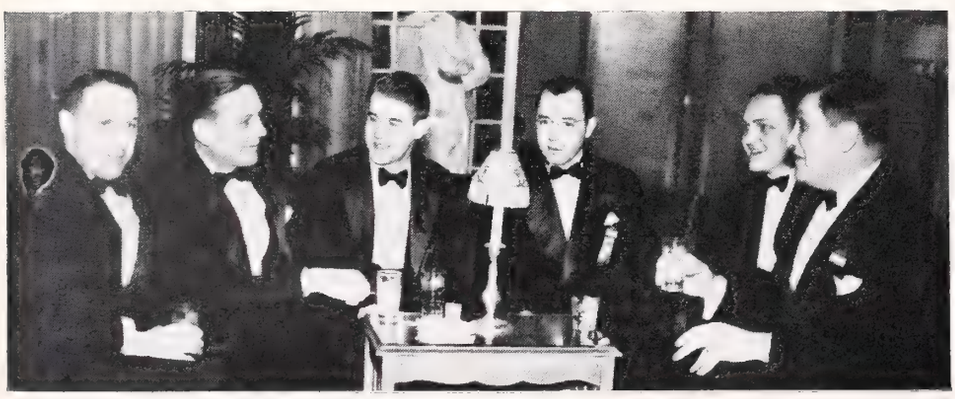
But, he didn't give up.

With his election to return to the state capital this year, his coming was announced to the industry in a warning that he intended to try again. So, last week, as bills were being hoppered by the handsfull, Neubauer put in two.

One is a duplicate of the 1939 try to license distributors, which says each shall pay $1,000 each year to the railway commission for permission to operate in Nebraska. Then each reel of film used to service exhibitors will have $1 assessed against it as it comes into Nebraska. This would amount to about $15,000 being levied annually against Filmrow in Omaha.

The new bill is aimed not only at theatre boxoffices, but at any amusement ticket window. It asks one cent be added to each 10 cents worth of ticket, the money to go to the state treasurer and be earmarked for relief. Neubauer's idea with this bill is to take a cent off the gas tax, making up the money needed in the treasury via the tickets. Originally, Neubauer's idea was a 1-cent tax on every priced ticket, but this bill, as sent into the records, is even stiffer.

'Philadelphia Story' Is Competition Beater



MINNEAPOLIS—The bulk of the business this week was done by "Philadelphia Story" at the straight film State and the Sally Rand show, the latter holding forth at the Minnesota. In its second week, having moved over from the State to the Century, "Kitty Foyle" also fared well. The Orpheum had a fine stage show, but returns were very disappointing.

Feeble Stand Against Weather Adverseness

KANSAS CITY—Pictures with little punch faded before weather with plenty, and left first run boxoffices quiet during the week.

At the Testimonial to Balaban—

When the Paramount theatre partners tossed a testimonial banquet in Chicago for Barney Balaban to celebrate his fifth year as president of Paramount, many midwesterners attended. At the top, A. H. Blank, head of the Tri-State Theatres, Des Moines, addresses the gathering. Below, left to right, part of the Minnesota Amusement contingent: Max Edelstein, Hibbing, Minn.; John Branton, Minneapolis; Everett Olsen, Fargo, N. D.; Ralph E. Phillips, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Woodrow Praught, St. Cloud, Minn., and Louis Deutsch, Virginia, Minn.

Northwest Allied Pledges Defense Program Support

MINNEAPOLIS—Northwest Allied members will run the M-G-M distributed "Land of Liberty" in their theatres and government defense trailers.

At the convention here last week the body went on record to advise the buying of "Land of Liberty" and members signed defense pledge cards, agreeing to cooperate with the government on the defense program.

He Adds Minneapolis—

Allen Usher, Paramount district manager, who adds Minneapolis to his Chicago and Milwaukee territories in the realignment of Paramount sales districts. The detail on Paramount shifts was reported on page 13 for January 25.

"The Son of Monte Cristo" teamed with "The Phantom Submarine" proved surprisingly strong at 90 per cent, but Nick Lucas held "The Mummy's Hand" to give the Tower 110 for tops. "Kitty Foyle" did fair in its third week.

(Average is 100)

Esquire—The Invisible Woman (Univ) 80
Midland—The Son of Monte Cristo (UA); Phantom Submarine (Col) 90
Newman—Four Mothers (WB) 70
Orpheum—Kitty Foyle (RKO); Saint in Palm Springs (RKO), 3rd wk. holdover 75
Tower—The Mummy's Hand (Univ), plus Nick Lucas on stage 110
Uptown—The Invisible Woman (Univ) 75

Omaha's Top Money Is Earned by "Arizona"

OMAHA—Bad winter weather hit local takes generally but exhibitors report "satisfactory" business. Brandeis held "Arizona" and "Always a Bride" for a second stanza after a swell first week that was the town's top. "Cheers for Miss Bishop" and "Captain Caution" was helped at the Omaha by appearance here of stars who attended same picture's premiere in Lincoln. State combined a second-run picture with two first-runs.

Detail for week ended January 25:

(Average is 100)

Brandeis—Arizona (Col); Always a Bride (FN).160
Omaha—Cheers for Miss Bishop (UA); Captain Caution (UA) 125
Orpheum—Four Mothers (WB); Hullabaloo (M-G-M) 100
State—Meet the Wildcat (Univ); Pier 13 (20th-Fox); Brigham Young (20th-Fox), 2nd run..100

New Commonwealth Unit Set for Waynesville

KANSAS CITY—The Commonwealth Theatres announce a new theatre for Waynesville, Mo., which is near the entrance to the new Fort Leonard Wood, and about half way between Rolla and Lebanon. It will be air conditioned, have 1,000 to 1,200 seats, and will be erected by Flett Construction Co., which has recently completed the Melba for the Commonwealth at Batesville, Ark. C. A. Schultz, president of Commonwealth, said the new theatre, to be named the Fort Wood, will run stage and screen shows, on a de luxe basis; and will be in operation between March 15 and April 1.

The government establishment, which is expected to quarter between 40,000 and 50,000 soldiers, is now being built and is to be open about April 1.

Competition Ahead

MINNEAPOLIS—Weekend radio show opposition in both the Minneapolis and St. Paul municipal auditoriums is in store for exhibitors this weekend. The National Barn Dance goes into the St. Paul auditorium and the KSTP Barn Dance moves from the St. Paul to the Minneapolis auditorium.

"Know Your Money" Shown in DM

DES MOINES—Russell Daniel, United States treasury secret service agent from Omaha, presented a two-subject sound film, "Making Money" and "Know Your Money," at a meeting of the Des Moines Coin Club here January 23.

Richards Buys Out Steeg

PRIMGHAR, IA.—R. J. Richards, formerly of Yankton, S. D., has purchased the Time Theatre here from Joe Steeg.

"WHY does it always rain, or snow, or sleet on weekends?" wails an exhibitor, and is echoed by every other exhibitor in this area. It is a favorite melancholy observation of first run managers.

H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., is reopening the Carlton at Manhattan, Kas., dark since last spring. Manhattan isn't far from Ft. Riley . . . Fire January 12 did over $1,000 damage to the Ritz at Winfield, Kas. Fire started in the projection room . . . W. W. Leonard has remodeled and reopened the Leonard, formerly the Mystic, at Cedar Vale, Kas.

Depositions in the suit of Frank Cassil, Rialto and Uptown, St. Joseph, Mo., against Dubinskys and major distributors, were being taken last week for plaintiffs, the week previous for defendants.

Mary Fitzpatrick of the local Metro exchange counted another birthday on Wednesday. Congratulations! . . . Rube Finkelstein went to Menorah Hospital last week for an operation—painful, but not expected to be serious . . . Max Barewin, here seven years with Price Theatre Premiums, has gone to Detroit, Mich., to have charge of the Price premium setup there. The office here will be closed, at least temporarily.

Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., has announced plans for a new 1,500-seat suburban house in Wichita . . . H. J. Griffith Theatres, Inc., reopened the Cozy at Junction City, Kas. New sound has been installed, along with a new heating plant.

Glen W. Dickinson, Dickinson, Incorporated, which operates theatres at Mission and Olathe, Kas., and Macon, Mo., is extensively remodeling the Ritz and Best theatres in Topeka. New seats and sound, refinishing of lobby, foyer and auditorium, etc., at the Ritz, and complete renovation of the Best are under way. H. L. Eldridge, formerly of Olathe and Mission, is manager of the houses.

L. O. Honig of Fox Midwest Theatres has been installed as president of the Broadway Association . . . Dan James, head of Midwest Theatres of Oklahoma City, last week indicated his company will spend $45,000 remodeling the opera house at Junction City, Kas., into a modern theatre.

J. E. Pennington of the Cozy at Topeka was operating the machine the other night when fire broke out. He extinguished the blaze before the fire department arrived, and patrons didn't even know there had been a fire.

Besides the houses at Junction City, the Camp Funston-Ft. Riley area will have two theatres exactly alike built by the army. Each will have 1,038 seats, a big stage, and will be of frame construction.

Omaha Attack Fatal To Charlie Williams

By MONTE DAVIS

OMAHA—Charles E. Williams is dead.

President of the MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa for two decades and one of the best known independent exhibitors in the business, "Charlie" died in an Omaha hospital where he had spent almost a week following an attack he suffered while visiting Filmrow. He was 73 years old last October.

Services were held Wednesday at a local mortuary and his body returned to Shelby, Ia., his "home town." Pallbearers were Bob Ballantyne of Scott-Ballantyne Co.; Evert R. Cummings, Tri-States Theatres district manager; Eugene Blazer, film industry attorney; Sam Epstein, circuit owner; Howard Brookings, exhibitor at Avoca, Ia., and Sherm Fitch, RKO branch manager at Sioux Falls, S. D.

To Omaha in 1915

Charlie came to Omaha in 1915 and bought the Park Theatre, a 250-seat house on the edge of Omaha's main business section. Mrs. Williams did most of the managing of the Park up to the time of her death in the spring of 1940. After Mrs. Williams' death, Charlie found his health couldn't stand the pace, and he disposed of his theatre last fall.

Charlie had spent the past 20 years fighting the small independent exhibitor's fight. He spent his time and his money in the interest of exhibitors, and nationally he personified the independent exhibitor.

Williams had been connected with the MPTO of Nebraska and Western Iowa for 22 years, starting as business agent in 1918. For a dozen years he served on the executive board of the MPTOA but was automatically suspended from the board when he sold his theatre six months ago.

Charlie was particularly friendly to the film industry press. Whenever the Omaha representative of BOXOFFICE needed a good story, it could always be found at Charlie Williams' home on the outskirts of Omaha. The last interview BOXOFFICE had with Charlie was only a few months ago. Charlie had his feet on his desk, a cigar in his mouth, his hands back of his head as he reminisced about the "old days."

"There have been a lot of changes in the film industry in the past 20 years," he said at that time. "There will probably be just as many in the next 20 years." The BOXOFFICE story at that time asked the question, "Will there be another Charlie Williams to carry the banner of independent exhibitors and theatre owners during the next 20 years?"

Williams is the man who tolled the death knell of the Brookhart bill (grandfather of the Neely Bill) over a dozen years ago. The bill was rejected by a special senate committee after Williams appeared before the group. He talked the layman's language and explained the faults of the bill in simple terms as compared with the technical phrases of "high powered" attorneys who preceded him. C. C. Pettijohn called Charlie "Abraham Lincoln" after that and Charlie was "Abe" to Pettijohn ever after.

Up to the very time of his death, Williams urged independent exhibitors to maintain an active organization for the protection of their own interests. He argued that such an organization be continued in the Omaha distribution territory. At that time he said:

"Inasmuch as I have severed my relationships with the film industry by selling my theatre, I believe some of the younger exhibitors in Nebraska and Iowa should communicate with each other for the purpose of establishing a new organization or bolstering the present group. The important thing is to have an organization to protect your interests and to promote goodwill among exhibitors."

Welworth Managers Outline a Campaign

MINNEAPOLIS—Managers of all the theatres comprising Eddie Ruben's Welworth circuit were called together here this week to make plans for a "Big Six" campaign.

The idea will be to book into each house consecutively the six best films obtainable and to sell the public the bill of goods that motion pictures today are, on the average, the best in the industry's history.

"There are many people who feel that there aren't any good pictures any more or that first-rate films are few and far between," explained President Ruben. "That's entirely wrong and we must prove it to the public."

The films to make up the "Bix Six" will, of course, vary in the different situations, but will include such offerings as "Philadelphia Story," "Kitty Foyle," "Santa Fe Trail," "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," "This Thing Called Love," etc.

"This probably is one of the first times in the industry's history that we are able to give the public six outstanding pictures in a row," declared Ruben. "This is conclusive evidence that films are improving and product attaining a quality peak."

For a gag the convention was called "a meeting in Miami," with decorations, luncheons, etc., given a tropical flavor.

Ruben Readying a Drive for Patrons

Minneapolis—Eddie Ruben, Welworth circuit president, and his staff are preparing a vast campaign plan to "bring back" the public to the theatres.

The proposal for a "vast drive," enlisting every branch of the industry, was indorsed at the Northwest Allied convention. The plan will be made public within the next fortnight.

The independent exhibitors conceded that lack of sufficient patronage is their principal trouble and they expressed determination to win their patrons away from competing forms of entertainment and back to motion pictures.

Fears a Precedent in 50 Per Cent Rentals

MINNEAPOLIS—The Northwest Allied resolution putting the members on record to reject 50 per cent pictures, was prompted by reports that M-G-M and United Artists are demanding such terms for "Gone With the Wind" and "The Great Dictator," respectively.

S. G. Lebedoff, Northwest Allied executive committee member, asserted that if exhibitors permitted a precedent to be established in these cases, 50 per cent pictures would become common and independent exhibitors would be "ruined."

He argued that because of the fact that a precedent has been established, Twin City exhibitors haven't been able to break M-G-M down yet on percentage pictures, although all other companies sell flat.

Price Boosts for "Specials" Seen as Deleterious

MINNEAPOLIS—The territory's independents claim that when admission prices are raised for such special pictures as "Boom Town" and "North West Mounted Police" there is an adverse effect on the boxoffice subsequently.

With resumption of the regular admission scale, a let-down occurs in patronage and ensuing offerings suffer, according to the independents' contention. The impression is created that the pictures exhibited at the regular prices are below par, it's declared.

This was the reason given for the adoption of a resolution at the Northwest Allied convention demanding retention on exhibitors' part of "the democratic right to maintain and set admission prices on all feature pictures until such a time as we believe that our local economic conditions warrant a change in admissions."

The resolution's preamble states "other pictures not so increased in admission price are considered of lesser merit by our patrons and grosses prior to, and following the run of such increased admission prices, are adversely affected."

Independents Cite Patron Exodus in Reduction Bid

MINNEAPOLIS—Independents in the territory are citing the loss of prospective and regular patrons as the result of enlistments in the army, the moving of National Guard units south and west and conscription, along with the exodus of mechanics, etc., to industrial sections where employment opportunities are greater. Actual figures have been supplied to Northwest Allied.

Taking cognizance of this situation, Northwest Allied at its convention here last week adopted a resolution demanding an immediate reduction in film rentals of "at least 10 per cent."

MINNEAPOLIS

Blotcky Appoints New Variety Committees

MINNEAPOLIS—Chief Barker Ben Blotcky of the Twin City Variety club has appointed his committees for 1941. The committees and their personnel for Tent No. 12 follow, with the chairman listed first in each instance:

House—William Elson, "Hy" Chapman, Maitland Frosch and "Bruzz" Rubel.

Charity—Joe Podoloff, Harry Dryer and M. Frank McCormick.

Publicity—Les Rees, Morris Abrahams, Cedric Adams, Lowell Kaplan, Bob Murphy, Earl Pomeroy, Merle Potter and Jules Steele.

Entertainment—Charles Rubenstein and Lowell Kaplan, A. A. Kaplan, Ben Meshbesher, "Bruzz" Rubel, Bill Volk, Sidney Volk and Charles Weiner.

Sports—Gilbert Nathanson, Fred Ableson, Don Buckley, Frank Eisenberg, Gordon Greene, Charlie Jackson, Paul Mans, LeRoy J. Miller, Joe Numero and Sol Torodor.

Law—Sam Halpern, Joe Finley, A. A. Kaplan, Sam Maslon and Eddie Ruben.

Shut-In—Harry Dryer, Bill Frank, Maitland Frosch, George Granstrom, Hiller Hoffman, Lowell Kaplan, S. Kaplan and Max Torodor.

Finance—M. Frank McCormick and Eddie Ruben, Henry Baker, Ben Berger, Ben Friedman, A. A. Kaplan, Max Torodor and W. H. Workman.

Membership—Maitland Frosch, Ben Berger, Sim Heller, LeRoy J. Miller and Gilbert Nathanson.

Atlantic City—William Elson, Maitland Frosch, A. A. Kaplan and Max Torodor.

Federal Reserve Bank Paints Bright Picture

MINNEAPOLIS—While Twin City independent exhibitors have been complaining that 1940 was one of their worst years ever, the Federal Reserve Bank report here shows that Northwest business volume during the year reached its highest level since 1929 and 1930 and that the month of December showed the heaviest activity of any similar month in 11 years.

The exhibitors believe that they suffered, instead of gaining along with other industrial lines, because the various forms of competing entertainment, including the radio, bowling, night sports, taverns, beer parlors, night clubs, etc., took many customers away from them.

In its report, the Federal Reserve Bank describes the agricultural situation as being "the best in the depression decade as 1941 opened." Inasmuch as the boxoffice and all lines of business in the territory are dependent on agriculture's welfare for their well-being, this fact is believed to augur favorably for the current year.

Abe Frankle Recuperating

DES MOINES—Abe R. Frankle, operator of the Casino Theatre here, is recuperating at his home after a 10-week illness. He was permitted to see visitors last week for the first time during the siege.

CHIEF BARKER BEN BLOTCKY of the Twin City Variety Club bacheloring it while his wife continues to vacation in Florida . . . Harold Field, Welworth circuit president, to hibernate for six weeks in the south with his wife after visiting his Iowa theatres . . . James Zimmerman, RKO home office legal department representative, explained the consent decree to the staff here. Sherman Fitch, Sioux Falls, S. D., branch manager, and Charles Snyder, his salesman there, came to listen in. And while in Minneapolis Snyder caught pneumonia and now is in St. Barnabas Hospital.

Archie Zacherl, veteran Universal salesman, suffering from heart attack . . . Charlie Weiner's "Lilac Domino," musical with Michael Bartlett, goes into the World here . . . Mother of Charlie Rubenstein, independent circuit owner, to Florida on a pleasure jaunt . . . Merle Potter, Times-Tribune film editor and columnist, en route to Hollywood on his annual news hunting trip. He'll go via Miami this time in order to be present at the "Back Street" premiere in the Florida metropolis . . . Bennie Berger, independent circuit owner, in Florida, vacationing with his pal, W. A. Steffes, there for his health.

Abe A. Kaplan, circuit owner and student of parliamentary law, was stationed at the side of President E. L. Peaslee at the Northwest Allied convention to wise up the latter on rules of order. There was plenty of admiration expressed over the masterly manner in which Harold Field, circuit owner, presented the case for and against the proposed law to nullify consent decree provisions and his handling of the discussion . . . R. V. Risch, veteran Appleton, Minn., exhibitor, attending the convention, was telling everybody "there's nothing like the show business to keep one young." Says it makes him sick if he has to miss one of his own shows. Everybody in town knows him and calls him by name. Has seen many boys and girls grow up and marry and now, at his showhouse, entertains their grown-up children . . . For the first time they had a quartette of singers at the convention. The boys came up from North Dakota just to entertain the exhibitors.

Gordon Greene, Minnesota Theatre former manager and present trustee, up and around again after a flu attack . . . Joe Podoloff, 20th-Fox branch manager, visited Fargo, N. D., accounts . . . A city salesman for one of the major film companies, who doesn't wish his name used, recommends bourbon to keep the flu away . . . "Nickey" Goldhammer, RKO district manager, to New York for a business conference . . . Gene Meredith at Warner Bros. happy because Lola Lane, on her visit to the exchange, autographed her photo for him.

Republic has spotted "Bowery Boy" into the Minnesota . . . M-G-M now in third place in the Film Bowling league and leads all the other exchanges. Gene Meredith of Warner and Tom Blance of the Minnesota Amusement Co., crack keglers, will bowl in both the ABC singles and doubles at the tournament in St. Paul. Blance ran up a 622 score and Meredith wound up with 608 last week . . . Max Kravets, general sales manager of Stephens-Lang productions, visited the RKO exchange, distributors of his "Dr. Christian" series and other pictures.

Dick Stahl, Universal booker, driving a brand new car. Already has initiated one of the fenders . . . Wife and daughter of Al Stern, RKO office manager, down with the flu . . . Moe Levy, 20th-Fox district manager, making a tour of the Omaha and Des Moines exchanges . . . LeRoy J. Miller, Universal branch manager, visited southern Minnesota accounts . . . Bud Rodberg an addition to the local Warner exchange. Was transferred here from Omaha.

Out-of-town exhibitors visiting Filmrow included Everett Dilley, Northfield, Minn.; Peter Campbell, Val Halla, N. D.; John Piller, Valley City, N. D.; Ep. Parsons, Renville, Minn.; Charles Vondra, Mahnomen, Minn.; Ernotte Hiller, Crookston, Minn.; Pete and Mike DeFae, Milbank, S. D., and Oliver Roscoe, Lake Benton, Minn. . . . Bill Grant, Warner city salesman, back from a successful two-week trip to South Dakota . . . Warner Bros. mid-west district, including Minneapolis, jumped from seventh to second place in the Bill Sears drive. Bill Grant is first among Minneapolis salesmen.

John J. Friedl, Minnesota Amusement Co. president, vacationing in Florida. He attended the testimonial banquet for Barney Balaban in Chicago along with C. B. Stiff, J. A. Branton, C. W. Winchell, C. W. Perrine and Charles Zinn of his company . . . Phil Dunas, Columbia district manager, in town . . . Norman Pyle, M-G-M exploiteer, back on the job after recovery from brief illness . . . Flu epidemic finally has hit the town hard and is hurting show business plenty . . . Film notables playing personal appearance engagements here this week included Simone Simon and Isabel Jewell. Sally Rand, Minnesota headliner, also has played in a number of pictures.

Eddie Ruben was confined to his home briefly by illness, but was up and around again in time to be present at his convention of house managers and other circuit employes at the Hotel Nicollet here this week.

DES MOINES

LOU LEVY had the colossal nerve to eat the pheasant Ed Mason sent us from Osage while we were toodling around Mexico, and then forget all about us and our Mitzi when he was passing out the Sandy dolls . . . most considerate, Lou, most considerate. We'll forget all about it, though, if you'll just toss our way any old Baby Sandy who got her glass noggin cracked and you'd have to throw away anyhow . . . speaking of dolls, Joan Baxter is the new one in at Mel Evidon's place and her noggin is not cracked.

Women, it seems, will be worn this season . . . which is our way of saying that Grace Simons has been conscripted into Harry Peter Franz's chore of office managing Lou Patz's National Screen . . . and the place is well named—it's a shifting scene . . . Filmrowers are whispering that they call the roll up there every morning to find out who's missing today. We wish to publicly clear Bert Thomas of the dastardly charge that he furnished us with the jig-saw we ran a few weeks hence . . . factiz, Bert is the extra piece which didn't fit in the puzzle at all, he sez.

Le Hague (BOXOFFICE copy reader, for your information) has done it again . . . he had Harry Hiersteiner's family instead of Harry's Family (Theatre) smoking marihuana in last issue . . . all we want to do is square ourselves with Harry and family. Here's another chance we'd like to take to square ourselves with Filmrowers and exhibitors who find their names misspelled . . . tain't our fault very often, really.

Columnist Stan Mayer says he wouldn't do a chore like that for anybody but us, and that he'd like to see how easy we'd find peddling film . . . you'd probably be surprised, Stan . . . we can't deny, you've got a weigh with exhibs, but maybe we'd have a way ourselves . . . Jean Post's new theme song is "Tie Me to Your Apron Strings Again" . . . nevamind, Jean, the only reason we don't tie & Co. to our apron strings is because we don't have any apron.

Lou Levy's lost pretty Loretta Dieling . . . we couldn't get these two reports verified, so we offer both and you can take your choice: Some say she's transferred to the Washington, D. C., Universal office, and others say she's received a civil service commission . . . everybody agrees that she's in the District of Columbia, at least. Ione of Universal was married a few weeks ago. Chuck Elder's folks recently returned from Guatemala . . . Chick Friedman is rumored as hooking up with the Metro sales force in Los Angeles, lucky Los Angeles!

S. Barret McCormick, when he heard about Hotelman S. F. McGinn furnishing BOXOFFICE & Co. with napkins to match the Hotel Fort Des Moines tablecloth Barret presented us, commented from New York as follows: "I think it was pretty nice of McGinn to equip you with napkins to go with the checkered tablecloth. Now, if he just follows through and gives you the dining room furniture, rugs and proper chinaware, it would prompt me some day to snitch a pillowcase for you in the hope that we can build it up into a fully equipped bedroom. After that I might start on ice cubes and parlay it into a modern, streamlined kitchen. Anything you want? Just ask me . . . as long as McGinn follows through."

While & Co.'s doing a "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" review, BOXOFFICE could be writing some more of this column if there weren't so confounded many confounding items around his office to look at . . . A wire for instance: "A picture layout from 20th Century-Fox is in the mails to you crediting the photos as having come from the production, 'The Road to Rio.' This title is not correct. The correct title is 'That Night In Rio.' Thank you for making the change.—Milton Howe." . . . And over on the other end of the desk is a "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" reaction card on which is scrawled: "Think this is a slick comedy—Ken Clayton (per his unbiased secretary, Wm. Scholl.)"

And here's a penned epistle: "Dear Ken: I've just signed a contract to be a steady addition to the gang of 'East Side Kids.' I would appreciate any kind of a break in your Sunday Edition as I know everybody reads it.—Bobby Stone." . . . Which reminds us of BOXOFFICE & Co.'s idea that Franke should invite all the Smiths in town to the "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" opening so the R&T could pick off a feature on what Mr. and Mrs. Smith think of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" . . . Everybody's wondering what the written comment of Wordsman Joe Smith who will not spare that adjective might look like . . . But then, anybody knows that even scholarly Joe could never go through the orthographic contortions necessitated to put his linguistic tangletongue on paper.

Talk about fifth columns and fraternizing with the opposition! . . . Bob Snyder, who spends his working hours managing E. M. Garbett's Varsity, is spending his off time rooming in the house of Kermit Bierkamp, manager of the Tromar ballroom which on five nights a week tries to entice patrons from the Varsity . . . The room's fancy enough to overlook such a minor offense, though, or was when we saw it, housing Bob's handsome desk, but not handsome Bob . . . You can call on him at 1715 Forty-seventh, folks.

We stopped up to chat with Elmer Tilton at Warners and found him looking better than he has for a long time . . . Tilt talked a long time about what changes are likely to come about in the biz with the consent decree . . . he told us about the "Bread'n Butter" picture they used to peddle in the good old days . . . if Jimmy Winn could see that cute little body Tilt's got fixed up for his head, he'd lose it completely and mail it right in to the DM office. The sun-tanned kid, Art Anderson, is reported happy as a lark up in Minneapolis.

Everybody's so used to having Dallas Day around, and they miss him so darn much since he went to Rochester, they decided to do something about it . . . so everybody on the Row in addition to a lot of exhibitors are making up a pool to help Dallas get well a little faster.

One of our most ardent admirers, Smitty, who claimed he almost took the veil when we married & Co., is reaffirming our firm belief that all men are fickle creatures . . . Smitty blushingly admits that he's keepin' company with widow who's health is delicate. Chappy was one year old January 20 and he can do practically everything, according to Stan Mayer who'll hardly admit that the dog isn't as good as the horse who lied about running in the Derby.

Bloodhounds With Leadless Pants

NORTH CENTRAL KANSAS—Pardon me dear readers, does any one mind if a little old hick town exhibitor gets his dander up?

When I read the report "Closer Checking Is in Prospect" in the January 18th issue of BOXOFFICE I didn't know whether to laugh, cry or swear. I finally decided to do none of these, but instead, say a word or two in behalf of myself and other exhibitors.

I note that the problem is a Minnesota one; still, I know that these Kansas exhibitors get the same accusations hurled at them by "supreme beings" who sit back in swivel chairs and smugly assure themselves that they have a fairly accurate idea of what this or that picture will gross in this or that town.

Do you suppose that the major exchange mentioned was the only one irked when business went from $260 on Monday to $8 on Tuesday? And I know how the guy felt who took in $25.00 on New Year's day and evening. He beat me at that: I did a dollar more than that on New Year's Eve and night! A town 20 miles from me "stood 'em up." It seems to me those exhibitors are the guys who really took it on the chin. Yes, I believe those reports, I've turned in worse ones than that and I can whip the guy who questions them.

I'll leave names and titles out of this but here are a few freakish things that have happened to me: One big picture a couple of years ago grossed $2.20 on one Easter matinee—that night it grossed $50.10. It wasn't in the percentage bracket so it was nobody's business but mine. Had it been a percenter and I'd have turned in those figures to the exchange they'd have blown a fuse.

On another super-super I took in $26.00 in two nights. Get those eyebrows down where they belong—I was checked both nights, one night double checked. The supervisor paid a surprise visit on the checker. I expected the district manager to walk in any minute and check up on the lot of us. Some people are so "after the almighty penny (not dollar)" that they don't even trust each other. So they tour the country in a car as long as a well-rope and spend $50.00 assuring themselves of collecting $5.00 overage.

Closer checking? I don't know about all territories but I'm here to tell you there is no lead in the trousers of these bloodhound checkers out in Kansas.

Thanks folks, I feel much better.

Harry Hermann Resumes Warner Selling in Iowa

DES MOINES—With Harry Hermann back covering his old northwest Iowa territory for Warner Bros., the sale of his Fireman's Hall at Hampton to Central States becomes official.

Harry's return to the Vitagraph fold sends Gilley Wells back to the southeastern Iowa district where Gilley got his film-vending start 16 years ago.

Paul Walsh, who has been keeping the southeastern customers happy, has settled himself at the booking desk again and Paul Weatherby, who has been gladhanding the visiting exhibitors there, continues to greet 'em from the booking desk left vacant across the street at RKO by Dallas Day's illness.

To Triple Bills

DES MOINES—A change from duals to a triple feature policy on weekend changes has been announced for the suburban State Theatre by Manager Haydon Peterson. The triples will run from Thursday through Sunday. Single features will be the fare from Tuesday through Thursday.

Farband Shows Film

DES MOINES—Yiddish motion pictures were shown at the Jewish Community Center Monday evening in a program sponsored by the Nachum Sokolow Farband organization. Proceeds went to the aid of European refugees in Palestine.

LINCOLN

LAUGH in the wrong place: Exhibitors from all over Nebraska are reporting unexpected laughs in two pictures, "Arizona" and "Little Men." Both pictures have thematic music in the Stephen Foster manner, more specifically, "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair." How did Wesley Ruggles and Gene Towne-Graham Baker know the Ascap-BMI scrap was going to make comedy of it?

Busy Guy: Gabe Yorke, the vet Hollywood press agent, is now hitting the byways and big towns in the interest of the film industry and the film, "Land of Liberty," and said this week, if he ever gets a publicity department in Hollywood again (which is likely considering his brand of workmanship), he'll always think kindly of the film salesman. Gabe said he never felt anything but happiness about the poor guy who must stand in a long line getting to the boxoffice, but standing in a long line to get into the one bathroom in these country hostelries is getting him down.

Nice Gesture: Ted Mendenhall, the Paramounter, called Capt. Barney Oldfield into his office one day last week and handed the former BOXOFFICE man a courtesy membership in the Variety Club of Omaha for the "duration" of his army hitch. Oldfield is now with the intelligence department at Omaha's corps area headquarters . . . And N. G. No. 2, Bob Huffman, for fear an audition would make her nervous, signed Mrs. B. O. on her husband's old radio program, started her off with a big hand without audition, and a vote of confidence by signing the show for another YEAR! The Oldfield name has been on the air steadily since Jan. 16, 1938, and Huffman is the man who saw it there first.

Platform to Pictures: Jan Savitt, top-hatting at the Turnpike Casino, January 24, indicated MCA is routing him to the west coast soon, probably to appear in a picture. "After all," says Jan, "if they'll settle with Artie Shaw as an actor, anything can happen."

He Relaxes: Dean Pohlenz, who ran the Sunday Journal and Star's 10 best poll, finally saw the film picking marathon ended and the prizes passed out. He was all but sued, refused, had a few mistakes to reckon with, and had the general merry time which goes with such contests. After the seven weeks it took to complete the contest and judging, he's applying for a week off to dye out the gray in his hair.

Theatre Tidbits: Harvey Traylor and Alvin Hendricks stand in the lobbies of their theatres, which are across the street from each other, and feel bad out loud for the other's business . . . BOXOFFICE started to tell a tale of a publicity gag which went sour in Columbus, Neb., to Henry Salthun, the theatre manager there, and Francis Dishner, of the Telegram, but the "Philadelphia Story" press prevue in Omaha started before it could be snappered.

We must tell you, Ed, how pleased we were that you didn't call us jane, and the first time we're through your nice town, we'll search you out of the "little hive of industry" or bust . . . Four-minute men backstage at the Orpheum Theatre earned orchids from 90 exhibitors and 20 newspaper men Monday night when they repaired the inevitable "sneak preview" sound breakdown in four minutes so that "Mr. and Mrs. Smith's" guests did not go unentertained . . . The exhibitors at the preview included . . . aw, nuts . . . if you're the guy who wasn't, just figure all the rest were.

In a Dither Over Allied Snub of Divorce Bill

MINNEAPOLIS—Action of Northwest Allied in virtually repudiating theatre divorcement legislation at its convention has tossed a virtual bombshell into trade circles here.

In refusing to support a bill already introduced in the state legislature calling for theatre divorcement, members apparently were actuated by friendly feelings toward John J. Friedl, president of the Minnesota Amusement Co., Paramount affiliated circuit, at which the proposed measure is aimed.

The rejected resolution, which would have put the organization behind the bill, provoked a spirited debate and threatened for a time to split the body wide open. But its proponents apparently accepted defeat gracefully.

Such of the organization's leaders as President E. L. Peaslee and Sol Lebedoff, treasurer and executive committee member, strongly opposed the the resolution and argued forcibly against getting the body into a theatre divorcement fight. They and other members, including Bill Elson, defended and praised the Minnesota Amusement Co., as managed by Friedl, and, talking cold turkey, made it plain they much preferred to have the opposing chain theatres run by Friedl than in the hands of "some independents."

Making a hard fight to obtain indorsement for the bill, Bennie Berger, independent circuit owner, assailed the Minnesota Amusement Co., declared the principle of producer ownership and operation of theatres in competition with non-affiliated exhibitors is "all wrong" and pointed out "the organization is making a complete turnabout on an issue to which independent leaders have been definitely committed." W. J. Frank, also the owner of a large independent chain, took occasion to express the opinion that the Minnesota Amusement Co. is far from being "lily white."

Praise for Friedl

Donald Guttman, general manager of the Harry Dickerman circuit, doubted if it would be advisable for the body to go definitely on record for or against theatre divorcement and the members, instead of voting down the resolution, as it was indicated they would do, followed his suggestion to return it to the committee.

President Peaslee paid a tribute to Friedl in urging the organization to hold aloof from theatre divorcement.

"I'd much rather have the Minnesota Amusement Co. own this circuit than many independents whom I could name," declared Peaslee. "I think we're extremely fortunate in having a man like Mr. Friedl as the operator of our principal chain. It would be ill-advised to have a fight in the legislature at this time on such a controversial issue."

Bill Elson also emphasized how fortunate the territory's independent exhibitors are in having such a "fair and considerate" a person as Friedl as head of the big circuit.

"If we get mixed up in a fight over this bill, we'll have dissension in our organization and waste a lot of time and money in a losing effort to get the measure passed," asserted Elson. "The bill looks like a phoney to me."

Berger wondered if he was the only independent exhibitor in the territory "out of step" and "going backwards."

"Up until now we've all been clamoring for theatre divorcement legislation," Berger pointed out. "Now suddenly it isn't wanted. You really don't know what the Minnesota Amusement Co. setup is. Take my situation. Because the affiliated circuit has all the product sewed up, I don't know where I'm going to get my next picture for the Esquire here and World in St. Paul. If that's the sort of strong-arm opposition that you want it's all right with me. I'll get rid of all my theatres and land a job with the affiliated chain and hand you some of it. This isn't a matter of personalities, but of policy. I'll concede that Mr. Friedl is a fine gentleman, but the principle of having film producers operate theatres in opposition to you is all wrong.

"By turning down this resolution you're repudiating the stand which independents have taken for years against producer ownership and control of theatres. It always has been considered fundamental among independent leaders to try to keep the men making pictures from being competing exhibitors."

Ben Friedman, another independent circuit owner, felt that Berger could gain relief through the arbitration board rather than divorcement legislation.

In backing up Berger, Frank averred that the Minnesota Amusement Co. is far from spotless.

"The Minnesota Amusement Co. isn't quite so virtuous as some of the speakers would have you believe," asserted Frank. "Give it a foot and it'll take a yard, and it's doing that very thing all the time. It has every advantage over independents and it isn't relinquishing any of it."

Heart Ailment Is Fatal To Abe W. Riegelman

DES MOINES — Abe W. Riegelman, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. salesman in southern Iowa for 14 years, died at Iowa Lutheran hospital here Monday after a brief illness of a heart ailment.

Funeral services were here Wednesday morning. Riegelman, 55, had been brought to Des Moines as a baby and had lived here since except for a five-year interval.

He is survived by a son, Dr. Ralph, Des Moines; a sister, Rae Riegelman, Des Moines; and four brothers, Henry and Charles of Des Moines, Dan of Sioux City, Ia., and Alfred of Kansas City, Mo.

Promote Two

MINNEAPOLIS — Vern Smith, assistant booker at M-G-M here, has been transferred to the Kansas City branch where he'll be head booker. Mel Turner also was promoted from cashier to the booking department to succeed him.

OMAHA

EXHIBITORS and filmites on Filmrow agreed this week they have lost a real friend and associate in the death of Charlie Williams. People along Davenport street who knew Charlie for 10, 15 and even 25 years told many stories that showed Charlie's kindness, friendliness and unselfishness. One exhibitor put the whole thing in one sentence, "He always thought of the other fellow first."

Charlie's best friend on Filmrow was undoubtedly Regina Molseed, RKO booker, and Charlie once told BOXOFFICE how the two became acquainted. Several years ago Regina was a steno in another exchange, which was having a sales drive with all employes participating. Regina's first call was on Charlie and he helped her out by buying everything in the book, much to the surprise of Regina and her boss at that time, Harry Lefholtz. From then on, they were good friends.

The Paramount boys went to Des Moines to attend a sales meeting of the two exchanges. Making the trip were Ted Mendenhall, Carl Weeks, Bill Haarmann, B. A. Tomte. Ike Rubin, the football fanatic, was fighting flu germs at Grand Island and was unable to get home or to Des Moines. Tough luck, Ike . . . Mrs. Henry Hower, wife of the owner of the State and Grand at Worthington, Minn., visited here with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Husan.

L. E. Burkey, Ritz, Deshler, Neb., is very proud of his two-year-old daughter, Beverly. He is also a ping pong player de luxe and knows how to beat Charlie Lieb, Metro peddler, we're told. Burkey's main hobby is to beg, borrow or steal pencils . . . J. V. Frank, Harvard, Neb., and Dick Lysinger, Paramount, Ansley, Neb., and Grand, Ravenna, Neb., had birthdays on the same day, February 1. Frank is nearing the half-century mark and Dick just passed the one-third-century pole.

William Dalbey, a former president of the local chapter of the musicians' union and a musician for several Omaha theatres for many years, died at his home. He was 70 years old . . . Walter Hagedone, Cozad, Neb., was in town for the first time in months . . . Harold Dunn, Jewel, Valentine, Neb., gave his wife a trip to the west coast for a Christmas present. She'll stay several weeks . . . Mr. and Mrs. Mel Smith, Akron, Ia., were on Davenport Street and reported good business.

Sol Yeager, Monogram's gift to the army, drove through a storm to get back to Omaha and was thanking his lucky stars he got home all right, when he ran into a truck on his way home from downtown. The entire front end of his car will need replacing . . . Slim Fraser, Havelock, Neb., in town right on time . . . Also Mort Troxell, exhibitor at DeWitt, Neb., and that town's suburb, Wilber, Neb.

Ray Brown, Harlan, Ia., has a birthday soon, just passing the half-century mark. Art Miller, Atkinson, Neb., will celebrate his 18th wedding anniversary on the same day . . . The Francis family—Sol, Mary and Sophie Volkert—are glad to report their mother is home from the hospital and feeling much better.

"GWTW" in Cleveland Takes National Lead

CLEVELAND—"GWTW" in its first week at popular prices at Loew's State Theatre, has outrun all other popular priced premieres at Loew houses throughout the country, it is officially reported here. Nothing daunted by its original take of $225,000 in ten weeks at $1.10 top, the picture played to 75,000 people last week at the State and added slightly over $30,000 to the boxoffice count. The picture opened cold, but within three days, a block-long queue formed at 9 a. m. and preceded each of the four daily performances. All downtown houses benefited from the crowds around the State. The Palace had a big week with "Honeymoon for Three" although the main attraction was the International Casino Revue and specialty acts on the stage. "Arizona" brought out all the western fans. "Kitty Foyle" doubled the average Allen business in a moveover after 11 big days at the Hippodrome while "Flight Command" at the Stillman came through 25 per cent more than par business. Weather was clear and there was only the usual outside competition.

Detail for week ending January 24:

(Average is 100)

Allen—Kitty Foyle (RKO) 200
This was a moveover after 11 very big days at the Hippodrome. It will be held a third week.
Hippodrome—Arizona (Col) 125
Palace—Honeymoon for Three (WB) 135
Stage show was International Casino Revue with a chorus of 32, and added specialty acts.
State—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M) 270
First showing at popular prices.
Stillman—Flight Command (M-G-M) 125
This was a moveover from the State.

Detroit First Run Laurels Go to Kay Kyser's P. A.

DETROIT—General film business in the Motor City moved downward this past week, affected primarily by the prevailing wet weather which discouraged show going on most nights, and hit matinee attendance just about as severely. Fear of flu conditions was a secondary deterrent.

Contrariwise, however, was the experience at the Fox, where results proved the truth of the observation made in BOXOFFICE two weeks ago by Earl Hudson, president of United Detroit Theatres, that patronage is responding more and more directly to a good attraction. In this case, with a film of but average drawing power, Kay Kyser and his band in person drew an estimated 140,000 people in the week, breaking all records of the past ten years for any Detroit theatre.

Unfortunate experience with a revival of two horror films of several years back at the Cinema marked the nadir of the week locally. This house did record business not long ago with two new horror films, and the moral evidently is that the public in this town likes horror, but won't go for repeats, inasmuch as the limited audience has probably seen these oldtimers before.

Detail for week ending January 23:

Palms-State—Santa Fe Trail (FN) after 9 days at the Michigan; and East of the River (FN) 95
United Artists—Maisie Was a Lady (M-G-M); Philadelphia Story (M-G-M) 100

"GWTW" Strong as Ever in Cleveland

Cleveland—The local run of "GWTW" is leading the Loew circuit all over the country, local officials report. At least 75,000 people saw the picture in its first week at popular prices at Loew's State. The State has approximately 3,500 seats, so it appears that some 10,000 daily admissions were sold. This comes close to selling out completely for the four daily shows. It is being held a second week at the State and then it moves to the Stillman.

"GWTW" last year played a ten-week engagement at Loew's Stillman at $1.10 top. It grossed approximately $225,000.

"Thief of Bagdad" Week's Leader in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—"The Thief of Bagdad" at Loew's Penn was the attraction of the week here, with "Comrade X" in the Warner, after nine days in the Penn, turning in a very good showing. "Flight Command" in the Ritz, after nine days in the Stanley, did only average business. Ted Weems and his orchestra helped "South of Suez" at the Stanley. Details for week ending January 17:

(Average is 100)

Sneak Preview Added to Cincinnati's Strongest

CINCINNATI—RKO's sneak preview, properly heralded in all newspapers as added to "This Thing Called Love," for a final Tuesday night show, brought out an excellent audience, and pleased the exhibitors and critics, all of whom came in full force. "This Thing Called Love," topped grosses at the Palace and held over. Business zoomed slightly but the holdovers suffered and the stage and film at Shubert's fell below average.

Londons Open New Detroit Midtown

DETROIT—Opening of the new 1,000-seat Midtown by Julius D. and Milton London—father and son—was a bit of a civic event, despite the absence of a trade screening.

This is the first theatre built in the two-mile circle since the Roxy was opened eight years ago, and its construction near the center of what newspapers have for months been campaigning about as Detroit's "blighted area," gives it unusual significance. Tribute to the civic enterprise of the Londons in their venture was paid by Mayor Edward J. Jeffries in a telegram of congratulation at the opening.

Milton London will manage the house personally, and continue to control the Arcade as well. Ed DeLorme is operator.

Floral tributes were received from many friends, including: W. J. Turnbull, National Theatre Supply; Ed Long, Long Sign Co.; G. E. LeVeque, Cinema Service; Joe Lenahan, Mills Mutual Agency; Frank Lorenzen, theatrical florist; employes of both the Booth and the Arcade theatres; M. A. Tork, manager of the Booth; Ben Lefkowitz, Auto City Candy Co.; William A. London, Associated Theatres; I. J. London, circuit owner; and Bennett and Straight, theatrical architects.

They Join in Balaban Tribute—

CLEVELAND

FRITZ VERMES is getting ready to serve in the Army, and his brother, Ted, is wearing a worried look wondering how he's going to look after both the Norwood and Yale theatres . . . Bert Schoonmaker has leased the Lyric, Delta. Former lessee was Jack Barck of Cleveland . . . The Dixie, Toledo, closed in recent months, has been reopened by Roger Scherer, who has been associated with the Pete Mallers circuit in Fort Wayne, Ind. . . . Urban Anderson, president of Midwest Specialty Co., handling distribution of Panoram, reports four Panoram installations were made last week—one of them in the Alhambra Bowling Alley operated by Martin Printz.

J. O. Guthrie of New London, George Delis of the Constant circuit, Joe Trunk and Joe Shagrin of Youngstown and Max Federhar of Akron were among the Filmrow out-of-town visitors during the week . . . Maurice Druker, pinch hitting for Everett Steinbuck, manager of Loew's State, is getting the impression that Cleveland is a great show town which it is judging from the crowds that are pouring into the State to see "GWTW."

Charles Raymond, Loew division manager, and Mrs. Raymond are both speaking before groups in behalf of aid to Britain. The Raymonds only recently returned from London where for six years he was in charge of Loew theatres . . . Harry Henderson, manager of the Lorain Fulton, has a new hobby—playing with electric trains . . . Ray Schmertz of the 20th-Fox exchange became an uncle last week for the first time . . . The Joe Lissauers of the W. N. Skirball circuit are in Florida, and the Skirballs are making arrangements to go down there for a couple of months.

"Land of Liberty," which premieres in the capital of each state, opened at Loew's, Columbus, on January 24 . . . George Holden, shipping clerk in the Cincinnati PRC office, steps out in uniform on February 8 If you have any high class art work to be done at any time, see Ed Wise, manager of the Homestead Theatre. After seeing his work on Chick Taylor's shorts book, he should be swamped with orders.

C. C. Deardourff, M-G-M exploiteer, is out in the territory arranging tieups on "GWTW" that will soon be breaking at popular prices . . . Eddie Miller is back on the job managing the Hippodrome after battling the flu . . . For straight laughs, smart dialogue and smooth acting, don't miss Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," an RKO product.

Marie Mack of Metro's local exchange observed her natal day on Saturday.

The new year has started out well insofar as the film population is concerned. So far, January has produced two new prospective femme stars and two possible leading men. Marilyn Gail arrived last Monday night to make a threesome of the family of Sanford Leavitt of the Washington circuit; Bob Richardson, RKO booker, and Mrs. Richardson welcomed Gail Louise on Sunday night; Sunday also brought a second son to George Bailey, M-G-M assistant cashier, and Mrs. Bailey and earlier in the month a son was born to the Leonard Greenbergers of the Moreland Theatre.

Leo Jones of Upper Sandusky has temporarily closed his Carey Theatre, Carey, until the flu epidemic subsides . . . Sam Stecker of Associated circuit and Mrs. Stecker are now in Florida . . . Frank Porozynski of the New Victory and Garfield theatres has postponed his trek south on account of the illness of Mrs. Porozynski.

Jimmy Circosta of the Ohio, Bellaire, is celebrating the arrival of a grandson. Father is Circosta's son who operates the St. Clairsville, St. Clairsville . . . First theatre fire to occur here in many years was reported last Monday night at the RKO Palace. It was of unknown origin and was discovered under the stage. Manager Kenneth Means refunded money to about 90 per cent of the customers. Loss was negligible.

First Runs Hold Up Despite Flu Wave

Cleveland—First run business does not appear to have suffered from the flu epidemic that is widely prevalent in mild form in this territory, but suburban theatres and houses in the small towns seem to be suffering as a consequence.

Only two towns are reported closed on account of the epidemic. They are Carey, where Leo Jones operates the Carey, and the LoNet in Wellington.

List of Lawsuits Grows in Detroit

Detroit—Detroit's series of theatrical lawsuits now before the courts have an addition in progress this week in the suit of James Cruze Productions against L. A. Young, etc., when Circuit Judge Theodore J. Richter issued an order for the production of certain books and records for examination. The case, in reality two twin suits for approximately $1,000,000 grow-out of the Tiffany-Stahl Productions, has been in court for several years.

CINCINNATI

ROBERT FITZWATER has purchased a site 160 x 100 feet at 1625 Queen City Avenue on which he will erect a brick and concrete theatre with terra cotta front. Besides a seating capacity of 690 persons, there will be a large parking lot . . . The show went on when fire attacked the Opera House, Lexington, Ky., operated by Schine. The loss is covered by insurance. The fire was confined to the dressing rooms and storage rooms in the rear of the building. A rear brick wall was torn loose by a blast. G. Lewis Hensler is manager of the house.

He Gets a District—

Earle W. Sweigert, long Paramount's Philadelphia manager, who is upped to a newly created district embracing Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Broder Expanding; Key Spot to Daly

DETROIT—Expansion of the Broder circuit was disclosed here with the appointment of Joseph Daly as general manager of the organization. Daly is temporarily directing activities from the Seville, which Broder has taken over from James Bukivale and Severina Danswski. This makes four houses for Broder.

Daly, a "young veteran," comes from the Esquire in Grosse Pointe, which will now be managed for Michael J. Chargot by his three sons. Daly was formerly Butterfield manager at Jackson, and before that manager of the Loop here for Associated Theatres.

Second expansion move of the week was acquisition of the 2,000-seat Town, intermittently operated by Sam Carver, for the past three months, and reopening of this big Woodward Avenue spot as a 15-cent house, further complicating the already confused Woodward Avenue booking situation. The Town, incidently, is in the same block as Broder's allied enterprise, the Trianon Ballroom.

Lee Goldberg's Brother Joins Him as Salesman

CLEVELAND—Lee Goldberg, PRC franchise owner, announces his brother, Joe W. Goldberg, has rejoined his organization as special sales representative in the Cincinnati territory. Joe was associated with Lee in Big Feature Rights exchanges in Louisville prior to his entering the advertising field.

Booze and his family are leaving for Virginia where he will be connected with a chain shoe store company.

B. J. Curry has sold his Strand at Horse Cave, Ky., to C. M. Caldwell, operator of houses at Cave City, Scottsville and Munfordville. Curry is going out of the territory.

Retired Exhibitor Dies

MT. PLEASANT, PA.—J. B. Cox, pioneer exhibitor, died here last week at the age of 79. Owner and manager of the old Cox Theatre for many years, he had retired from exhibition several years ago.

On Its Way to The Lawyers

Louisville—A lawsuit is brewing over an argument between two erstwhile friends as to who is entitled to $100 won at Louis Steurle's Broadway Theatre. The one at present holding the money contends she paid the admission for her friend and the ticket stubs that brought the prize therefore are hers. Her friend counters that she paid her own way, only letting the former buy the tickets, who proceeded to hold the stubs. The case is due for police court if not settled.

Massillon to License Theatre Stimulators

Massillon, Ohio—Licensing of Bank Nights, Prosperity Clubs and similar patronage stunts at local theatres, has been approved by the city council. The ordinance sets up a $5 fee for each drawing in connection with the stunts.

Although approved a week ago, Mayor Harry Lash has not yet affixed his signature to the ordinance.

Several Shea Managers Moved in Ohio and Pa.

NEW YORK—Several changes in managers of Shea theatres have been announced by E. C. Grainger, president of the circuit, upon his return from a recent trip through Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Affected are the following: Duke Prince, manager of the Ohio and Strand in Marietta, was transferred to Zanesville, Ohio, as assistant to the general manager, E. J. Hiehle, in charge of three houses. Joe Scanlon, pinch hitting in Zanesville, assumes Prince's post in Marietta.

Raymond C. Trubey, recently pinch hitting in Pittsburgh, has been transferred to Ashtabula, Ohio, as assistant to Dan Gilhula, city manager; and Gordon Kearsey, chief of service in Pittsburgh, has been promoted to an assistant managership there.

Warner Will Operate New Unit in Sharon

SHARON, PA.—Louis Shafran, Sharon businessman, announces plans for the construction of a theatre and business block in the east side to cost $90,000. Contract has been awarded to Paul Glenn, local contractor, who will start work on the project immediately.

Make a note: If a bill is introduced in the Ohio legislature to remove censorship from newsreels, it will pass! Inside story is that no bill of such a nature will be presented without a green light signal from Governor Bricker.

Dock Refused Refund on License Fee Payment

DETROIT—Annual license fees paid by theatre operators are paid "for keeps," according to the city council. A request for a refund—the first in many years, if not the first on record—was made by Claude A. Dock, builder of the Dox Theatre, who recently sold his house to Ambrose J. Fitzgerald. Dock felt entitled to a refund on the unexpired portion of his license payment, and asked for a prorata refund accordingly.

The council took the matter up with the police department, and concluded with the verdict that "there is no provision in the ordinance for making such a refund."

Raymond Greevey Heads DuBois, Pa., Operators

Boston — The American Arbitration Ass'n has named Henry de la Morandiere as clerk of the motion picture arbitration board here. His address is the Chamber of Commerce.

Says M&P Schedules Went to All Majors

BOSTON—Continuing testimony in the current Waldo Theatres Corp. vs. the late Joseph Dondis, et al., anti-trust suit, Al Bevan, M&P Theatres Corp. assistant booker, testified that it was not the circuit's practice to send protection schedules to independent distributors, but that the chain generally sent them out to all major companies.

Still concentrating his questioning upon the issue of protection in the form of clearance, plaintiffs' counsel, George S. Ryan, referring to the season of 1930-31, sought details as to the companies receiving copies of the protection schedule. The probing elicited the information that as far as he (Bevan) recalled, all received the schedules and that conversations pertinent to clearance followed with the recipients of the schedules.

Elaborating somewhat in the case of Universal, Bevan answered a query as to what was said about protection being given by other distributors, with "I don't recall that there was any conversation about what we get from other people, so far as Bill Kelly (branch manager for Universal) was concerned. I know I did mention it to clinch my argument, and Bill would never agree to that, because we didn't do much business with them, and they always sold different from anybody else and still do."

Bevan denied that citing what others accorded in the way of protection was his most effective argument, terming it "just one of the arguments."

An objection by John Caskey, one of the defense battery, to the question "so far as protection was concerned, have you found that no distributor likes to give more protection than the other distributor was giving" was over-ruled by Francis P. Freeman, U. S. district court appointee, as master, and was accordingly answered by Bevan: "It has been my experience that none of them like to give you much, and they try to settle for as little as possible."

Metro Sells Dual Bill To Paramount Outlet

BOSTON—M-G-M has sold two features to the M&P Theatres Corp. The Paramount-affiliated circuit has spotted the M-G-M dual, "Haunted Honeymoon" and "Go West" in the first run Paramount and Fenway.

Marty Glazer, advertising manager for the two houses, gave the two films a concentrated exploitation campaign, originating the catchline: "Buck Harpo! Buck Chico! and Pass-the-Buck Groucho!"

Film Censorial Powers Extended in Boston

BOSTON—Motion picture censorship activity was increased in the City of Boston last week following notices sent to local theatre managers by John J. Spencer, chief of the Boston licensing board.

Spencer ordered local managers planning to show any of the 34 motion picture features he named to notify him in writing not less than four days before the proposed showing. He also provided that, if he so declared it, the manager must arrange for a private showing.

The move came so unexpectedly that local theatre organizations were not aware of it until informed by this publication. They started investigations at once.

The present scope of the new move principally affects but a limited number of local houses, but it is felt that if it is allowed to gather a foothold, its power will spread, although there is no indication in Spencer's notice that any films will be banned.

The motion picture house that stands to be most concerned is the Fine Arts, a number of whose foreign importations are on Spencer's list. Other houses that may be involved include such spasmodic road-show locations as the Gayety, Globe, Beacon, Stuart, etc.

Spencer provides in his notification, which he issued under the provisions of Chapter 494, Section 1, of the Acts of 1908, and Acts in amendment thereto, that:

"No picture appearing on the appended list may be presented in Boston, without the permission of the chief of the licensing division, or assistant chief, licensing division, which can be obtained only after the foregoing regulations are compiled with."

Regulations alluded to are:

"(1) The manager of any theatre where the presentation of any photoplay which appears on the appended list is planned must, not less than four days before the projected showing, notify in writing the chief, licensing division, Mayors office, Boston, Mass., listing the title of the film, any previous titles, producer and number of reels, this notification to be in addition to the regular weekly report.

"(2) The manager must, if so ordered by the chief, licensing division, arrange for a private screening of the photoplay in question before the date of which the photoplay is scheduled for release at his theatre."

See LOD Influence

Spencer added that managers who violate the regulations face summary suspension or revocation of their theatre licenses.

The list of motion pictures that must be given special O. K.'s for Boston showings in the future seems mainly based on Legion of Decency listings, although the licensing division would not confirm that this opinion was being held as any local criterion.

A large number of the products named have already played Boston, while no attempt has been made to bring certain of the others, particularly the nudist reels, here.

Films designated by Spencer are:

"Adolph Armstrong" (Swedish) Svensk Film Industri—Scandinavian.

Employment Bounds, And So Do Takes

Boston—A continued bettering of theatre grosses is held by local film men to be brought about by the rising trend of employment here.

In Massachusetts, figures just released by the state department of labor and industries show that in December the number of persons in private employ rose 2.7 per cent from November, while the total amount of their payrolls increased 7.8 per cent.

Compared with December, 1939, last month's total of employed persons was up seven per cent and payrolls were up 15.9 per cent. Nevertheless, based on the average for 1925-26-27 as 100, the index for the number of employed persons last December was only 87.6 and that of payrolls, 91.2.

Massachusetts Factory Employment Hits Top

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Employment in Massachusetts factories rose in December to its highest level since May, 1937, and payrolls to the highest point since 1929, the state department of labor and industries announces.

The department's statistics, based on a survey of 1,739 representative manufacturing firms in mid-December, showed an increase of 7,872 employes, or 2.7 per cent, an increase of $607,776 in payrolls, or 8.7 per cent over November.

Successful Theatrical Ball Held in Hartford

HARTFORD—This city's annual theatrical ball was held last week in the main ballroom of the Hotel Bond under the sponsorship of Local 84, IATSE. Charlie Obert was chairman of the affair.

Hartford's managers and their assistants and wives were in attendance en masse. Music was furnished by Sammy Kaplan and his State Theatre orchestra. In addition, there were specialty acts featured regularly with Glenn Miller's band, and a line of girls who also served as models in an advance showing of next season's furs.

Local merchants subscribed to many pages of advertising in the program, and the receipts, it was stated, "will be devoted to the sick benefit fund of Local 84."

But His Fears Were Gone When He Awoke

Bridgeport, Conn. — Nate Greenberg, manager of the Park City, did plenty of private grouching in the early hours one morning recently.

Nate felt a touch of flu coming on and left the theatre early. Reaching his bachelor apartment, he took a hot bath and a hot drink and climbed into bed. He was sleeping soundly and sweating plenty when the telephone jangled. It was 1 a. m. and a patrolman, trying doors, had found the theatre unlocked, thanks to a thoughtless usher. So Nate had to dress, go out in near zero cold, and turn the key in the lock.

He went home with dire thoughts of being lugged off to a hospital within 24 hours, but surprisingly when he awoke later from his second sleep, the flu symptoms had disappeared entirely.

: SPRINGFIELD :

One Sitting Wasn't Enough for Him

Bridgeport, Conn.—One mother doesn't think so much of Morris Rosenthal's publicity campaign for "Land of Liberty" at Loew's Majestic. She complained that she had to sit through the picture twice because her son's teacher had ordered him to write an essay on the film. The son didn't feel he could do sufficient justice to the film after only one sitting.

: BRIDGEPORT :

JOHN BERNARD, operator at the Black Rock Theatre, is expecting an addition to his family in the spring. He now has one boy and is hoping for a girl . . . Ruth Saunders, daughter of Manager Matt L. Saunders of Loew's-Poli, was in Washington for the inauguration . . . Congratulations to Al Domian, Loew-Poli assistant, on the birth of a daughter.

Mrs. Al M. Schuman braved the winter's worst ice storm to go to New Haven for bookings. After completing her business she could not get a taxi to the railroad station and had to stand on the street corner a half hour in freezing rain waiting for a trolley car. Mrs. Schuman, who runs the Black Rock here with her husband, hails from Alabama. She suffered no ill effects and says it takes more than a Yankee sleet storm to beat her down . . . Sympathy to Arthur "Otto" Esposito, popular Loew's-Poli aide, who recently lost his father-in-law.

Robert Carney, assistant manager at the Majestic, is back after a battle with the flu . . . Business here the past year was the best in 16 years and is continually on the rise . . . NEW HAVEN

IT WAS with the sincere good wishes of the entire district that "Dean" Morris Joseph left active duty with Universal for a well-deserved vacation. Last May, Morris celebrated his 25th anniversary as exchange manager for Universal here with a cocktail party at the "U" offices, which was attended by over 100 exhibitors, exchange representatives from New York, Boston and New Haven, and many other friends. The scroll presented to Joseph on that occasion said, "We know of no man more deserving of this tribute for his untiring efforts and energy toward the motion picture industry. A quarter of a century of progress well spent." The Josephs will take up permanent residence in Miami, it is reported . . . Sincere good wishes of the territory also go to John Pavone, the new Universal manager here, whose ability and geniality are well-known after many years with Warner and other offices on Meadow Street.

The many friends of the Maxwell Hoffmans were shocked at the sudden death of their nine-week-old daughter, Linda . . . I. J. and B. E. Hoffman back at their desks after a siege of the grippe . . . Sam Rosen leaving for Florida soon.

Tom Connors made his first visit to the New Haven Metro exchange in three years accompanied by Maurice N. Wolf, district manager. From New Haven both were Albany bound . . . P. Dugan of the Warner Theatre department bookkeeping office is off on National Guard duty, and has been replaced by Jack Huizing . . . Turnover of ushers and doormen is so great these days that the boys hardly get to know the managers and assistants and vice versa. The new boys tried to show one of the assistants to a seat . . . Bob Russell estimates receiving a phone call of inquiry every half minute during the week of "GWTW" at the Poli. Business built up all week to a $15,000 take. Russell and Rubin used school study guides, which resulted in large group student attendance, with as many as 1,000 in one afternoon from Commercial High. Also stills of Vivien Leigh in Gamble's, book marks in the library, etc. Lobby holdouts of two hours were the rule over weekend and beginning of week. Picture may stay two weeks more at the College, and in addition is being held a second week at the Majestic, Bridgeport; Elm Street, Worcester, and Palace, Hartford. Palace, Meriden, opens with the film February 2.

Jack Brassil secured a page of co-op ads in the Milford News on "GWTW" . . . Ed Fitzpatrick of the Poli, Waterbury, put out a special herald on the picture, but offset the cost by selling the back page. Fitz also erected a book 5x6 feet in his lobby, with a motor-moved page inside showing stills . . . Russell Grant, Poli, Hartford, student assistant, sold a two-column co-op ad . . . Big doings on the Poli circuit on "Land of Liberty," too . . . In Bridgeport Morris Rosenthal of the Majestic tied up with the schools, the "I Am an American" Committee, churches and all factories. He spread the slogan "150 years of United States history in 150 minutes." Lou Brown and Sam Badamo securing a proclamation from the governor on the film. Three New Haven screenings took in the mayor and his staff, principals of high schools and newspaper and Yale University representatives. Yale contest has been arranged. The picture plays here with "Laddie," when "GWTW" finishes . . . Bob Portle of the Plaza, Worcester, secured the endorsement of Mayor Bennett on this picture, film rental of which goes to war relief . . . Franklyn Ferguson, who has brought more celebs to his neighborhood Whitney than any in these parts, has arranged with the New Haven Bowl of Rice Committee to stage a benefit at the theatre, with Dr. Hsia, in this country on a special mission, as speaker, various entertainers, and "Night Train," Benchley and other shorts on the screen. Admission is $1.00 over the house.

For "Heaven Can Wait"

HOLLYWOOD—Seton I. Miller has been assigned to script "Heaven Can Wait" for Columbia.

Moves to Legalize Games, Bookies

CONCORD, N. H.—Following on the heels of a state lottery proposal, bills calling for the legalization of Bingo and Beano and horse race bookies have been introduced in the legislature.

The Bingo bill, sponsored by Rep. Arthur J. Lacroix of Manchester, is officially known as House Bill No. 190, and has been referred to the ways and means committee. Under its terms, the governor would be authorized to appoint a "commissioner of games." The state treasury would reap one-half the profit from the games and the other half would go to the communities in which the games were staged.

The other new measure which is watched with interest by the theatre men is the "bookie" proposal (House Bill No. 149), filed by Rep. Napoleon Dulac of Manchester and also referred to the ways and means committee. This legislation, if passed, would provide for the licensing of race bookmakers by the state racing commission at an annual fee of not more than $1,000 on condition that each bookmaker furnish a bond up to $5,000.

Set 187 Racing Days for Three Eastern Tracks

BOSTON — New England theatre owners are not cheering the fact that 187 days of horse racing have been arranged here for three eastern tracks.

Narragansett in Rhode Island is getting 67 days, while Suffolk Downs in Boston, and Rockingham in New Hampshire, have been allotted 60 days apiece.

Pari-mutuel dog racing dates, another headache to film men, have yet to be completed.

Assigned "The Uniform"

HOLLYWOOD—Clarence Brown will produce and direct "The Uniform," co-starring Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr, for Metro.

Lydon Sets Meeting For February 11

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, president of Independent Exhibitors, Inc., has tentatively set the Allied affiliate's annual Boston meeting for February 11. Lydon is expected to be re-elected president at this time, when the election of officers will come up.

A comprehensive report will be made, also, of the results of the Washington conference held last week by Allied heads, at which Lydon, Arthur K. Howard and Nathan Yamins represented the independent exhibitors.

A Dinner-Dance to Honor Commanders

BOSTON—Past commanders of the theatrical post of the American Legion will be honored February 3 with a dinner-dance at the Latin Quarters in the Boston film district.

Those feted will include: William H. McLaughlin, Major Patrick F. Healy, Kenneth Forkey, James Sheeran, Charles Heath, Col. Joseph F. Gohn, Dr. William Basch and William J. Cotty.

There will be a brief moment of silence in memory of the late Carl Crawford, formerly Grand National manager who commanded the theatrical post.

Harry P. Smith of RKO, junior vice-commander of the post and a Cinema Club officer, is chairman in charge of the February 3 affair. Fellow committeemen include Harry A. Aaronson, Alvin Kenney, Harry Browning, Marcel Mekelburg, Dr. A. Edward Melincoff, Samuel Levine, William H. McLaughlin, Kenneth Forkey, Patrick Healey, William Cotty, Joseph Kantor, William L. Berger, Wilfred Vallee, C. F. McGerigle, James Donovan, Harry Rosenblatt, William N. Lynde, Robert Sternburg, James Sheeran, and Joe Rubin.

Film district workers are invited to attend as guests of the Legion. Reservations may be made and tickets secured from Legionnaires.

Promotion for Aronson To Strand, Westfield

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Harry Smith, director of publicity and division manager of the Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., announces the appointment of Melvin M. Aronson, chief of service at the local Paramount, to assistant manager of the Strand, Westfield.

James J. Bloom, assistant chief of the Paramount's service, has been upped to the position of chief, succeeding Aronson. Robert "Mousie" Glazer, house usher, is now assistant to Bloom.

Regional Directors of Allied Will Convene

BOSTON—Frank Lydon, eastern regional vice-president of Allied, says he plans to call a meeting of regional directors some time within the next few months. He has set no specific date.

Grippe on Wane In New England

Boston—The number of grippe and flu cases throughout New England decreased last week, according to health officials from the various nearby states. Numerous schools that were closed as a precautionary measure, have been and are reopening.

Concord, N. H.—Health officials report a general decrease in influenza and grippe cases, which, at the height of the epidemic, caused the closing of many schools and a ban on admission of children to theatres in several localities.

Claim Wheeler Acts Like a Dictator

MANCHESTER, N. H. — "Few dictators would adopt a more arbitrary attitude than he displays toward the movie newsreels," the Manchester Union asserts editorially of Sen. Burton K. Wheeler in connection with the Montanan's charge that the industry is presenting news vital to the country in a partial manner designed to lead America into war.

"The only thing really involved is the question of editorial selection, in which we think newsreels are right, and Mr. Wheeler wrong," the editorial points out. "We can think of many issues, not now adequately treated by the newsreels, which would be more entitled than Mr. Wheeler's fulminations, to a claim on public attention.

"What this hater of dictators proposes is a dictatorial law to compel newsreels to abide by his own notion of more impartial editorial policies. It would be a short step from this, if, indeed, any step were required, to laws abridging freedom of the press altogether and requiring editors of all news media to abide by dictatorial notions of proper news judgment.

"As for the charge that the newsreels are full of propaganda, that is as meaningless as 99 per cent of all such charges. 'Propaganda' is a term that has lost every shred of communicative significance. Whatever the other fellow says that you don't agree with, is propaganda. It follows that everything written or spoken or published or displayed is propaganda, from one viewpoint or another.

"The easiest way out of the muddle is for everybody to agree to this definition. Certainly the newsreels are full of propaganda. Senator Wheeler's outburst is propaganda against the newsreels. This editorial is propaganda against the senator, and in behalf of old-fashioned Americanism, the Constitution, and freedom of the press."

Discontinue Midnighters

HARTFORD—Midnight shows at the Proven Pictures have been temporarily discontinued. Bernard William Levy is manager.

"Wind" Beats Weather To Lead New Haven

NEW HAVEN—"Gone With the Wind" at the Loew-Poli walked away with most of the downtown business, although opening day and weekend weather and driving conditions were unfavorable to all houses. Second week of "Flight Command" at the College held up well. Newspaper strike and suspension of all dailies for day and a half may have affected business.

Detail for week ended January 23:

(Average is 100)

College—Flight Command (M-G-M); Street of Memories (20th-Fox) 2nd wk.....190
Loew-Poli—Gone With the Wind (M-G-M)....190
To the College for a second week:
Paramount—Victory (Para); Sandy Gets Her Man (Univ) 8 days.....100
Roger Sherman—No, No, Nanette (RKO); Here Comes the Navy (WB)..... 90

Four Weeks for "Kitty" At Keith's Memorial

BOSTON—Ben Domingo, RKO city manager, has put "Kitty Foyle" into a fourth week at Keith's Memorial. The co-feature, "Saint in Palm Springs," is also here for the four stanzas, although it is a common Domingo booking practice to substitute second runs during a holdover to attract repeat business.

Charles Kurtzman, Loew's divisional manager, held the repeat booking of "Gone With the Wind" for a second week at the State and Orpheum. Repeat business has been heavy at the revival of the Gable-Leigh feature with "nothing cut but the prices." The film, when previously played at the two local houses, grossed over one half a million dollars in 95 playing days.

Support in Boston for Community Fund Drive

BOSTON—Local theatres and exchanges are coming into line very satisfactorily in support of the Greater Boston Community Fund's 1941 campaign, Joseph Brennan, local Motion Picture Operator's Ass'n executive secretary, and theatre group chairman, told this publication.

Other local film men serving with Brennan include: Edward A. Cuddy, Frank Lydon, Harry MacDonald, A. J. Munro, Howard Burkhardt, Max Finn, Al Somerby, George Ramsdell, Sam Soule, Frank McManus, Maurice Corkery, Harry Wasserman, Edward Cantor, and Hy Fine.

"Here Is Ireland" Goes Great in Boston Run

BOSTON—A 16mm feature, the first ever to play a regular motion picture house here, has held at the Fine Arts for three consecutive weeks, and at the time of publication grosses were still pyramiding. The release is "Here Is Ireland," an all-color travelogue duped and dubbed with sound.

George Kraska, theatre operator, had special equipment, including arcs, installed at the Fine Arts for the run. The picture was put in strictly as an experiment, and has caught on in such a robust fashion that Kraska is already on the trail of other 16mm specialties.

Hold Next Retreat at Campion Hall April 4

BOSTON—The next retreat group of the Catholic Motion Picture Guild will be held April 4 at Campion Hall, North Andover. Membership in the organization has reached a total of 45 film men, according to the latest report.

A Committee Studying Outdoor Advertising

BOSTON—Film men are interested in special billboard action by the state public works commission, which is studying proposed changes in the rules and regulations governing outdoor advertising in this state.

John E. Dwyer, former supervisor of the division of outdoor advertising, appeared before the commission last week to offer suggestions he claimed would strengthen enforcement of the billboard law. One of the changes now under advisement is a measure that would deprive cities and towns of the right to restrict the erection of billboards in public areas.

Harry Rose Qualifies For "Dollar Club"

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Manager Harry Rose of the Globe is the first manager in the New England division to make the Loew "Dollar Club" in 1941.

Capitol Reopened

NEW BRITAIN, CONN.—The local Capitol has reopened after a period of inactivity. Present plans call for it to play day and date with either the Embassy or Strand. House is being handled by Joseph E. Bornstein, who is also manager of the Embassy.

Home With the Grippe

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—William Powell, division manager of the Herman Rifkin theatres here, has been ill at home with the grippe. Carl A. Jamroga, manager of the Phillips, has been filling in.

Equipped With RCA

BRISTOL, CONN.—Joe Faith's new 700-seater here is being equipped with RCA Photophone sound.

Lease Metropolitan For Run of Opera

BOSTON—The Metropolitan, M&P Theatres key house, has been leased to the Boston Opera Ass'n for 12 performances of the Metropolitan Opera Co. The 4,332-seat theatre, the largest in New England and one of the largest in the country, has never before filled such an assignment.

The grand opera move follows proposed razing of the Boston Opera House, put on the discard list by the Schubert interests and placarded with a "for sale and to rent" sign. The structure has always been known as a "white elephant."

The Metropolitan Theatre, located in the downtown district, whereas the Opera House is a mile uptown, has a larger capacity by some 1,200 seats.

H. Wendell Endicott, president of the Boston Opera Ass'n, which brings the Metropolitan company here annually, says that this year a greater bid will be made for general public patronage and, toward this end, the public will be offered a "more attractive scale of prices."

The new house will be given over to Wagner, Verdi, Bizet, etc., from March 27 to April 5.

Uphold Labor's Right To Picket Theatre

HARTFORD—Labor's right to picket the E. M. Loew's Theatre here was upheld in a decision handed down last week by the state supreme court.

The opinion pointed out that the law passed by the 1939 General Assembly at Hartford limiting the granting of injunctions by courts, prevented the issuance of an injunction prohibiting the union from picketing.

Describing the new labor law, the unanimous opinion, written by the chief justice, declared: "The act does not deny to courts the power to hear and determine actions seeking injunctions in labor disputes, but only limits them in the exercise of that power."

Joseph X. Friedman represented the theatre; John P. Cooney, John P. Cotter and John J. Scanlan, the union.

Sammy Kaye Three Days

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Sammy Kaye and his orchestra started a three-day engagement at the Paramount Monday.

Alderman to Bat For Workingman

Northampton, Mass.—Francis P. O'Donnell, local alderman, is urging Mayor C. J. O'Connor to increase the Sunday license fee for the Calvin here if the theatre's new increase in Sunday admissions is not dropped. It is claimed that increasing prices for special features is a hardship on the workingman and his family, who, O'Donnell declared, "go to the theatre on Sunday."

Worcester Film Council Puts 7 on Adult List

WORCESTER, MASS.—The Worcester Better Films Council, of which Mrs. Howard S. Shepard is president, has announced its "movie digest" as follows:

For adults—"A Night at Earl Carroll's," "Victory," "Alias the Deacon," "Millionaires in Prison," "Seven Sinners," "Kitty Foyle," and "Remedy for Riches."

For young people (from 15 years of age) —"Gone With the Wind," "Flight Command," "Ellery Queen, Detective," "Public Deb. No. 1," "The Westerner," "Beau Geste" and "Down Argentine Way."

For the family (from eight years of age) —"Land of Liberty" and "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Newspapermen at Special Preview for "Smiths"

BOSTON—"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" was given a special preview at the Keith's Memorial with newspapermen present from as far away as Montreal.

Advertised to the public only as a so-called "Sneak Preview," with no names mentioned, the RKO release was sandwiched in between regular showings of "Kitty Foyle" for audience reaction.

Ross Cropper, Jack Granara and Harry Reiners later hosted a party of some 81 at the Cocoanut Grove.

Philip W. Marks Leads Laurel Cinema Club

HARTFORD—At a recent meeting of the Laurel Cinema Club, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Philip W. Marks; vice-president, A. A. Jalbert; secretary, Kay Sargent; treasurer, Dr. David S. Ginsburg.

Two Managers Exchange

NASHUA, N. H.—An exchange of posts between the Shea manager here and in Manchester has been effected. The change places E. J. Fahey, formerly in charge of the State and Tremont in Nashua, over four houses in Manchester, and moves Fenton Scribner from the latter city to the helm in Nashua.

Plans Nearly Ready

EAST HARTFORD, CONN.—Plans for the new East Hartford theatre, which is being backed by Peter Perakos and Joe Quittner, are said to be nearing completion.

We were very well pleased with the many inquiries that came as a result of our classified advertisement in your paper."

BOXOFFICE The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

PORTLAND

THE "FLU" epidemic which has raged throughout Maine for the past month is on the wane, according to Dr. Roscoe L. Mitchell, director of the Maine Bureau of Health. Only 18 new cases were reported January 20, compared with 73 on January 13. The total number of cases for 1941 to January 22 was 3,069. During the height of the epidemic schools were closed and health officials publicly warned the public against congregating at public places. Theatres all over the state were affected, many of them seriously.

The epidemic was virtually the "straw that broke the camel's back" to the Maine Civic Theatre. It was finally closed January 18 after the presentation of two operettas failed to bolster boxoffice grosses. Guy Palmerton opened the Civic almost a year ago and has operated under a popular price policy.

"Gone With the Wind" is scheduled to make its return engagement at the Strand Theatre January 30 . . . The war news film "Christmas Under Fire" (WB) has been added to the Strand Theatre's current program.

The first of three meetings to be held in 1941 by the Portland Motion Picture Council has been scheduled for the early part of February, according to Mrs. Elsie M. Files, president.

Lottery, Luxury Tax Bills Up in Maine

PORTLAND, ME.—During the four weeks since the legislature convened at Augusta numerous bills affecting the industry have been framed, introduced and referred to committees. Chief among these are three luxury tax bills and one state lottery bill. The purpose of these bills is to raise funds to finance old-age assistance.

The first luxury tax bill called for levies on soft drinks, tobacco, cosmetics, jewelry, candy and amusement admissions. It was presented to the house January 14 by Rep. E. Sam Farwell (R) of Unity.

Bearing emergency preambles declaring there was an "immediate necessity" for raising more revenue to pay old-age pensions, Rep. Lee C. Good (R) of Monticello on January 15 presented two luxury bills. One called for an excise tax of one mill on each cigarette sold, and the second a tax of one cent for every 10 cents on manufactured tobacco products sold.

Under Good's cigarette tax bill, both distributor and dealer would be required to be licensed, the fee for distributors set at $25 and that for dealers $1. The state tax assessor would administer the act.

The tobacco products tax would be paid by the affixing of stamps and each person engaged in the business would be required to be licensed, wholesalers bearing the brunt of the burden, their fee being set at $25. Retailers would pay $2 for each place of business maintained.

All three bills are to become effective when and if passed.

The fourth bill bearing on the trade is one which provides for the creation of a three-member state lottery commission "to establish a state lottery or state lotteries for the benefit of the state." The bill was introduced January 15 by Rep. Charles F. Dwinal (R) of Camden.

Commissioners would be paid $3,000 a year, the chairman, $3,500, and would be appointed by the governor subject to executive council approval.

Fifty-five per cent of gross proceeds received from these state-controlled lotteries would be credited to the general funds of the state "with the recommendation that it be applied to payment of old age pensions."

Ten per cent would go for administration of the lottery and 35 per cent for prizes.

Under the bill, any persons engaging in pool selling except by commission authority would be punishable by a fine of not more than $2,000 and by imprisonment for not more than two years.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

EDWARD J. RAICHE, 45, well known Manchester cornetist, is dead after an emergency operation for a ruptured appendix. He played several years under Erno Rapee at Roxy's in New York and later was connected with the National Broadcasting Co.

Ansel Sanborn's Memorial Hall in Wolfeboro showed a silent short of the first sled dog race held in the Wolfeboro section about 15 years ago. The film was a good "draw" because many of the local folks were eager to see themselves again on the screen.

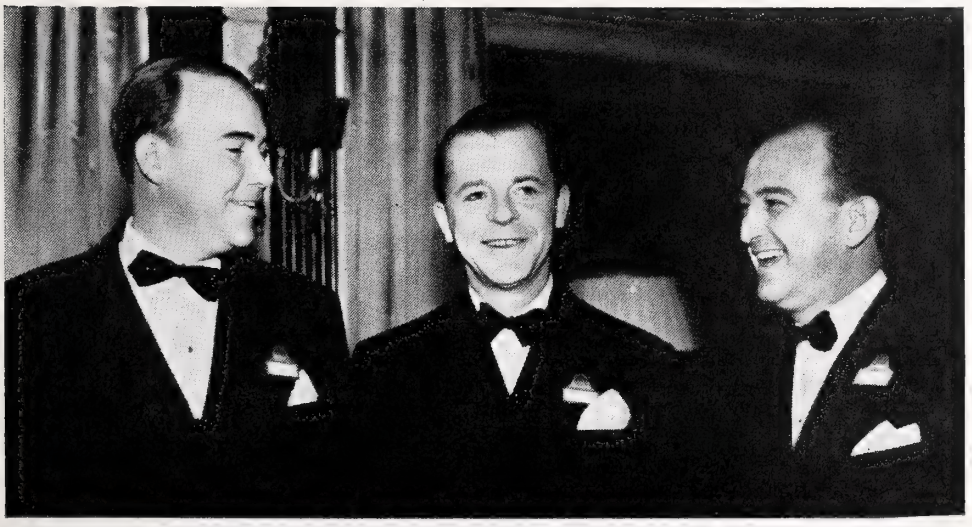
Brisk Building Pace Maintained in Texas

DALLAS—Announcements of theatre construction here for early in 1941 indicate much activity. The latest is a deluxer at the corner of Mockingbird Lane and Greenville Avenue where W. W. Caruth jr. plans a large shopping center. Interstate Circuit is linked with this project as the new theatre operator, however no announcement or denial has been made. Plans have been drawn for a 1,250 seater, it was said. The location is over a mile from Interstate's Varsity and the same distance from the Arcadia, controlled by Lee Hanley and Bob Clemmons.

Incidentally the Arcadia has been all cleaned up from its recent holiday fire damage and a finer streamlined structure will be ready by March 15. The house seats about 1,100.

Robb & Rowley are ready to build a large deluxer in Oak Cliff at the Stevens Park section and L. L. Dunbar has announced a new house for his lot on Edgefield and Clinton.

Roy Starling, owner of the Grove, opened his new Urban Theatre, in the Urbandale section last Thursday. This house seats about 500.



Last, but not least, are two neighborhood theatres which Underwood & Ezell plan to erect here as soon as plans are completed by Corgan & Moore, architects. The work is only a matter of a few days off, according to Claude Ezell. The locations are at Northwest Highway near the Coit Road and on the Ft. Worth Pike at the edge of Dallas' city limits.

Texans Return From Prize Trip to Chicago Fete

SAN ANTONIO—Chosen as one of the "Men of the Year" Manager J. T. Floore of the Majestic is back in San Antonio after attending the testimonial to Barney Balaban celebrating his fifth year as president of Paramount Pictures.

Other prize winners who made the jaunt were E. J. Sullivan, manager of the Majestic, Dallas; A. D. Deason, Wichita Falls Theatre manager, and Jack King, manager, Arcadia, Harlingen. Heading the party of prize winners on the tour was Robert J. O'Donnell, vice-president and general manager of Interstate Theatres, and Ray B. Willie, his assistant, both from Dallas.

'Arizona' Doubles Par In New Orleans Run

NEW ORLEANS—Grosses this week as a rule exceeded expectations owing to general business conditions and the fact the flu is subsiding. In the downtown houses and the neighborhoods as well the improvement was noticed. The United Chain has materially increased its attendance by the giving away of library books for 25 cents in addition to the admission prices, in addition to Bank Night. At the Orpheum "This Thing Called Love" pleased and drew heavily during the evening hours and has been moved over to the Liberty for a continued run, being supplanted by "Arizona" which opened with a rush. The opening hour has been set to 10 in the morning instead of 10:45 as heretofore. Loew's, with the "Son of Monte Cristo" did extraordinary business.

Tourist Trek to Florida Booming Jacksonville

By A. JULES BENEDIC

JACKSONVILLE—Maybe the Brothers Warner had some other reason for building the St. John's Theatre here besides just a plain peeve because Sparks didn't buy their product. Maybe they checked up on the juicy business this town does on occasions. On occasions such as these, for example.

On Saturday night there were several "A" pictures playing local houses. This reviewer had seen them all, and accordingly we took our 44 cents down where we figured the hoi polloi would be. We waited patiently in line, a condition prevailing at virtually every other spot where the art of the cinema was doing its cellulodic damndest.

When at long last we entered the palatial pictorium, we sat through a dual programmer, two "B's"—but definitely; not a criticism, to be sure, for the audience enjoyed them thoroughly. What we're pointing out is that this man's town is a Boom Town, with tourists more plentiful than Ed Kuykendall's latest checkup on consent decree objectors.

Calmly Sacking the Shekels

A veritable Valhalla of prosperity; this Jax-town's a hummer at present, with plenty more to follow. Gateway to even sunnier surroundings, Jacksonville is the first and last chance in this tourist trek, which conservative estimates place at record-breaking figures, exceeding even the fabulous land boom of the middle twenties. Hotels are filled and rooms are things you wait for, even in the second-class joints. Anybody with money is spending it, freely; those who haven't it, figure they can starve better in the sunshine, anyway.

Folks down here, explaining this gold-rush, calmly shovel in the shekels and say "It's a triple impetus." They refer, one: to the tourists, like Florida oranges, plentiful and easy to pluck; two: the huge defense spending; three: a bumper citrus crop. Eating citrus fruit down here is like making love to a widow; you can't overdo it. It is estimated that just the loose oranges hereabouts would fill every vacant theatre chair in South Bend, Ind., the country's most badly overseated city.

What we started to say is that Sparks is erecting three new theatres hereabouts; Warner is pushing the St. John's to completion, and wishing it was already open, to catch some of the instant influx Warner and Sparks, in addition, are erecting other theatres over the state, as chronicled weekly through the columns of this useful compendium. The independents have also caught the spirit of the thing, but a general review of state-wide theatre activities will have to await our sojourn to Tampa, where Arthur Bromberg's manager (adv't.) is up on those things.

Flora and Fauna in Florida

We dislike figures as well as our dear readers, but the recitation of a few might not be amiss. The heaviest movement, seemingly, is to the "gold coast" area, from Palm Beach to Miami. Railroads and airlines are running extra sections to accommodate the influx. Tourist registrations are the heaviest on record, except at St. Petersburg, which formerly drew heavily from Canada. Tampa reports winter visitors up 10 per cent; retail sales and building activities soaring, a condition true in other centers as well.

The state chamber of commerce also has to have its inning, so here it is, briefly:

A total of 3,100,000 tourists will spend $347,000,000, more hay than even the record-breaking 1939-40 season.

As California turns positively green, the C. of C. has this to say of Florida, which is a peninsula surrounded, dear readers, by sunshine, seas, sirens (of the beach type), and, for the most part, by Sparks' theatres:

"The strategic location of the state, pointing like an extended forefinger toward South America and the vital Panama Canal, has resulted in a concentration of military and naval establishments on which huge sums are being spent, thousands of persons employed and enormous quantities of materials used."

Market, Not Fruit, Is Sour

Construction, says this modest organization, totaled $146,000,000 in 1940, with "many projects incomplete . . . and others yet to be started."

We have already made an Indianian reference to the citrus crop, which will exceed a gross take of $50,000,000, the figure of last year, even though prices are not so satisfactory as last season's. Growers insist it's the market and not their fruit that's sour.

Winding up our peroration on the flora and fauna of Florida, and at the risk of offending our peninsula playmates, we cannot help but paraphrase from the come-come-on chatter used by Southern California, the opposish:

"To those seeking employment, it is well to come heeled with a little cash, to avoid disappointments; lacking the do-re-mi, it is well to stay in your own WPA district. But to the tourist with bulges in the left rear pants section, thrice welcome, little man!"

Marching Through Georgia

By A. JULES BENEDIC

AUGUSTA—This street called Broad—so reminiscent of Canal in New Orleans—will witness in a few weeks the first anniversary of the magnificent Miller Theatre, on Miller Square, both named after the man who conceived this showplace of the south. For it was on Feb. 26, 1940, that the palatial Miller, a $600,000 structure devoted to the art of the cinema, opened its doors.

BENEDIC

This theatre, named for Frank J. Miller of Augusta Amusements brought about a tremendous quickening of trade over a block-long business area; in fact, over two blocks or more in what was labeled a dead section of town. Other businesses were remodeled to fit the tone imparted by the theatre—a modern structure with every known convenience. To name the new structure, they inaugurated a contest, associates relate, and out of 600 entries, 480 persons said the name Miller would best suffice. Then a grateful citizenry, as an additional gesture, changed the name of Herald Square to Miller Square, to conform to that of the theatre. Fitting testimonial to Frank's years of civic service in Augusta!

"Tobacco Road" Premiere Sought

F. J. Miller jr., in charge of publicity for the quintet of Miller houses here, spoke interestingly of efforts being made toward getting the world premiere of "Tobacco Road," a forthcoming 20th-Fox release. If the plans go through, the Miller's 1,780 seats will hardly handle expected crowds, as it is planned to make the showing a state-wide, or even national, event. There is much pro and con talk anent the picture itself, which brings about desired publicity. Then, too, Frank Junior says similar efforts are being made with reference to the new film, "'Benjamin Blake," with Tyrone Power, which has a local tiein with Edison Marshall, the author.

Recently the Miller interests swung Seward Fargo into the Modjeska as house manager, and Allen Gessner into the Imperial in a like capacity, a swap in jobs. Jack Johannsen is pilot at the new Miller.

Clay Constructs at Conyers

Augusta has kept pace with the quickened pulse of southern cities. There are seven theatres here, with an eighth to follow. Augusta Amusements, which has a tiein with Lucas and Jenkins, control five; George Wilby and Associates have the swanky new Drive-In, with Steve Manderson as pilot, while the Starr boys have the colored house. Eighth in the Augusta setup is the Westview, with H. B. Ram of Aiken and the Bogo brothers as operators. The Westview was to have opened some months ago, but experienced construction difficulties. The owners say the opening is set for about 60 days hence.

As we clip into Conyers for conversation with Clay—his initials being J. E.—we find that gentleman constructing the town's first real cinema. The new structure, seating 485, directly faces the new postoffice, is being erected of stone, and represents an investment of some $16,000. Mr. Clay and his wife also conduct the show at Milstead, nearby.

We pull into Porterdale, renewing acquaintance with hail-fellow-well-met E. L. Butler . . . Continuing to Covington, we chat with Mrs. M. M. Osman, wife of our friend who joined the Majority some years back . . . We wangle to Warrenton for a chat with Mrs. T. B. Story, well remembered from her former connection in Thomson. (It is reported, connection and initials lacking at the moment, that Salesman Seligman of Atlanta's Filmrow will reopen the old Ritz, in Decatur, a colored house) . . . At Wrens we wing a phone call to Violet Edwards' sister, Louise. Over the instrument which any school kid can tell you was invented by Don Ameche, she tells us she looks just like Violet, which is a break for both, but no break for us, as we didn't have time for a personal visit. However, we did send an extremely personal message to Violet, to the effect that the Royal at Monticello may face a suit unless it falls in with the BOXOFFICE family. (In view of our intended visit to Violet, the suit may be avoided).

These Georgian lady exhibitors—what a trial! . . . There's Mrs. T. H. Holland of Madison for example. Five years ago she was out of town when we called. History repeats. Two weeks in Florida was the message we got over the telephone. Not that we blame her. We'll spend that time and more, maybe, in the Peninsula State, to which the whole Nation seemingly is trekking this winter . . . Maybe our cup of joy would have been complete had we time to include a call upon Mrs. F. L. Liggett at McRae.

And Into Savannah

We sashay into Savannah. We engage Hudson Edwards in conversation. He is, in a manner of speaking, L. and J.'s Man Friday. We converse concerning Variety's big shindig last year in Dallas, and learn that Hudson still is preserving his cowboy hat, autographed by numerous celebrities who attended that terrific Texas conclave . . . Freddy Weis, of the 122-year-old Savannah Theatre, still is going strong. Freddy again denied the rumor he was the original owner here. There has been at least one other setup since the opening back in 1818.

Long since we've entered the chicken dinner belt. Corn pone and turnip greens, pork chops and succulent yams, form the piece des resistance of Georgia folk hereabouts, with chicken and the State dish, grits, ever present. For 30 cents, in small joints along the highway, you get home-cooked food that puts to shame those so-called southern tables de hote for which Broadway gets 90 per cent of a dollar. Folks just live easily and well hereabouts. For instance:

In asking directions to a Georgian Umphville, you get explicit instructions interspersed with numerous yes, suhs. Up north, in contrast, you are known flippantly as Mac; the single variant being Jack.: "It's two miles further, Mac," an annoyed grease monkey replies when asked about a northern Umphville. Down here there is mentioned every intersection along the route; your windshield is wiped, and you are told little Gertrude has been kept home from school on account of the sniffles. Then you are asked if you know the guy's uncle, Silas Blithers, who lives "somewhere in Texas." Opines your informant: "You should know him, being

Two for Gainesville Planned by Sparks

JACKSONVILLE—Following a visit of E. J. Sparks and Frank Rogers to this city, announcement was made that the Sparks interests will erect two new houses in Gainesville. Sparks and Rogers were accompanied here by a full crew of executives, including Fred Kent, Architect R. A. Benjamin, B. B. Garner and others.

Conversation with Garner, general manager of theatre operations, elicits the information that the circuit has just completed two new houses and one drive-in, and in addition has embarked upon a program calling for ten new theatres and four additional drive-ins.

Three New Ones Opened

The circuit has just opened a new theatre at Tallahassee, the state capital, and at Orlando, in addition to the new drive-in at St. Petersburg. The latter operation is declared to be one of the finest of its kind in the country.

Latest compilation shows these theatres either under construction or ready to start soon:

Gainesville: Two new houses.
Fort Lauderdale: One new house.
Fort Lauderdale: A drive-in.
Lake Wales: A new house.
Jacksonville: Three new suburbans, in these neighborhoods: Pearl street, Popular Point and King street.
Fort Myers: A new house.
Ocala: A new house.
Sarasota: A new house.
Daytona Beach: A drive-in.
Tampa: A drive-in.
West Palm Beach: A drive-in.
R. A. Benjamin, Jacksonville architect, has plans for all the houses and drive-ins.

Think Million to Be Spent

Garner did not quote figures, but this reviewer estimates that $750,000 or more is involved in the 16 new operations. Other new houses doubtless are being planned for the near future, what with Florida facing the most prosperous year of its existence. In the final analysis a cool million may not cover contemplated expansions of the circuit.

Nineteen hundred and forty-one dished out to the Peninsula state a three-tined measure of prosperity: An estimated 3,000,000 tourists; soldier and sailor camps galore; a bumper citrus crop.

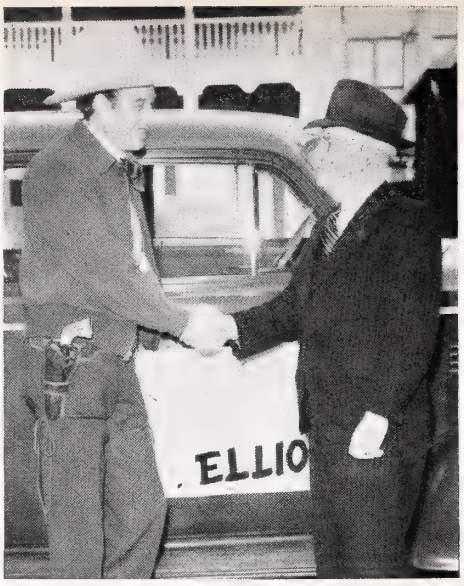
Wage-Hour Measure Up in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK—Rep. John L. Sullivan, Little Rock, has introduced a bill in the house providing for the payment of at least a weekly pay check of $16 to all Arkansas employes of firms engaged in intrastate business.



The measure, sponsored by the Arkansas State Federation of Labor, would fix a 40-hour week for intrastate business and, later, a minimum wage schedule of 40 cents per hour. Workers in agriculture, domestic servants in private homes, and operators of switchboards in public telephone exchanges with fewer than 500 stations, would be exempt.

The bill also provides for creation in the state labor department of a wage and hour division.

Rep. Edwin Dunaway, Pulaski county, offered another labor measure which would prohibit courts from granting temporary injunctions in labor disputes without a hearing.

Independent Film Exch. Marks 35th Anniversary

SAN ANTONIO—This year marks the anniversary of one of the oldest film supply houses in the country. It was 35 years ago that the Independent Film Exchange & Supply Co. was established in the Alamo City by the late Gaston Phillippe. Its present manager and owner is R. W. Barron who has been with the trade for over a quarter of a century. In that space of time the exchange has been located on Houston Street, Soledad Street, Third Street near Broadway, and now at 352 E. Commerce St.

Welcome Westerner—

Bill Elliott, Columbia western star, is greeted by Commissioner Perry Callahan of Jackson, Tenn., where Elliott is starting his personal appearance tour at the State Theatre, managed by J. R. MacEachron. The western star had a highway patrol escort from outside the city, was interviewed over WTJS, met city officials and spoke before the Exchange Club. His tour will include Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

ATHENS, TENN.—The new Athens, eighth link in the Manning & Wink circuit which was opened here recently, is being managed by Herbert Hairrell, who is also in charge of the local Strand. James C. Sanders is the projectionist, and Mrs. Clyde Miller the cashier.

Dallas RKO Exchange Set to Corral Dates

DALLAS—Yip-ee is the word for the exploitation front in place at the RKO exchange commemorating the Ned Depinet Drive starting January 25 and going through to May 10. Exhibitors take their places in chairs in front of the round-up holes and give dates to eager bookers on the other side. This display covers the full length of the booking counter, extending up to the ceiling. The stampeding steers are named for RKO attractions and each is branded ND. A good likeness of Depinet on a cowhorse is at the head of the parade. At the left is Captain Devaney, of the roundup for dates. The novel display is credited to Sol Sachs, branch manager here and to Bud "Daniel Boone" Gray, the company's district publicity representative.

Pep Meeting Launches Drive

A pep meeting of all RKO employes started the drive moving here and attending were Leo Devaney, with RKO in Canada, and Harry Gittleson, of New York who flew in from the west coast to meet with all salesmen and accessory men. Their visit here was simultaneous with the sneak preview at the Majestic here of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." A cocktail party and luncheon was given for newspaper men.

Dallas anticipates first place now in the Depinet Drive especially on account of Depinet's long years of service here and the fact he claims to be from Dallas.

At the sneak preview showing were representatives from Interstate, R. E. Griffith Theatres, Jefferson Amusement Company, Robb & Rowley, independent bookers, local independent exhibitors and the following out-of-town showmen: L. C. Tidball, M. S. White, Harry Fulgham, L. Richker, J. F. Hightower, L. B. Lewis, Jack Chavey, Earl Penix, all of Ft. Worth; John Stiles, Ennis; John Stewart, Kaufman; R. T. Hooks, Mineola; Will Dorbandt, Athens; H. S. Cole, Bonham; Henry Sparks, Cooper and others.

Critics at the preview and at the dinner were Mary Louise Walker, of the San Antonio News; Paul Hoculi, of the Houston Press; Mildred Stockard, Houston Chronicle; Jack Gordon, Ft. Worth Press; Ida Belle Hicks and Katherine Howard, of the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram; Eddie Barr of the Dallas Journal; Jimmie Lovell of the Times-Herald and John Rosenfield of the News here.

Collecting Garments for Distribution in Britain

DALLAS—Showmen here are sponsoring a movement to send trucks about the city to gather winter garments for the British. A short time ago $5,000 was raised by local theatremen who put on dances at downtown hotels. Success of that idea brought on the move to collect clothes. Interstate theatres have been running trailers announcing the pickup by truck and asking the public to help Britain and the United States.

See Half Billion in Defense Contracts

DALLAS—Texas industry will have been awarded a total of a half billion dollars in contracts for national defense within the next five or six months, according to the local office of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Already, Texas firms have received $221,000,000 in contract awards and the survey now of necessary plans, plants and equipment points to an additional $260,000,000 in awards.

In its recent survey of suitable manufacturing plants to turn out government defense orders, it was pointed out that in one city alone last week 52 plants were surveyed and approved.

These figures included in the C. of C. report have stepped up the prevailing optimism among showmen for a greater year during 1941.

A. G. Smith Takes Over For NTSCo. in Dallas

DALLAS—A. G. "Smitty" Smith, long in the equipment business, has been named acting manager of National Theatre Supply Co. here succeeding the late J. I. Roberts who was killed in an automobile crash on the Houston highway a few days before. Smith's appointment was made by Oscar S. Oldknow, district manager of the company.

Smith was an employe of Southern Theatre Equipment Co. here during the mid era of silent pictures. He was promoted to road selling and his record earned a series of promotions up to branch manager of National in Kansas City. Over a year ago Smith was transferred here from the New Orleans territory.

War Theatres Keeping Pace With Activity

DALLAS—War department theatres for Texas are keeping pace with the influx of soldiers and the opening of additional training camps. At Brownwood, where a 2,200-seat tent theatre was opened a few weeks ago, it is reported that two additional similar theatres will be erected at Camp Bowie there, one for whites and the other for Negroes.

A large army theatre was opened in El Paso a few days ago, it was said. Additional theatres will be opened in Mineral Wells, Abilene and El Paso, according to the report.

Long Circuit Confirms Purchase of Three

DALLAS—News was confirmed here this week that the J. G. Long circuit with headquarters at Bay City has purchased the Port, Ora and Freeport theatres in Freeport, Tex., from M. N. Busse and the Milentz interests. Long notified exchanges of the transfer effective February 1.

DALLAS

SOL SACHS, RKO branch manager, left late in the week on a plane trip to New York to attend a meeting of company executives there . . . Miss Mary Ellen Davis of the M-G-M exchange, who will wed the middle of February, was honored last Saturday at a shower given for her by friends.

Al Warner, who opened up his new popcorn distributing office here a few days ago, and became a flu victim at the same time, is back on the Row to renew active selling work . . . Col. H. A. Cole, Allied national president, left Monday for Washington with the nature of his mission there remaining unannounced.

Jack Groves, owner of the Queen, neighborhood theatre in Houston, was up for a booking trip which he wound up in very few hours . . . Will Horwitz, who operates the "Homefolks Theatres" in Houston in partnership with Interstate, is on a winter vacation in Florida.

Oskar Korn, owner of the Lisbon Theatre here, is about ready to open his new Lindale Theatre in northeast Houston, according to information received on Filmrow. The house will seat around 600 . . . C. H. Cox, Crystal and Strand at Gilmer, was here Tuesday, having cut his weekly trips recently to about one a month. He said he was just up from a very definite case of the flu.

J. W. Curley and his son, Steve, of Bridgeport, were here completing February bookings. Steve, an accountant, has shifted over to Mineral Wells on one of the army construction jobs, but continued to collaborate on bookings in the National at Bridgeport . . . Julius Gordon, chairman of the board of Jefferson Amusement Company and Clifford Porter, circuit executive, were in over the weekend as visitors to the company's booking offices on the Row here in charge of S. L. Oakley.

Al Lever, Interstate's city manager at Houston, is planning to organize a Variety Club of Texas branch there provided, of course, the idea meets approval of the national organization.

Alexander Film Co. salesmen are back in their respective territories after a sales meeting here conducted by J. Don Alexander, president, and Ken Rice, assistant sales manager. Attending were W. L. Talley, C. E. Hoxworth, J. J. DeVine, Ruth Likens, W. G. Kirkscoy, Joe B. Froehling, C. L. Clark, G. C. Berkley, Lou Schrader, L. B. Walker, F. D. Hargis and O. F. Luglan.

Under the direction of Mrs. Paul Short, the wives of men in show business here are making garments for the British . . . Dr. W. H. Frye has sold the Star at Forney to Mrs. Laura Travis. He accompanied the new owner to the Row this week, assisting her in making advance bookings and making a number of introductions at the regular trading places. Mrs. Travis immediately subscribed to BOXOFFICE for the coming year. Dr. Frye has not announced future plans.

C. H. Jones, here Wednesday to buy and book a few pictures, said his new theatre in Weatherford would be ready to open within the next eight or ten days . . . Hugh Marsh, R&R partner in Muskogee, and Sam Stokes, city manager in McAlester, were here Wednesday.

Mitchell Lewis, operator of three colored theatres in Houston, is planning a new one there . . . Bob Euler has returned here as booker for the R. N. Smith Theatres and Tri-State Theatres, of which B. R. McLendon is general manager.

CHARLOTTE

ALLAN JONES appears in Charlotte at the Armory-Auditorium in concert on February 12 . . . Conrad Krebs, RKO publicist in Hollywood, was in Charlotte visiting his various friends of the press. He also spent considerable time at the local RKO office visiting Manager Joe Brecheen . . . H. F. Kincey has returned from Chicago where he attended the dinner for Barney Balaban . . . Mrs. Harry K. Lucas is in Presbyterian Hospital with a severe attack of flu. Mr. Lucas is confined at the same hospital recuperating from a tonsillotomy.

Because she developed a sore throat, the concert by Jeanette MacDonald scheduled in Asheville for Tuesday night had to be postponed until March 4 . . . Ray Corrigan, Monogram's cowboy star in the "Range Busters" series, is being booked throughout the territory by the William Morris Agency. He recently made appearances in Kannapolis and Burlington . . . Willie Day, who will be remembered as having been connected with the Hollywood and Lafayette theatres in Winston-Salem, N. C., is now in charge of the Blumenthal interests in Savannah, Ga. . . . Considerable interest is being manifested locally in the announcement that the local Tryon will open a first run engagement with 20th Century-Fox's "Night Train." This engagement will start on Saturday, February 15, for an extended run. Manager Matthews is now building an elaborate lobby and outside display for the engagement.

Al Burks, exploiteer for Metro, has returned from Winston-Salem, N. C., where he screened "Land of Liberty" at the State for the State American Legion Post commanders, the 40&8 state commander, Dave Hall of Belmont, N. C., and National Commander M. L. Warren of Toledo, Ohio . . . Health authorities have permitted W. H. Smith's Pal in Fairfax, S. C., to reopen. The theatre had been closed on account of a flu epidemic . . . Bryant Theatre Supply Co. is reseating Charlie Arrington's Cameo in Rocky Mt., N. C.; also the Watts in Williamston, N. C., which is owned by J. W. Watts. Bryant will soon reseat the Graham, Graham, N. C., and the new theatre in Elkin, N. C., which is being erected by Louis Mitchell, who also operates the Lyric in Elkin. Mitchell expects to open his new theatre about March 15.

Seen on the Row during the week: Roy Rosser, Temple and Sanlee theatres, Sanford, N. C.; also Gem and Clinton theatres, Clinton, N. C.; Boyd Horton, State, Concord, N. C.; State, Inman, S. C., and Rialto, Greer, S. C.; R. Glenn Davis, Richard, Ahoskie, N. C., and Louisburg, Louisburg, N. C.; T. L. Lassiter, Star, Star, N. C.; B. G. Reeves, Parkway, West Jefferson, N. C., and Spartan, Sparta, N. C.; George D. Carpenter of the Colonial Theatres, Inc., Valdese, N. C.; J. B. Harvey, Carolina, Clover, S. C.; P. C. Osteen jr., Carolina, Anderson, S. C.; R. A. Goodman, Oakboro, Oakboro, N. C.; H. R. Berry, Center and Temple, Hartsville, S. C.; Lyle M. Wilson, Peoples and Royal theatres, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; C. H. Arrington, Cameo, Rocky Mt., N. C., and Dick Eason, Parr, Lancaster, S. C.

Rhea W. Ferguson, formerly of the local State Theatre and National Theatre Supply Co., has accepted a position with the advertising department of the American Tobacco Co. He will be located in Memphis . . . Mrs. Bill Lake, the former Ruby Henly of Paramount, was a visitor accompanied by her four-month-old son, Bill jr. Mrs. Lake plans to visit her parents who reside in Mt. Gilead, N. C., before returning to Memphis where her husband is connected with the Monogram office . . . Practically every salesman in for the weekend reported difficulty encountered because of the fog that has spread over the Carolinas for the past week. Many of the boys experienced difficulty in traveling in the daylight and said it was utterly impossible to travel at night.

Carl Bamford, head of Publix-Bamford Theatres in Asheville, N. C., and Canton, N. C., is in Miami for a two-month vacation . . . Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Thompson have closed the Alco in Graham, N. C., for remodeling. After completion, they will close their Graham in Graham for a complete renovation. Thompson, a hunting enthusiast, has had such bad luck lately that he's become disgusted and sold his dogs . . . Dean House, veteran Warner salesman, has returned from a three-week sojourn in the extreme eastern part of North Carolina and reports that exhibitors in that vicinity are anticipating greatly increased business due to defense activities.

Two of Carl Bamford's managers, Frank LaBar jr. of the Imperial in Asheville, N. C., and A. D. Lanning of Canton, N. C., won trips to Chicago for the Barney Balaban dinner . . . Each week we hear of another exhibitor's hobby. Fast-moving Lyle M. Wilson of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., has a penchant for Dobermans. He recently acquired Jessy v. Huffmanheim (16 months). She will be entered in the Baltimore Dog Show, January 31 to February 1. Jessy has already won 18 ribbons and numerous trophies.

D. F. Killmer, South Carolina salesman for National Theatre Supply, has reported for a year's military service at Camp Stewart, Hinesville, Ga. He is a first lieutenant in the Officers Reserve for the coast artillery.

Carolinas Organize To Aid Government

CHARLOTTE—Exhibitors in the two Carolinas are organizing themselves as a means of rendering a collective service to the government in connection with the defense program or any other future emergency.

The committee in charge includes: C. H. Arrington, Rocky Mt., N. C.; C. R. Bamford, Asheville, N. C.; Roy Rowe, Burgaw, N. C.; H. R. Berry, Hartsville, S. C.; Lyle M. Wilson, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.; George W. Parr, Lancaster, S. C.; and H. H. Everett and H. F. Kincey, Charlotte.

In a recent bulletin addressed to each operator in the two states, the committee stated in part, "It is contemplated that the theatres will be able to render service to the government by playing, in cases of emergency, terse trailer-like messages of such copy as is desirable to the government, and by showing some short subjects—that is, subjects up to three or four hundred feet in length—disseminating such information as the government thinks will be of public service.

"It is believed that this close cooperation with the government will enable its officials better to understand the limitations and problems of the theatres and therefore to ask things of the theatres with a better understanding of that which would be an imposition. It is the intention that such films as are requested to be run will first have been passed by a committee of theatre owners and, of course, that they will be non-political.

"It is proposed that the motion picture theatres cooperate in every reasonable manner with all other branches of the industry in this government cooperation, to the end that the service rendered will reflect credit upon the industry. It is the belief that such an organization will have certain value in protecting the theatres against commercial exploitation and from voluntary pressure groups."

The committee announces that to date over 50 per cent of the exhibitors canvassed for support have come through.

OKLA. CITY

T B. NOBLE, managing director of the State, was in town over the week on another of his business trips . . . Sam Caporal expects to have his new Bison ready for the public within the next few weeks. He already has the Yale and Mayflower going nicely. The Bison is tapping virgin territory and is housed in a building which also has eight small store spaces. Caporal owns the building.

Dee Fuller, Circle manager, has two pairs of classy new shoes which he will gladly show anyone on request . . . After a slight delay, the good old Folly was opened to the public once again. Standard remodeled the house about a year ago. It is showing "oomteenth" run films. The Folly is best remembered as the home of many of the old popular serials.

This town is getting so many new theatres that every time a contractor moves in to start work on a new job word spreads around the neighborhood that a new theatre is being constructed on the spot . . . Incidentally, Paul Townsend has the Folly under his wing; while Paul is officially manager of the Liberty he also keeps an eye on the Warner too so now Paul has three houses to keep watch over. Too, Paul's the oldest manager in point of service with Standard's present staff.

Paul Ketchum, his wife and baby were recent visitors to our community. Paul will be remembered as a Standard manager and later with the Oklahoma Theatre Supply here. He's still in the business in the east somewhere.

Bob Gallman, former Pix manager, is busy as a bee these days selling burial lots and doing very nicely, too . . . And Hank Bonelli, who formerly handled theatre advertising for KOCY, is writing insurance for the Penn Mutual now.

We understand that Standard will reopen the Victoria very soon and that same outfit is making plans for building another suburban house here, but keeping the when and where part of it a deep dark secret.

Josephine Parks of the local Metro exchange added a year by the calendar on Monday. Congratulations!

Gibson Confers With Aides On Variety Golf Meet

DALLAS—B. C. "Hoot" Gibson, United Artists manager and chairman of Variety Club's annual spring golf tournament and Calcutta, has been holding meetings with his committee spurring activity for the big event which takes place here on April 5, 6 and 7.

The committee is composed of E. B. Coleman, Ted deBor, J. H. Elder, Walter Penn, Isadore Segal, Roy Thrash, Jim Webb, Elmer Zrenner, C. H. "Buck" Weaver, Joe Estes and Hugh Owen. Burt King and Duke Evans are co-chairmen of both the spring and fall annual tournaments.

Arkansas Sales Tax Bill Is Submitted

Little Rock—A sales tax bill is being prepared for submission to the general assembly. The two per cent retail sales tax now in effect would continue, but changes in the system of collection would be made in an effort to add several million dollars to the state's revenue annually. Each merchant would receive three per cent of the tax collected, to pay him for the expense of collection.

O. C. Variety Club Social Welfare Building Rises

OKLAHOMA CITY—Three city social welfare agencies will move into new quarters by May 1, unless weather delays construction of the Variety Club's Health Center, being erected at Hudson Avenue and Pottawatomie Street.

Present schedules call for the completion of the building April 15, says L. C. Griffith, president of the club. The club is investing $45,000 in this home for Southtown health services.

The Oklahoma County Tuberculosis and Health Association, the dental clinic of the Salvation Army and the Maternal Health center will move into the new building. The Tuberculosis Association and the dental clinic are Community Fund agencies.

NEW ORLEANS

IN ADDITION to Bank Night, the United Chain has instituted a Book Night in which a 20 volume Encyclopedia set is given away one volume at a time for 25 cents in addition to one regular admission, ranging from 21 to 25 cents.

Miss Cecelia Kern, assistant manager of the Affiliated Producers Co., who has been suffering from a cold, is now back at her desk . . . Owing to increased business due to the number of new houses in the rural districts, both Mike Heck and the Flash Delivery will install new trucks to handle their routes.

Jeanette MacDonald will give a concert in New Orleans, February 16 . . . The Folly Theatre on the West Side is preparing for a midnight show . . . The Atlantic Films (Goodrow and Sliman) are now representatives in this area for Producers Releasing Corp.

Visitors to the Row: Louisiana—J. Gaude, Magic, Port Allen; Eugene Drake, Ponchatoula; Mrs. A. G. Barry, Edgard, Edgard; L. J. Langlois, Alamo, New Roads; A. O. Ott, Kentwood; Morris Meltz, Arcade, Ferriday; Claude Darce, Opera House, Morgan City; Vincent Currier, Amite; Manager Gordon, Westwego; G. M. Butterfield, Lafayette; Sidney Haup, Donaldsonville. Mississippi—Frank Bishop, Varsity, Ellisville; C. M. Bailey, Lumberton; Stanley Taylor, Crosby; Ed Delaney, Magnolia; F. R. Lawrence, Laurel; W. L. Mosely, Picayune; Mrs. H. M. Everett, McGee; Bill Baker, Macon; W. A. Tucker, Wisner; E. W. Illings, Ocean Springs.

THAT HUNTING CLUB:

As time goes by, the hunters, tiring of lugging heavy guns are beginning to talk of fishing when they can tell of the big ones that got away after swallowing hook, sinker, line and part of the pole—and besides it will be warmer. The Atlantic Films are fixing up their roof to be used as a reading, lounging and swimming pool for the use of the members. An aquarium will be located in the southeast corner where live specimens can be stored and speared when the owners are ready for a fish supper.

The only objector was Bob Kelly (Columbia) who claimed the "fish pond" was too small to hold his catch for a day.

Max H. Braelton (booker for Monogram) voiced his approval of the layout but suggested that leather cushions be placed on all the chairs with footstools to match with a smoking set on each side of a chair to save effort. He also suggested that Gov. Jones be asked to install a fish hatchery in the basement of the exchange that might be used by the members as a swimming pool. The treasurer threw cold water on the idea by asking who would exercise the fish. W. A. Hodges of the National Theatre Supply Co. suggested that instead of fish in the tanks they substitute mud turtles as they could make their own way up and down the street. However the entire matter was held in abeyance till the arrival of Lou Langlois of New Roads, who is said to be an authority on the subject.

Honorary members elected were: Charles Phillips, Palace, Jonesville, La.; Rene Brunet, Imperial, New Orleans; E. M. Frankel, Century, Mobile; Abe Berenson, Gretna. Morris Boos, cashier at Columbia, was elected vice-president. The treasurer still is hanging onto his job and defies anyone to oust him; likewise the janitor. The meeting was held in the banquet room of the Filmrow restaurant. Guest of the evening was Joy Houck of the Joy Shows who was warmly received.

May Act Shortly on Interstate Motion

Dallas—Judge W. H. Atwell is expected to act within a few days on a motion by Interstate attorneys to have the jury verdict in the Jorgenson damage case set aside in favor of an instructed verdict for the circuit. Jorgenson was awarded $4,500 in his suit against Interstate on availability and restrictions to 25 cent prices. He operates the local East Grand.

Indecent Film Charge Will Be Appealed

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—W. H. Merritt, manager of the Galax Theatre, has announced his intention to appeal to the circuit court the verdict of Police Judge Oliver Hall finding him guilty of showing an indecent film and of displaying vulgar billboards in advertising the film. Attendant upon the verdict was a fine of $250 and 150-day suspended jail sentence.

Judge Hall, in announcing his decision, said he had viewed the film in question, the French-language "French Girls' Club," and that the film has a "strongly suggestive Lesbian love theme" and that "it does not try to save its face by ending with a moral lesson."

When testimony was taken in the case two weeks ago, Sergeant C. N. Kicker, the police censor, testified he found nothing morally wrong with the film.

It was the showing of this film which resulted in the preferring of charges against four city officials for contempt of court for failure to obey an injunction to prevent their seizure of the film. They were tried and sentenced to 48 hours in jail. Commissioner of Public Safety E. L. Connor served his term, but the other three, including the city attorney, chief of police and assistant chief of police appealed to the supreme court, which stayed the sentence.

Brother Joins Chas. Rook In Montgomery Operation

MONTGOMERY, ALA. — Charles T. Rook, manager of the Charles Theatre, announces the association with him as associate manager, his brother, Albert E. Rook.

For the past 20 years, Albert E. Rook has been in the distribution end of the motion picture business and was with Republic Pictures for the last five.

Borrow John Hubbard

HOLLYWOOD—Columbia has borrowed John Hubbard from Hal Roach for a lead in "A Girl's Best Friend Is Wall Street."

ATLANTA

STIRLING HAYDEN and Carolyn Lee, who share star honors with Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll in "Virginia," will make a personal appearance on the Fox stage, February 5, in connection with the opening of the Technicolor film . . . The DeSoto, a Lam house in Rome, Ga., has been completely remodeled . . . Oscar Howell, Capitol City Supply Co., is in Birmingham, installing new equipment in Waters' theatres . . . E. E. Whitaker, H. P. "Dusty" Rhodes and Willis J. Davis left this weekend for north Georgia where they will visit the Lucas & Jenkins Theatres in Athens and Elberton, Ga.

Visitors: Mack Jackson, Strand, Alexander City, Ala.; Hugh Manning, Gem, Etowah, Tenn.; Nat Williams, Rose, Thomasville, Ga.; L. J. Duncan, West Point, Ga.; O. C. Lam and Howard Schuessler, Lam Amusement Co., Rome, Ga.; Fred Jabaley, Princess, LaGrange, Ga.; Mrs. M. M. Osman, Strand, Covington, Ga.; Clyde Sisson, Roxy, Tallassee, Ala.; J. H. Fred Weis has taken over Lucas & Jenkins' Arcadia at Savannah, Ga. Weis also operates the Savannah there and the Bibb, Macon . . . Ike Katz, Producers Releasing Corp., is working Tennessee.

Charles Rook of the Charles Theatre, Montgomery, Ala., paid the Row a visit for the first time since he opened his theatre several months ago . . . Plans are progressing for the Atlanta Warner Club's Valentine dance, Friday night, February 14, at the Henry Grady Hotel . . . Billy Beard, the minstrel star from Atlanta, is making quite a hit in this territory with his unusual act, it is reported.

Charlie Touchon, United Artists traveling auditor, is in town for a few weeks . . . Marion Watkins, cashier at United Artists for several years, was married to Hal H. Macon of the Georgia and State theatres, Statesboro, Ga., at her home in Atlanta, Saturday, February 1. Mrs. Mamie Smarr, formerly clerk, has been promoted to cashier . . . M. E. Wyman, salesman for Monogram Southern Exchanges, became a flu victim last week when he was taken ill at his hotel in Birmingham. "Hap" Barnes and Lynn Dunn, both salesmen for United Artists, were also taken sick with this malady while out in their respective territories.

Jeff Davis, United Artists branch manager, is on a business trip to Miami . . . Riley Davis, Theatrical Printing Co., and family spent the weekend in Rome, Ga., as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lam and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schuessler . . . Dave Prince and Hubert Lyons of RKO are on a business trip in Miami.

"Little 3" Seek Out From Crescent Suit

NASHVILLE—A formal motion has been filed here by Columbia, Universal and United Artists, "Little Three" distributors not party to the federal consent decree, for a summary judgment in their favor in the government's suit against them, the Crescent Amusement Co. and affiliates.

The motion for such dismissal has been taken under advisement by Federal Judge Elmer D. Davies.

Several weeks ago the suit was dismissed as it involved the five signatories to the decree, Paramount, Metro, 20th-Fox, Warner and RKO Radio.

Fast Pace by "Virginia" In Southern Test Runs

NEW YORK—Paramount's "Virginia," co-starring Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray, in its first five pre-release engagements in the south, has rated outstand receipts, Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, announces.

In its first three days at the Paramount in Charlottesville, the Technicolor film took in more money than "North West Mounted Police" did in seven days. At the Paramount, Newport News, "Virginia," in its first three days, was running day for day 20 per cent ahead of "NWMP." In Lynchburg at the Paramount, business the first three days was within 15 per cent of the entire seven and a half days receipts accorded "NWMP" which included New Year's Day and Eve run. At the Colonial in Richmond, "Virginia," based on weekly estimates, will run ahead of "NWMP" which played at advanced admission prices, and will beat "Love Thy Neighbor," which had a New Year's Day run, by 15 per cent. In Norfolk at the Norva, "Virginia," judging on a three-day performance, will beat "Love Thy Neighbor," which had a New Year's Eve run by 10 per cent and will be within 10 per cent of the receipts of "NWMP" which played at advanced admission prices and had a Thanksgiving Day run.

"Virginia" will be released nationally on February 21.

A Boycott Follows Shift of Manager

Milledgeville, Ga.—Students of Georgia Military College and Georgia State College for Women are boycotting the Campus in protest to the transfer of Mrs. F. D. Adams, manager, and spokesmen for the students insist they will refrain from patronizing the Martin circuit house until Mrs. Adams is returned to the post.

M. H. Kress, operations manager for Martin, said Mrs. Adams was transferred under an established policy of revolving managers around the circuit. Mrs. Adams succeeded her husband as manager of the Campus on his death two years ago.

ATTENTION, Southbound theatrefolk. Save yourself a lot of wandering around Miami and Miami Beach looking for your particular manager friends by checking this list of recent shifts. Rollin K. Stonebrook and Howard Pettengill lead off with Rollin K. coming back from the Beach to the Paramount, following the discontinuance of stage shows at the former, and Howard going over to the Beach from the circuit's name house on Flagler Street. Both the Beach and the Paramount are now having first runs of the Paramount Enterprises, Inc., features on identical dates.

Coming in from Beaumont, Tex., where he was associated with Paramount, Erwin Waite is new manager at the Sheridan. He is remembered in this area as the manager who opened the Community on Miami Beach, the first theatre west of Biscayne Bay.

Another new face in the local managerial lineup is that of Bert Jackson, formerly with Fox in Cleveland and the Schine circuit. He's now managing the new Boulevard while Charlie Whitaker shows up at the Dade and Ralph McEntyre rates a promotion from the assistant's post at the Gables to that of manager at the Colony.

Among guests from this area flying to Chicago to attend the Barney Balaban testimonial banquet last week were Paramount's city manager, George Hoover, and Stonebrook, winner of the local Barney Balaban drive for demonstrating the greatest showmanship during the drive period. Coming on from Chicago where he also attended the testimonial banquet is James Harrison, from the Wilby-Kincey office in Atlanta. He is joining his wife who is spending the winter on Normandie Isle.

Leon Netter, vice-president in charge of operations for Paramount, returned to Miami last week. Down from Hartford, Conn., are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Needles (Warner Bros.) . . . Down from Atlanta to work on exploitation for "Virginia," to show February 8-9 at the Paramount and the Beach, is James F. Thames. Interest in this showing will be heightened by the personal appearances of Paramount's baby star, Carolyn Lee, who learned to walk right here in Miami under the admiring eyes of this BOXOFFICE representative; and Stirling Hayden, young salt water adventurer whose previous visits to Miami have been behind the wheels of several famous sea going schooners.

Out at the Flagler a two weeks' policy of musical stock is being tried out under the direction of Ches Davis . . . Packing in the youngsters at the opening of the new Flash Gordon serial at the Coral wasn't any hard job when word got around that Buster Crabbe, here to head the current water show at MacFadden-Deauville's pool, was to make a personal appearance.

Queues the like of which Miami and Miami Beach have not seen since last spring when "Gone With the Wind" was seen by more than 200,000 cash customers are forming again for blocks in the vicinity of the Colony on the Beach and the Roxy in Miami. At the request of Flagler Street merchants who complained that their noon shopping was being curtailed by the waiting line, the Roxy's first performance has been advanced from 12 to 11:30 a. m.

The Tom Mannings of the Coral can take it as a good omen that their son and heir's birth was almost day and date with the initial Flash Gordon showing . . . In the organization directing the current community chest enrollment, circuit heads are majors and all house managers are named key men.

Two celebrations, marking completion of a decade of employment with Wometco Theatres, have been celebrated recently at the main office. Comptroller Larry Johnston played host to the first of these parties while Jack Fink, manager of the Capitol during the entire period, and previously associated with Sidney Meyer when the latter was with Fox in Chicago at the old Terminal, hosted the second.

Sam Moscow, Columbia Pictures Southeastern division sales manager, is here recuperating from a long illness. He was among guests at the "So Ends Our Night" premiere . . . Louis Pollock, eastern advertising director and publicity director for Universal, and Milton Crandall are already in the vicinity and deep in the business of exploitation details for the "Back Street" premiere at the Lincoln February 4, the most expensive premiere on local books since it is costing Universal $30,000 to provide transportation and maintenance at the Miami Biltmore for a week for 150 newspaper men who will be the company's guests for the premiere and a week's vacation. Sonny Shepherd and Pollock are all ready with the answer to the assured overflow from the Lincoln: Supplementary performances at the Surf and Cameo, nearest beach houses to the Lincoln.

Managers aren't the only local theatrical personages to indulge in the good old football custom of shifting. Dramatic critics have been doing "more of the same" with Eddie Cohen, long time critic at the Miami Daily News, joining the staff of the Miami Beach Daily Tropics; with Harold Pearl, former assistant in the amusement department of the New York Herald-American, taking over Eddie's old desk; and Waldo Perez, former Herald and Tribune critic, back in Miami after three years in the cinema capital.

Marking the conclusion of the organization's fiscal year, 200 Wometco employes of a year or more have received extra week's salary . . . This is the month when both Paramount and Wometco have their annual credit union meetings with annual elections of officers and declarations of annual dividends.

Newest brother duo in Wometco ranks is created as Dudley Clark goes to the Lyric to be assistant to Karl Keyser. Burton Clark, Rosetta manager, is the brother. Another new assistant manager is Lloyd Chambers, promoted to that post at the Tower under Ray Toemmes, after filling service posts at the Mayfair and Plaza.

MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS Filmrow was very much in the spotlight this past Friday night when ten people appeared on the "It's A Hit" radio program over WMC at 6:30. Two teams of five members each, the Filmrow Bookers and the Film Distributors matched wits on questions and answers for a 30-minute program, pitched them by Bill Fielding, master of ceremonies. The bookers' team had as its captain, Mark Sheridan of 20th-Fox, and its players included Ed Williamson, Vitagraph; Leonard Andrews and Frances McIntyre, Universal, and Frank Heard of Metro. The distributors were captained by Walter Parham of the Royal, Memphis, and his players were Bill Lewis, Monogram; Louise Ryan, Maurice Gelders and W. G. Milwain of NTS. The bookers won three to one.

Co. was called to Dallas due to the illness of his family and shortly after his arrival there was stricken with the flu, and has not been able to return to his office. Mr. Gregg, of the home office in Temple, Tex., is now at the Memphis office carrying on in his absence.

Bob Conway, NSS, advised the early part of February two more of his boys will be serving Uncle Sam. Claude Bartley and Robert Rimer are scheduled to leave for Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. . . . Curby Smith, local manager of the Memphian, left Friday for Fort Riley, Kas., for a year's stay.

Helps Along Dimes Drive

KINGSPORT, TENN. — Jimmy Pepper, manager of Kingsul Theatres, helped the March-of-Dimes campaign along locally by giving a free ticket to each school student filling a card with dimes.

Marching Through Georgia

from Texas; for he spent six months in Gladewater."

We swing into Swainsboro for a confab with Bill Karrh. He's out of town, so we banter a bit with C. M. Bridges, general manager of the Dixie circuit. Previously, we called upon Woodrow Wilson, house manager of the Dixie at Wrightsville. Always under the impression Woodrow Wilson had something to do with the presidency, we realize that of late we simply haven't been keeping up . . . We stumble into Statesboro, and find our old friend, Hal Macon, getting a new marquee and a bride almost simultaneously. The marquee already is installed and Hal possibly will be married by the time this gets into print. The young lady is Marion Watkins of UA exchange in Atlanta. There'll be a honeymoon in the Crescent City . . . As we kick into Kingsland, we find Station Agent J. N. Wells with a tri-tined circuit of theatres—that town, St. Mary's and Woodbine, possibly the one that twineth. He runs a bally car between the three towns and reports business somewhat on the upgrade, especially in St. Mary's.

Savannah is Mobile and Galveston rolled into one, with a touch of Charleston. That combination augurs well for local cuisine. Which is to say that the true trencherman can do justice to Savannahian fleshpots. Flowers are blooming in almost semi-tropical lavishness. While up north the thermometer is plummeting, folks hereabouts are running around in next to nothing, particularly the dear ladies. There's so much spring in the air, our thoughts turn to things automotive, so we amble over to the Americar agency, run by Jack and Harry Ramsey with another partner. The first two gentlemen operate the Springfield Theatre in the Georgia town of that name . . . We slip out to the Star, an Ellis Blumenthal operation in the colored section, and diligently digress with Manager W. C. Daye.

"Go immediately to Florida," is the gist of an urgent dispatch from Kansas City. Since it comes from the countingroom, scene of so many Auburn headaches, it must be heeded.

A genuinely tough assignment, to be sure, but like a good soldier, we are hastening to Miami and its 70-degree salubriousness. The order comes as the west shivers in sub-zero blasts. As we write this, a glance from our hotel window shows a coatless populace hurrying hither and yon. A sunkissed cutie showing sufficient midriff to write thereon the Declaration of Independence with plenty left over, trips down the sidewalk. Incidentally, we just remembered an engagement with L. D. Joel at the Casino, so we'll have to be hurrying down the street, ending this spasm . . . (These latter paragraphs are being written in Jacksonville, incidentally).

Pretty soon we expect to snap a picture of the most southernmost theatre in the United States. That Key Westian honor belongs either to the estimable Senor J. Bezanilla or his honored competitor, the Senor Juan Carbonell.

HOUSTON

COMMUNITY outgrows seating capacity of theatre. The University Theatre, built some five years ago to fit the population of the community with some 300 seats, is to be remodeled into a class "A" neighborhood theatre with some 850 seats, a parking lot and the many other conveniences that go with an up-to-date theatre.

A birthday surprise party was an event of interest among theatre folks the past week here when a number of trade friends completely surprised Mrs. A. J. Bohne with a dinner party after theatre hours last Wednesday. Dancing and food were the main events. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Cotton Mullinix, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sebesta, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hudson, and many more friends who came and left before their names could be registered.

Marie and Al Garrard of the River Oaks Theatre are spending much time arranging and buying new furniture for their new eight-room home being built in the Bellaire community.

Visitors: Henry Swanson, Motiograph dealer of Dallas; Elmer Zrenner and Burt King, Dallas; Homer Alford, Edward Jackson, Tom Powell, James Carroll of Goose Creek, Tex.

With two houses regularly using passes to get plugs and publicity, a third house entered the field for a short while. Prior to the current showing of "Gone With the Wind," Loew's State ran a series of scenes from the picture. The two persons with the best memories of each scene received $5.00. The ten next best received two tickets each.

Along with cash and merchandise, tickets to the Kirby are given away on the Royal Crown Musical Quiz program, heard Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 12:30 p. m. on station KTRH. Also a regular feature, a list of 20 names appears in the columns of The Citizen (suburban paper) each week. Those whose names appear can call at the boxoffice of the Heights to receive two passes as guests of the paper.

Although receiving no personal injuries, Jack Hooks, former Interstate man, must buy a new car as a result of his recent smashup . . . Writing from Fort Benning, Ga., Forrest Shaefer, on leave of absence from the Kirby, says that it is just like a vacation.

"The Baker's Wife" played to only better than average business during its run at the Delman. This probably proved disappointing after the deliberation and conferences Interstate had in deciding whether Houston would get it at all.

The Interstate Suburban Popeye Clubs made a special bid for increased attendance, Saturday, January 25, with cartoon fun day. Each house presented five of the year's outstanding cartoons. Seven of the houses had stage presentations.

W. L. Saunders, who knows his engine rooms, has just finished a job at the Metropolitan and has the Eastwood for a stopping place . . . The new manager of the River Oaks, Pat Daley, is very proud of his Lion's Club pin . . . George Patillo (North Main) and Maxine Gunnels (Kirby) went to Shangral Inn to escape the herd and found the herd had done the same thing.

Mr. Holmes, Interstate traveling engineer, was here for the weekend and left Monday night for El Paso . . . Mrs. Al Collins (Kirby Art Shop) came by to pick up display sheets and cheered us with the news that Al was out of the hospital and would probably be well enough to lay out his own displays now . . . Mr. Dodge, Uptown manager, took a day off to go to Port Arthur and came back with a new Buick.

Flu Petering Out Over Carolinas

Charlotte—The flu epidemic which covered the Carolinas the past two weeks, has reached its peak and is definitely on the wane, health authorities here believe.

The sickness caused many theatres to close as a precautionary measure and curtailed church services and other public gatherings. Theatres cooperated fully with health authorities in fighting the malady by closing or restricting attendance to adults. For this gesture, voluntary in many instances, the trade was applauded widely in the press.

Services for W. P. Garyn Are Held in St. Louis

DALLAS—Funeral services for W. P. "Pat" Garyn, who died last week in a local hospital, were held in St. Louis with services in the Catholic church and burial in Calvary Cemetery there. Wallace Walthall, Frank Starz, and Dickey Foy accompanied the body to St. Louis along with Mrs. Garyn and a nephew, Carl Wolff, the three acting as pallbearers. Other pallbearers were Herb Washburn and Russell Barr, branch manager and cashier of National Screen Service, and John Quinn, M-G-M branch manager, all of St. Louis.

Cooper to Remodel Rogers Building for 300-Seater

ROGERS, ARK.—John I. Cooper, owner of the Victory here which is managed by Walter Talbutt, will remodel a recently acquired building into a 300-seat theatre.

Work will start early in February and is expected to be completed the first part of April.

Invite to New Interstate Theatre in Fort Worth

DALLAS—Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell sent out invitations to the trade this week to the opening January 31, of Interstate's newest neighborhood theatre, the Bowie in Ft. Worth, located on Camp Bowie Blvd.

SANTONE

FIRE destroyed the Cole Theatre and building at New Braunfels recently at an estimated loss of $50,000. Firefighters from San Antonio, Seguin and New Braunfels were called to extinguish the flames which for several hours threatened the business section of the nearby town. The loss was partially covered by insurance. G. A. Cole operated the theatre.

Title of last week's Texas stageshow was "Forward March, Buck Private C. C. Pill" which had a military air since the house is building up a steady soldier trade. New scale of prices is now 10-20-30-40 cents . . . Hal Norfleet doing a bang-up job as publicity chairman for the President's Ball. Henry Bergman, manager of the Texas, is in charge of the entertainment committee. Jack O. Mitchell will emcee.

Lee E. Orr, Fox Movietone newsreel cameraman and his assistant, Tony Toscano, were in the city filming the motor changing races at Randolph and Kelly fields . . . Sheila Barrett, star of screen, radio and stage, made a personal appearance at the San Pedro Playhouse here as a Town Hall guest artist . . . Clare Tree Major also a recent visitor to the city.

The regular Wednesday meeting of the Motion Picture and Visual Education committee of the San Antonio Council of Parent-Teacher Ass'ns was held in the Jefferson Senior School Building . . . "Nine Cent Show" for colored at the Cameo the other evening, drew one of the largest crowds since the Negro house opened last year. Nine reels of film were shown.

Interstate's downtown and Drive-In theatres are taking a series of spot announcements over KABC . . . "Hell's Angels," an Astor Picture release, played a subsequent run at the Prince . . . Current Azteca Film release to play the National last week was "Charro Negro" . . . Paramount's "North West Mounted Police" was given a second showing downtown at the Palace.

The newspaper serialization of "Kitty Foyle," which recently ran in the San Antonio Morning Express, served as a dandy advance notice for the screen version which was unreeled at the Majestic last week . . . United Artists' "Thief of Bagdad" opened to better than average business at the Aztec.

Film salesmen recently seen hobnobbing around the Row were Ed Laird, UA, Dallas; Truman Hendrix, 20th-Fox, and Henry G. Krumm, Warners, both out of the Dallas branch office . . . Nelson Eddy is advertised for a song recital at the Muny Auditorium February 20.

Two Houses Onto Bijou Amusement Co. String

WILMINGTON, N. C.—The Bijou Amusement Company of Nashville opened the new Ritz Theatre here January 20. The company is preparing to take over the Palace Theatre at Vicksburg, Miss., from Guy Adams on March 1.

Search Over Arkansas For "Miss Arkansas"

LITTLE ROCK—A state-wide beauty and talent contest to find "Miss Arkansas" will be staged by Monogram with the cooperation of prominent state officials, newspaper publishers and leading circuit and independent theatres. The contest will run from February 15 to April 1, with the winner being awarded the feminine leading role opposite Tex Ritter in a new musical western.

Ritter, who has launched on their film careers such favorites as Rita Hayworth, Joan Woodbury, Marjorie Reynolds, Louise Stanley, "Jinx" Falkenburg and Dorothy Fay, will be one of the judges of the contest, along with Monogram President W. Ray Johnston and Edward Finney, producer of the Ritter films. According to present plans, Gov. Homer Adkins will head the committee of judges of the preliminary contests and will be assisted by the mayor of each city where contestants will compete.

The winning contestant will be billed as "Miss Arkansas" in addition to her own name, and will embark on a personal appearance tour in conjunction with the film, playing important circuits and independent houses in Arkansas.

"Jules" Williamson Head Booker for Paramount

CHARLOTTE — J. L. "Jules" Williamson has been named head booker at the local Paramount exchange, according to Manager Scott Lett. His assistant will be Harold Jonasson. Story for Ida Lupino

HOLLYWOOD—"The Damned Don't Cry," story by Harry Hervey, has been purchased by Warner as an Ida Lupino starrer.

BOWLING

MEMPHIS—Filmrow has two full-fledged bowling leagues and on Thursday night at 9:30 at the Health Center the various teams are seen "giving their all" to defeat their opponents. Officers in the Girls League are Evelyn Hammond, president; Frances McIntyre, secretary, and Frances Phillips, treasurer. Four teams comprise this league: Universal—with Frances McIntyre, captain, with Ilene Lindsay, Mary Elinor (Willie) Williams, Thelma Shide and Juanita Johnson completing the team. Metro: with Ophelia Galding, captain; Ethelene Mayo, Evelyn Bowers, Eva Mai Butler and Mary Bedford comprise this team. Fox: with Ethel Wolfe, captain; team mates are Evelyn Hammond, Amanda Johnson, Alice Grills and Margaret Jones. Paramount's team has Frances Phillips as its captain and Celia Wells, Mary K. Larned, Lillian Tucker and Glenna Neel complete the team.

In the Men's League of which Mark Sheridan is president, Arnold Painter, secretary, and Bartie Mallory, treasurer, there are six teams, as follows: Fox, whose captain is Mark Sheridan, has Bob Ashmore, Paul Glisson, Bill Lewis, and Don Wahl on his team. Warner's team is captained by Ward Carpenter, with Arnold Painter, Ed Williamson, Joe Ries and Ray Ferguson. Paramount has Frank Neel as captain, and Fred Curd, Babe Rounsaville, Jimmy Smith and Dick Browning complete the team. Metro's team is composed of Frank Heard, Tom Kirk, Bartie Mallory, Hollis Holmes and C. H. Williams, with Bartie Mallory, captain. National Screen has Bill Bryant as captain and his crew members are Mack Jackson, Jimmy Andre, David Stevens and Glenn Woods; Columbia has booker, Herman Chrisman, captain, with Tate Baker, Jerry Kornegay, George Simpson and Jimmy Sultis on the team.

The final results of the first night's encounter ended with Universal taking the honor in the Girls' League and Warner's claiming the laurels in the Men's League.

MacGowans Adapt "County Fair"

HOLLYWOOD—Dorrell and Stuart McGowan are adapting "County Fair," from their own original, for Paramount.

Welfare Council List Of Approved Films

OTTAWA — The following recommendations are included in the official list for January of the Canadian Welfare Council for the guidance of educational authorities and women's organizations throughout the country, under the heading "Motion Pictures the Entire Family Will Like." Names and addresses of the eight leading film exchanges in the Dominion also are given.

The list comprises:

"Sandy Gets Her Man"—Baby Sandy talks a little in this picture which adds to her cuteness. The plot moves at a fairly fast pace, alternating between comedy, slapstick and thrills. The family, particularly juveniles.

"Melody Ranch"—Not only does this give the western fans the usual action they enjoy—fighting and shooting—but it presents entertainment for those to whom "Westerns" do not appeal. The family.

"Bitter Sweet"—No expense has been spared in making this musical romance. The Technicolor photography adds to the beauty of the settings and the costumes are lovely. Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy again thrill with their singing. Noel Coward wrote the play, music and lyrics. The family.

"The Son of Monte Cristo"—Those who saw "The Count of Monte Cristo" will not find this picture as exciting but it should have general appeal. The action takes place in 1865. The family.

"Second Chorus"—A pretty good comedy with music. There is an excellent cast and swing music fans should like Artie Shaw and his band. Fred Astaire has a new dancing partner in Paulette Goddard. The family.

"The Philadelphia Story"—Very good adult entertainment. The plot has been adapted from the play by Philip Barry. The dialogue is sparkling, the acting brilliant, and there is human appeal, comedy and romance. Adults and adolescents.

"Flight Command"—One of the most thrilling aviation pictures made and realistic, too, as the U. S. Navy lent its cooperation. The subject matter is timely, for it shows the work and practice manouevres done by the Navy in line with the Defense Program. The family.

"Go West"—The Marx Brothers are extremely good in this picture, which is much better than their last two. Harpo gives us some lovely bits of music and there are lots of thrills and laughter. The family.

"Convoy"—A good melodrama of present-day naval warfare, produced in England. Since the picture was made in cooperation with the British Admiralty, the action seems realistic. In fact, the battle scenes are so well done that one feels as though one is watching the actual battle. The family.

"Sailors Three"—A musical farce, starring Claude Hulbert, Michael Wilding and Tommy Trinder. A couple of catchy songs add zest to this joyous mixture, which is guaranteed to chase the blues away. The family.

"Hudson's Bay"—This picture may be disappointing to many because it lacks the excitement that one would expect in a story depicting the formation of the Hudson's Bay Company. The family.

"The Invisible Woman"—A pretty good comedy which is at no time serious. The trick photography is handled well. The family.

"Arms and the Man—U. S. A."—An up-to-the-minute survey of the progress of Uncle's Sam's first peace-time draft, emphasizing the ready response of American youth to the call to duty and the plans being made for the cooperation of industry as a further arm of defense. The family.

"Labor and Defense"—A stimulating review of Labor's fight to achieve recognition. The challenge which faces the wage-earner in today's crisis of national defense. The family.

"Goofy's Glider"—Goofy's attempts to master the technique of gliding provide laughs aplenty and earn for himself a promising notch in Disney's cartoon hall of fame. The family.

"Christmas Under Fire" Previewed in Toronto

TORONTO—A private showing of "They Spent Christmas Under Fire" was held here before a selected audience representing the Ontario Provincial Government, City of Toronto, the three branches of the active service, news syndicates, local newspapers, Canadian magazines and radio stations. Wolfe Cohen, Canadian district manager for Warner, was host.

The documentary film, with commentary by Quentin Reynolds, was set for releasing throughout Canada on Thursday, January 30.

Host School Boys

WINNIPEG—As part of an extensive campaign on behalf of "Hudson's Bay" put on by George Frazer of 20th-Fox, Harold Bishop and Jack Fitzgibbons jr. of the Capitol, a special show was presented for the safety patrol boys of the city schools, in cooperation with the Winnipeg Free Press.

Public Hearing Over Accident in Theatre

TORONTO—A public enquiry, ordered by Hon. Gordon Conant, attorney-general of Ontario, into the accident during a Saturday matinee at the Doric, Toronto neighborhood house, when 30 children were overcome by coal gas fumes, opened at the Ontario Parliament Buildings on Wednesday to determine the cause of the occurrence, after which prosecution will be instituted if personal negligence on the part of any person is found, it is announced.

Attorney-General Conant announced that a public investigation had been considered advisable "in order to determine whether anybody is to blame for what took place and also to prevent a recurrence of such an incident in Ontario." Likewise, O. J. Silverthorne, chairman of the Ontario board of motion picture censors, announced that a special checkup of all theatres in the Province would be undertaken to insure that buildings were properly fitted and that managers were living up to the regulations.

Shortly after the accident, the Doric was ordered closed, regardless of the inquiry, until alterations had been made in the theatre. Orders had already been made for the construction of a fireproof wall in the basement and two more fresh-air ducts. Whether or not any other changes will be required depends upon the outcome of the official investigation.

An order already issued to Sam Lester, proprietor and a veteran exhibitor, by the Ontario department provides for the presence of a janitor at all performances after the theatre is reopened and for the constant attendance of other employes while patrons are in the building. It was brought out in the local newspapers that the proprietor was temporarily absent when the accident occurred. All the victims have recovered after hospital and emergency treatment.

Extend Ian Hunter

HOLLYWOOD—Ian Hunter draws a role in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with his contract extension at Metro.

In Tribute to Balaban—

TORONTO

REPRESENTING Famous Players Canadian Corp. at the testimonial dinner to President Barney Balaban of Paramount Pictures at the Drake Hotel in Chicago were J. J. Fitzgibbons, vice-president of the chain, and Ben Geldsaler, supervisor of booking, who made the trip from Toronto for the occasion, and President N. L. Nathanson who traveled to Chicago from Florida where he is spending the winter for his health.

During the past 12 months, 12 men in the employ of Hanson Theatres Corp. have temporarily resigned their positions in order to join the colors for active service with the Canadian armed forces, according to H. C. D. Main, supervisor of the company which operates theatres in various cities and towns of Ontario. Employes already in uniform were formerly on the headoffice staff and from a number of the Hanson theatres. There are indications that more will enlist during 1941 with the official word having gone out that Canada's air, land and sea forces will be greatly augmented in preparation for the big offensive.

W. J. Burke, manager of the Brant, Brantford, and James Simmons, manager of the Palace, London, are apparently inseparable in both romance and illness. Both become benedicts within a few days of each other some weeks ago and now both have decided to be on the sick list—simultaneously (not the fault of the bride's cooking).

Manager Fred Trebilcock of the big Uptown, Toronto, has provided a special wartime service for the public which has attracted considerable attention and publicity. He installed a huge letterbox in the lobby in which letters from relatives to soldiers on active service can be dropped, the theatre paying for the postage. Canadian warriors in any part of the world can thus receive letters from the folks back home without postal cost.

J. P. O'Loughlin, general manager of 20th Century-Fox, Ltd., traveled to Winnipeg, Man., for the premiere of "Hudson's Bay," this location being particularly important because the Canadian headquarters of the historic company are situated in the Manitoba capital. The Toronto first run was held off for a week, thus enabling O'Loghlin to return home in time for the event. The picture has played the Capitol in Ottawa.

Old-timers in Toronto have heard with regret that Charlie Berman, one of the film exchange pioneers of this city, died in Boston, Mass. The late Jake Berman, a brother, was also a prominent figure in Toronto film circles at the time when cans of films reposed on cupboard shelves in the front office from which nickel show proprietors took them as required. Charlie Berman headed the World Film Company which occupied ground floor office space on Yonge Street down near the warehouses and waterfront.

The Strand, Toronto, was the scene of a repeat performance last Sunday night of an amateur musical show, "Raisin' a Racket," in aid of the British War Victims' Fund, the first presentation having played to an overflow audience. The Strand is a unit of 20th Century Theatres . . . Immediately after "Rebecca" had been chosen the 1940 hit in a Canadian poll, Max Starkman of the Allenby, grabbed it for immediate showing and played it up with special exploitation.

Toronto reviewers enjoyed a special trip across the border to Buffalo, N. Y., for a pre-release screening of "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" at the 20th Century Theatre under the joint supervision of Terry Turner of the RKO office in New York and George H. Degnon, recently appointed exploitation man for the Canadian company at Toronto. An outside member of the party was Will McLaughlin, veteran reviewer of the Ottawa Journal.

M. Axler of Toronto made a trip to Brantford, Ont., for the funeral of a cousin, David Axler of that city who died while with the Royal Canadian Air Force, the deceased being accorded full military honors for the burial service . . . Manager Vern Hudson has revived vaudeville at the Avalon, Ottawa, in conjunction with the double film bill.

Lloyd M. Mills, manager of the Elgin, Ottawa, organized a special patriotic stage performance for troops of the local garrison under the auspices of the Lions Club of which he is a member. Manager Ray Tubman of the Capitol, a Famous Players' unit, supervised a concert last Sunday night by the band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, a collection being taken up for the war work of the R. C. A. F. Women's Auxiliary.

Jack Chisholm returned to his office in the Toronto branch of the Associated Screen News, Ltd., after spending considerable time in the production of war films at Montreal and Ottawa. Frank O'Byrne, Toronto manager, has visited Camp Borden a number of times in connection with the making of military pictures and the providing of entertainment for the troops.

SASKATCHEWAN

A HIGH pressure drive is under way at present in Regina to sell war savings stamps. Publicity men for the drive include H. A. Bercovich, manager of the Rex, and Larry Graburn, manager of the Capitol.

Boy scouts and girl guides of Swift Current gathered in the Lyric on a recent Sunday for a memorial service to the late Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement. A similar service was held at the Hi-Art in Weburn.

The Greek War Relief Fund of Prince Albert benefited by a draw for a silver tea service. The draw was conducted on the stage of the Strand.

Three thousand children of grades five, six, seven and eight of Saskatoon public and separate schools were guests of the Hudson's Bay Company at the Capitol on two mornings during the showing of "Hudson's Bay" in Saskatoon. Premiere Canadian showing of the picture was at Saskatoon, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria.

Manager Charlie Bahrynowski, of the Met Theatre, Regina, reports a terrific business with the double bill, "Little Nellie Kelly," starring Judy Garland, and "Gallant Sons," with Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville. Booked for three days, the bill proved such a natural for Charlie's family house that he was forced to play it a week. Something unique for Regina was the lineup outside the theatre on the fifth day.

A special committee has been appointed by the collegiate board of Regina to investigate a plan for the co-ordination of visual education in all Regina schools.

Otis Bowes, manager of the Grand, Regina, was named president of the Grand, bantam hockey team.

Canadian youths are seeing the last of the comic books because of the wartime ban by the government on the importation of this type of magazine. The result has been that the kids have rushed to buy up their favorite publications. Another result was achieved by Manager Herb Nelson of the Goldfields, Timmons, Ont., when he secured the cooperation of book stores in placing stickers for "Youth Will Be Served" on the front covers of the periodicals.

Grant Garrette, manager of the Geneva, Orillia, aroused excitement when he posted "Wanted" signs around the town and countryside for "Return of Frank James" at a time when a couple of Nazi war prisoners had escaped from custody and were supposed to be somewhere in Central Ontario.

Music Guild Chartered

MONTREAL—The Composers of Canadian Music Guild has received a Dominion charter. The Guild has as its object the encouragement of the composition and presentation of Canadian music.

WINNIPEG

EFFORTS of the film industry in this center to contribute in some measure to Canada's war effort, continue unabated. Besides special shows that have been held in various centers by the Rothstein Theatres; the Recreation Hall at Great Falls contributed an additional ten cents a seat for each patron who attended the showing of "London Can Take It;" Bob Hurwitz, Main street supervisor, is working on the new drive for the sale of war savings stamps; Grand National is presenting a special dedication program, a percentage of which is to be contributed to the Lord Mayor's Fund. The sum fund received a donation of $25 last week from the musicians' union.

Don Gauld and E. A. Retalick are enjoying great success with sneak previews at the Uptown Theatre.

The latest move in the attempt to regulate attendance of children at film houses, is a request made to operators this week by the Manitoba censor board. The board has asked exhibitors to use a standardized type in newspaper ads to specify whether their films are adult or family. This type is to be eight point for one column, 12 point for two columns and 18 point for three columns. Exhibitors will put this suggestion into effect immediately.

Producers Releasing Corporation announce arrangements completed for release of their products through Grand National in Canada. The franchise is for a period of years, starting with the 1941 product, and including the "Lone Rider" series.

Harold Bishop has been getting in some advance licks for his coming showing of "Bitter Sweet." Recently Bishop arranged for an attractive ad in the Celebrity series program and brought his attraction to the attention of some 3,000 people.

"Bitter Sweet" Holds At Toronto House

Toronto—Even "Gone With the Wind" had to be held back at Toronto Loew's when Manager Jules Bernstein found "Bitter Sweet" so sweet with the fans. "Wind" was scheduled to open its popular-price engagement January 23 and display announcements already were being run for the feature when it was found necessary to hold "Bitter Sweet" for a second week —despite the mild enthusiasm of local reviewers.

CALGARY

G W. "GREG" JANZER, house manager of the Grand, was married recently to Dorothy Herbert of Lacombe. The ceremony, attended by a number of industry friends, was performed by the bride's father, the Rev. W. E. Herbert. The couple is now honeymooning on the Pacific coast.

"Hudson's Bay" proved to be a natural here. Week's engagement closed Wednesday at the Capitol after one of the widest and least expensive campaigns of the past few seasons. The Hudson's Bay department store heartily cooperated in all publicity.

Snow and sub-zero weather in the prairies has hit boxoffices this past week. Roads are still open in the country, but city folk are hugging firesides these cold nights and keeping close to radios. The cold spell is expected to lift soon.

Jean Malcomson of the Metro exchange in Calgary had a birthday on Wednesday.

MONTREAL

MOTION PICTURE theatres are facing a good deal of amusement competition, but are holding their own in spite of counter attractions, including hockey. In the past week they have had to contend with the "Ice Follies of 1941" at the Forum, the "Original Ballet Russe" at His Majesty's, following a violin recital by Huberman, the "Musical Madcaps" at Chez Maurice, "The Maniac Lover" at the Norgate, and "Golden Boy" at the YMCA Little Theatre.

Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, who have been skiing in the Laurentians, passed through Montreal, New York bound on the ski-plane from St. Jovite . . . The Alamo, Chateauguay Basin, Que., gave a Saturday and Sunday evening showing of "Gallant Sons." Door prizes were given and the proceeds will be used for the formation of a hockey club and construction and maintenance of a skating rink for the younger residents.

Mildred Mitchell, whom Montrealers recall as the winsome star of a stock company at the Orpheum nearly a generation ago, was leading lady in a performance of "Gaslight," melodrama by Patrick Hamilton, given in Victoria Hall by the Montreal Repertory theatre. The Orpheum, scene of Miss Mitchell's former triumphs, scored a motion picture triumph by running the "The Thief of Bagdad" for a fifth week, in response to public demand after the fourth week had been positively announced as "final."

Motion picture theatre tickets were prizes in Bingo games arranged for the youths in training at the local Wireless School of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Bingo is not permitted in the theatres, but, apparently there is no objection to the giving of theatre tickets as prizes, if the game can be played elsewhere.

Result of a deal with the Grand National Films, Ltd., a new distributing company to be known as Producers Releasing Corp. of Canada and Newfoundland has been incorporated to distribute current and future products of the corporation. There will be branches in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and Saint John. Playdates for seven features and eight westerns are being assigned.

CBC Asks Jack Arthur to Direct Music for Series

TORONTO—Jack Arthur, district manager of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has been invited by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. to arrange and direct the music for the 12 feature programs in the "Theatre of Freedom" series over the national network from Toronto during the next three months in which outstanding stars of the screen and stage will make personal appearances before audiences in the largest CBC concert hall.

The first artists to appear in Toronto are Cedric Hardwicke and Lady Hardwicke, their scheduled engagement being February 2, for the program of which Arthur has arranged the musical background and organized a special orchestra. As manager of the Uptown and Imperial, chain units in Toronto, before his appointment to head office, and by reason of his many years as director of music for Famous Players, Jack Arthur has had much experience in orchestration and in the wielding of the baton.

Other artists who have donated their services for the series include Raymond Massey, Walter Huston, Herbert Marshall, Orson Welles, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Laughton, Elsa Lanchester, Anna Neagle, George Sanders and Paul Muni.

North Bay Press Tieup Plugs "Escape" Run

TORONTO—One of the finest exploitation campaigns for a film attraction in a long time was the publicity tieup secured by Manager Jack Nelson of the Capitol, a Famous Players' house in North Bay, Ont., for "Escape." In cooperation with local merchants, the North Bay Nugget published a special eight-page section devoted to the picture, the front page of which was a display announcement in two colors with the heading, "Escape the Humdrum Ways of Living," followed by "Get in on this January Community Event—North Bay Stores Will Supply Your Every Need" and also large panels announcing the engagement at the Capitol and a contest for prizes in which readers were invited to write a sentence using the word "Escape" to encourage the sale of War Savings Stamps.

The newspaper section contained no less than 23 publicity stories on the picture and six stills from the press book, along with the display advertisements of 26 business establishments in all of which there was a reference to "Escape." These advertisements had such phrases as "You'll Escape Accidents," "Escape Useless Spending and "Escape Enslavement," along with references to the theatre. In addition the Capitol had its own three-column advertisement. The judges for the slogan competition were Mayor C. R. Harrison, Chairman F. E. Richens of the City War Savings Committee and Mrs. D. A. Campbell, convener of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire.

Trains for R. C. A. F.

SAINT JOHN, N. B.—Ronald Fielding, manager of the Capitol Theatre of Digby, N. S., resigned to undergo advanced technical training in Ontario with the objective of entering the R. C. A. F. Fielding, who when he passed solo test flights four years ago, was Canada's youngest airman, is a son of A. A. Fielding, general manager of the Spencer chain of theatres in the Maritimes.

Testimonial an Ad

WINNIPEG—A letter from a prominent clergyman to Manager Gray of the Starland Theatre, commending GN's "Mein Kampf," was reproduced in full in extra large newspaper ads publicizing the film.

The letter, written by the Rev. J. W. Clarke, who only a week ago urged members of church groups to be on the lookout for operators who tried to get by with Sunday midnight showings, reads as follows:

"I attended the preview of 'Mein Kampf' and was greatly impressed with its historical exactness and with the striking manner in which the life and activities of Hitler have been dramatized.

"This should be a most powerful medium for bringing home to the people the strength of the enemy, also the demoralizing nature of the Nazi philosophy of life.

"I trust the attendance at your theatre will transcend expectations."

George McEwan is back in Vancouver after successfully managing Freddie Wood on his trek with the golfing professionals . . . F. G. Stevens putting on a very extensive advertising campaign for the first-run showing of "Mein Kampf" at the Lux.

War Films Occupy ASN Throughout Dominion

TORONTO—Frank O'Byrne, Toronto manager of the Associated Screen News, Ltd., reported that the ASN had been much occupied with the production of war and patriotic films in many parts of the Dominion for the National Film Board and others, this form of war work representing a large proportion of the current program. Of special interest was the premiere of an ASN release, "Peoples of Canada," in Chicago, Ill., this picture depicting the many racial characteristics to be found in this country.

Cameramen had been taking a large number of films in military camps, air stations and munition factories to portray Canada's war effort. Associated Screen News has been finding a ready market for topical and scenic films in barracks, theatres and halls. O'Byrne is an active member of the special committee which is responsible for providing much entertainment for troops in training.

No Ontario Election For at Least a Year

TORONTO—Although this might be an election year for Ontario under the usual order of legislative events, Premier M. F. Hepburn has announced that provincial elections at this time would be an unnecessary expenditure of money which could be otherwise used for the war effort, and that the Ontario government will carry on for another year.

Recognize Kilburg's "Story" Campaign

MILWAUKEE — M-G-M has awarded an Honor Roll Button to Gene Kilburg, Wisconsin Theatre, for his outstanding campaign for "The Philadelphia Story."

Highlights follow:

Thirty-five thousand full-page announcement heralds distributed by Liberty magazine carriers one week in advance. Day before opening, 50,000 heralds generally distributed. Tie-up with Postal Telegraph whereby they enclosed 5,000 midget facsimile telegrams in messages. Postal also distributed 3,000 special News Letters plugging the film.

Six-day serialization planted in Evening Post. Twenty-five two-color 40x60 heralds posted one week in advance in downtown store windows and at street-car terminal points. Book marks distributed in public libraries. Six radio spot announcements starting four days in advance. Fashion still layout planted with leading department store for counter exhibits and lobby displays.

Bookstores Will Cooperate

NEW YORK—The publishers of Prudence Penny's cook book call attention to the willingness of bookstores to cooperate with counter and window displays on the Metro short featuring the writer, "Penny to the Rescue."

There's Magic in Display—

The specially constructed front that helped "Thief of Bagdad" do gratifyingly big business at the Madison Theatre in Peoria, Ill. The display is the work of E. G. Fitzgibbon, Great States publicist in Peoria.

Gasoline to Bring 'em In

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—Scoops, the Schine Theatre's exploitation house organ, reports successful seat selling with the furnishing of free gasoline to patrons from the rural districts when the latter attend one of the chain's theatres.

The recommended procedure: A tieup is made first with the gasoline dealer, whereby he will furnish gratis to people properly identifying themselves as patrons of the theatre, one, two, or three gallons of gasoline, depending upon the distance they traveled. The tieup is made on the strength of the person buying additional gallons or becoming regular patrons of that particular service station.

A short trailer calls attention to the gas offer as follows:

"For our out-of-town patrons! Free gasoline transportation. Enough to bring you to this theatre and home. This unusual service made possible by (name of cooperating station). No inconvenience—just present your auto license when you buy your admission ticket.

"This offer good only Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday ever week."

The patron is given a gasoline ticket, properly dated, authorizing a service station to give that particular person one, two, or three gallons of gasoline, depending upon the distance traveled.

The purpose of the plan is to build up rural attendance during the middle of the week.

Circus in the Lobby—

The lobby display for "Chad Hanna" put up by Manager G. I. Hunter in the Illinois Theatre at Jacksonville, Ill. The miniature ferris wheel, built to scale by a local firm manufacturing the wheels, is operated on a small motor. Dolls dressed to represent the various visitors to a circus are seated on the wheel and cards listing picture, cast and playdate came into view as the wheel revolved.

ON pay envelopes he provides for the Remington Rand Co., Ronald Failes of the Capitol at Ilion, N. Y., imprinted the following copy: "Don't forget to put aside one admission price out of your pay envelope so that you may enjoy . . . Bette Davis in "The Letter" (theatre and playdate).

Manager A. A. Sette of the Capitol at Springfield, Mass., sent out several service staff members for a few days before the opening date of "Santa Fe Trail" on this city's downtown streets to say to everyone they met: "Iron rails to Kansas . . . iron nerve from there on." When the Springfield citizens looked puzzled at such talk, the service staffers proceeded to tell the prospective customers that "'Santa Fe Trail' is coming to the Capitol soon!"

The cashiers and usherettes of the Uptown Theatre in San Francisco were dressed in red wigs by Manager Joe Richards a week in advance of "The Lady With Red Hair." Banners across the girls uniforms announce the coming picture.

The 10 young men working at the Coliseum Theatre in San Francisco wore red Mountie uniforms a week in advance of "North West Mounted Police." Manager Irving Levin obtained the uniforms direct from the studio.

A two-column serialization on "High Sierra" is available gratis at the Warner exchange, that should prove acceptable to the daily or weekly papers.

Dates Ahead—

Valentine's Day, Friday, February 14: The old two-for-one stunt could be tried as a sweetheart night, inviting the girls to bring their sweetheart along gratis. Also promote candy or flowers for distribution.

Lincoln's and Washington's Birthday, Wednesday, February 12 and Saturday, February 22: Put particular stress on a kiddie show, especially on Washington's Birthday which this year falls on a Saturday. Several cartoons around a single feature, advertised as the birthday show, will make a drawing program.

Creates Furore With "Beast of Berlin"

Wichita, Kas.—Bill Huston, manager of the Crawford, started something when he hung up banners advertising "Hitler—Beast of Berlin" on a recent four-day run. The banners were, by next morning, torn to shreds, and Huston started writing a story for one of the newspapers. He included some threatening telephone calls, just to make it good, but before the story was done he actually had some! The publicity was big, and there was a lot of excitement. A county official called about the damage to banners; the other newspaper called to ask why its competitor had the scoop; first run opposition called to ask how the Crawford had the picture first run, why hadn't they? It all contributed to setting a new box-office record for the house. Exhibitors from surrounding towns came in to see if it would be safe to play the picture.

: For Industrial Towns :

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—A medium of advertising ideal for industrial towns is reported in Scoops, the Schine Theatres' house organ, as evolved by Seymour Morris of the Palace at Lockport.

Morris sold the payroll department of a large factory in the town on the idea of furnishing them with weekly payroll envelopes. On the back of the payroll envelope is printed the weekly program at the Palace Theatre.

The cost is more economical than a mailing list and there is the certainty of reaching a class able to buy entertainment.

Working Men's Matinee Brings a Proclamation

WEST ALLIS, WIS.—J. P. Klauzer, manager of Fox's Paradise here, promoted a full page co-operative newspaper ad and a proclamation from Mayor Delbert Miller on the inauguration of his daily matinees for night shift workers.

Mayor Miller's proclamation declared that "Whereas, a survey of the working hours of the working men indicates that a large number of working men have a great portion of their afternoons off during various days of the week, and

"Whereas, the same survey shows that a number of these same working men are obliged to return to their places of employment in the evenings during a number of days a week, and

"Whereas, the Paradise Theatre has undertaken to conduct matinees for the benefit of patrons whose work schedules do not permit them to enjoy movies in the evenings—

"Therefore, I, Delbert Miller, mayor of the City of West Allis, do hereby proclaim the opening of the seven-day matinees as the "Working Man's Matinee."

The matinee policy is the first of its kind for West Allis and the theatre invites them to "come in your working clothes." Admission prices are 20 cents from 12 to 2 p. m. and 25 cents from 2 to 6 p. m.

Invites National Guard Unit to Free Screening

MT. VERNON, IND.—An invitation to attend free a special showing of "Down Argentine Way," extended to the local National Guard battery, in the name of three employes now members of the battery, garnered front page newspaper space and considerable goodwill for Louis Davis, manager of the New Vernon.

The special preview was held on a Tuesday evening at 9:30, and was exclusive for the battery's officers and men.

Exhibitors report that playing the horror product in duos, rather than dividing time between films of different type, has brought increased business since it attracts addicts of that type of fare.

GUESS WHO'S WHO AMONG THE STARS ?

Six Weeks' Contest of Skill: 72 Star Portraits to Be Guessed by Your Patrons for Prizes or Free Tickets.

The Lenten season begins February 26 and comes to its end with Easter Sunday on April 13. That's the time boxoffices need help, and patronage-stimulation must be devised.

Hundreds of our exhibitor customers have asked Movie Time to help attract patronage by working out a weekly contest, with weekly prizes, for a six-week period and with a series of grand over-all prizes for the winning patrons holding the highest scores over the entire six-week period.

So that is what Movie Time has done. We have taken 72 pictures of popular present day movie stars and leading players of both sexes—36 male and 36 female personalities. Each week Movie Time in a half page panel will print 12 portraits—six women and six men. No name will be printed under any picture and a blank line will be provided under each for contestants to write in the proper name. When they have filled in all 12 they write their name and address in the coupon at bottom of page and deposit the half page with coupon attached in a voting or ballot box in your lobby.

2 issues will be shipped to customers Tuesday, February 18
2 issues will be shipped Tuesday, March 4
2 issues will be shipped Tuesday, March 18

These six contest issues cover the Lenten period and are to be issued in your town February 21 and 28, March 7, 14, 21 and 28. You can make your awards for the seventh week grand over-all prizes for the highest scores in the six-week period on Thursday, April 13, the day before Good Friday. This should mean business in Holy Week, which is usually one of record low patronage.

We are ready and now offer these six issues to any theatre in the United States not now using Movie Time except theatres in opposition to theatres now using Movie Time. Despite our large number of Movie Time customers there are thousands of places where theatres can have the benefit of this contest. As we say, any present non-customer can buy just these six issues without obligation to continue with Movie Time. We think, however, that many theatres will find Movie Time so beneficial that they will wish to continue using it as their regular weekly house organ newspaper.

We do not attempt in these six issues to write the terms or prizes in your contest. You use the back page [4] for all promotion, prize and publicity announcements. Write your own contest copy, decide upon your own prizes or awards, work out your own details of the tie-ins you will make with your merchants and others for prizes and how much of the back page space you will give them in connection with your publicity story and your house program. DO NOT DELAY PLACING YOUR ORDER FOR THIS SERIES OF SIX ISSUES. Orders for the series must be in our hands at Kansas City by Saturday, February 15, 1941, at the very latest. A master sheet with correct names PRINTED under each picture will be sent to you at end of each week to post in your lobby after your announcement of prize winners is ANNOUNCED FROM YOUR STAGE. Morning after such announcements you post printed list in your lobby . You might announce an extra cash bonus to be paid each prize winner who is in your theatre when the announcement of prize winners is made.

Present customers of Movie Time may wish to increase their weekly orders for the six weeks this contest is in force to gain wider publicity by a heavier distribution.

Prices for Movie Time remain the same as alway and are given here again for the benefit of those theatres not at present buying Movie Time.

"THE SAME AS LAST YEAR!"

N. Y. TIMES, JAN. 27, 1941

Cut in Prices Brings Gain For 'Gone With the Wind'

"Gone With the Wind" registered 10,432 more paid admissions on the first two days, last Thursday and Friday, of its return engagement at the Capitol than in the comparable period when it first opened at the theatre in December, 1939.

Matinee receipts were $1,017 above the original receipts, notwithstanding that current admissions represent a 50 per cent reduction in the original price scale.

Attendance increases of 30 per cent and increases of from 10 to 15 per cent in receipts also were reported in Cleveland, Ohio; Worcester, Mass.; Bridgeport, Conn., and other representative cities, according to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the distributors.

(Yes, Mr. Exhibitor. The Miracle of Show Business is exceeding even the wildest dreams in its return at reduced prices. Crowds! New records! Hold-overs everywhere! Put "Gone With The Wind" on your marquee. It's magic!)

The Pulse of the Motion Picture Industry

Shake Hands, Mr. Lastrun

THIS page is being written and in great and undisguised glee. Here is why:

Aside from a timid glimmer here and there, and hardly discernible, your occasionally bull-headed reporter has been maintaining a sort of lone hand campaign on behalf of the consent decree in direct opposition to the expressed and fiery condemnation of practically all of the exhibitors in all of America. That's an order in wholesale and nothing to be particularly comfortable about. It's a time, too, when a feller needs a friend, if he can find one.

The news today is that friend has been found. An old friend, too. John Lastrun is the name. He is the exhibitor who runs a single, last-run theatre in a metropolitan city. Possibly he may be remembered as the theatreman who was highly skeptical about the government suit and even more dubious about theatre divorcement. For several years, aside from whatever comfort this column might have been able to muster, he has been asking periodic questions about problems which face him, hoping against vain hope that someone in this broad land could answer him, and would.

He is back once more. "Well, here I am again—the little guy still with the last run in the metropolitan neighborhood. I've written to you from time to time concerning some of my problems and you have been good enough to print my letters, but to date no one has ever bothered to help solve my particular squawks," Lastrun writes. "However, I find that problems have a way of being solved in the course of time to make room for new headaches that seem to spring up.

Why He Gloats

"THIS time I am not writing about a problem. On the contrary, I think I am gloating. I am one of the few exhibitors who is not alarmed by the consent decree. Without knowing why, my first reaction to the decree was that it was bound to do me more good than harm. As the full import of the block of five selling dawned on me, I realized just where I was going to be better off and I am sure that you'll appreciate my optimism.

"In my situation, I need four or five pictures a week which means that about 225 pictures a year cover my requirements. In the past I could buy only the product of four major companies and sometimes five to cover my needs. The pictures of the other companies were not available to me as I was not able to contract for the entire blocks of their productions.

"Now, for the first time I'll have a chance to negotiate for all the product that is made. Of course, I won't be able to buy it all, but I'll certainly have a crack at the blocks of five I like. I won't be compelled to indulge in the seasonal guessing games I had to in the past. Heretofore, I had to determine in advance which companies I was going to pass up. Sometimes I guessed reasonably well and at other times I pulled some costly boners. I have bought what looked swell on paper and passed up what didn't look so hot. I've lost a lot of sleep bemoaning my lack of judgment.

"I sincerely believe that a lot of that grief is over. The amount of guesswork will be reduced to a minimum. I know that I'll still makes mistakes and plenty of them. However, now, I'll make them with my eyes more or less open. And what is equally important, the best pictures will be available to me and I won't be compelled to pass up a company's product because I've already bought up to my capacity.

"I hope I'm not being too optimistic."

We regard this the viewpoint of an extremely practical man and a far more constructive and helpful leap at the decree than most of the comment so indiscriminately let fly around the country. Lastrun demonstrates an ability to face the facts and, maybe, the music as well. He may not be too certain of his own diagnosis of things to come but, then, neither is anyone else and this does not exempt the men who drew up the decree.

On the Fundamental

THUS and while Lastrun indeed may be too optimistic, perhaps he will not be. What he has done, nevertheless, is to put his finger on a fundamental which the decree establishes. We hold it to be most important that blind selling is kicked out even if block booking, unwound as it will be, is not. The exhibitor may not elect to look at the product. That will become his business, but it is significant it will be there waiting for him if he so chooses it.

He will not have to buy more than five at a clip, thereby exercising the proper right of control over his own playing time. This is so new, in fact it is so startling that it occurs to us that exhibitors generally do not realize what this can mean to them. If they did, their whole approach to the decree might undergo a change. Like John Lastrun's.

INSIDERS PREDICT SETTLEMENT ALL GOVERNMENT SUITS IN 1941

Say "Friendly Attitude" By Defendants Only Thing Needed Now

By BILL ORNSTEIN

(Copyright, 1941, Associated Publications)

NEW YORK—Insiders, those on the top and in the know and who have held assiduously to an optimistic picture during the trying days of the negotiating and drafting of the consent decree, see a peaceful settlement of all pending government litigation in the industry.

The attitude of the department of justice, spokesmen declare, is to cooperate with the industry now that so many other more important problems face government attention. It is felt all that is needed to bring about the full peace is a desire on the part of the defendants to show a friendly attitude and an open mind on compromise, as in the case with "The Big Five."

In Spirit of Compromise

The men actually responsible for the decree readily admit there are a number of conditions in the document which they did not want. But most of all they did not want the all-industry suit to go to trial. Hence, when they explained their position on certain demands by the government, department representatives acceded on some matters and the industry conceded others. Ultimately, a compromise was reached.

It is held that the government is continuing its same attitude in regard to negotiations now under way with attorneys for the Schine and Griffith circuits. These negotiations, exclusively reported by BOXOFFICE, were never denied.

Differ on Expansion

In the case of the Schine suit, Willard S. McKay has been to Washington on a number of occasions conferring with Robert Wright and others of the department of justice on a modified decree. The only important factor now holding up consummation of the pact is a difference on the limitations of expansion to be afforded Schine under such a decree.

The circuit does not want its activities curtailed, which the government is now insisting upon. But the indication is a compromise will be reached shortly and this may be along the lines covered in the decree for the "Big Five."

Attorneys for Griffith in Oklahoma City also have had consultations with the department and have secured a preliminary idea of what is expected from the government. This circuit's expansion activities in the last year have resulted in a number of additions which have brought complaints to the department. The compromise which is expected to develop will slow new acquisitions somewhat, but allowances will

Exchange Unions May Vote Local Autonomy

NEW YORK—Within the next 30 days, all local film exchange unions, comprising backroom employes, are expected to vote for local autonomy, which will give them wider powers under their IATSE charters. One unit has already voted for the new plan, this being Local B-51 for the New York exchanges.

Under the local autonomy idea, the unions will have the power to negotiate their own contracts with distributors without calling in IA representatives, and also will be empowered to take whatever action might be deemed necessary to bring about their demands.

Presently, all exchange unions are classified as "B" units, which means they have no right to negotiate their own deals with distributors. However, under the new classification, the unions will become "A" units and be given additional powers. A majority of unions is needed before the IA will recognize them as "A" bodies.

Dues for the members of B-51 will be increased from $3 to $6 a quarter under the "A" classification, half of the new sum to go to the IA treasury.

Many Local B-51 members have been dissatisfied with Local 306's conduct at the strike called two years ago when the operators' union was negotiating its new deal with major circuits. Backroom employes were called out on strike for two weeks and each man was given $15 by Local 306.

The local exchange contract with distributors expires next December. By that time it is expected the local autonomy rule will be in effect and negotiations carried on without "interference" by Local 306 or the IA.

RKO Completes Plan For Decree Selling

NEW YORK—RKO executives have completed a basic plan for simplified selling under the decree and are prepared to put the system into effect "tomorrow" if the new season were to start then, it is learned.

The plan is the result of a survey of several months during which home office executives have visited the field and studied each situation. An analysis of every account has been made so that the company is in a position to know from the records how much and how little each can afford.

There is no desire to work any hardship on any exhibitor, it is asserted, but rather the sales force will make every effort to cooperate with its customers as in the past and continue the friendliest of relations.

George J. Schaefer, president, is expected to leave for the coast in a few days with Ned E. Depinet to line up new product to complete the current program and also lay plans for the new session. Indications are that most of the 1940-41 program will be delivered on schedule and that before July rolls around at least one group of five will be ready for screening.

William Zimmerman, home office attorney, has been and is continuing a tour of exchanges explaining the provisions of the decree now in effect. Leo Devaney, Depinet drive leader and Canadian division head, is completing his first tour of the country and has been discussing the decree.

No date has been set for the annual convention, but it is understood home office counsel will go over the decree sections again, stressing the important points, such as those which border on contempt of court for the company and its representatives.

It is emphasized the company and every representative will live up to the letter of the decree.

More big pictures and fewer small ones will be the tenor of the RKO program for 1941-42. Schaefer's trip to Hollywood will be for several weeks and not for a year, as has been reported.

Hollywood—Happy Days are Here Again on the RKO lot.

Early this week, word was received from George J. Schaefer, president, to restore pay cuts which have been in effect since October 2, 1939. The cuts ranged from 10 per cent up for persons earning $5,000 annually to $75,000 a year.

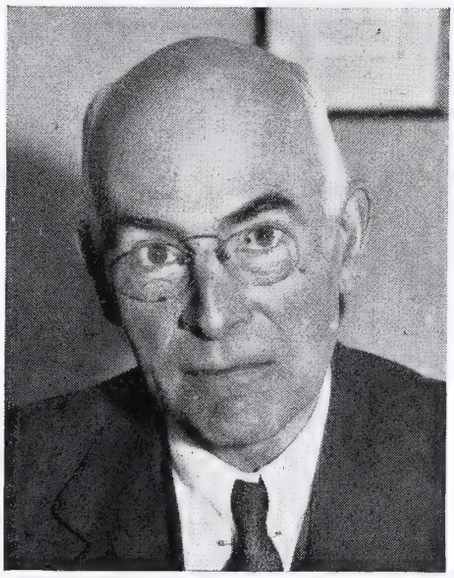
BOARD SUBPOENA POWER "TEETH" PRECEDENTAL IN FILM BUSINESS

May Punish Witnesses Who Fail to Appear Before Tribunal

NEW YORK—Exhibitor or other witnesses who fail to comply with subpoenas issued by arbitrators of the AAA "will be guilty of contempt of court and liable to pay all losses and damages sustained thereby to the parties aggrieved, and forfeit $50 in addition thereto."

The power to subpoena witnesses which arbitrators hold is said by veteran film men never to have existed in the past, either with the Film Boards of Trade, the NRA or other voluntary groups. These observers declare the subject of the rights of subpoena had been at all times a controversial one because of the unusual nature of the industry, and therefore never were vested with earlier arbitration groups. These same sources see significance in the fact the AAA has adopted such procedure, thus giving its system of arbitration "teeth," but decline to discuss the relative merits of the move until it comes into actual operation.

The AAA's power of subpoena, which is revealed among 28 forms now available at 31 film tribunals throughout the country, is known as Form XVII, and designated as "Subpoena Duces Tecum." The following is the wording of the form:



THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF TO:

GREETING:—

I COMMAND YOU, that all business and excuses being laid aside, you and each of you appear and attend before....., the Arbitrator appointed in accordance with the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, under the Motion Picture Consent Decree, at the office of the ..... Arbitration District, on the ..... day of ....., 19..... at ..... o'clock in the ..... noon, to testify and give evidence in a certain Arbitration now pending before said Arbitrator, then and there to be held between....., Complainant, and ....., Defendant, on the part of....., and that you bring with you, and produce at the time and place aforesaid a certain..... ..... now in your custody and all other deeds and evidences which you have in your custody or power concerning the premises. And for failing to attend, you will be guilty of contempt of court and liable to pay all losses and damages sustained thereby to the parties aggrieved, and forfeit $50 in addition thereto."

According to veteran film men the AAA's power of subpoena is noteworthy in still another respect. This is the right to impose a fine on witnesses who fail to comply with the subpoena, going so far as to be held liable to "pay all losses and

Appeals Board Setup Complete—

NEW YORK—Federal Judge Henry Warren Goddard completed the personnel for the arbitration appeals board with the appointment this week of Albert W. Putnam and George W. Alger, both of New York. Former Federal Judge Van Vechten Veeder was previously designated chairman by Judge Goddard.

Putnam and Alger, both well known New York attorneys, the latter familiar to the industry through his services as special master in the RKO reorganization proceedings, will serve for a period of three years at a salary of $17,500 annually.

Putnam, who has practiced law in New York since 1900, is a native of Spuyten Duyvil, where he was born in September, 1877. He received his degree from Columbia and is a graduate of the General Staff College of the Army. His military career included a captaincy in a machine gun battalion, and later was a major of field artillery.

Putnam has been identified as a vice-president of the Guardian Assets Corp., director of the Rye Trust Co., the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Co., and Tingue, Brown & Co.

Alger, who received his law degree from New York University in 1895, has practiced in New York for 46 years. Alger drafted the New York Employes Liability Act and many amendments to labor and child labor laws. He has served as chairman of the commission on the coat and suit industry of New York City, and later was director of the industry under the NRA. He is a native of Burlington, Vt.

A Man With a Formula—

New York—At least one exhibitor in the local territory is planning to break up his circuit of 13 houses, into three divisions, turning two groups of four and five over to his partners, so that he may come within the interpretation of an independent exhibitor under the decree.

According to the decree, Section X footnote, "an independent exhibitor is one wholly independent of any circuit of more than five theatres and not affiliated either by stock ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of more than five theatres and whose licenses are not negotiated by a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for more than five theatres."

The circuit involved feels it will lose certain rights under its present setup if the number is not split up.

"It's bad enough we have to operate under the decree and they're not going to fool us any more," the exhibitor involved told BOXOFFICE. "Why we should be discriminated against because we have 13 small houses, not affiliated with any booking combine, is not surprising. The small exhibitor is going to find the going tougher, and if he thinks he has had it hard up until now wait until the new selling season starts."

Men and Events

As Viewed by Red Kann

Miami Beach

IT WAS a lush and excitement-laden atmosphere which Universal created for the premiere of "Back Street" here Tuesday evening and it served well as a setting from which a generous cross-section of invited critics from over thirty cities could draw their stuff.

Yet the salient and undeniable conclusion is that "Back Street" stands on its own, and well, as an attraction that no doubt will make its potency felt even if the sort of gala treatment determined for it here had been given the go-by.

Here, of course, is a latter day version of Fannie Hurst's widely known novel. All of the great appeal, especially for women, which dotted the history of the original has been wisely retained this time, in recognition of a procedure frequently overlooked in Hollywood. The procedure: That, once a story is good, the chances are all in its favor that it will continue to be good if the essentials of the original are not subjected to tampering in the cause of either modernizing or endeavors to make it different.

Your journeyman's recollection of the first version is the treatment in that case underlined the influence which the feminine lead wielded on the business career of the man in the drama. Therefore, she was dominant in his life on two counts. One, the manner in which she propelled him toward greater heights in the world of business. Two, her great and undying passion which proved contentment enough although the circumstances compelled her to walk constantly through the back street of his life.

The first element is subordinated, not entirely removed, in the 1941 edition to allow an even greater stress on their spiritual and emotional compatibility. In another word, the love angle is the more heavily underlined, the results stamping the new "Back Street" with all of the success attendant upon its predecessor. There might be something further to say, by way of an overall approach. It might become repetitious, too.

The atmosphere of the early days of the century is faithfully and nostalgically caught and maintained. In terms of performances, the ratings rank high. Margaret Sullavan is excellent as the understanding woman. Charles Boyer, as the man, is as good as ever he was and there probably will be some, if not many, who will view his Walter Saxel well up among the best roles he has played.

Robert Stevenson, young Englishman now happily part of the coast production colony, again emphasizes the niceties of his direction and his ability to grasp a drama carved directly out of the American scene in stride. He does very well in this instance.

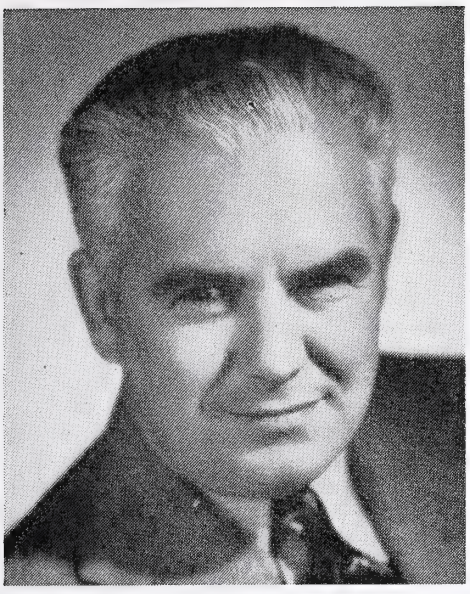
New York

He's Not Alone

A TOPFLIGHT circuit operator, affiliated, currently wonders along these lines:

"I am tremendously concerned whether this one appeals board located in New York will be able to grasp the necessity for different lengths of clearance in different situations. For example, fifteen days may be a pretty fair clearance in that congested New York area and be almost a continuous first run in some of our smaller communities.



"You know, of course, that from the trouble we have had making courts understand the problems of this industry—do I need to cite the very decree itself?—I think we are in for some startling results when we get the estimable gentleman who has spent his life in maritime law trying to understand show business."

Our communicant certainly is not alone. If it's company he is looking for, and he is not, there's plenty of it despite the perennial insistence of the American Arbitration Association that its arbitrators, being smart cookies, catch on awfully fast. The point is, is awfully fast quite fast enough in a business like this which deals in perishable goods?

A final paragraph, however, is a boost. No one, it is to be supposed, will object strenuously if it is printed here:

"But I do think you are doing a fine job in keeping the matter alive and trying to get some clarification of procedure in advance."

Thanks for that.

UNIVERSAL PLANS 47 FEATURES 69 REELS OF SHORTS, 4 SERIALS

CHICAGO—Stealing the march over his competitors, William Scully, general sales manager, will announce to Universal delegates Monday, the final day of the three-day annual sales convention at the Blackstone, details of the 1941-42 lineup of 47 features, 69 reels of shorts, four serials and 104 issues of the newsreel.

The feature lineup marks an increase of two over the current season and will include, as it did this season, three special Frank Lloyd productions. These will be sold separately and apart from regular contracts. In addition, the new program will find "Hellzapoppin'," to be produced by Jules Levey. The stage show is now in its 125th week at the Winter Garden in New York and is scheduled to close shortly. Levey is now at the studio working on "Butch Minds a Baby," the Damon Runyon story which is to star Wallace Beery.

According to Scully, conducting the local sales sessions which got under way Saturday, production costs will be considerably increased next season with individual budgets contingent on the stars to be secured for top flight pictures. Deanna Durbin, Marlene Dietrich, W. C. Fields, Gloria Jean and a host of other stars will again find the spotlight on the 1941-42 Universal roster. Such producers and directors as Joe Pasternak, Henry Koster, Alex Gottlieb and Frank Lloyd will continue to play an important part in the future of the company.

In the short subject division there will be the usual 15 "Stranger Than Fiction" and as many "Going Places." Also two series of 13 single reelers, with a half dozen two-reelers and one special subject. There is no change in the number of shorts from this season.

Last year the company held a series of regionals, but this year, with five of the majors selling under the consent decree which limits groups to blocks of five, executives decided to call in all branch, district and division managers to one general session.

Flexibility will again keynote the program. With this in mind a number of pictures will not be announced by Scully. However, there will be a substantial increase in the number of "A's" indicating the greatest outlay for the company.

The sessions also cleaned up details for the balance of the present season. Every picture scheduled now has a release date.

Preliminary plans for the 1941-42 season were discussed at length at studio conferences last month when Scully, J. Cheever Cowdin and Joseph H. Seidelman went over the possibilities with Cliff Work, Matty Fox, Milton Feld and Joe Pasternak.

In attendance are:

From the home office: J. Cheever Cowdin, Nate J. Blumberg, William A. Scully, Joseph H. Seidelman, Frank J. A. Mc-

Continues Westerns And Action Films

Chicago—Universal will continue its series of seven action pictures and seven westerns in addition to the 47 other features scheduled. Leo Carrillo replaces Richard Arlen in the action group, with Andy Devine and Dick Foran. This series will follow the style of "The Three Mesquiteers." The second group of seven westerns continues with Johnny Mack Brown in the starring role.

"U" Goes the Limit For "Back Street"

MIAMI BEACH—There was no way to calculate the newspaper wordage, but Universal must have gathered plenty on the world premiere of "Back Street" which was held at the Lincoln and Cameo Tuesday evening.

Critics, press association and syndicate writers from 34 cities ranging from Boston on one coast to Portland on the other did what they could to make the country "Back Street" conscious.

The purpose, of course, was to bow in with the film. But it went ahead of and beyond that. In small groups, the scribes descended on Miami and the Miami Biltmore as early as Friday night. They trained in and they flew in and by Saturday evening had completed their assemblage.

Fun for All

Beach cabanas had been arranged at the Roney Plaza. There was golf on the Biltmore links and tennis for those who wanted it at both hotels. Aero cars, they called them, conveyed the visitors from Coral Gables where the Biltmore is located approximately 15 miles away to the Beach and many were the round trips made during the week.

On Sunday, there was a water carnival in the Biltmore pool and that night dinner and the floor show at the Royal Palm where Milton Berle was master-of-ceremonies. The following day called for a fishing trip in a contest between the "A.M.'s" and the "P.M.'s" battling it out from two different smacks. It wasn't much of a contest simply because the fish refused to nibble. Those who passed up fishing went for a tour around Biscayne Bay on the Pancoast, both schedules being timed to tie in with a cocktail party for Deanna Durbin who, while she has nothing to do with "Back Street" has a great deal to do with Universal. In the evening, the group was escorted to the Beachcomber for Hawaiian liquor, Chinese food and Spanish rhumba music. The liquor turned out to be different, the food good and the music by Cugat and Chavez tinkling and loud.

A Day at Hialeah

An honorary police cavalcade led off Tuesday's program. It was a day at Hialeah where the visitors were guests of the Stevens Brothers at luncheon in the clubhouse and, of course, the races which included a "Back Street Handicap." Followed the premiere that night, attended by socialites and exhibitors who are winter vacationing here. The Greater Miami Boys' Drum and Bugle Corps went into parade formation, official flags of the various states were unfurled, Sammy Walsh of the Carousel introduced Miss Durbin and Universal Newsreel ground away. At midnight and back at the Biltmore, professionals drawn from films, stage and radio turned out for the "Typewriter Bowl Frolics."

By this time, it had become increasingly apparent a bit of rest and quiet were in order. Wednesday, therefore, was a free wheeling proposition, spent largely in catching up on sleep. In the evening and as the finale to the partying, the visitors, en masse, attended the Hallandale Colonial Inn where Sophie Tucker, Joe Louis and Harry Richman led the floor show. Thursday officially closed the lists.

While the majority of the newspaper visitors left on that day, some arranged to stay over—on their own. Matty Fox returned to New York Wednesday and thereafter went to Chicago for Universal's sales meeting. Frank J. A. McCarthy and William J. Heineman hit for the Windy City directly from here. Joseph H. Seidelman, foreign sales manager, failed to make the grade on the trip, but Ottavio Prochet, member of the company's board, did as did Willis H. Taylor and Budd Rogers, others of the directors. Charles D. Prutzman, vice-president and general counsel, remained over with his wife and returned north at the weekend.

"U" Moves Along

Louis Pollock, "U's" eastern advertising and publicity director, was in general charge of the arrangements at this end. He kept on denying he was worn out, but the more he insisted the less convincing he turned out to be. This applied equally to John Joseph, national advertising and publicity director, who had been traveling with Miss Durbin and her party.

At any rate, Universal finally had moved alongside of those other companies with a national newspaper and trade paper junket on the escutcheon and the reasonable conclusion appeared to be that "Back Street" was on its way.

Contributing—

Jack Benny, co-master of ceremonies of "America Calling," mammoth air show emanating from Hollywood, Saturday night, February 8, for the Greek War Relief Fund, starts the ball rolling with a contribution made to a volunteer worker in the Fund's New York offices. The volunteer is Nellie Rassias, an American-Greek. "America Calling" will be heard over both the NBC and Mutual networks for 90 minutes, at 11:15 p. m., E. S. T.

UA Files Answer In Goldwyn Suit

NEW YORK—United Artists has filed its answer in federal court to the suit of Samuel Goldwyn in which it seeks dismissal of the producer's action, asserting Goldwyn comes into court on his pleadings with "unclean hands."

The distributing company repeats much of the complaint in a preliminary general denial, and states that Goldwyn is bound by his contract to Aug. 31, 1945. It says that on Jan. 12, 1939, Goldwyn demanded of Pickford Corp., Alexander Korda and Charles Chaplin that each execute a voting-trust agreement for three years giving him all voting powers of their stock, and a 100 per cent right to elect directors. Unless this control was granted, Goldwyn threatened to oppose all measures and to take steps to gain this control, it is stated.

The three owners thus approached refused, and Goldwyn has continued to harass and annoy the management of UA since, the defense asserts. It is claimed Goldwyn released "false, malicious and misleading statements" about UA to the press and claimed that the defendant UA had breached a contract, whereas Goldwyn was the actual one breaching the agreement by approaching Paramount and Warner. By filing suits against UA the company has been forced to spend large sums in defending itself, UA claims in asking a dismissal.

Admits Goldwyn-UA Settlement Likely

HOLLYWOOD—An authorized spokesman for United Artists admits that settlement of the UA-Samuel Goldwyn suit is imminent and probably will be set for a definite conclusion this week following conferences between the producer and Murray Silverstone.

The deal is said to provide for acquisition of Goldwyn's UA stock by the company for a cash settlement, and withdrawal of legal action that would leave Goldwyn free to release his future product through other channels.

Grainger Coastbound; To Set Regionals

NEW YORK—James R. Grainger, Republic president, is en route to the coast. Due to arrive there February 20, he will discuss next season's production, sales plans and plans for the dates of regional meetings in Los Angeles, Kansas City, Atlanta and New York.

Assumes Whalen Duties

NEW YORK—Charles Reed Jones, advertising director of Republic, has taken on added duties with the resignation of David Whalen, publicity head. Jones will handle both posts under the new setup.

Adapting "Coney Island"

HOLLYWOOD—Dwight Taylor is adapting "Coney Island" for Producer William Perlberg at 20th-Fox.

Many Prominent Guests At "Back Street" Premiere

MIAMI BEACH—With hundreds turned away because of sellouts at the Lincoln and Cameo, the twin premiere of "Back Street" marked a gala event Wednesday night for Universal. Approximately 150 film critics and film executives from all over the country were among the crowds that gathered at both houses for the event. Among the prominent guests were Frank and Mrs. Gannett, newspaper publisher; Damon and Mrs. Runyon, George Ade, Paul Brown, Albert and Mrs. Warner, Mana Zucca, A. H. Blank, John C. Clark, Col. Abe Hallow, Louis Krouse, Harry and Mrs. Richman, Moe A. and Mrs. Silver, Herman and Mrs. Robbins, George Dembow, Otto and Mrs. Brower, Maxie Rosenbloom, Mrs. E. F. Valentine, Robert W. Wilby, David Milgrim, Max A. Cohen, N. B. Shanberg, Alvin and Mrs. Grief, Milton and Mrs. Chapman, N. L. Nathanson, Tom Connors, Ben Sherman, Arthur Lee, Willard McKay, Ottavio Prochet, and a host of others.

Flashes From the News Front

Gov't Files Ascap Suit

MILWAUKEE—The department of justice filed its original suit in federal court here Wednesday against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers following breakdown of negotiations for a consent decree similar to the document recently signed by Broadcast Music, Inc. The BMI decree is conditioned upon the agreement of Ascap to a similar pact.

Would Stay Dual Fees

LOS ANGELES—The Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners will file suit soon against Ascap seeking to restrain the association from collecting "dual fees" from exhibitors. The PCCITO contends Ascap is not entitled to a reproduction fee, payment having been made earlier by producers for the privilege of recording Ascap music.

Illinois Censor Bill

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Creation of a state film censorship board is proposed in a bill submitted the legislature by Rep. Clinton Searle of Rock Island.

Settle Bridges Suit

DALLAS—An out-of-court settlement has been effected in the anti-trust suit of O. B. Bridges against the Interstate circuit. Terms were not disclosed.

New Detroit Delay

DETROIT—Because of a busy court calendar, the Midwest Theatres anti-trust suit against Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan has been put over until March 4. The companion suit of Jacob Schreiber, former owner of the circuit which is now Midwest, against Midwest, has been postponed until March 18 by Judge Ira W. Jayne.

Virginia MPTO Re-elects

WASHINGTON — With Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, and Robert Barton, attorney, highlighting the annual convention with an analysis of the decree, William F. Crockett, president, and Benjamin Pitts, vice-president, were re-elected by members of the MPTO of Virginia at the Shoreham. Harold Woods is secretary and Sam Bendheim, treasurer.

Censors Cut Fee

KANSAS CITY—Reporting a surplus on hand, the Kansas board of censorship has announced a reduction of service fees from $1 to 50 cents per reel. It applies to all features and short comedies. The rate on educational, scenic and cartoon subjects remains at 25 cents. Effective February 1, the new rate will continue until the surplus has been dissolved.

Unify in Detroit

DETROIT—Theatre Owners, Inc., composed of circuits and independents alike, has been formed here to present a united industry front in city operation. Restricted to houses within the city limits, the organization is headed by William Henry Gallagher, attorney, as president, and Ray Meurer, attorney for United Detroit Theatres, as executive secretary.

LeBaron on His Own; DeSylva Successor

HOLLYWOOD—B. G. DeSylva has been named executive producer of Paramount by Y. Frank Freeman to succeed William LeBaron, who resigned this week as managing director of the studio, a post he has held since 1936.

LeBaron will organize his own production unit to make pictures for release through Paramount, his activity to be launched around May 1 after he has taken a vacation.

Announcement of his resignation was coupled with the explanation that when Freeman became vice-president in charge of studio operations, LeBaron agreed to remain in his position for two more years. That two-year term is now up and LeBaron asked, and was granted, a release from his position in order to concentrate on fewer pictures.

Loew's Quarterly Net Above Last Year's

NEW YORK—Loew's operating profits for the quarter ended November 21, 1940 were $787,774 greater than for the same period the year before, according to an interim report issued by David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer. The amount per share dividend was $14.16 on the preferred in comparison to $10.19 the year before and $1.04 on the average common, compared with 71 cents in 1939.

Depreciation and taxes for the quarter ended November 21, 1940 were $1,369,010, as compared with $1,124,025 in 1939. Reserve for contingencies continues the same at $500,000.

Net profits amounted to $1,936,245, as compared with $1,393,456 for the 12 weeks ended November 21, 1939.

The regular board meeting was held Wednesday with routine matters discussed. A special session will be called after stockholders gather next Tuesday. All directors are slated to be reelected and Nicholas M. Schenck, president, is to be given a five-year extension of his current contract.

Directors of the Roxy Theatre declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the preferred, payable March 1, to stockholders of February 15.

"Land of Liberty" Proving Powerful

NEW YORK—What with a national exploitation campaign that is obtaining school, church, civic, patriotic, business and industrial organizations' support, "Land of Liberty," released nationally on January 24, is off to a good start in its initial engagements, 17 of which were in state capitals over the nation.

Cooperation of the various organizational bodies was and is being arranged by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. The Association has four men in the field cooperating with managers and the M-G-M staff—M-G-M handling the picture on behalf of the entire industry, and the campaigns being supervised by its advertising department, under the supervision of Howard Dietz, Si Seadler, W. R. Ferguson, Art Schmidt and Oscar Doob.

Schools are spotting the Hays office "Land of Liberty" posters on their bulletin boards to announce local engagements and, in many instances, dismiss afternoon classes to permit attendance at the showings.

Newspapers Generous

Newspapers have been generous with their support. For example, the Portland Oregonian and the St. Paul Dispatch each devoted an entire pictorial page to the film. The New York Times carried two banks of stills from the film across eight columns of its Sunday film section, together with a story on the production and the New York opening. In Richmond the picture was shown under the joint auspices of the News-Leader and the Times-Dispatch.

Because of the picture's patriotic theme, the first big booking was on January 10 in Washington, where Carter Barron supervised the engagement and Dan Terrell and Carlton Duffus handled exploitation.

The three initial shows in New England were at the Loew Poli Plaza in Worcester, Mass., managed by Robert Portle; the Loew Poli Majestic, Bridgeport, Conn., managed by Morris Rosenthal, and the Loew Poli at Waterbury, managed by Ed Fitzpatrick. In all three cities, civic groups, churches, manufacturers and others cooperated. Harry Shaw, Loew's division manager; Lou Brown, publicity chief, and Mark Larkin of the Hays office, worked with the managers on the campaigns.

Moss Handles New York

The first southern showing was in Richmond, where the Wilmer and Vincent office gave it an excellent campaign. This was handled by Frank O'Brien, city manager; Al Nowitsky, advertising manager, and Bob Egan, manager of the Park, who worked with Carlton Duffus of Bill Ferguson's M-G-M staff and Joe Shea and Gordon S. White of the Hays office.

In the midwest, Metro representatives received the help of Gabe S. Yorke and I. E. Deer, MPPDA men.

The New York campaign for the opening at Loew's Criterion was in charge of Charles Moss, manager; Phil Laufer, publicity director, and Elliot Foreman, Metro exploitation director for the New York area. The Hays office aided by obtaining school, church, club and newsreel cooperation.

What the Studios Are Doing

Labor Scene Churning Again at Studio

HOLLYWOOD—After having been restricted to more or less routine differences and their adjustment, the ever-turbulent labor scene in the film colony threatened to develop a new controversy of major proportions when the Screen Cartoonists Guild, an affiliate of the AFL's Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, lodged a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board charging Walt Disney Productions, Inc., with unfair labor practices.

The SCG contends the Federation of Screen Cartoonists, which Disney recognizes, is a "company union" which has "interfered" with efforts of the SCG to organize a unit on that lot. It has enlisted AFL support, with that organization's spokesmen asserting "steps will be taken" to place Disney product on unfair lists throughout the United States and Canada unless the SCG complaint is settled satisfactorily. Disney attaches point out, however, the FSC was recognized nearly two years ago as official bargaining agent for Disney employes.

Meantime, the Disney company held its annual stockholders' meeting, announced a $140,000 net profit for the first four months of the fiscal year, declared it would produce three more features and a short during the year, and elected the following: Walt and Roy Disney, Gunther Lessing, George E. Morris and Jonathan Lovelace, to the board of directors; Walt Disney, president; Roy Disney, executive vice-president; Lessing, vice-president; Morris, secretary-treasurer.

Minimum of 52 to Start In Next Three Months

With more vehicles being added daily to guarantee an unflagging tempo, a minimum of 52 features will go into production during the next three months. February schedules embrace 24; 17 will roll in March; 11 are set for April starts.

No Arbitration Cases Before Los Angeles Board

No cases have yet been filed with the Los Angeles tribunal of the American Arbitration Association, Clerk William H. Elliott reported, and no steps have yet been taken to organize a panel of arbiters under terms of the consent decree. This despite the fact arbitration proceedings nationally were officially opened Feb. 1.

Golden Joins Small; Litel Leaves Warner

Max Golden resigned from 20th Century-Fox's production department to become production manager for Edward Small . . . John Litel has left the Warner contract list after five years as a character player and will freelance.

Paramount Building Three New Sound Stages

To accommodate heavy production schedules, Paramount has begun construction of three new sound stages and a power house . . . Columbia has effected a commercial tieup with RCA-Victor on "Penny Serenade," embracing national magazine space, newspapers, billboards, radio time, counter display devices and throwaways . . . Paramount will screen "The Shepherd of the Hills" shortly, probably in Chicago, for field exploiteers and sales officials, after which an expanded advertising campaign will be set . . . Prerelease premiere of RKO Radio's "Scattergood Baines" is set for February 14 and 15 in Montpelier and Barre, Vermont, respectively.

Warner Buys Broadway Hit; New RKO Trademark

Warner has purchased "Arsenic and Old Lace," the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse stage hit . . . Joseph Poland sold "Cinderella in Washington" to Republic and "But Beautiful," by Everett Freeman, went to Columbia . . . Elliott Nugent will direct Paramount's "Nothing But the Truth" . . . Rudy Vallee, Glen Gray and his orchestra go into Columbia's "Show Business" . . . RKO Radio will soon debut a new film trademark, with two streamlined radio towers replacing the old "dot-dash" single tower . . . Harry Sherman has lined up four features—two special westerns, two "Hopalong Cassidys"—to produce for Paramount . . . Producers Releasing Corp. has added John T. Coyle as a producer . . . Larry Darmour rolls a serial, "The Spider Returns," for Columbia release February 15.

Underseas Feature Is Financed by Barton

NEW YORK—Otis Barton, who with Dr. William Beebe, developed the bathysphere, which permits greater freedom in underwater photography, is personally financing a new feature entitled "Under the Pacific." For the past fortnight he has been shooting scenes in the Hawaiian Islands. The film will take two years to shoot and will include underwater scenes from the coast of Australia and the Malay Peninsula. A leading lady is being selected to join the expedition. Release will be secured on completion with a budget of $200,000 set for the production.

UA, Columbia May Map Early Convention Plans

NEW YORK—With the return of Arthur W. Kelly from the coast, plans are being mapped for an early UA sales convention.

Columbia is also understood discussing such an idea at conferences now being held on the coast among eastern and western executives. Universal's midwest meet winds up Monday in Chicago after three days.

That the "Little Three," designation for UA, Columbia and Universal as a result of the government suit, were watching the majors and marking time for early sales meetings this year was indicated in these columns several weeks ago.

Rapid Strides Shown In Universal Report

NEW YORK — Rapid strides are being made by Universal, and for the second consecutive year operations show a net profit of more than $1,000,000. According to the latest consolidated report, the 53 weeks ended November 2, 1940 showed a net profit of $2,390,772, or an increase of 107 per cent over the previous fiscal year, J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, advises stockholders.

Gross income for the year ended November 2, last, totaled $27,677,627. Net income for the 12 months aggregated $2,954,467. This compares with a gross income of $23,878,868 for the previous year when a net income of $1,628,733 and a net profit of $1,153,321 were reported.

Retire 7,261 Shares of Preferred

Consolidated current working assets, other cash and accounts receivable, including restricted British sterling, totaled to $12,953,683 on November 2 while current liabilities were $4,241,774, or a ratio of 3.05 to one. Net working capital of $6,823,563 compares with $5,512,194 the year before. Since the beginning of last year, the company retired 7,261 shares of first preferred at an average price of $118.03 per share, including 4,591 shares purchased in response to a request last month for tenders. This leaves 10,739 of this class of preferred outstanding.

Taxes totaled $1,210,648, or $267,490 greater than in the 1939 period, and were equivalent to about 50 cents on each dollar of net profit, according to Cowdin who adds the tax figure for last year was 97 per cent larger than taxes in the 1938 fiscal year. Although the new excess profits tax did not apply last year, it will this year and thereby add a substantial amount to tax payments, he further observes. "Your company desires to pay its full share of taxes, but believes better profits brought about by skilled management should not be penalized by taxation aimed at war profits," he told stockholders.

Strive for Self-Sufficiency

British revenue in the period covered was 1,306,187 British pounds as against 859,084 British pounds in the 1939 fiscal year and 621,476 British pounds in the 1938 fiscal year and 600,032 in the 1937 period. Thus, a substantial gain is reflected in that direction.

The domestic market, which always includes Canada, brought a gross of $18,073,055, or an increase of $2,602,535 over the preceding period. Cowdin re-emphasizes an earlier statement in declaring all effort is being directed toward making Universal self-sufficient in the home market and hopes "that this may be accomplished this year."

Greek-Italian War Short Is En Route to U. S.

NEW YORK—A special short subject of the Greek-Italian war in Albania will be available shortly to theatres in the United States. Approximately 18,000 feet of film photographed of the struggle have reached Egypt, en route to New York. American correspondents in Athens will provide a commentary, according to Thanos Skouras, Greek representative for 20th-Fox, RKO and Paramount.

Heavy Penalties Support Board Subpoena Power

damages sustained" to the parties to a complaint, which, conceivably, could run into thousands of dollars if a subpoenaed witness, for whatever reason, declined to become involved.

The arbitration form which will undoubtedly become most widely known and circulated is "Demand for Arbitration," Form I. AAA sources declare reports have come in from the 31 film tribunals that copies of this form have been picked up in each tribunal. However, this is not to be construed that complaints in such volume have been filed, since it is felt at AAA that the new forms are being studied for future use as well as for immediate filing.

Hearings Not Expected Soon

In the latter respect, it is pointed out that the various phases or procedure to take place after Form I is filed consume up to 30 days prior to actual hearing before an arbitration begins, and it is now regarded as unlikely that the first hearing will be under way much before March 15. Form I is "Statement of claim and relief sought" by the complaining exhibitor. It provides also for names of other exhibitors and distributors whose property the complainant believes may be affected by an award.

Form II is known as "Complainant's Submission." This is his formal declaration that he will abide by and fully comply with the award of the arbitrator.

Form III is "Declaration of Intervention." It is designed for parties who are named in the original complaint, are named in the list filed by a defending party, or are exhibitors or distributors whose property may be affected by an award, and who wish to become interested in the proceeding as an "Intervenor." Form IV provides that such parties will abide by and comply with the award. Form V is routine; Form VI provides for the transfer of jurisdiction from one tribunal to another, while Form VII is for all parties to indicate preference of arbitrators.

Form VIII is the arbitrator's notification he has been chosen to hear a case, compensation for which is "fixed at $10 per diem for each day or part thereof that you attend a hearing or make an inspection." Form IX deals with mutual agreement of both parties to selection of an arbitrator. Form X is an "Application for Revocation of Appointment of Arbitrator," which provides for either side to submit affidavits stating its allegation for demand that an arbitrator be disqualified. Forms XI and XII are routine in connection with revocation of arbitrators; while Form XIII is "Notice of Hearing," which states the time a hearing is to start.

Form XIV is available for the reopening of a hearing in cases where an original complaint was settled before it came to arbitration, but settlement of which was not satisfactory. Form XV is routine in connection with Form XIV. Form XVI is the oath of an arbitrator. Form XVII is the "Subpoena Duces Tecum" referred to earlier, and Form XVIII is the official "Subpoena," but without the demand that "you bring with you, and produce at the time and place aforesaid a certain ..... now in your custody and all other deeds and evidences which you have in your custody or power concerning the premises."

May Inspect Premises

Form XIX is a notice that the arbitrator deems it necessary to make an inspection of certain premises in connection with an arbitration. Form XX is routine, Form XXI is for an application for extension of time, and Form XXII, the longest of all—three pages—is a record of the proceeding in condensed, office form. Form XXIII is the "Award of Arbitrator," Form XXIV is an application for the arbitration to be reopened for a specific purpose, Form XXV is routine, and Form XXVI is a "General Stipulation."

Form XXVII is "Notice of Appeal," which provides for a deposit of $25. Form XXVIII is "Record of Appeal," which takes the appeals board through each of the steps of the arbitration to an award it is being asked to review.

Arbitration Board in RCA Building

New York—The industry's national arbitration appeals board comprising Van Vechten Veeder, Albert W. Putnam and George W. Alger has selected offices on the 12th floor of the RCA Building in Rockefeller Center and expects to take occupancy on February 12. The appeals board will thus be within one block of the new headquarters of the American Arbitration Ass'n., now located on the eighth floor of the U. S. Rubber Co. Building, newest unit in the Rockefeller development.

Republic Sews Up Deal For Texas Franchise

NEW YORK—On his return from Dallas, James R. Grainger, president of Republic Pictures, revealed the company had concluded negotiations with William G. Underwood and Claude C. Ezell, Texas franchise holders, for the purchase of their interests. Both men will devote their time to theatre interests and are now understood building up a circuit of open air theatres. Lloyd Rust will continue as manager of the Dallas branch and no changes in personnel will be made, according to Grainger.

The purchase is in line with Herbert J. Yates plan announced some time ago to buy up as many franchises as possible in an endeavor to operate under a national distribution system like the major companies.

Predict Settlement All Gov't Suits

be made, as are anticipated in the Schine deal now being worked out.

As soon as these two agreements are completed, the government is slated to sit down with counsel for Tony Sudekum of the Crescent circuit whose headquarters are in Nashville where that suit is on file in the federal court.

Meanwhile, the government is not entirely abandoning hope on some arrangement with the "Little Three." While the final deal may not result in a decree, some sort of a working arrangement, or understanding, will be forthcoming, according to those who have been maintaining consistently a settlement finally would be reached.

In regard to UA, which always has held that its selling policy calls for individual agreements on each picture, the understanding probably will be that this plan be continued with no exceptions. In many instances, exhibitors have told the government block deals have been made for all of a UA producer's lineup or the entire program. The government will insist that the full block sales be discontinued.

Sources at Columbia intimate its selling policy may be changed to conform with the decree and that before the year is ended the company may offer no more than five in any individual deal.

Say "U" Will Stay Pat

Universal executives say they are not contemplating any change in marketing methods at this time, but observers feel that, if UA and Columbia change their plans, Universal will fall in line.

It is pointed out, too, that both Universal and Columbia have been selling more two and three-year franchises in the past few months than ever before. UA has not been pushing the franchise idea, having discontinued it several seasons ago because of the uncertainty of deliveries from year to year.

With Columbia and Universal satisfied over the number of their franchises, it is believed that exhibitors who have not signed such agreements may begin to demand pictures in groups of five, following the order adopted by "The Big Five." The reputed reason for this is that there will be more selectivity for the small exhibitor who will want more choice in spotting his shows.

May Demand Previews

Under the decree, an exhibitor dealing with the "Big Five" has an opportunity of bargaining for any or all of the groups of five trade shown. He is in a position to buy one or two, three or four, or none at all, after he sees the pictures. Exhibitors may even demand Columbia and Universal trade show their product before buying.

If the "Little Three" readjust their selling methods to small blocks, it is felt the government's case against them will be well nigh eliminated, for it is the block booking methods to which the department strenuously objects.

Judge Henry Warren Goddard, meanwhile, has set February 17 for hearing on the application by the "Little Three" to dismiss the amended and supplemental bill of complaint, which was filed after "The Big Five" settled on a decree. Counsel for the three distributors have persistently maintained there is no cause of action against these companies since they own no theatres and have many times sold away from the customers which have been held by the government to be "a monopoly."

Preliminary motions have been heard during the past 10 days in the Griffith and Schine cases in Oklahoma City and Buffalo. Motions and hearings will continue, as in the big suit, until compromise settlements are reached.

All of the pending cases, according to the insiders, are expected to be cleared from various court calendars by the end of the year.

Delay Schine Suit; Try for Settlement

BUFFALO—Scheduled for hearing February 3, the government's anti-trust suit against the Schine circuit has been postponed indefinitely.

The delay is the first formal admission of BOXOFFICE's exclusive story from Washington on December 21 that a settlement was in work with Willard S. McKay, New York attorney for Schine, handling the circuit's end.

Ever since the story broke in BOXOFFICE, local exhibitors have been trying to find out what disposition is being made of the suit. As matters now stand, it will be a week or so before terms of a decree are drafted in writing.

The main issues for settlement are understood to have been worked out in the past week between McKay and Robert L. Wright, government attorney, with the final drafting of the agreement now in other department hands.

Gov't Bill of Complaint Holds "Little Three"

OKLAHOMA CITY—Not unexpected, Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught has denied motion by counsel for the "Little Three" to dismiss the government's amended bill of complaint in the Griffith Amusement case.

At the same time, the judge extended the time for defendants to answer or object to the long list of government interrogatories until March 1, with indications that unless something happened in the way of a settlement trial could be expected in the spring.

The current hearings, while regarded as important to Edward C. Raftery, counsel for Universal and United Artists, must be continued until secret negotiations now going on for a separate decree are concluded. Malcolm McKenzie of this city assisted Raftery and also acted for Columbia. J. B. Dudley, also of this city, represented the circuit defendants.

Atlas Preferred, 75 Cents

NEW YORK—Atlas has declared a 75 cents dividend on the 6 per cent preferred stock for the quarter ending February 28, payable March 1 to stockholders of record February 14.

National Theatres Delays Meeting

NEW YORK—Pressure of business has compelled Spyros Skouras to postpone the annual meeting of National Theatres divisional managers, originally scheduled for the week of February 10 at the Ambassador, Los Angeles. Tentative plans now call for the session to start either February 24 or March 3, with the latter date most likely the one to be finally set.

For the past few months Skouras has taken an intensive interest in the Greek Relief Fund drive, visiting various sections of the country and holding meetings for the cause.

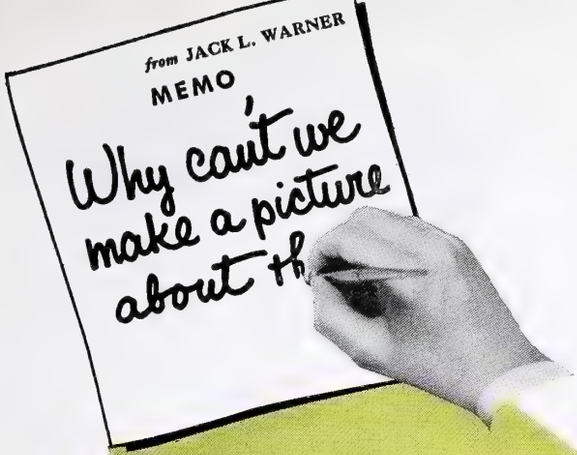
At the coast meetings, new policies will be discussed as well as an analysis of the decree, as it affects theatre operation, by Richard Everett Dwight and Fred Pride of Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, counsel for 20th-Fox and National Theatres.

Winners in the recent drive have been tabulated and will be announced at the coast sessions. Arch Bowles, northern California zone head, has returned to San Francisco after a few weeks here. David Idzal, managing director of the Fox, Detroit, made one of his periodic trips to the National home office. Edward Zabel, assistant to Skouras, is back from a week in Milwaukee, and Milton S. Hossfeld, who has been vacationing on the coast, is due back Monday.

New Cash Quiz Game Launched by Circuits

NEW YORK—A new Cash Quiz game is currently breaking in theatres in the east, including most of the first run chains, among them M&P, Fabian, Schine's, Randforce, and Loew's.

A distinguishing feature of Cash Quiz is that prizes are awarded the week following participation in the quiz, with attendance compulsory to collect the prize.



The game is run without a master of ceremonies, being shown on the screen and employing a sound track which is used in connection with a series of cartoons to ask the questions.

Patrons receive numbered cards tabbed for "yes" and "no" answers. These cards are collected by ushers and the following week the ones marked correctly are called from the stage and the week's prize sum divided among the winners. Unclaimed amounts go into a jackpot.

Second 20th-Fox Parley on Decree Set for March

NEW YORK—A second conference on the operation of the decree will be held by 20th-Fox home office and studio executives on the coast, sometime in March, preliminary to the new selling season. The session will await return from New York of Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, now in the east on personal business. Sidney R. Kent, president, and Felix A. Jenkins, general counsel, will be among those attending.

Plans now are being made for individual handling of "The Outlaw," produced by Howard Hughes.

"Philadelphia Story" Takes January Blue Ribbon Award

A comedy of high society behind the scenes of the forbidden Philadelphia "Main Line" is M-G-M's screen dramatization of "The Philadelphia Story," which picture has been selected by members of the National Screen Council as the outstanding film released in January and winner of the BOXOFFICE Blue Ribbon Award for that month.

Directed by George Cukor and produced by Joseph L. Mankiewicz, the trio star players comprise Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn and James Stewart, the supporting cast being headed by Ruth Hussey, John Howard, Roland Young, John Halliday, Mary Nash and Virginia Weidler.

Cary Grant has received previous BOXOFFICE Award plaques for his performances in "Holiday," which won the June, 1938, Award and in which Katharine Hepburn also appeared and for which she received an honor plaque, for "Gunga Din" (Feb. 1939), and "The Howards of Virginia" (Sept. 1940). James Stewart has received similar Award honors also for "You Can't Take It With You" (Oct. 1938), "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" (Oct. 1939), and "The Mortal Storm" (June, 1940). Virginia Weidler received two Award plaques last year for her roles in "Young Tom Edison" (Mar. 1940), and "All This, and Heaven Too" (July, 1940). George Cukor, who directed "Holiday," and Donald Ogden Stewart who wrote the screenplay for that film, have both received Award plaques for their work on that production.

This Award is given each month to the film receiving the highest number of votes by the members of the National Screen Council, whose selection is governed by outstanding merit and suitability of the film to whole-family entertainment. Members of the Council include over 200 motion picture editors of leading newspapers throughout the country, motion picture reviewing committee of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, and state motion picture chairmen of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Western Union

F — Historical Western

20th Century-Fox (126) — 93 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 21, '41

Clear all wires—here's a flash of action entertainment which should be a must on Page One of everybody's motion picture theatre budget. It relates the stringing of the first trans-continental telegraph line, around which hazardous undertaking is spun such a yarn of hardship, adventure and romance as to make the film one of the all-time superest of the super-westerns. As a piece of red-blooded, he-man showmanship the film is close to perfection. The bankroll stops are pulled out to their limits to mount the production and endow it with the sweep and spectacle which have become a necessary adjunct to epics dealing with the winning of the west. The cast, although it boasts no top-flight names, was shrewdly selected and every member thereof justifies his or her (there is only one her) place on the program. Fritz Lang's direction keeps the story moving at a gallop all the way. Technicolor photography was never used to better advantage than in ensnaring the natural beauties of the western plains, mountains and forests, against which natural backgrounds the feature was staged. The screenplay is an adaptation of an original by Zane Grey and chronicles the attempts of renegades and Indians to hamper the construction of the "singing wires" between Omaha and Salt Lake City.

Robert Young, Randolph Scott, Dean Jagger, Virginia Gilmore, John Carradine, Slim Summerville, Chill Wills.

EXPLOITIPS: Prepare a giant telegram with copy concerning the picture and hang it above the marquee as a banner. In cooperation with local Western Union offices, arrange to have messenger boys wear armbands plugging the film. Install a modern teletype in theatre lobby and invite patrons to send messages to friends and relatives. Have local Western Union managers place heralds advertising the feature on all outgoing telegram envelopes. Give Robert Young and Randolph Scott the marquee credits.

CATCHLINES: Fighting Engineers of the "Singing Wires" . . . Battling With Six-Gun and Rifle to Clear an Electric Path Through the Wilderness.

The Wild Man of Borneo

F — Comedy

M-G-M (121) — 78 Minutes — Rel. Jan. 24, '41

Substantial and competent entertainment has been concocted out of the original Marc Connelly-Herman Mankiewicz play. A period piece, the story utilizes smooth laughing matter, middle age and youthful romances, an introduction to the world of the sidewalk pitchman and a smartly cast troupe that gives out creditably. Medicine Showman Frank Morgan leaves the road to find his daughter, whom he thinks has come into money. The truth is otherwise. Both go to gas-lit New York and take up residence at a theatrical boarding house run by Billie Burke. Other tenants include Donald Meek, a bird imitator; Bonita Granville and Dan Dailey jr. Marjorie Main is the scullery maid who tells everyone off, but comically. Morgan immediately senses the gullible Miss Burke's feeling for the theatre and proceeds to fill her ears with the mullarkey. He "assumes" a solo kinship with Richard Mansfield. However, in order to make some money he takes a job in Walter Catlett's freak museum where ultimately he is found by the boarding house menage. It then gets complicated, but Morgan's natural vocal gift finds a way out.

Frank Morgan, Mary Howard, Billie Burke, Donald Meek, Marjorie Main, Connie Gilchrist.

EXPLOITIPS: Work up a spiel contest among the customers with passes for the winners. Get the doorman to dress loudly, a la Frank Morgan and have him reel off a spiel on the merits of the film. Get a few oil burning carriage lamps for lobby atmosphere. Tie in with shops for Miss Howard's costumes. Distribute lollypops with the wrapper imprinted "Don't Be a Sucker, See Frank Morgan Expose All the Tricks of the Trade."

CATCHLINES: He Might Soft Soap You—But You'll Come Out Laughing and Holding Your Sides.

Back Street

A — Triangle Drama

Universal (——) — 89 Minutes — Rel. Feb. 7, '41

The original version of this well-known novel by Fannie Hurst, of course, will be remembered as an important attraction. A review of the new version with Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan inevitably gets under way with the self-safe observation. "Back Street" is in the bag because of its predominant appeal to women. Presumably, the story is familiar, telling as it does of the Cincinnati girl who loses out on marriage through a twist of fate but who later meets the man she loves in New York. He is married, and a father; she is a designer of clothes. Their romance again flourishes and remains alive over a period of 25 years when the man's death is immediately followed by the woman's. All through their association, she walks the back street of his life, influencing him and loving him but always sharing him with his family and his worldly position. "Back Street" is a touching and tender story, very well performed by its two principals and intelligently and restrainedly directed by Robert Stevenson, young British director now in Hollywood. The supporting cast is in keeping with the whole. Production trappings are excellent and expertly applied to the dramatic thread of the drama.

Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullavan, Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh, Tim Holt, Samuel S. Hinds, Frank Jenks.

EXPLOITIPS: Emphasis on star value, of course, is important. The author is worth stressing, also. The costumes of the early part of the century suggest a fashion contest. The press book advises throwaways made up of pages of the novel, but carrying an imprint about the date of the engagement in red. For those who go in for street ballyhoos, an open book effect carrying cutouts of Boyer and Sullavan might be mounted on a truck for a tour of the neighborhood. Directional snipes, if locally acceptable with the authorities, could point to the theatre with messages reading "All Roads Lead to Back Street" and then the name of the theatre.

Fans who have dumped carloads of nickels into the juke boxes to hear Wee Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker's orchestra should be more than satisfied with their first film appearance. It's a nonsensical musical, giving Bonnie plenty of opportunity to display her talents, including a rendition of "Oh, Johnny," which skyrocketed her to fame among swing addicts. The vehicle, produced and written by Gene Markey, is well equipped to please most audiences. Tucker emerges as a surprisingly competent actor with personality and a singing voice. Supporting cast is headed by Jerry Colonna, whose screwball comedy enlivens the proceedings considerably. The plot is very slight and has a dance band-broadcasting background, which provides ample opportunity for the staging of five musical numbers. Colonna runs a resort catering to those wishing to lose weight. To it comes Albert Dekker, orchestra leader, who must drop 50 pounds in order to grab a sponsor. Rivalry springs up between Dekker and Tucker over the services of Bonnie as singer. Ralph Murphy did a competent directorial job.

Orrin Tucker, Bonnie Baker, Jerry Colonna, Albert Dekker, Edward Everett Horton, Lillian Cornell, Teddy Hart.

EXPLOITIPS: Play the Bonnie Baker-Orrin Tucker recording of "Oh, Johnny" over the lobby p. a. system. Music store tieups should be arranged not only on past Tucker-Baker records, but also on the five numbers in this picture. Jerry Colonna has built up quite a following via phonograph recordings, films and radio appearances. Give him supporting mention on the marquee. Distribute small heart-shaped badges as throwaways, each imprinted with the picture title. Hold an amateur contest for Bonnie Baker imitators.

CATCHLINES: It's Wee Bonnie Baker . . . The Lass With the Little-Girl Voice . . . Who Made Herself the Nation's Sweetheart With "Oh, Johnny."

F — Musical Comedy

Universal (——) 84 Minutes Rel. Jan. 31, '41

Timeliness is this feature's greatest asset. As the first of an impending large number of pictures dealing with the draft and other phases of national defense, it will doubtlessly strike a popular chord and register revenue scores of husky proportions. The task of spinning a yarn about life in Uncle Sam's newly recruited army is undertaken with a tongue-in-cheek attitude, which keeps the motivation within the established limits of musical comedy most of the way. Consequently, during the film's comic and musical moments—and they predominate—it is very good entertainment, approaching the riotous at times. In which departments, credit goes to Abbott and Costello and the Andrews Sisters, respectively. When the story veers toward its few dramatic, super-patriotic and romantic interludes, however, it loses ground, attributable principally to weak performances by the remaining members of the cast. Arthur Lubin's direction, his first "A" assignment, is of high calibre.

Lee Bowman, Alan Curtis, Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, the Andrews Sisters, Jane Frazee, Nat Pendleton.

EXPLOITIPS: Make over theatre front and lobby to look like a recruiting post, with a "soldier" doing "sentry duty" on the sidewalk in front. Hold a special "draft" preview to which neighborhood draftees are invited at courtesy rates. Perhaps one of the R. O. T. C. units could be persuaded to present a drill team on the stage. Abbott and Costello, radio comics, and the Andrews Sisters, renowned singing ensemble, rate the marquee credits. Arrange tieups with music stores on the Andrews Sisters' recordings and on the six songs contained in the picture.

CATCHLINES: It's a Riot of Music and Laughter . . . As Abbott and Costello Become Units in Uncle Sam's Great Draft Army . . . And Nearly Upset the Whole Defense Program.

They Were Caught in the Draft . . . And Found Life as Rookie Soldiers Better Than Being Constantly Behind the Eight-Ball.

Hotel Du Nord

A — Drama

Juno Films (SR) 83 Minutes Rel. ——

Handled in the directorial tradition that created esteem for French product in this country, "Hotel Du Nord" is a compelling dramatic story, in the "Grand Hotel" manner. The existences of a group of prosaic people in a small pension in Paris are jolted into emotional heights by the affairs of a man and a girl. The girl comes with a lover to carry out a suicide pact. The man, a criminal, is hiding from gangsters out to put him on the spot for framing them. The girl survives a bullet. The lover is jailed. When she returns she finds in the criminal another soul trying to find itself. They go off to Marseilles, but she returns without having fulfilled her part of the bargain by going eventually to Port Said. Back at the pension, the girl is later reunited with her released lover and the criminal is murdered during a July 14th celebration. The girl is Annabella; the man, Louis Jouvet. Marcel Carne seems to have directed his story in real Montmartre locations. From France, another fine film.

Louis Jouvet, Annabella, Arletty, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Andre Brunot, Paulette Dubost.

EXPLOITIPS: The critics of foreign newspapers published in this country have selected this film as the finest French import of the year. Contact the distributor for the information. They awarded Arletty, one of the better French actresses, the palm for the best performance. Annabella, of course, is well known here. Louis Jouvet has a comfortable reputation by virtue of past performances. Blow up portraits of the cast for lobby display. There are English titles.

CATCHLINES: Another Fine Dramatic Offering . . . Set in the Heart of Paris.

Two Souls Find Themselves . . . At the Hotel Du Nord.

Secret Evidence

F — Melodrama

Producers Releasing Corp. (107) 63 Minutes Rel. Jan. 3, '41

Melodrama in which circumstantial evidence almost convicts an innocent man of an attempted murder, this carries a heavy enough cargo of entertainment to earn its way in the action and neighborhood houses. Further, it provides an A-1 example of how Producer E. B. Derr can squeeze the utmost out of every budget dollar. The cast is pretty light as to drawing power, but turns in satisfactory performances, with Marjorie Reynolds and Charles Quigley, in the leads, being particularly effective. Quigley portrays a rising young assistant in the district attorney's office, in love with Miss Reynolds. When Ward McTaggart, an ex-convict, is seriously wounded, her brother is arrested and tried. Quigley then is faced with the dilemma as to whether to risk losing Miss Reynolds' love or finding the true assailant. William Nigh directed.

Marjorie Reynolds, Charles Quigley, Ward McTaggart, Kenneth Harlan, Bob White, Boyd Irwin, Donald Curtis.

EXPLOITIPS: Charles Quigley has earned something of a reputation among action fans and consequently deserves the marquee credits. Hang a huge compo-board question mark above the boxoffice or marquee and snipe the neighborhood with posters containing a portrait of Ward McTaggart, captioned "Wanted—Dangerous Criminal." Ask police cooperation in arranging an anti-crime display in the lobby, including fingerprinting apparatus and an explanation of the science of ballistics. Promote an essay contest among high school students on the question of circumstantial evidence and its value and disadvantages in courts of law.

F — Western

Columbia (2204) 61 Minutes Rel. Jan. 9, '41

A smart departure from the routine story treatment of an open air saga gives this western a better than average rating. Introducing as leading lady, Louise Currie, who should go places, the story offers Charles Starrett as a rancher driving cattle from Texas to Kansas, to a railhead. His way is beset by the local bigots who still are fighting the Civil War and a deep-dyed villain who tries to frame the hero with a murder, cattle rustling and a bank robbery before he gets his due. The whole yarn dovetails neatly with action elements effectively worked in; the music by the Sons of the Pioneers humorously relieves the dramatic strain.

EXPLOITIPS: This one rates a little extra attention. Utilize the standard gags and, in addition, feature the career of Miss Currie in advance publicity broadsides. She comes from Max Reinhardt's Workshop, has appeared in radio and television on the coast. She's good. The Sons of the Pioneers can be tied in locally on the radio. Line up the usual Starrett props. Consult the library for books and other material relating to the driving of cattle to railway facilities during the days when the west was young and call attention to them.
